Notification.

THE Corporation of the Town of Calcutta are prepared with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, under the provisions of section 334 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1876, to receive tenders for a Debenture Loan for 3,00,000 (three lacs of rupees) on the security of the Rates, Taxes, and Dues imposed and levied under the said Act to be expended on the drainage improvements of the town of Calcutta.

2. Debentures will be issued for the said amount bearing interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st April and 1st October of each year and having a currency of 20 years.

3. The form of the debenture bonds will be that given in the seventh schedule of the aforesaid Act.

4. No debenture will be issued for any sum less than Rs. 500 (five hundred), and above that amount debentures will be issued only for even sums of Rs. 100 (one hundred).

5. Subscriptions will be received by the Bank of Bengal and debentures will be issued as soon as possible in exchange for the receipts.

6. Tenders for the whole or any part of the above-named sum of Rs. 3,00,000 (three lacs) will be received by the Secretary to the Corporation up to 2 o'clock P.M. of the 21st March 1883.

7. Each tender must be made out in the form annexed to this notification and enclosed in a sealed cover superscribed "Tender for Municipal Loan for 1882-83."

8. Tenders will be opened at the Municipal office on Wednesday, the 21st of March 1883, at 2 o'clock P.M., a minimum rate having been previously fixed.

9. Each tender must be accompanied by Government promissory notes or currency notes equivalent to 2 per cent of the amount tendered.

10. The deposits on tenders which may not be accepted will be returned on application, and will be forfeited if an allotment after being made is not taken up.

11. In case of two or more tenders at the same rate (being not below the minimum) a pro rata allotment will be made.

12. The rate stated in a tender must not contain any fraction of an anna. If a rate containing a fraction of an anna is inserted in any tender such fraction will be struck out and the tender treated as if the rate did not contain such fraction of an anna.

13. In order to avoid mistakes a separate tender must be made at each rate tendered and a separate deposit must accompany each such tender. It is desirable that the tender or at least the name of the person making the tender and the amount and rate tendered should written in English

C. W. HOPE,
Acting Secretary to the Corporation.

5th March 1883.

Form of Tender.

I HEREBY tender for (rupees) of the loan advertised in the notification published in the Calcutta Gazette, dated 7th March 1883, and agree to pay for the same subject to the conditions notified at the rate of Rs. annas* for every hundred rupees allowed to me.

* Fractions of one anna not allowed.

2. I enclose Government promissory notes or currency notes for Rs. and engage, if my offer be accepted, to pay to the account of the Municipality at the Bank of Bengal, Calcutta, on or before Saturday, the 31st March next, the amount of the accepted tender.

N B.—A separate tender must be made at each rate tendered and a separate deposit must accompany each tender. In order to avoid mistakes it is desirable that the tenderer, at least the name of the person making the tender, and the amount and rate tendered, should be written in English.

Calcutta Port Trust.

DEBENTURE LOAN.

THE Calcutta Port Improvement Act, 1870, Act V (B.C.) of 1870, and the Calcutta Port Improvement Act Amendment Act of 1880, Act IV (B.C.) of 1880, amended by Act I (B.C.) of 1881, issue of twenty lakhs of rupees, 4½ per cent. debentures, having a currency of thirty years.

Tenders are invited for twenty lakhs of rupees in 4½ per cent. debentures, to be issued under the provisions of Act IV (B.C.) of 1880 and Act I (B.C.) of 1881 to provide for the cost of works sanctioned by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, which loan, and the interest thereon, will be a charge on the property of the Commissioners.

The debentures will be for sums of Rs. 100 each or multiples of Rs. 100, as may be desired, made payable to order, and carrying interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly (on the first day of April and first day of October) at the office of the Port Commissioners, upon presentation of the debentures. Two per cent. of the amount tendered for to be paid on application, and the balance on the 1st of April 1883, from which date interest will run.

The deposit of two per cent. will be returned if an allotment is not made, and it will be forfeited if an allotment after being made is not fully taken up.

In case a less number of debentures is allotted than is applied for, the excess of the deposit will be applied in or towards payment of the balance due upon such number as may be allotted.

Tenders in the annexed form should be filled up and sent to the Secretary to the Port Commissioners before noon of Wednesday, the 14th day of March 1883, accompanied by a receipt from the Bank of Bengal for deposit of two per cent. upon the amount of each debenture applied for. The tenders will be opened in the presence of the Port Commissioners.

The minimum rate at which tenders will be accepted will be recorded under the signature of the Chairman, and before the tenders are opened, but will not be made public unless some tender is rejected only because it is below the recorded minimum.

Forms of tenders can be obtained on application to the Secretary to the Port Commissioners, and the form of debenture can be seen at the office of the Secretary. A separate tender must be made for each rate.

By order of the Commissioners,

G. H. SIMMONS, Secretary.

Port Commissioners' Office, dated 21st February 1883.

The Indian Law Reports.

Published under Authority of the Governor-General in Council.

THE Reports appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Parts of each series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set.

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

	Without postage.	With postage.

Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.

(Chapter II.—Investigations into Shipping Casualties.)

An Act for the further amendment of the law relating to Merchant Shipping.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to investigations into casualties affecting ships and charges against masters, mates and engineers; and whereas it is also expedient to provide, in other respects hereinafter appearing, for the regulation and control of Merchant Shipping;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.

Extent.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

(3) and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1884.

IV of 1875.

Repeal of enactments.

2. (1) The Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875, and Act XIII of 1878 (an Act to provide for the recovery in British India of wages due to, and expenses incurred in respect of, certain seamen and apprentices, and to amend the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875, and the Indian Ports Act, 1875), are hereby repealed.

(2) But all proceedings commenced, officers appointed, powers conferred, investigations held, certificates cancelled or suspended, agreements made and persons authorized under the said Acts or either of them, shall be deemed to have been respectively commenced, appointed, conferred, held, cancelled or suspended, made and authorized under this Act.

Definitions.

3. In this Act—

"ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars; and

"master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being control or charge of a ship.

Saving and provision as to powers for removal of master.

4. (1) Nothing in this Act shall affect the powers conferred by section two hundred and forty of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or by section eighty of Act I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Shipping), on Courts having admiralty jurisdiction in India.

17 & 18 Vic., s. 104.

(2) The powers conferred by the last-mentioned enactment may, at any port in British India where there is no Court having admiralty jurisdiction, be exercised by the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction at that port.

CHAPTER II.

INVESTIGATIONS INTO SHIPPING CASUALTIES.

Chapter not to apply to certain ships.

5. Nothing in this chapter shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or of the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Report of casualties to be made to Local Government.

6. (1) Whenever any Magistrate, or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, receives credible information that—

(a) any ship has been lost, abandoned, stranded or materially damaged on or near the coasts of British India; or

(b) by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any ship on or near those coasts, loss of life has ensued; or

(c) any ship has caused loss or material damage to any other ship on or near those coasts; or

(d) any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has happened elsewhere to, or on board of, any British ship, and any competent witnesses thereof have arrived or are to be found at any place in British India; or

(e) any British ship is supposed to have been lost, and any evidence can be obtained in British India as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of;

he shall forthwith report in writing the information to the Local Government.

(2) In the cases mentioned in clauses (a), (b) and (c), the master, pilot, harbour-master, or other person in charge of the ship, or (where two ships are concerned) in charge of each ship, at the time of the loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty, and in cases under clause (d), where the master of the ship concerned, or (except in the case of a loss) where the ship concerned, proceeds to any place in British India from the place where the loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has occurred, the master of the ship, shall, on arriving in British India, give immediate notice of the loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty to the nearest Magistrate, or, when he arrives at a port in British India, to the officer appointed as aforesaid at that port.

(3) Any person bound to give notice under this section and wilfully failing to give the same shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Power for Local Government to appoint special Court of Investigation.

7. (1) If in any such case a formal investigation into the facts mentioned in section six, clause (a), (b), (c), (d) or (e), appears to the Local Government to be requisite or expedient, the Local Government (whether the notice is given or not) may appoint a special Court, consisting of not less than two nor more than four persons, and direct that Court to make the investigation, and may fix the place for making the same.

(2) One of the members of the Court shall be a Magistrate acting in or near the place where the investigation is made; another shall be some person conversant with maritime affairs; and the other or others (if any) shall be conversant with either maritime or mercantile affairs.

Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.

(Chapter II.—Investigations into Shipping Casualties.)

Power for other Courts to hold investigations into casualties when so directed.

8. Every Court having admiralty jurisdiction in British India, and the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction at every port of British India where there is no Court having admiralty jurisdiction, is hereby authorized, when so directed by the Local Government, to make the investigations referred to in section seven.

Power for Court of Investigation to inquire into charges against masters, mates and engineers.

9. (1) Any Court making an investigation under section seven or section eight may inquire into any charge of incompetency or misconduct arising, in the course of the investigation, against any master, mate or engineer, as well as into any charge of a wrongful act or default on his part causing any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty as aforesaid.

(2) In every case in which any such charge, whether of incompetency or misconduct, or of a wrongful act or default, as aforesaid, arises against any master, mate or engineer in the course of an investigation, the Court shall, before the commencement of the inquiry, cause to be furnished to him a copy of the report or statement of the case upon which the investigation has been directed.

Power for Local Government to direct investigation into charges of incompetency or misconduct.

10. (1) If the Local Government has reason to believe that there are grounds for charging any master, mate or engineer, holding a certificate granted by the Board of Trade or a Local Government, with incompetency or misconduct, otherwise than in the course of an investigation under section seven or section eight, it may transmit a statement of the case to any Court mentioned in section eight, at or nearest to the place at which it may be convenient for the parties and witnesses to attend, and may direct that Court to make an investigation into that charge.

(2) Before commencing the investigation, the Court shall cause the master, mate or engineer so charged to be furnished with a copy of the statement transmitted by the Local Government.

Person accused to be heard.

11. For the purpose of an investigation under this chapter into any charge against a master, mate or engineer, the Court may summon him to appear, and shall give him full opportunity of making a defence either in person or otherwise.

Powers of Courts as to evidence and regulation of proceedings.

12. For the purpose of any investigation under this chapter, the Court making the investigation, so far as relates to compelling the attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents and the regulation of the proceedings, shall have—

(a) if the Court is a special Court—the same powers as are exerciseable by the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction for the place at which the investigation is made;

(b) if the Court is a Court having admiralty jurisdiction or a principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction—the same powers as are exerciseable by that Court in the exercise of its admiralty or criminal jurisdiction (as the case may be).

Assessors.

13. (1) When any investigation involves, or appears likely to involve, any question as to the cancelling or suspension of the certificate of a master, mate or engineer, the Court making the investigation shall constitute as its assessors for the purpose of the investigation two persons having experience in the Merchant Service; and in every other investigation the Court making it may, if it thinks fit, constitute as its assessor for the purposes of the investigation any person conversant with maritime affairs and willing to act as its assessor.

(2) The assessors shall attend during the investigation and deliver their opinions in writing, to be recorded on the proceedings. But the exercise of all powers conferred on the Court by this Act or any other enactment for the time being in force shall rest with the Court.

Power to arrest witnesses and cause entry and detention of vessels.

14. (1) If any Court making an investigation under this chapter thinks it necessary for obtaining evidence that any person should be arrested, it may issue a warrant for his arrest, and may, for the purpose of effecting the arrest, authorize any officer (subject, nevertheless, to any general or special instructions from the Local Government) to enter any vessel.

(2) Any officer so authorized may, for the purpose of enforcing the entry, call to his aid any officers of Police or Customs, or any other persons, and may seize and detain the vessel for such time as is reasonably necessary to effect the arrest; and every such officer or other person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

(3) No person shall be detained by virtue of this section for more than forty-eight hours.

Power to commit for trial and bind over witnesses.

15. (1) Whenever, in the course of any such investigation, it appears that any person has committed within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India an offence punishable under any law in force in British India, the Court making the investigation may (subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court may from time to time prescribe) cause him to be arrested, or commit him or hold him to bail to take his trial before the proper Court, and may bind over any person to give evidence at the trial, and may, for the purposes of this section, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate of the first class or of a Presidency Magistrate.

(2) For the purposes of this section the Recorder of Rangoon shall, within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, be deemed to be the High Court.

Depositions.

16. (1) Whenever, in the course of any such trial, the testimony of any witness is required in relation to the subject-matter, any deposition previously made by

Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.

(Chapter III.—Suspension and Cancellation of Certificates, &c.)

him in relation to the same subject-matter before any Court making an investigation under this chapter shall, if authenticated by the signature of the Magistrate or presiding Judge, be admissible in evidence on proof—

(a) that the witness cannot be found within the jurisdiction of the Court before which the trial is held; and

(b) that it was made in the presence of the person accused and that he had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness.

(2) A certificate by the Magistrate or presiding Judge that the deposition was made in the presence of the accused and that he had that opportunity shall, unless the contrary be proved, be sufficient evidence that it was so made and that he had that opportunity.

Report by Court to Local Government.

17. (1) The Court shall, in the case of all investigations under this chapter, transmit to the Local Government a full report of the conclusions at which it has arrived, together with the evidence.

(2) In cases in which, under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1882, the Court is required to send a report to the Board of Trade, the report shall be sent through the Local Government, and the transmission of the report to the Local Government shall be a sufficient compliance with this section.

CHAPTER III.

SUSPENSION AND CANCELLATION OF CERTIFICATES AND GRANT OF FRESH CERTIFICATES.

Saving of power to cancel and suspend certificates under English Acts.

18. Nothing in this Act shall affect the powers conferred by the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1882, on the Courts conducting investigations under sections seven, eight, nine and ten of this Act, to cancel or suspend certificates granted under any of the said Merchant Shipping Acts, or certificates to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869. 32 & 33 Vic., c. 11.

Power to issue local certificates in lieu of cancelled or suspended certificates.

19. (1) When any such Court cancels or suspends any such certificate, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, and if it is so empowered by any enactment of a British Indian legislature for the time being in force, grant under that enactment, but without examination, to the holder of the certificate, when the certificate is a certificate as master, a certificate as mate, and, when the certificate is a certificate as mate or engineer, a certificate as mate or engineer, as the case may be, of a grade lower than that which he held at the time of the cancellation or suspension.

(2) A certificate so granted shall have the same effect as if it had been granted after examination, but shall not have the effect of a certificate granted under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, or of any Order in Council under that Act. 32 & 33 c. 11.

(3) The Local Government may act under this section either in pursuance of a recommendation from the Court, or of its own motion.

Power for Local Government to suspend or cancel certificates in certain cases.

20. Any certificate (whether of competency or service) which has been granted by any Local Government to any master, mate or engineer, but has not been granted under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, or of any Order in Council under the said Act, may be suspended or cancelled, by that or any other Local Government, in the following cases, that is to say:— 32 & 33 c. 11.

(a) if, on any investigation made under this Act, the Court reports that the loss, stranding or abandonment of, or damage to, any ship, or loss of life, has been caused by his wrongful act or default, or that he is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of drunkenness, tyranny or other misconduct;

(b) if, on any investigation made under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1882, or on any investigation made by any Court or tribunal for the time being authorized by the legislative authority in any British possession to make inquiry into charges of incompetency or misconduct on the part of masters, mates or engineers of ships, or as to shipwrecks or other casualties affecting ships, the Court or tribunal reports that the master, mate or engineer is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of misconduct, drunkenness or tyranny, or that the loss, stranding or abandonment of, or damage to, any ship, or loss of life, has been caused by his wrongful act or default;

(c) if he is proved to have been convicted of any offence which, if committed in British India, would be non-bailable, or, if committed in England, would be a felony; and

(d) if (in case of a master) he has been superseded by the order of any Admiralty Court, or of any Naval Court constituted as provided by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or by any other law for the time being in force: 17 c. 1

Provided that, in any case in which an investigation has been made into a charge against any master, mate or engineer, a certificate shall not be suspended or cancelled under clause (a) unless the Local Government is satisfied that the holder of the certificate has been furnished before the commencement of the investigation with the copy of the report or statement required by section nine or section ten, as the case may be.

Obligation to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

21. Every master, mate or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section twenty shall deliver it to the Shipping Master or to such other person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended the certificate directs, and in default of such delivery shall, for each offence, be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Agreements with Seamen.)

Report to other Local Governments.

22. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends, under section twenty, a certificate of a master, mate or engineer is not the Local Government that granted the same, the Local Government so cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the proceedings, and the fact of cancellation or suspension, to the Local Government which granted the certificate.

Report to Board of Trade.

23. Every Local Government cancelling or suspending under section twenty the certificate of a master, mate or engineer shall, as soon as may be practicable, report to the Board of Trade the fact of such cancellation or suspension.

Power to revoke cancellation or suspension and grant new certificate.

24 (1) Any Local Government may at any time revoke any order of cancellation or suspension which it may have made under section twenty, or grant, without examination, to any person, whose certificate it has so cancelled, a new certificate of the same or of any lower grade.

(2) A certificate so granted shall have the same effect as if it had been granted after examination, but shall not have the effect of a certificate granted under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, or of any Order in Council under the said Act.

(3) A certificate of competency for a Home-trade ship under Act I of 1859 shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be of a lower grade than a certificate of competency for a foreign-going ship under the same Act.

CHAPTER IV.

AGREEMENTS WITH SEAMEN.

Chapter to be read with Act I of 1859.

25. This chapter shall be read with, and taken as part of, Act I of 1859.

Masters to enter into agreements with seamen.

26. The master of every ship, except ships of a burden not exceeding three hundred tons employed only in the Home-trade, shall enter into an agreement with every seaman whom he engages in, and carries to sea from, any port in British India as one of his crew, in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

Form and contents of agreement.

27. (1) Every such agreement shall be in a form sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, and shall be dated at the time of the first signature thereof, and shall be signed by the master before any seaman signs the same, and shall contain the following particulars as terms thereof, that is to say:—

(a) either the nature and, as far as practicable, the duration of the intended voyage or engagement, or the maximum period of the voyage or engagement, and the places or parts of the world, if any, to which the voyage or engagement is not to extend;

(b) the number and description of the crew, specifying how many are engaged as sailors;

(c) the time at which each seaman is to be on board or to begin work;

(d) the capacity in which each seaman is to serve;

(e) the amount of wages which each seaman is to receive;

(f) a scale of the provisions which are to be furnished to each seaman; and

(g) any regulations as to conduct on board, and as to fines, short allowance of provisions or other lawful punishments for misconduct, which have been sanctioned by the Governor General in Council as regulations proper to be adopted, and which the parties agree to adopt.

(2) Every such agreement shall be so framed as to admit of stipulations to be adopted at the will of the master and seaman in each case (not being inconsistent with the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force relating to Merchant Shipping), as to advance of wages and supply of warm clothing, and may contain any other stipulations which are not contrary to law.

Scale of provisions to be furnished to lascars.

28. (1) In the case of such agreements with lascars or other Native seamen, the scale of the provisions agreed to be furnished to each of such seamen shall not be less than a scale to be from time to time fixed and published by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

(2) Any master entering into an agreement with any lascar or other Native seaman for a scale of provisions less than the scale so fixed and published shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Stipulation where lascars are shipped.

29. (1) Whenever it is agreed that the service of any lascar or other Native seaman shall end at any port not in British India, the agreement shall, in addition to the particulars specified in section twenty-seven, contain a stipulation that fit employment shall be provided for him on board some other ship bound to the port at which he was shipped, or such other port in British India as may be agreed on; or that a passage shall be provided for him to some port in British India free of charge, or on such other terms as may be agreed on.

(2) Every such stipulation shall be signed by the owner of the ship, or by the master on his behalf.

(3) In this section the word "seaman" shall include also any Native of British India carried to sea from any port in British India as one of the crew of a ship.

Forms for British or Colonial ships.

30. If the master of any ship belonging to the United Kingdom or any British possession has an agreement with his crew, made in due form according to the law of the place to which the ship belongs, or in which her crew were engaged, and engages a single seaman, not being a lascar or other Native seaman, in any port in British India, the seaman may sign the agreement so made, and it shall not be necessary for him to sign an agreement under this Act.

Merchant Shipping Act, 1883.
(Chapter V.—Health-Officers.)

CHAPTER V.

HEALTH-OFFICERS.

XII of 1875.

Addition to Act XII of 1875.

31. In the Indian Ports Act, 1875, after section eighteen, the following section shall be inserted, that is to say:—

Appointment and powers of Health-officer.

"18A. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint, at any port subject to this Act, an officer to be called the Health-officer, and may suspend or remove from office any officer so appointed.

"A Health-officer shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, have the following powers within the limits of the port for which he is appointed, that is to say:—

"(a) with respect to any ship, the powers conferred on a Shipping Master by Act I of 1859, section 71

"(b) power to enter on board any ship and medically examine all or any of the seamen or apprentices on board the ship;

"(c) power to require and enforce the production of the log-book and any other books, papers or documents which he thinks necessary for the purpose of enquiring into the health and medical condition of the persons on board the ship;

"(d) power to call before him and examine for any such purpose all or any of those persons and to require answers to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

"(e) power to require any person so examined to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by him.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Power to appoint persons to sue.

17 & 18 Vic., c. 104.

18 & 19 Vic., c. 91.

17 & 18 Vic., c. 104.

I of 1872.

32. (1) Where any wages or expenses recoverable under section 213 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or under section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855, are, under the same sections, a charge upon any ship, or recoverable from any master, owner or other person, within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India, the Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, authorize, either generally or specially, such persons as he thinks fit to sue for and recover, in manner in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, provided, those wages or expenses.

(2) Every person so authorized shall be entitled to sue and recover accordingly in any such Court, and shall be deemed to be a person filling a public office within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 57, clause 7.

Proceedings to be instituted in name of Secretary of State for India in Council.

33. All suits and proceedings under section thirty-two shall be instituted and carried on in the name of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Amendment of section 10 of Act I of 1859.

34. In section 10 of Act I of 1859, for the words "Fees at the following rates shall be paid by all applicants for examination:—

For a certificate as master	...	ten rupees.
Ditto ditto as mate	...	five „ "

the following shall be substituted, namely:—"Fees at such rates as the Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, fix in this behalf shall be paid by all applicants for examination."

Addition to section 11 of Act I of 1859.

35. To section 11 of Act I of 1859 the following shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that the Local Government may, in any case in which it has reason to believe that such report has been unduly made, require, before granting a certificate, a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character."

Amendment of section 79 of Act I of 1859.

36. For the last fifteen words of section 79 of Act I of 1859, the following shall be substituted, namely:—"punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with both."

Provisions as to examinations, &c., of masters not to apply to certain ships.

37. Sections 9 to 16 (both inclusive) of Act I of 1859 shall not apply to ships registered under Act X of 1841 and trading between ports in India and the coasts of Arabia, when such ships are navigated and manned exclusively by Arabs, lascars or other Asiatic masters and seamen.

Amendment of Act X of 1841, secs. 2, 15, 17 and 23.

38. In sections 2, 15, 17 and 23 of the said Act X of 1841, for the words "on information in any Court of Her Majesty or the East India Company by the Advocates General of the respective Presidencies," "by information as aforesaid," "on information as aforesaid," "upon information as aforesaid," in each of the places where they occur, the following words shall be substituted, namely:—"on conviction before a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class."

B. B., the Bill submitted by the Bengal Government with letter No. 849, dated 27th July, 1881.

TO

Amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the Territories under the Administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1884.

Commencement.

(2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Local extent.

(3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the Town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to the Division of Orissa.

Repeal.

2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedu hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation.

(2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division, or, where a part only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that part, shall be repealed in that Division.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

Construction of Act.

3. The following definitions and rules shall apply in the construction of this Act unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context:— C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.

(1) "Estate" means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands, prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Collector of a district:

(2) "Proprietor" means a person or a number of persons owning an estate:

(3) "Tenure" includes an under-tenure and the interest of every tenant of the class referred to in section 14. New.

Illustrations.

(a)—A durpatni or sipatni interest or a mokurrerree holding is a tenure.

(b)—A dar-ijarah or a farm for a term of years is a tenure.

(4) "Tenure-holder" means a person or a number of persons owning a tenure.

(5) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat, in respect of any land, or to hold that land as a raiyat, unless he holds it for the purpose of agriculture, horticulture or pasture, or he or his predecessor in interest came into possession of it for such purpose: C. B., s. 3 "raiyat" and "land." B. B., s. 3 "raiyat" and "land."

Provided that a person shall be deemed to hold as a raiyat any bastu or homestead land included in the same holding with other land held by him as a raiyat.

Explanation.—A person may hold land for a purpose mentioned in this clause though he has sublet it.

(6) "Under-raiyat" means a tenant holding land whether immediately or mediately below a raiyat.

(7) "Bastu holding" means bastu or other homestead land held by a tenant having the right provided for by Chapter VII. New.

(8) "Tenant" does not include any person who is not a tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat, or the tenant of a bastu holding. New.

(9) "Landlord" means a person or a number of persons immediately under whom a tenant holds.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter I.—Preliminary, Chapter II.—Khamar and Raiyatí Land. Secs. 4—8.)

(10) "Rent" means whatever is payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant.

(11) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

D. s. 101. C. B. s. 56. B. B. s. 48.

(12) "Arrear" means an instalment, or part of an instalment, of rent which is not paid before sunset of the day on which it is payable.

(13) "Holding" means a parcel of land held by a tenant of a landlord under one lease or one set of conditions.

New.

(14) "Agricultural year" means, where the Bengalí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Bysáck, and where the Faslí or Amlí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin.

C. B. ss. 60 & 16. B. B. ss. 6 & 15.

(15) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Bihár and Orissa made in the year 1793.

(16) "Transfer" includes sale, whether voluntary or in execution of a decree, and mortgage and gift.

(17) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession.

(18) "Bihár" means all the districts of the Patna Division, and such district or parts of districts of the Bhágalpur Division as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare to be included in Bihár for the purposes of this Act.

(19) "Signed" includes "marked" when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to.

(20) "Prescribed" means prescribed by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette.

(21) "Collector" means the Collector of a District or any other officer appointed by the Local Government to discharge the functions of a Collector under this Act.

(22) "Revenue-officer" in any provision of this Act means such officer as the Local Government may appoint to discharge the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

C. B. s. 4 Report of Rent Commission, s. 3. B. B. s. 4.

Saving of custom, special law, &c.

4. Nothing in this Act shall affect—

(a) any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions;

(b) the powers and duties of Settlement-officers as defined by any law not expressly repealed by this Act;

(c) any enactment regulating the procedure for the realization of rents in estates belonging to the Government, or under the management of the Court of Wards or of the revenue-authorities;

(d) any enactment relating to the avoidance of tenancies by a sale for arrears of the Government revenue;

(e) any enactment relating to the partition of out revenue-paying estates;

(f) any other special or local law not repealed either expressly or by necessary implication by this Act or

(g) any incident of a ghátwálí or other service tenure.

Illustration.

The custom that an under-raiyat should, under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be affected by this Act. C. B. s. 19 Expl. 4 (f) B. B. s. 19, Expl. 4 (e) proviso.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN KHAMAR AND RAIYATÍ LAND.

Khamar land defined.

5. "Khamar land" means—

1st, land situated elsewhere than in Bihár which a proprietor has held, whether under the name of khamar, nij-jote, ser or otherwise, as his private land for twelve continuous years before the commencement of this Act, and C. B. s. 81. B. B. ss. 3 & 75.

2nd, land situate in Bihár which—

(a) is recognized as zeraat by a village custom established before the commencement of this Act: or

(b) is proved to have been held by a proprietor as zeraat for twelve continuous years immediately before the commencement of this Act.

All other land to be raiyatí.

6. All land which is not khamar land of some estate shall be deemed to be raiyatí land, and all land shall be presumed to be raiyatí land until the contrary is proved. & 75.

Power to order survey and register of khamar lands.

7. The Local Government may direct that a survey and register shall be made of all khamar land situate in any district or part of a district. B. B. s. 7

Mode of making survey.

8. The survey shall be made by the Collector or by an officer authorized by the Collector in that behalf, under such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government for the conduct of such surveys; and the Collector or such officer may exercise any of the powers conferred upon a Collector by the Bengal Survey Act of 1875, except the powers in Part IV of the said Act relating to the apportionment and recovery of expenses. B. B. s. 7 V. (B. of 18

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders generally. Secs. 9—20.)

Publication of register.

9. The Collector shall make a register, in such form as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, of such lands in each village as he may ascertain to be khamar lands within the meaning of the definition contained in section five; and copies of that register shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

Appeals.

10. (1) Any person dissatisfied with any entry in the register may appeal to the Commissioner within one month after the publication; and the Commissioner shall make such enquiry as he considers necessary, and may direct the register to be amended in such manner as he thinks fit.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Board of Revenue from any order passed by the Commissioner under this section, if preferred within one month from the date of the order.

Submission of register to Board of Revenue and Local Government.

11. If no appeal is preferred to the Commissioner, or after such appeals as have been so preferred have been disposed of, the Commissioner shall submit to the Board of Revenue a copy of the register, with a report showing how the survey and register have been made; and, if the Board are satisfied that the register is correct, they shall transmit the same to the Local Government for its approval.

Approval of register.

12. If the Local Government approves the register, it may direct that its approval of the same be notified in the official Gazette: Provided that its approval shall not in any case be given until after three months from the date of the publication under section nine.

Consequence of notification of approval.

13. When the approval of a register by the Local Government has been notified under section twelve, all land entered in the register shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, be deemed to be khamar land, and all other land situate in the local area for which the register has been prepared shall, notwithstanding anything as aforesaid, be deemed to be raiyati land.

CHAPTER III.—OF TENURE-HOLDERS GENERALLY.

A.—Of the Right to hold at fixed rents.

Land held at rent unchanged since Permanent Settlement not liable to enhancement.

14. Where land has been held by a tenant and his predecessors in interest at a rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, then, subject to the provisions of this Act, the rent shall not be liable to enhancement, and the tenant shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder for the purposes of this Act.

Presumption from twenty years' holding at unchanged rent.

15. Where land has been held by a tenant and his predecessors in interest at a rent which has not been changed for twenty years, then, subject to the provisions of this Act, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that it has been held by them at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement. [D. ss. 21 & 38. C. B. ss. 6 & 17. B. B. ss. 6 & 16.

Application of sections 14 and 15 when rent is paid in kind.

16. When a tenant has paid as rent a fixed share or the value of a fixed share of the produce of the land, the rent shall not be deemed to have been changed within the meaning of sections fourteen and fifteen merely by reason of the amount paid having varied from year to year, or by reason of the rent having been commuted to a fixed money-rent. [D. s. 38. C. B. s. 16. B. B. s. 15. Expl. I.]

Effect of separation or amalgamation of holding.

17. The operation of the foregoing sections of this chapter shall not be affected by the fact of land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding. [D. s. 37. C. B. s. 16, Expl. II. B. B. s 15, Expl. II.]

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

18. (1) Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof— [D. s. 19. C. B. s. 7. B. B. s. 7.]

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by the special custom of the district, or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded; and that the lands are capable of affording it.

(2) A reduction of rent granted to a tenure-holder, on account of diluvion or for land taken under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force for the acquisition of land for public purposes or companies, shall not be deemed a reduction within the meaning of this section.

Saving as to land held under terminable agreement.

19. Nothing in the foregoing sections of this chapter shall apply to land held under a terminable agreement. [D. s. 20. C. B. s. 6. B. B. s. 6.]

Saving as to land held in a district not permanently settled.

20. Where the area comprised in a tenure is situate in an estate which has never been permanently settled, nothing in the foregoing sections of this chapter shall prevent the enhancement of the rent upon the expiration of a temporary settlement of the revenue, unless the right to hold beyond the term of the settlement at a fixed rate of rent has been expressly recognized in settlement-proceedings by a Revenue-authority empowered by the Government to make definitively or confirm settlements. [C. B. ss. 6 & 17, Exception. B. B., ss. 6 & 16, Exception.]

[D. s. 23. C. B. ss. 9 & 12. B. B. ss. 9 & 10.]

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

21. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, the Court shall not, except as provided in sub-sections four and five, leave the tenure-holder as profit more than thirty per centum or less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting those rents.

(4) If more than half the land included in the area of the tenure was unreclaimed at the time when the tenure was created, and if the reclamation of the unreclaimed land was one of the objects of the creation of the tenure, and that land was reclaimed accordingly, the Court, in determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, shall not leave the tenure-holder as profit less than twenty per centum of the balance mentioned in sub-section three, and may leave him as profit any share of that balance whether it exceeds thirty per centum thereof or not.

(5) If, in any case to which sub-section four does not apply, the tenure-holder has made improvements on the land, the Court, in determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, may leave him as profit any share of the balance mentioned in sub-section three it thinks fit, provided it be not less than ten per centum of the balance.

(6) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

[C. B., s. 10. B. B., s. 11.]

Enhanced rent not to be more than double the previous rent.

22. Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, the enhanced rent fixed under section 21 shall not be more than double the rent previously payable.

[C. B., s. 10. B. B., s. 11.]

Power to order gradual enhancement.

23. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

[C. B., s. 10. B. B., s. 11.]

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for ten years.

24. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced under section 21 or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced under that section during the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

C.—Of the Incidents of permanent tenures.

[C. B., s. 13 B. B., ss. 12 & 41.]

Incidents of permanent tenures generally.

25. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act in respect of registration, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

26. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except under a decree of a Civil Court passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

D.—Of the registration of transfers of, and succession to, permanent tenures.

[D. s. 25. C. B., s. 46. B. B. s. 37.]

Landlord bound to register voluntary transfer or succession on application.

27. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by a summary sale under Chapter IV) or a succession to such a tenure takes place, the landlord shall, subject, in the case of a patní tenure, to the provisions of section 39, register the same on application made to him by the transferor and transferee, or by the person succeeding, as the case may be, and on payment by the applicant of the fee next hereinafter prescribed.

D. s. 27. C. B., ss. 47, 49. B.B., ss. 39, 41.]

(2) The fee payable on an application under this section shall be as follows, namely :—

(a) When the application is made not more than six months from the date of the transfer or succession, a fee of two per centum upon the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees.

(b) When the application is made more than six months from the date of the transfer or succession, a fee of twenty per centum upon the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than ten rupees or more than one thousand rupees.

(3) When a landlord refuses to comply with an application for registration, made as required by sub-section one, he shall deliver to the applicant a statement in writing of the reasons for his refusal. [New.]

[New.]

Application may be served through Revenue-officer.

28. (1) An application for the registration of a transfer of or a succession to a tenure may, instead of being made to the landlord under section 27, be made to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf; and, on its being so made, and on the fee payable under section 27 being paid to the officer, he shall cause a notice to be served

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders generally. Secs. 29—35.)

on the landlord, requiring him to register the transfer or succession, and informing him that the fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected.

(2) A landlord on whom a notice is served under this section shall, subject in the case of a patní tenure to the provisions of section 39, be bound to comply forthwith with the requisition therein contained.

[C. B. ss. 47, 48 (c) B.B., ss. 39, 40 (c).]

Registration in case of transfer by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

29. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 314 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay into Court the registration fee prescribed by section 27, clause (a), and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed by the rules under section 35.

XIV of 1882.

(2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall forthwith cause to be served on the landlord a notice of the sale, requiring him to register the same, and informing him that the registration-fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected; and the landlord shall be bound to comply with the requisition forthwith.

Rgistration in case of transfer by sale in execution of decree for rent or by summary sale.

30. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, or by summary sale under Chapter IV, the landlord shall be bound to register the transfer without any application or requisition being made to him in this behalf, and without the payment of any fee.

Effect of omission to register voluntary transfer.

31. When a transfer of a permanent tenure (not being a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under Chapter IV) has taken place, the landlord may, until the transfer has been registered under section 27, or a Revenue-officer has ordered a notice to be served under section 28, hold the transferor and transferee jointly and severally liable for arrears of rent accruing subsequent to the transfer.

B., s. 35. B., s. 44.]

Application to Court to compel landlord to register.

32. (1) When a landlord refuses or neglects for a period of one month to register a transfer or succession which he is bound to register under the foregoing sections, the transferor or transferee, or, as the case may be, the person succeeding, may apply to any Civil Court having jurisdiction in the local area within which the land is situate to compel such registration.

(2) The Court to which an application is made under sub-section one may issue a notice to the landlord, and, when the application is made by one party to a transfer, also to the other party or parties to the transfer, requiring him or them, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place therein specified, why the transfer or succession should not be registered.

(3) If no cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may make an order directing the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and the order so made shall have the force of a decree in a suit.

Application by landlord to compel registration.

33. (1) When a transfer (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under Chapter IV) or a succession, registrable under the foregoing sections, has taken place, and no application is made for its registration within the six months following the date on which it has taken place, the landlord may apply to any Civil Court as aforesaid to compel the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to consent to its registration and pay the fee mentioned in section 27, clause (b). [C. B., ss. 50 and 51. B. B., ss. 42 and 43.]

(2) The Court to which an application is made under sub-section one may issue a notice calling upon the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place specified in the notice, why they or he should not consent to the registration and pay the fee.

(3) If no cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may make an order authorising the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and directing the transferee, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee; and the order so made shall have the force of a decree in a suit.

Landlord to give copies of entries in the register.

34. When a transfer of, or a succession to, a tenure has been registered under the foregoing sections, every person to or from whom the tenure or any share thereof is transferred, or (as the case may be) every person succeeding to the tenure, shall be entitled to receive free of charge from the landlord on demand a copy of the entry in the register relating to the tenure, certified under his hand as a true copy, and to receive from time to time in like manner as many additional copies as he may demand: provided that for every such additional copy he shall pay to the landlord such fee, not less than eight annas or more than five rupees, as the Board of Revenue may from time to time fix in this behalf. [C. B., s. 54. B. B., s. 46.]

Power to make rules regarding registration.

35. (1) The Board of Revenue may from time to time, by rules consistent with this Act and published in the official Gazette, prescribe forms for the registers to be maintained under the foregoing sections, and determine the mode in which, and the place at which, applications are to be made under section 27, and generally the procedure to be followed in regard to registration. [C. B., s 54. B. B., s. 46.]

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IV.—Patní Tenures. Secs. 36—45.)

(2) In making any rule under sub-section one the Board may provide that any breach thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

CHAPTER IV.

Of Patní Tenures.

D. s. 26. C. B., ss. 14 & 15. B. B., ss. 13 & 14.]

Definition of patní tenure.

36. "Patní tenure" means a tenure of the kind described in Schedule II annexed to this Act, and includes the darpatní and other similar under-tenures referred to in that schedule.

D. s. 26. C. B., s. 14. B.B., s. 13.

Incidents of patní tenures.

37. (1) Every patní tenure shall be deemed to be a permanent tenure.

(2) The holder of a patní tenure may, subject to the provisions of this Act, let the land comprised in his tenure or any part thereof.

[B. B. s. 45 (c).]

Right of landlord of patní tenure to demand security from transferee.

38. When a patní tenure is transferred, whether voluntarily or by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, the landlord may require the transferee to furnish substantial security, to the amount of one half year's rent of the tenure, for the payment of the rent and the fulfilment of the other conditions of the tenure.

[B. B. s. 45 (a).]

Landlord may refuse registration of voluntary transfer when security is not given.

39. When a patní tenure is transferred otherwise than by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, the landlord may refuse to register the transfer under Chapter III of this Act until the security required under section 38 is furnished.

[B. B. s. 45 (b).]

Landlord may attach tenure sold in execution or by summary sale when security is not given.

40. (1) In the case of a transfer by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, if security is demanded by the landlord from the purchaser under section 38, and is not furnished within one month from the date on which it is so demanded, the landlord may attach and hold possession of the tenure to the exclusion of the transferee until the security is furnished.

(2) While an attachment under this section continues, the landlord may collect the rents from the undertenure-holders or raiyats, and, after deducting therefrom the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection and the rent due to himself, he shall hold the balance in trust for the purchaser.

(3) If the rents so collected are not sufficient to discharge the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection, and the rent due to the landlord, the purchaser shall be liable for the deficiency, and the landlord may proceed against him for the recovery of the same.

[B. B. s. 45 (c).]

Application to Civil Court, if security tendered is refused.

41. (1) If the security tendered under section 38 by any transferee is rejected by the landlord, the transferee may, within three months from the date of the rejection, apply to the Civil Court for an order directing the landlord to receive the security, and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the security tendered, may make such order, or, if not so satisfied, may make an order rejecting the application.

(2) No appeal shall lie from any order under this section.

Recovery of arrears by summary sale.

42. If default is made in payment of the rent due in respect of a patní tenure, held immediately from a proprietor, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy given him by law, apply for the summary sale of the tenure in accordance with the rules for the sale of patní taluqs at the instance of zemindars, contained in Schedule III annexed to this Act.

Provided that nothing in those rules shall entitle a purchaser at any such sale to eject an occupancy-raiyat or cancel any contract entitling him to hold at a rent which was fair and equitable at the time the contract was made.

Chapter V.—Of Occupancy Raiyats generally.

[B. S. 19, Expl. II.]

Interpretation.

43. For the purposes of this chapter—

(a) "village" means an area included in a village-map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, and, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as the Local Government or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine: and [New.]

(b) where two or more estates have been created by one or more partitions taking place since the first day of January, 1853, the area comprised in the parent estate of which they would have formed part if no such partition had taken place, shall be deemed to be a single estate.

[B.B. s. 19(1) & Expl. IV & proviso.]

Present occupancy-raiyats to become occupancy-raiyats under Act.

44. Every raiyat who, immediately before the commencement of this Act, has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom having the force of law, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land shall, when this Act comes into force, become, for the purposes of this Act, an occupancy-raiyat of that land.

Acquisition of status of settled raiyat of village or estate.

45. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held, as a raiyat, raiyatí land situate in any village or estate, shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, and though the land so held by him at different times during that period may have been different, be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Raiyats with Right of Occupancy. Secs. 46—52.)

(2) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have held as a raiyat any raiyatí land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(3) Raiyatí land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have been held as a raiyatí holding also by each such co-sharer.

Loss of status of settled raiyat.

46. If a settled raiyat of a village or estate has ceased for a period of one year, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, to hold raiyatí land as a raiyat in that village or estate, either alone or as a co-sharer with others, he shall be deemed to have ceased, on the expiration of that period, to be a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Settled raiyat to have occupancy-right in raiyatí land held by him in village or estate.

47. Every settled raiyat of a village or estate holding after the second day of March 1883 as a raiyat any raiyatí land comprised in that village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to acquire or have acquired in that land a right of occupancy under the law for the time being in force:

[D. s. 40, Expls. I & V. B. B. s. 19, Expl. IV.]

Provided that a person shall not acquire a right of occupancy under this section in respect of any land held by him alone as owner, tenure-holder or ijáradár.

Acquisition of occupancy-right by grant.

48. (1) A proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, from whom a person takes land as a raiyat, or immediately under whom a person holds land as a raiyat, may grant to that person an occupancy-right in respect of that land.

(2) An occupancy-right granted under this section shall be deemed to be an occupancy-right within the meaning of this Act.

[D. s. 40, Expl. V. B. B. s. 19, Expl. III (b), Expl. IV (f).]

Acquisition of occupancy right in khamar land.

49. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years ending after the commencement of this Act, has held khamar land as a raiyat shall, unless he has held it for any portion of that period under a lease for a fixed period, acquire a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The holding of the father or other person from whom a raiyat inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the raiyat for the purposes of this section.

Incidents of occupancy-right generally.

50. When a raiyat has an occupancy-right in respect of any land, the following provisions shall, notwithstanding any contract between him and his landlord to the contrary, apply, namely:—

[B. B. s. 69.]

(a) he may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy:

(b) he may make improvements on the land as by this Act provided:

(c) he shall pay rent at fair and equitable rates determined as by this Act provided: [B. B. s. 21, (d).]

(d) he shall not be ejected by his landlord from the land, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected: [B. B. s. 21 (e), 31, 69 (a).]

(f) his interest in the land shall, subject to the rights reserved to the landlord by this Act, be capable of being transferred, and bequeathed by will in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property: [B. B. s. 21 (a) and (b).]

(g) his interest in the land shall, if he dies intestate in respect of it, descend in the same manner as any other immoveable property: provided that, in any case in which, under the law of inheritance to which he is subject, his other property goes to the Crown, his interest in the land shall go to his landlord. [B. B. s. 21 (c).]

Landlord's right of pre-emption on voluntary sale of occupancy-right.

51. (1) When an occupancy-raiyat intends to sell his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord, he shall file in the office of the Collector, or of the officer in charge of the sub-division, for service on the landlord, a written notice of his intention, stating the person to whom he intends to sell the right, and shall defer proceeding with the sale for one month from the date on which he files the notice.

(2) The officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord.

(3) The landlord may, within the period of one month from the date of the notice being filed, claim to purchase the occupancy-right from the raiyat at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of one month; and, if the landlord so claims, the raiyat shall sell the right to him accordingly.

(4) If a raiyat sells his right of occupancy in contravention of this section, the landlord may, within six months from the date of the sale, claim to purchase the right from the purchaser or any other person into whose hands it may have passed at a price ten per centum below its estimated value, and, if the landlord so claims, the purchaser or that person, as the case may be, shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on sale in execution.

52. Where an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, and two or more persons, one of whom is the landlord, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding, the bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the landlord.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Raiyats with Right of Occupancy. Secs. 53—59.)

Landlord's right to take the place of mortgagee on foreclosure.

53. (1) Where a right of occupancy has been mortgaged by the raiyat and an order absolute for foreclosure is applied for in respect of it under section 87 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Court shall, if it proposes to make the order, cause a notice of the application to be served on the landlord, and shall defer making the order for a period of one month from the service of the notice.

IV of 1882.

(2) If the landlord within the said period of one month pays into Court the amount requisite to redeem the mortgage, the Court shall pay that amount to the plaintiff in the suit, declare the landlord entitled to stand in the place of the plaintiff, and pass an order absolute for foreclosure in favour of the landlord.

(3) An order absolute passed under sub-section two shall have the same effect as if the landlord had been the mortgagee and the plaintiff in the suit.

Landlord's right to purchase in case of gift of occupancy-right.

54. (1) When an occupancy-raiyat makes a gift of his occupancy-right to any person other than his landlord, he shall forthwith file in the office of the Collector, or of the officer in charge of the sub-division, for service on the landlord, a written notice of the gift, stating the person to whom he has made it.

(2) The officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord.

(3) The landlord may, within the period of one month from the date on which the notice is filed, claim to purchase the right from the donee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of one month, and, if the landlord so claims, the donee or other person as aforesaid shall sell the right to him accordingly.

(4) If a raiyat makes a gift of his occupancy-right, and does not comply with the provisions of this section, the landlord may, within six months from the date on which the gift is made, claim to purchase the right from the donee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at a price ten per centum below its estimated value; and, if the landlord so claims, the donee or that person, as the case may be, shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Landlord's right to purchase where occupancy-right is bequeathed.

55. When an occupancy-raiyat dies, and any person, other than a person to whom, if the raiyat had died intestate, the occupancy-right would have descended, acquires that right under a bequest made by the raiyat, the landlord may, within the period of six months from the date on which the right is so acquired, claim to purchase the right from the legatee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at such price as may be agreed upon between them, or, if they cannot agree upon a price, at such price as the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, made within the said period of six months, fix in this behalf, and if the landlord so claims the legatee or other person as aforesaid shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Raiyat of land of which landlord has acquired occupancy-right to be an occupancy-raiyat.

56. Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, when the landlord of an occupancy-raiyat acquires, under the foregoing sections or otherwise, the occupancy-right in any of the land comprised in the holding, any person thereafter holding the land as a raiyat shall have a right of occupancy in respect of it, and, if immediately before the acquisition of the right by the landlord the rent of the land was a money-rent, shall be entitled to hold at a money-rent fixed in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Acquisition of status of settled raiyat by succeeding to occupancy-right.

57. Every person succeeding by way of intestate succession to the occupancy-rights, or any share of the occupancy-rights, of a settled raiyat of a village or estate, in respect of any land situate in that village or estate, shall become a settled raiyat of the village or estate:

Provided that, when a person so succeeding holds as a raiyat at the time when he so succeeds other land in the same village or estate, he shall not, merely by reason of becoming a settled raiyat of the village or estate under this section, acquire, under section 47, an occupancy-right in that other land.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE RENT PAYABLE BY OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

(A).—Of money-rents generally.

Existing money-rents payable until altered as herein provided.

58. A money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable, and shall continue to be paid by him until it is enhanced under this Act or reduced. [B. B. 21 (d).

Enhancement of money-rents by contract.

59. (1) A money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by a contract in writing approved of, and registered by, a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf. [New.]

(2) A Revenue-officer shall not, under this section, approve or register any contract by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than six annas per rupee greater than that previously payable, or more than one-fifth of the estimated average annual Benyal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VI.—Rent payable by Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 60—67.)

value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time, or any contract, until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that the raiyat in entering into it acts as a free agent.

[B. B. s. 21 (d).]

Money-rents not enhanceable except as provided.

60. Except as provided by section 59, or on account of an addition to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, a money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced otherwise than by a decree passed under this chapter.

Limit of money rent payable by settled raiyat taking new holding.

61. (1) When raiyati land which has previously been held by a tenant at a money-rent is let to a settled raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, that raiyat shall not be bound to pay therefor any rent higher than that which was paid by the previous tenant, unless the higher rent has been fixed by a contract in writing, approved of and registered by a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) A Revenue-officer shall not under this section approve of or register any contract by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time, or any contract, until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that the raiyat in entering into it acts as a free agent.

B.—Of the preparation of a table of rates and produce, and of suits to enhance money rents where such a table is in force.

[B. B. ss. 131 & 132.]

Power to direct preparation of table.

62. The Local Government may, by an order in the official Gazette, direct a Revenue-officer to prepare for any local area, with the aid of such assessors as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, a table showing for each class of land comprised in that area the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats, the average gross produce of the land and the average value of that produce.

Contents of table.

63. The table shall specify—

[B. B. s. 133.]

(a) the several classes of land for which, having regard to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, it is necessary to fix different rates of rent;

(b) the rate, or the maximum and minimum rates, of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats holding land of each such class; and

(c) the estimated average amount, or the maximum and minimum estimated average amounts, of the gross produce in staple crops of land of each such class, and the estimated average value or values of that produce.

Principle on which rent-rates are to be fixed.

64. In fixing the rate of rent for any class of land under section 63 regard shall be had— [B. B. s.

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time the table is prepared;

(b) to the value of the average annual gross produce of land of that class and the cost of raising such produce about the time at which those rates were fixed, or, if that time or the value and cost about that time cannot readily be ascertained, to the value of the average annual gross produce and the cost of raising such produce about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for the purpose of comparison;

(c) to the value of the average annual gross produce of land of that class and the cost of raising such produce at the time at which the table is prepared; and

(d) to the following rule, namely, that when the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the value of the average gross produce of land of that class, the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased value of the produce bears to the former value:

Provided that the rate fixed for any class of land shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce in staple crops of land of that class, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time. [B. B. s. 24, cl. (c).]

Local publication of the table.

65. When the Revenue-officer has prepared the table, he shall publish it in the local area to which it relates in the vernacular language prevailing in that local area, in such manner as the Board of Revenue may from time to time prescribe. [B. B. s. 137.]

Revenue-officer to deal with objections.

66. Any person objecting to any entry in the table may present a petition to the Revenue-officer within a period of one month after the publication; and the Revenue-officer, with the aid of the assessors, shall consider any such objection, and may alter or amend the table. [B. B. s. 138.]

Table to be submitted to superior Revenue-authorities.

67. If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after those objections have been disposed of, the Revenue-officer shall submit the table, together with his proceedings, a report setting forth the grounds of his decision on each point, and any petitions of objection which may have been [B. B. s. 139.]

received, through the Commissioner of the Division, to the Board of Revenue for approval.

[B. B. s. 140.] 68. The Board of Revenue may amend the table submitted under section 67 in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently made, or may return the case for further enquiry.

Proceedings of Board of Revenue thereupon.

[B. B. s. 141.] 69. When a table of rates has been sanctioned by the Board, it shall be submitted to the Local Government, which may amend the same in any manner it thinks fit, and may direct, if it thinks fit, that the table or amended table shall be published in the official Gazette with a specification of the local area to which it applies.

Publication of table after final sanction.

[B. B. s. 143.] 70. A table for any local area published under section 69 shall come into force on the date on which it is so published, and shall continue in force for such period, not less than ten or more than thirty years, as the Local Government at the time of publication may direct.

Period for which table remains in force.

Table to be conclusive evidence.

(1) that the proceedings for the preparation of the table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act:

(2) that, except as in this Act provided, the rates shown in the table for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies:

(3) that the average gross produce of land of any class, and the average value thereof, are in accordance with the gross produce and the value specified in regard to that class in the table.

72. All expenses incurred by the Government in preparing a table of rates and produce for any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in its preparation, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in its preparation in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by occupancy-raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as the Local Government may from time to time determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

Expenses incurred in preparing table how defrayed.

[B. B. s. 144.] 73. When a table is in force under the foregoing sections for any local area, the landlord of any holding within that area, held by an occupancy-raiyat at a money rent, may, subject to the provisions of section 78, institute a suit to enhance the rent then payable on the ground that it is below that which would be payable at the rates shown in the table; and the Court shall enhance the rent in accordance with the rates shown in the table, or, where for any class of land a maximum and a minimum rate are entered in the table, to such rate, not higher than the maximum and not lower than the minimum, as it thinks fit: Provided that—

Suit to enhance where table is in force.

1st.—Where the rent of any land comprised in the holding would, by reason of a change having taken place in or in regard to the land since the raiyat or his predecessor in interest began to hold it, be fixed under this section at a higher rate, and would, but for that change, have been fixed under this section at a lower rate, the following rules shall apply, namely:—

(a) if the change has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of that land at the lower rate; [B. B. s. 23, cls. (3) & (4).]

(b) if the change has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at such rate intermediate between the higher rate and the lower rate as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks fair and equitable; and [New.]

(c) if it is not proved that the change has been effected by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at a rate equal to the lower rate, together with half the difference between the higher rate and the lower rate. [B. B. s. 24 (a).]

2ndly.—When the raiyat proves that by contract or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than the rate applicable under this section, the Court shall fix the rent at the lower rate. [B. B. ss. 24(c), 142, proviso.]

Illustrations.

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

when the land is irrigated from a well ... Rs. 4 per acre.
when the land is not so irrigated ... Rs. 2 „

The holdings of A, B, C and D, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on these holdings respectively.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VI.—Rent payable by Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 74—76.)

The well on A's holding is an ancient one existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs. 2 per acre, and that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

when such land is irrigated from a branch of a river ...	... Rs. 4 per acre.
when such land is not so irrigated	... Rs. 2 per acre.

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs. 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

C.—Of suits to enhance money rents where a table of rates and produce is not in force.

B. ss. 23 (3) and 4 (v) 2.]

Grounds on which landlord may sue to enhance where table is not in force.

74. (1) The landlord of a holding held at a money rent by an occupancy-raiyat and situate in a local area for which a table of rates and produce, prepared under the foregoing sections, is not in force, may, subject to the provisions of section 78, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, namely:—

(1) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity;

(2) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat, as compared with those powers at the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the productive powers at that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the productive powers at any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have increased otherwise than by the sole agency or at the sole expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest and from causes not merely temporary or casual; and

(3) that the average prices of produce in the locality, or at the usual markets, as compared with similar prices about the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the prices prevailing about that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the similar prices about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have increased otherwise than by the sole agency or at the sole expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, and from causes not merely temporary or casual.

Illustrations of Ground (1).

(a.) A's paternal grandfather seventy years ago reclaimed the land which A, an occupancy-raiyat, now holds, and which came to him by inheritance from such paternal grandfather. B is an occupancy-raiyat who holds land which was in a culturable state when B was first let into possession thereof. There is evidence that the hereditary descendant of a raiyat who, being the first settler, reclaimed the land has a special privilege. A and B are not raiyats of the same class.

(b.) A is in possession of a holding which has descended to him from his great-grandfather, who held it at the time of the Permanent Settlement. B was let into possession of his holding twenty years ago. There is evidence that the descendants of raiyats who were in possession at the time of the Permanent Settlement customarily hold at rates less than raiyats who have come into possession at a later period. A and B are not raiyats of the same class.

Rules for enhancement under section 74.

75. All enhancements of rent on the second or third of the grounds specified in section seventy-four shall be subject to the following rules, namely:—

(a) If the increase of the productive powers of the land, or of the prices of produce, has been effected wholly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, the landlord shall be entitled to the whole benefit of the increase:

(b) If the increase has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the benefit shall be divided between the landlord and the raiyat in such shares as the Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, thinks fair and equitable:

(c) If it is not proved that the increase has taken place by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, each shall be entitled to one-half of the benefit: Provided that in any such case the enhanced rent shall not bear to the rent previously payable a higher proportion than the increased productive powers or increased prices bear (as the case may be) to the former productive powers or former prices:

D.—Rules applicable to suits to enhance money rents generally.

[B. B. s. 24 (b).]

No enhancement beyond double the rent previously payable.

76. The rent of a holding shall not be enhanced in a suit under any of the foregoing sections of this chapter so that the enhanced rent shall be more than double the rent previously payable.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VI.—Rent payable by Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 77—82.)

[B. B. s. 24 (d).]

Power to order progressive enhancement.

77. When a Court passing a decree for enhancement under any of those sections considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent would be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

[B. B. s. 143.]

Rent enhanced or commuted not enhanceable for 10 years.

78. When the rent of an occupancy-holding has been enhanced by a decree under any of those sections or under any enactment repealed by this Act, or by contract, or has been commuted under section 82, a suit for its enhancement shall not be instituted under this chapter within the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced or commuted, except on the ground that since the rent has been so enhanced or commuted an improvement has been made by the landlord which, but for this section, would entitle him to an enhancement.

E.—Of suits for the reduction of money rents.

[B. B. s. 25. (2) & (3).]

Occupancy-raiyat when entitled to reduction of rent.

79. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money rent may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on either or both of the following grounds, and, except as provided by section 96, not otherwise, namely :—

(a) on the ground that the productive powers of the land, as compared with those powers at the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the productive powers at that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the productive powers at any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have decreased from some cause beyond the raiyat's control, and not merely temporary or casual;

(b) on the ground that the average prices of produce in the locality or at the usual markets, as compared with similar prices about the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the prices prevailing about that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the average prices prevailing about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have decreased from some cause beyond the raiyat's control, and not merely temporary or casual.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

F.—Special rules regarding money rents payable for pasture lands.

[B. B. s. 23, Expl. II. & s. 24 (e).]

Special rules for pasture lands.

80. (1) Sections 62 to 79, both inclusive, shall not apply to land fit to be used, or which in accordance with local usage is used, only as pasture; but when such land is held at a money rent by an occupancy-raiyat, the landlord may, subject to any contract between the parties, institute a suit to enhance the rent on the ground—

(a) that the rate of rent payable by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, or

(b) that, having regard to the increase of rent on arable land in the vicinity since the rent payable by the raiyat was fixed, it is reasonable to enhance that rent.

(2) Where an enhancement is applied for on the ground mentioned in clause (b), the Court shall fix the rent at such rate as it thinks fair and equitable.

G.—Of rents payable in kind or varying with the crop.

Limit to amount of rent payable in kind or varying with crop.

81 (1). Where an occupancy-raiyat pays rent in kind, or pays as rent the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce, the following rules shall apply, namely :—

(a) notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, the landlord shall not be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which staple crops are grown, more than half the gross produce or its value, as the case may be;

(b) the landlord shall not, except under a contract in writing, be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which other crops are grown, any other description or any greater amount of rent than a sum equal to one-half of the estimated average value of the produce of that portion of the holding if staple crops were grown on it.

(2) Nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord recovering the value of any seed, labour or other assistance he may have contributed towards the production of the crop.

C. R. and 92.

Commutation of rents.

82 (1). An occupancy-raiyat whose holding consists of raiyati land, and who pays rent in kind, or pays as rent the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce of the holding, may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, sue to have his rent commuted into a money-rent.

(2) The money-rent shall be fixed at the discretion of the Court—

(a) according to the prevailing money-rent payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, or

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VII.—Right of Settled Raiyat in Bastu Land and (Chapter VIII.—Ordinary Raiyats. Secs. 83—90.)

(b) according to the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding five years.

(3) When a money-rent is fixed under clause (b), a reasonable deduction shall be made by the Court from the average value aforesaid in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat.

II.—Supplementary provisions.

[B. B. s. 45.] Collectors to prepare annual price-lists of staple crops.

83. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare annually lists of the market-prices at harvest-time of staple crops grown in such local areas as the Board of Revenue may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(2) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette under the signature of one of the Secretaries to the Board.

(3) Any such price-list so published shall, in any proceedings under this chapter, be conclusive evidence of the prices prevailing in the local area at harvest-time in the year to which it relates.

[B. B., ss. 134, 145 and 24 (c).] Power to make rules.

84. The Board of Revenue may from time to time, subject to the approval of the Local Government and to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

(a) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of tables of rates and produce under this chapter;

(b) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of price-lists under section 83;

(c) determining what crops shall be deemed to be staple crops for the purposes of this chapter in any local area;

(d) for the guidance of Revenue-officers registering contracts under section 59 and section 61.

(e) for the guidance of Revenue-officers and Courts in estimating the average annual value of the gross produce of land for the purposes of sections 59 and 61 and section 75, clause (d).

CHAPTER VII.

Of the Right of a Settled Raiyat in Bastu Land.

[New.] Settled raiyat to have permanent right in bastu land.

85. (1) A person who is under Chapter V a settled raiyat of a village or estate as defined in that chapter shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, have a right permanent, heritable and capable of being transferred and bequeathed, in any bastu or other homestead land in that village or estate which is not comprised in an occupancy-holding and which is held by him as the site of, or for the purpose of erecting, a dwelling-house suitable for himself and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(2) A person having a right under sub-section one in any land in a village or estate shall not lose that right merely by reason of his ceasing to be a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

[B. B. s. 32.] Provisions regarding ejectment.

86. (1) Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, a person having in respect of any land a right under section 85 shall not be ejected from that land except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected, and, if he is so ejected, shall be entitled to compensation for any house or offices of the description referred to in section 85 which may have been erected on the land by him or his predecessor in interest whether before or after the commencement of this Act.

(2) A Court passing a decree for the ejectment of such a person shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due to him under sub-section one and shall make the decree conditional on the payment of that amount by the decree-holder.

[B. B. s. 33.] Rule for enhancing rent.

87. When a person has in respect of any land a right under section 85, and the rent of the land has not been enhanced during the previous ten years, the landlord may, unless barred by any contract between the parties, enhance the rent, so that it may be equal to the rent paid by other tenants for land in the neighbourhood having similar advantages and used for similar purposes, or at his option so that it may be equal to five per centum of the market-value of the land.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of Ordinary Raiyats.

Ordinary raiyat defined.

88. Every person holding raiyatí land as a raiyat and not having a right of occupancy in respect of it shall be deemed to hold it as an ordinary raiyat.

Rents regulated by agreement.

89. An ordinary raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of section 119, pay such rent as may, from time to time, be fixed by agreement between him and his landlord.

[B. B. ss. 26, 72 (5).] Grounds on which an ordinary raiyat may be ejected from raiyatí land.

90. Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, an ordinary raiyat shall not be ejected from raiyatí land by his landlord as such except—

(a) as hereinafter provided for arrears of rent,

(b) in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VIII.—Ordinary Raiyats and Chapter IX.—Rent of several classes of Tenants. Secs. 91—96.)

that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected, or

(c) in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground that he has refused to agree to an enhancement of rent demanded by his landlord in accordance with the provisions next hereinafter contained.

Notice of enhancement to be served through Civil Court.

91. When a landlord wishes to enhance, within the limit fixed by section 119, the rent of an ordinary raiyat holding raiyati land at a money-rent not fixed for a term by agreement, and the raiyat does not agree to the enhancement, the landlord may cause to be served on the raiyat through the Civil Court a notice of the enhancement not less than six months before the commencement of the agricultural year in which the landlord desires the enhancement to take effect.

Raiyat may agree to enhancement. If he does not, landlord may sue to eject.

92. (1) If, within the period of one month from the service of a notice under section 91, the raiyat on whom the notice has been served presents to the Court issuing the notice a statement in writing declaring his willingness to pay the enhanced rent, he shall be deemed to have agreed to pay that rent from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(2) If the raiyat does not, within the said period of one month, present to the Court a statement as aforesaid, the landlord may, not less than ten weeks before the commencement of the agricultural year next following, institute a suit to eject the raiyat.

Procedure in suit.

93. (1) If, in any suit instituted under section 92, the defendant appears and agrees to pay the enhanced rent demanded, his agreement shall thereupon be recorded, and he shall not be ejected, but shall be liable to pay that rent from the commencement of the agricultural year next following the date of the agreement.

(2) If the defendant does not appear, or if, on appearing, he does not agree to pay the enhanced rent demanded, the Court may pass a decree for his ejectment on condition that, within fifteen days from the date of the decree, the landlord deposits in Court—

(a) such sum (if any) as may be declared by the decree to be payable to the raiyat as compensation for improvements; and

(b) a further sum as compensation for disturbance equal to ten times the yearly increase of rent demanded.

Decree when absolute:

94. (1) If these sums are so deposited, the decree shall be made absolute, and the sums deposited shall be paid to the raiyat.

when to become void.

(2) If these sums are not so deposited, the decree shall become void, and the raiyat shall remain in occupation of his holding at the rent previously paid by him.

Fresh proceedings not to be taken for ten years.

95. When a raiyat has agreed, under section 92 or section 93, to pay an enhanced rent for his holding, or a decree to eject him from the holding has become void under section 94, no notice shall be served on him under section 91 in respect of that holding during the ten years next following the date on which he has so agreed, or the decree has become void, as the case may be.

CHAPTER IX.

PROVISIONS REGARDING RENT APPLICABLE TO SEVERAL CLASSES OF TENANTS.

A.—Of alterations of rent consequent on alterations of the area of the holding of a tenure-holder or occupancy raiyat.

Additions to, and deductions from, rent in respect of alteration of area.

96. (1) Notwithstanding anything in Chapter III or Chapter VI, every tenure-holder shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, and every occupancy-tenant shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary,— [D., ss. 19 and 24. C. B., ss. 8 & 18 B.B., ss. 8, 18, 23 (2) & 25 (1).]

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land added to the area of his holding by alluvion or otherwise, unless he can show that the land has reformed on the site of land which was formerly included in that area, and for the loss of which he has had no abatement of rent; and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any diminution of the area of his holding caused by diluvion or otherwise, unless it is proved that the land lost was added to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) The amount added to the rent shall be calculated at the rates payable by occupancy-raiyats for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, less a deduction, in the case of a tenure-holder, of thirty per cent. for profits, risk and cost of collection.

(3) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Rent of several classes of Tenants. Secs. 97—102.)

as the diminution of the total yearly value of the holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the holding.

B.—Instalments in which money-rents are payable by tenure-holders, raiyats and under-raiyats.

[B. s. 47.] 97. A money-rent payable by a tenure-holder shall be paid in such instalments and on such dates as may have been agreed upon between the tenure-holder and his landlord; in the absence of agreement, in such instalments and on such dates as may be customary; and, in the absence of any agreement or custom, in such instalments and on such dates as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf for any local area.

Rent of tenure-holder in what instalments and on what dates payable.

[B. s. 47] 98. A money-rent payable by a raiyat or under-raiyat shall, notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, be paid in such instalments, and on such dates, not being more than four in each year, as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf for any local area:

Rent of raiyat or under-raiyat in what instalments and on what dates payable.

Provided that, when the instalments in which, and the dates on which, rent is payable are fixed by an agreement made before the commencement of this Act, or by a custom which has prevailed from before the commencement of this Act, the amount payable on each date fixed by the Board under this section for the payment of an instalment shall be equal to the aggregate of the instalments which would, under the agreement or custom, have fallen due since the date so fixed by the Board for the payment of the last previous instalment.

[B. s. 47.] 99. (1) Every order made by the Board of Revenue under section 97 or section 98 shall be made after a consideration of the prevailing customs and the time of harvest in the local area to which it is to apply.

Making and publication of orders under sections 97 and 98.

(2) Every such order shall be published in manner prescribed not less than three months before the commencement of the agricultural year in which it is to take effect.

C.—Of the Receipts and Accounts to be given to tenants.

[s. 61. B. s. 57. D. s. 49 and (b).] 100. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him.

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt.

(2) The receipt shall specify—

(a) the date of payment;

(b) the amount paid on account of principal and interest respectively, or, where the payments are made in kind, the quantity and description of produce delivered;

(c) where other money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force is paid with the rent, the amount so paid.

(d) the holding in respect of which the rent is paid;

(e) the name of the person (if any) registered in the landlord's serishta as the tenant;

(f) the annual rent payable for the holding and the amount of rent then in arrear; and

(g) the instalment and year on account of which the payment is declared by the tenant to be made, or, in the absence of any such declaration, the instalment and year on account of which it has been credited by the landlord.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterpart of the receipt containing similar particulars.

(4) Every receipt which does not contain substantially the above particulars shall be deemed to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

101. (1) Every tenant shall be entitled to receive from his landlord, within three months after the expiry of each agricultural year, a statement of account for that year showing— [B. B. s. 49 (c).]

Tenant entitled to statement of account at close of the year.

(a) the holding for which the tenant pays rent to the landlord;

(b) the name of the person (if any) registered in the landlord's serishta as the tenant;

(c) the annual rent payable for the holding;

(d) the amount of rent in arrear at the beginning of the year;

(e) the payments made during the year on account of principal and interest respectively, or, when the payments are made in kind, the quantity and description of produce delivered;

(f) the portion of each payment credited to the rent of the year, and the portion credited to the arrears of previous years; and

(g) the amount, if any, remaining unpaid at the close of the year.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterpart of the statement containing similar particulars.

102. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 100 for any rent paid by the ten- [D. s. 65. B. B. ss. 49 (d) and 94.]

ant, the tenant may, within six months from the date of the demand, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount or value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 101, the tenant may, within six months from the date of the demand, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during that year.

(3) If a landlord fails to prepare and retain a counterpart of a receipt or statement as required by section 100 or section 101, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

D.—Of the deposit of rent by a tenant in a public office.

[D. s. 99. C. B. ss. 58 & 59. B. B. ss. 50 & 51.]

Application to deposit rent in public office.

103. (1) In any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe that the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive the same and to grant him a receipt therefor :

(b) when the money is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers therefor, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent in their behalf : or

(c) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent :

the tenant may present, to such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf for the local area in which the holding is situate, an application in writing for permission to deposit in his office the full amount of the money then due.

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made, shall be signed by the tenant or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant, and shall be accompanied by a fee of eight annas.

[D. ss. 99 & 100. B. B. s. 52.]

Receipt granted by public officer for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

104. (1) If it appears to the officer to whom an application is made under section 103 that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, he shall receive the rent and give a receipt for the same under his official seal.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the rent had been received—

(a) in case (a) of section 103 by the person specified in the application as the person to whom the rent was payable ;

(b) in case (b) of section 103 by the co-sharers jointly ; and

(c) in case (c) of section 103 by the person entitled to it.

Notification of receipt of deposit.

105. (1) The officer receiving a deposit under section 104 shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place in his office a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars contained in the application under section 103, and, when the deposit is made under section 103, clause (a), shall send a copy of the notification by post in a registered cover to the person to whom the rent is alleged by the depositor to be payable.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under section 106 within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is affixed as aforesaid the officer shall cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served (free of charge) upon every person who he has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

Deposit to whom payable.

106. (1) The officer may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to him to be entitled to the same, or may, if he thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

(2) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Revenue-officer under this section ; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Refund to depositor.

107. If no payment is made under section 106 before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given under section 104.

E.—Of arrears of rent.

[D. s. 10 C. B. s. 5 B. B. s.

Interest on arrears.

108. Every arrear of rent shall, unless otherwise provided by a written contract between the parties, be liable to interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum.

[D. s. 6 C. B. s. B. B. s.

Power to award damages on rent withheld without reasonable cause.

109. If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due by him, the Court may award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as it thinks fit:—

Provided that, when damages are awarded under this section, interest shall not be decreed under section 108.

[D. s. 69. C. B. s. 91. B. B. s. 97.]

Power to award damages to defendant improperly sued for rent.

110. If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff as it thinks fit.

[D. ss. 12 (5) & 93. C. B. ss. 79(5) & 152. B. B. ss. 72 (5) & 169.]

Ejectment from non-transferable holding for arrears.

111. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due in respect of a non-transferable holding at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fusli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.

(2) A decree passed in favour of the plaintiff in any such suit shall specify the amount of the arrear together with the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

F.—Of rent taken by division or estimation of the crop.

Commission for dividing or estimating crops.

112. Whenever rent is taken by division of the produce, or by estimate or appraisement of the crop, if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the division, estimate or appraisement, or if there is a dispute about the division of the produce, or the quantity or value of the crop, the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, issue a commission to such person as he thinks fit, to divide, estimate or appraise the crop.

Appointment of assessors, &c.

113. (1) When a Collector appoints a commissioner for any of the purposes mentioned in section 112, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the commissioner to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selecting those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the division, estimate or appraisement.

(2) The commissioner so appointed shall make the division, estimate or appraisement in accordance with those instructions, and submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

Remedy for error in division.

114. (1) If in any division under section 113 either party receives less than the share to which he is entitled, he may, within three months from the date on which the division is completed, institute a suit against the other party to recover the value of the additional portion of the crop due to him at the price which prevailed on that date.

(2) If no such suit is instituted within the said period of three months, the division shall for all purposes be deemed as between the parties thereto to have been rightly made.

Procedure where crop has been estimated or appraised.

115. (1) When a crop has been estimated or appraised under section 113 the estimate or appraisement shall be reduced to writing and signed by the commissioner making the same, and shall be submitted to the Collector by whom the commission was issued.

(2) The Collector shall consider the commissioner's estimate or appraisement, and, after such hearing and inquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass an order thereon either confirming or varying the estimate or appraisement; and that order shall be final.

Costs of proceedings under foregoing sections.

116. All expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of sections 112 to 115 (both inclusive) shall be payable by the landlord or tenant, or partly by one and partly by the other, as the Collector may in each case direct; and the amount payable by any person under such a direction shall be recoverable from him as if it was an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

Interference with produce of land otherwise than under section 112, criminal trespass.

117. If the landlord of any land of which the rent is payable in the manner mentioned in section 112, or any other person, interferes in any way, without the consent of the tenant, with the cutting or harvesting of any produce of the land except by an application to the Collector under section 112, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860

Danabandi or appraisement papers in Bihár to be deposited in Collector's office.

118. When the rent payable for land in Bihár is the equivalent money-value of a fixed proportion of the actual gross produce thereof, and such equivalent money-value is determined by an estimate or appraisement (danabandi) of the standing crop, or by some similar proceeding, the danabandi or appraisement papers shall, within fifteen days after the making of the appraisement, be lodged in the office of the Collector of the district.

G.—Further provisions regarding rent.

[P. B. s. 30.] 119. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections of this Act, or in any contract made after the second day of March, 1883, a raiyat or under-raiyat shall not be bound to pay for his holding a money-rent exceeding five-sixteenths of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the holding in staple crops, calculated, in such manner as the Board of Revenue may from time to time, by rules, direct, at the prices at which raiyats sell at harvest time.

Limit to rents of raiyats and under-raiyats.

120. The rent payable by a tenant in any agricultural year shall be presumed to be the rent payable by him in the following agricultural year until the contrary is shown.

Presumption that rent continues unchanged.

[New.] 121. When a landlord grants a lease, or makes any other contract, purporting to entitle the tenant of land not included in an area permanently settled to hold that land free of rent or at a fixed rent, and while the lease or contract is in force—

Power to alter rent in case of new assessment of revenue.

(a) land-revenue is for the first time made payable in respect of the land, or,

(b) land-revenue having been previously payable in respect of it, a fresh settlement of land revenue is made,

a Revenue-officer may, notwithstanding anything in the contract between the parties, by order, on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, fix a fair and equitable rent for the land in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

[B. B. s. 70.] 122. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has given notice of the transfer to the tenant.

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord without notice of the transfer.

(2) When there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

123. All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwab, mahtut, or other like appellations, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such shall be void.

[B. B. s. 63 (2).]

Abwab, &c., illegal.

124. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding five hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds five hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

D. s. 64. P. B. ss. 63 (2), 64 (a), 93.]

Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

125. (1) The rent of a tenure, occupancy-holding or bastu holding shall be a first charge on the same.

[C. B. s. 64. B. B. s. 56.]

Rent first charge on tenures, occupancyholdings and bastu holdings.

(2) If the right, title and interest of the tenant is brought to sale in execution of a decree for money obtained by a person other than the landlord, the landlord shall be entitled to be first paid out of the sale proceeds any rent which may be due to him by the tenant.

CHAPTER X.

OTHER PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO SEVERAL CLASSES OF TENANTS.

A.—Of improvements on raiyats' holdings and compensation therefor.

126. (1) For the purposes of this chapter the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the letting-value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

[B. B. s. 69.]

"Improvement."

(2) It shall include for those purposes—

(a) the construction of wells, tanks and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture;

(b) the preparation of land for irrigation;

(c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable;

(d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes;

(e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto; and

(f) the erection of a dwelling-house suitable for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this chapter if it substantially diminishes the value of any other part of the estate or tenure of his landlord.

(3) A work which benefits several holdings shall for the purposes of this chapter be deemed to be, with respect to each of them, an improvement.

B. s. 69.] 127. (1) The landlord of an occupancy-raiyat shall not be entitled as such to prevent the raiyat making an improvement in respect of his holding, and shall not, except as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of the holding without the permission of the raiyat.

Right to make improvements in case of occupancy-holding.

(2) A landlord of an occupancy-holding who would, but for the want of his raiyat's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of the holding, may, if he desires that any improvement, other than an improvement of the description mentioned in section 126, clause (f), be made, deliver or cause to be delivered to the raiyat a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the raiyat is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

B. s. 69.] 128. (1) An ordinary raiyat shall not, except as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission any improvement other than an improvement of the description mentioned in section 126, clause (f).

Right to make improvements in case of ordinary raiyat's holding.

(2) An ordinary raiyat, who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

129. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been made.

Compensation for improvements payable to raiyat on ejectment.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act, unless it is shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make the improvement and was ready to make it himself.

130. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under section 129, for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Power to make rules for appointment of assessors.

131. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under section 129 for an improvement, regard shall be had—

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

(a) to the amount by which the letting-value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement; and

(c) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the landlord and raiyat may, if they think fit, agree that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

132. A stipulation in a contract providing—

Certain stipulations in contracts to be void.

(a) that a landlord shall be entitled to prevent a raiyat from making, or to eject him for making, such improvements on his holding as he is entitled to make under this Act, or

(b) that a raiyat ejected from his holding shall not be entitled to compensation for improvements

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 133—140.)

in any case in which he would, under this Act, be entitled to such compensation, shall be void.

B.—Of the landlord's right to measure land.

[D. s. 58. C. B. s. 75. B. B. s. 67.]

Landlord entitled to measure land unless restrained by contract.

133. Subject to the provisions of any contract, a landlord may, by himself or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, enter upon and measure all land comprised in any estate or tenure, of the rents of which he is in receipt, except land entered in the general register of revenue-free lands prepared under the Land Registration Act, 1876:

VII (B. C.) of 1876.

Provided that, when any land has been measured by a landlord, whether before or after the passing of this Act, it shall not, without the written permission of the Collector, be again measured by the landlord within the ten years next following the date on which it was so measured.

Illustration.

A., a proprietor, grants a portion of his estate in patní to B, to whom the raiyats pay rent. Both A and B are entitled to make a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in the patní lease.

[D. s. 94. B. B. s. 176.]

Tenant bound to point out boundaries.

134. When a landlord desires to measure, under section 133, any land held by his tenant, the tenant shall, if the landlord requires him to do so, attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

[D. s. 94. B. B. s. 176.]

Remedy when landlord is obstructed or tenant does not point out boundaries.

135. (1) When a landlord desires to measure any land under section 133, and any person occupying the land obstructs him in so doing, or any tenant, bound under section 134 to attend and point out the boundaries of his land, refuses or neglects so to do, the landlord may apply to the Court which would have jurisdiction to hear a suit for the recovery of the land, to make an order directing such person to permit the measurement, or such tenant to attend and point out the boundaries, as the case may be.

(2) The Court may, on receiving an application under this section, cause a notice to be served on the occupant or tenant, as the case may be, requiring him to show cause, at a time and place specified therein, why the order applied for should not be made.

(3) If the person on whom a notice is served under sub-section (2) does not show cause as aforesaid, the Court may make the order applied for.

Presumption against tenant not attending to point out boundaries.

136. If a tenant ordered under section 135 to attend and point out the boundaries of the land held by him refuses or neglects to do so, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land prepared under the direction of the landlord, at the time the tenant was ordered to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Measurement in suits between landlord and tenant to be made according to Government measure.

137. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bighá. [D. s. 94. C. B. s. 37 (a); B. B. s. 68 (a).]

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any different local measure, the Government measure shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit.

Determination of the length of the standard in case of dispute.

138. (1) If any dispute as to the length of a standard used in a local measure arises in any suit under this Act, the Collector shall, on a reference made to him for this purpose by the Court, determine the proper length thereof. [D. s. 98. C. B. s. 76 (b). B. B. s. 68 (b).]

(2) An appeal shall lie from the Collector's decision to the District Judge.

(3) If no such appeal be preferred, the decision of the Collector, or, if an appeal be preferred, the decision of the District Judge thereon, shall be conclusive.

C.—Of surrender and abandonment.

Surrender by raiyat.

139. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding; but notwithstanding the surrender he shall continue to be liable for the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless— [D. s. 12 (1). C. B. s. 79 (1). B. B. s. 7 (3).]

(a) he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice in writing of his intention to surrender; or

(b) the holding is let to another person for a agricultural year following the surrender.

(2) If the landlord refuses to receive a notice, tendered to him under clause (a), or to sign a receipt for the same, the raiyat may apply to the Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate, and the Court shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on the landlord.

Non-transferable holding in certain cases to be deemed surrendered.

140. Any tenant of a holding which is not transferable, who leaves his holding uncultivated and the rent of it unpaid for a period of one year, shall, at the expiration of that period, be deemed to have surrendered the holding: [D. s. 12 (4). C. B. s. 79 (4). B. B. s. (4).]

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 141—145.)

Provided that, in reckoning that period, any time during which, owing to an inundation or any other accident to the land beyond the tenant's control, it may have been impossible to cultivate the land, shall be excluded.

D.—Of Merger.

[C. B. ss. 43 & 44. J. B. ss. 34 & 35.]

Merger of tenant's interest in landlord's interest.

141. (1) When in the case of any tenancy the interest of the landlord and that of the tenant become, by transfer, succession or otherwise, united in the same person, so as to be owned by him in the same right, the interest of the tenant shall—

(a) during the period of three months mentioned in sub-section (2) be presumed to be merged in the interest of the landlord and extinguished, unless the person proves that he has not intended it to be merged, and

(b) after the expiration of that period be deemed to be so merged and extinguished, unless within that period the person executes an instrument declaring his intention that a merger shall not take place, and the instrument is registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1877 and is published in the prescribed manner.

II of 77.

(2) The period of three months referred to in sub-section (1) shall, when the interests become united after the commencement of this Act, begin to run from the date on which they become united, and, when they have become united before the commencement of this Act, begin to run from the commencement of this Act:

Provided that, when, at the time the interests become united, the person in whom they become united has not attained his age of majority or is of unsound mind, the period shall not begin to run before he has attained that age or become of sound mind, as the case may be.

(3) A merger under this section shall not operate to the prejudice of any person having a lien upon the interest merged.

(4) When, at the time of a merger taking place in respect of a tenancy under this section, a sub-tenancy exists immediately under that tenancy, the person who becomes the owner of the consolidated interests shall, subject to the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to sales of land for arrears of Government revenue and to the provisions of this Act as to sales for arrears of rent, have the same rights against, and be subject to the same obligations towards, the sub-tenants, as the owner of the tenant's interest had, and was subject to, before the merger.

E.—Of the appointment of a Manager on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

142. When co-owners of an estate or tenure disagree as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue, D. s. 16. C. B. s. 65 (1). B. B. s. 57 (1).

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, upon the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served upon all the co-owners, calling upon them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under Act VII of 1876 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

143. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under section 142, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served upon any co-owner who did not appear before it was made. C. B. s. 65 (2). B. B. s. 57 (2).

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

144. If the co-owners do not, within one month after the making of an order under section 143, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within one month after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may— C. B. s. 66 (1). B. B. s.

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards assents to undertake the management thereof; or

(b) in any case appoint a manager.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under section 144(b).

145. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under section 144, clause (b); and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager. C. B. s. 66 (2). B. B. s. 58 (2).

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

C. B. s. 66 (3). B. B. s. 58 (2).

The Court of Wards Act, 1879, applicable to management by Court of Wards under section 144 (a).

IX (B. C.) of 1879.

146. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes the management of an estate or tenure under section 144, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management.

C. B. s. 67. B. B. s. 59.

Provisions applicable to manager appointed under section 144(b).

147. (1) A manager appointed under section 144, clause (b), shall receive by way of remuneration such fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager as the District Judge from time to time directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(4) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts; and

(5) He shall be removable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

C. B. s. 68. B. B. s. 60.

Power to restore management to co-owners.

148. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 144, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners if he is satisfied that such management will be conducted by them jointly without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

F.—Miscellaneous.

[B. B., s. 72 (5), (6) and (7).]

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

149. No tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

[B. B. ss. 21 (b), 37.]

Portion of holding not transferable.

150. Nothing in this Act shall entitle a tenant whose holding is transferable to transfer or bequeath, without the consent of his landlord, a portion only of the land comprised in the holding so that it may be held from the landlord by the transferee as a separate holding.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF RENTS BY A REVENUE-OFFICER.

Power to order Revenue-officers to settle rents.

151. (1) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that the rents of all tenants or of any class of tenants in any local area shall be settled by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section are the following, namely:—

(a) where a large proportion of the tenants or of the landlords applies for such an order, and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs:

(b) where the making of such an order is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing, or likely to arise, between the tenants and their landlords generally:

(c) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area, or the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure owned or managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made, and an order so notified shall continue in force until it is rescinded by an order notified in like manner.

Bar to jurisdiction of Civil Courts while order is in force.

152. While an order under section 151 continues in force in respect of any tenants, a Civil Court shall not, except as provided by section 155, clause (b), entertain a suit for the enhancement or reduction of the rents of those tenants under this Act.

Rents of certain tenants to be fixed.

153. (1) When the rents of any tenants to whom an order under section 151 applies are subject to alteration by order of a Court, the officer appointed to settle the rents of those tenants under this chapter shall, without any application being made to him in this behalf, fix those rents in accordance with the principles embodied in this Act, and so that no rent fixed under this section shall exceed the maximum prescribed by this Act in cases of enhancement.

(2) Where the Local Government has, under this chapter, directed a settlement of the rents of the occupancy-raiyats of any local area, and a table of rates and produce has not been prepared under Chapter VI for that local area, it may further direct the officer appointed to settle the rents to prepare such a table before proceeding to fix the rents of those raiyats.

Rents of other tenants to be ascertained and recorded.

154. When the rents of any tenants to whom an order under section 151 applies are not subject to alteration as aforesaid, the officer appointed to settle the rents of those tenants shall, without any application being made to him in this behalf, ascertain and record the rents payable by them.

Power to refer question to Civil Court or leave case to be dealt with by Civil Court.

155. (1) If in the course of the proceedings taken for fixing the rent of a tenant under section 153 any question arises which, in the opinion of the officer conducting

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XI.—Settlement of Rents. Secs. 156—161.)

those proceedings, would be more properly decided by a Civil Court, the officer may in his discretion, but subject to any rules made by the Local Government in this behalf,

(a) refer the question for decision to the Civil Court which would, but for section 152, have had jurisdiction to try a suit for the enhancement or reduction of the rent, or

(b) by order in writing direct that the tenant's case be excluded from the operation of this chapter and be left to be disposed of by suit in a Civil Court, as if the order under section 151 did not apply to it.

(2) When a Revenue-officer makes a reference under clause (a) of this section in respect of a tenant, he may either stay his proceedings in respect of that tenant, or, if the nature of the case admits of his doing so, pass an order in alternative form or otherwise fixing the rent contingent upon the decision of the Civil Court.

Preparation of jamabandí.

156. (1) A Revenue-officer settling rents under this chapter shall prepare, in the prescribed form, one or more jamabandís, comprising all or such numbers of the tenants whose rents he is appointed to settle as the Board of Revenue may direct.

(2) Every jamabandí prepared under this section shall show in respect of each tenant comprised therein—

(a) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat or under-raiyat;

(b) the land held by him;

(c) the name of his landlord;

(d) whether the rent has been fixed under section 153 or ascertained under section 154;

(e) the amount of the rent fixed or ascertained, and, when the rent is a gradually increasing one, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases.

Publication of jamabandí and objections thereto.

157. Every jamabandí prepared under section 156 shall be published in the prescribed manner, and any person objecting to any entry therein may, within one month from the date of the publication, present to the Revenue-officer, for transmission to the Commissioner of the Division, a petition stating his objection to the entry.

Submission of jamabandí and petitions of objection to the Commissioner and Board.

158. (1) On the expiration of the said period of one month, the Revenue-officer shall submit to the Commissioner of the Division a copy of the jamabandí, with a report setting forth the grounds on which it has been prepared, and the petitions of objection (if any) which he may have received under section 157.

(2) The Commissioner shall consider the jamabandí and report, and the objections (if any), and, after allowing the objectors (if any) an opportunity of being heard, shall forward the papers to the Board of Revenue with his opinion regarding the same.

Sanction to and final publication of jamabandí, and date from which it comes into force.

159. (1) The Board of Revenue may return the papers for further inquiry, or may submit the jamabandí with or without modifications to the Local Government for sanction.

(2) The Local Government may return for further inquiry the papers received under sub-section (1) or may sanction the jamabandí with or without modification.

(3) When a jamabandí has been sanctioned by the Local Government under this section, it shall be published in the prescribed manner.

(4) A jamabandí published under this section shall come into force from the commencement of the agricultural year next following the publication.

Rent fixed under foregoing provisions to be deemed the rent payable.

160. When a jamabandí has come into force under section 159, a tenant's rent shown therein as fixed under section 153 shall be deemed to be the rent payable by him, and shall not, during the period of ten years next following the date on which the jamabandi comes into force, be enhanced in a suit instituted under this Act, except on the ground that since the jamabandí came into force an improvement has been made by the landlord which, but for this section, would entitle him to an enhancement:

Provided that—

(1) such rent may from time to time be altered in any other manner permitted by law: and

(2) nothing in this section shall prevent the rent shown in a jamabandí in respect of a tenancy from being called in question on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that the tenancy does not exist or that the tenant is not liable to pay rent;

(b) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the jamabandí to belong;

(c) that the land comprised in the tenancy is different from, or more or less than, that shown in the jamabandí;

(d) that a rent different from that shown in the jamabandí has been fixed by a contract legally binding on the parties, and which has been brought to the notice of the officer preparing the jamabandí.

Rent ascertained under foregoing provisions to be presumed to be the rent payable.

161. When a jamabandí has been published under section 159 a tenant's rent shown therein as, ascertained under section 154, shall be presumed to be the rent payable by that tenant until the contrary is shown.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XII.—Preparation of Record-of-rights by a Revenue-officer and Chapter XIII.—Recovery of Rents. Secs. 162—166.)

Certain other entries in jamabandí to be presumed to be correct.

162. An entry made in a jamabandí under clause (a), clause (b) or clause (c) of section 156 shall, after the jamabandí has been published under section 159, be presumed for all purposes to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Expenses incurred in proceedings under this chapter how defrayed.

163. All expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, in any case mentioned in section 151, clause (a) or clause (b), including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in carrying out those provisions therein, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in carrying out those provisions therein in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants in that local area whose rents are fixed or ascertained under this chapter, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE PREPARATION OF A RECORD-OF-RIGHTS BY A REVENUE-OFFICER.

Power to order preparation of record-of-rights.

164. (1) The Local Government may, in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a record-of-rights shall be prepared for all tenancies or any class of tenancies in a local area by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following, namely:—

(a) where a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally; and

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) The Local Government shall, in any order made by it under this section, specify the particulars to be included in the record-of-rights to be prepared under that order.

(4) The particulars so specified may be all or some of the following, namely:—

(a) the name of each tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat or under-raiyat;

(c) the land held by him;

(d) the name of his landlord; [B. B. s. 181.]

(e) the rent payable;

(f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed, whether by contract, by order of a Court or otherwise.

(5) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

Presumption as to entries in record.

165. Every entry in a record-of-rights prepared under section 164 shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE RECOVERY OF RENTS FROM RAIYATS AND UNDER-RAIYATS BY DISTRAINING THE PRODUCE OF THE HOLDING.

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

166. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Court, having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the arrear, requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator, [B. B. ss. 101 104, 123.]

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, on a threshing-floor, or place for treading out grain or the like (whether in the fields or within a homestead) or in a storehouse.

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Bengal Land Registration Act, 1876, or a VII (B. C.) 1876.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Recovery of Rents. Secs. 167—172.)

mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

[B. B. ss. 71, 125.] (3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sublet with the written consent of the landlord.

[B. B. ss. 104-5.] Form of application and fee payable.

167. (1) Every application under section 166 shall specify—

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification;

(b) the name of the tenant;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed;

(d) the amount of the arrear, with the interest, if any, claimed thereon, and, when an amount in excess of the rent payable by the tenant in the last preceding agricultural year is claimed, the contract, or proceeding as the case may be, under which that amount is payable;

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained; and

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification.

(2) Every such application shall be liable to the court-fee which would be payable in a suit instituted for the recovery of the arrear therein claimed.

(3) Every such application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints; and, if the application so verified contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be subject to punishment according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence.

[B. B. ss. 105 [illegible] Procedure on receipt of application.

168. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under section 166, or as soon after as the Court permits, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

(2) The Court may examine the applicant, and may admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

[B.B. s. 107.] Procedure if application is admitted.

169. If the application is admitted, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

Provided that produce, which from its nature does not admit of being stored, shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering. D. s. 111.

[B.B. s. 108.] Service of demand and account.

170. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on the outer door of the house in which he usually resides.

[B. B. ss. 109 and 110.] Right to reap, &c., produce.

171. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

(2) In default of the person entitled to do so, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and shall store the same in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

[B.B. s. 113.] Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

172. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the application for distraint, be immediately satisfied, an officer distraining property

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Recovery of Rents. Secs. 173—182.)

under section 169 shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a specified day, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

[B.B. s. 114.] 173. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

Place of sale.

[D. s. III.] 174. Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter upon the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

Power to sell produce before it is reaped or gathered.

[B. B. s. 115.] 175. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Manner of sale.

[B.B. s. 116.] 176. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day or (if a market be held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until such day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Postponement of sale.

[B.B. s. 117.] 177. The price of every lot shall be paid in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale thinks necessary, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Payment of purchase-money.

[B.B. s. 118.] 178. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

[B. B. s. 119.] 179. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay to the applicant for distraint the expenses incurred by him on account of the distraint, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made by the Board of Revenue in this behalf.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale, and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

[B. B. s. 120.] 180. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Certain officers may not purchase.

[B. B. ss. 111-1 & 123.] 181. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 170, together with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay the same into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay over the same to the applicant for distraint, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

[B. B. s. 124.] 182. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under section 181, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and, if that landlord is not the defaulter, he shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under section 181 to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Recovery of Rents. Secs. 183—192.)

[B.B. s. 126.] 183. When land is sublet, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

184. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail, but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid to the owner of the property under section 179 without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

[B. B. ss. 91, 122.] 185. Any person who, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force, distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or prevents or attempts to prevent any person from reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of the holding, shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Penalty for illegal distraint.

[New.] 186. When any offence punishable under section 185 is committed for the benefit of, or in behalf of, any person owning or claiming any interest in the land in respect of which the offence is committed, or having or claiming any interest in a dispute which has led to the commission of the offence, or when any person has accepted or derived any benefit from the commission of any such offence, he shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both, if, having reason to believe that the offence was likely to be committed, he has not used all lawful means in his power to prevent its commission.

Persons benefiting, &c., by offences under section 185 liable to punishment.

187. (1) The Local Government may, by an order published in the official Gazette, suspend the provisions of sections 166 to 184 (both inclusive) in any local area for such time as it thinks proper.

Power to suspend provisions of sections 166 to 184.

(2) So long as an order under this section continues in force, in respect of any local area, no Court shall receive an application for distraint for arrears of rent due on lands situate within that local area.

CHAPTER XIV.

SPECIAL RULES OF PROCEDURE APPLICABLE TO SUITS BETWEEN LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A.—Rules applicable to suits between landlord and tenant generally.

188. The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the land in respect of which the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. Summons in such suits to be for final disposal.

193. The summons shall in every such suit be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only.

Service of summons in such suits by registered letter.

194. The service of a summons on a defendant in any such suit may, if the Court so directs, be effected by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post, Office Act, 1866. XIV of 1866.

D. s. 108. C. B. s. 184. B. B. s. 206.

Written statements not to be filed in such suits without leave.

195. A written statement shall not be filed in any such suit without the leave of the Court.

B. B. s. 214. XIV of 1882.

Mode of recording evidence in such suits.

196. The rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in all such suits whether an appeal is allowed in them or not.

D. ss. 177 & 223. C. B. ss. 155 & 197. B. B. ss. 171 & 219.

Execution in such suits on oral application.

197. When a decree, not being a decree of the description referred to in section 111, sub-section (2), is passed in any such suit, the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof.

D. s. 179. C. B. ss. 157 & 220. B. B. ss. 173 & 242.

No appeal in certain suits for arrears and penalties.

198. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal in any suit instituted by a landlord, for arrears or by a tenant for a penalty claimable under any provision of this Act where—

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, and, if he is satisfied that a failure of justice has been caused by a substantial error, defect or irregularity in the proceedings or in the decision, may pass such order as he thinks fit.

[New.]

Defendant in suit for arrear admitting arrear is due, but disputing plaintiff's title, to pay into Court.

199. (1) When, in a suit for an arrear of rent instituted against a tenant, the defendant admits that the arrear is due by him, but pleads that it is due to a person other than the plaintiff, the Court may, if it thinks fit, refuse to take cognizance of the plea until the defendant has paid the amount of the arrear into Court.

(2) When the amount of an arrear has been paid into Court under this section, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt for the same, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance for the arrear, in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been paid to the person entitled to it.

(3) The Court shall forward the amount paid in to the officer to whom an application to deposit the rent would be made under section 103 and it shall thereupon be deemed to be a deposit received under clause (c) of that section.

[C. B. s. 108 B. B. s. 220.]

When assignee of decree for arrears may apply for execution.

200. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become, and is vested in him.

[B. B. ss. 128 & 130, cl. (b).]

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

201. (1) A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall not take effect before the commencement of the agricultural year next following, and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall not take effect before the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), it shall be in the discretion of the Court to fix the date from which any such decree shall take effect.

[B. B. ss. 21. (e), 31, 44 & 45 Vic. C. 41 s. 14.]

Relief against forfeitures.

202. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejectment, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has requested the tenant, where the damage or breach is capable of remedy, to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the damage or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the damage or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the damage or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the damage or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapters XIV, XV.—Procedure in Suits between Landlord and Tenant. Sale of Transferable Holdings in Execution, &c. Secs. 203—208.)

(3) The Court may from time to time extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2) for remedying a damage or breach.

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the damage or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the damage or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

[C. B. s. 80. B. B. s. 73.]

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

203. The following rules shall be applicable in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

(a) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment.

(b) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value:

Provided that a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section when, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

[C. B. s. 80. B. B. s. 73.]

Payment by raiyat for occupation of land under section 203.

204. When a landlord elects, under section 203, clause (a), to allow a raiyat to retain possession of any land for the purpose specified in that clause, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

[New.]

All claims between landlord and tenant to be determined in ejectment-proceedings.

205. In all suits and proceedings for ejectment, the Court shall inquire into and determine all claims under this Act by the landlord against the tenant as such, or by the tenant against the landlord as such.

Procedure when, on ejectment, money is due by the landlord to the tenant.

206. (1) When it appears to a Court making an inquiry under section 205 that the amount payable by the landlord to the tenant as such exceeds the amount payable by the tenant to the landlord as such, the decree or order for ejectment (if any) shall, unless the landlord and tenant come to an arrangement regarding the payment of the excess sum, specify a time within which it must be paid into Court.

(2) If it is so paid within the time specified, the Court shall eject the tenant; and if it is not so paid, the Court shall refuse to eject the tenant.

C.—Suit to determine status, &c., of tenant.

[C.B.s. 151. B. B. s. 168.]

Suit to determine status, &c., of tenant.

207. Every landlord may institute a suit against his tenant, and every tenant against his landlord, for the determination of all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the land held by the tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether his rent is liable to enhancement; and

(c) the rent payable by him at the time the suit is instituted.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE SALE OF TRANSFERABLE HOLDINGS IN EXECUTION OF DECREES FOR ARREARS DUE ON THEM.

D. s. 155. C. B. ss. 206 Expl. & 210. B. B. ss. 228 Expl. & 232.

Definitions.

208. (1). "Incumbrance" in this chapter, used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created upon the holding by the tenant in limitation of his own interest therein, except—

(a) a tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) a tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) a tenure of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals,

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) a right of occupancy;

(e) a right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord has expressly and in writing given the tenant permission to create.

[C. B. s. 206 Expl. B. B. s. 228 Expl.]

(2) "Registered incumbrance" in this chapter, used with reference to a tenancy on which an arrear of rent is due, means any incumbrance which the defaulter or his predecessor in interest has created by an instrument registered under the Registration Act for the time being in force, and of which, after it has been registered, a copy has been served on the landlord under section 223, not less than six months before the arrear became due.

[C. B. s. 201. B. B. s. 223.]

Application for sale of holding.

209. (1) When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a transferable holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the holding in execution of the decree, his application shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in that section and section 237 of the said Code, a statement of the annual rent of the holding.

XIV of 1882.

(2) When the holding is a permanent tenure, there shall be filed with the application a copy of so much of the register kept under Chapter III as relates to the tenure.

[D. s. 152. C. B. s. 203. B. B. s. 225.]

Proclamation announcing sale.

210. (1) When an order has been passed for the sale of a holding upon an application made under section 209, the proclamation made under section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in that section, announce—

XIV of 1882.

(a) in the case of a tenure, that the tenure will first be put up to auction subject to the registered incumbrances and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day of which due notice will be given with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, or bastu holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(2) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

Sale of tenure subject to registered incumbrances and effect thereof.

211. (1) When a tenure has been advertised for sale under section 210, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

C. B. s. 206. B. B. s. 228(a) and Expl.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure not being a registered incumbrance.

Sale of tenure with power to avoid all incumbrances and effect thereof.

212. (1) If the bidding for a tenure put up to auction under section 211 does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

XIV of 1882.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure.

D. s. 155. C. B. s. 210. B. B. s. 232.

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances and effect thereof.

213. (1) When an occupancy-holding or bastu holding has been advertized for sale under section 210, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

B. B. s. 228(b).

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

214. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under section 211, section 212, or section 213, and desiring to avoid the same, may within one year from the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for a service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XV.—Sale of Transferable Holdings in Execution, &c. Secs. 215—222.)

B. s. 225(c).

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

215. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings in that local area shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

246. s. 211. B. s. 233.

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

216. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say :— of 1882.

(a) There shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the holding to sale.

(b) There shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made.

(c) If there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale, but not more than six months after the date of the final decree.

(d) The balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

153. s. 204. B. s. 226. of 1882.

Holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

217. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to institute a suit to set aside the sale of a holding under this chapter.

D. ss. 35, 36 154. C. B. s. 205. B. B. s. 227.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the holding.

218. (1) When any person having, in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be voidable upon such sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per cent. per annum and secured by a mortgage of the holding to him ;

(b) his mortgage shall, subject to the provisions of section 125, be deemed to be the first charge on the holding ; and

(c) he shall be entitled to take possession of the holding as mortgagee, and retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

D. ss. 35, 36, 154. C. B. B. s. 227.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

219. When a holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord ; and, if that landlord is not the defaulter, he may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

C.B. s. 205(1). B. B. s. 230(1). XIV of 1882.

Decree-holder may bid at sale ; judgment-debtor may not.

220. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a holding is sold under this chapter may without the permission of the Court bid for or purchase the holding.

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a holding so sold.

XIV of 1882.

Operation of sections 313 and 326 of Code of Civil Procedure excluded.

221. Sections 313 and 326 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this chapter.

New. III of 1877.

Registration of certain instruments creating incumbrances.

222. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any transferable holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act.

C. B. s. 206 Expl. B. B. s. 228 Expl.

Registration-officers to serve copies of instruments creating incumbrances.

223. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a transferable holding and creating an incumbrance on the holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, cause a copy of the instrument to be served on the landlord in the manner prescribed in Part VII of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, for the service of summons.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XVII.—Supplementary. (Schedule I.—Repeal of Enactments.)

III of 1877.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF LIMITATION.

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications in Schedule IV.

224. The suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule IV annexed to this Act shall be instituted and made within the time prescribed in that schedule for them respectively; and every such suit or appeal instituted, and application made, after the period of limitation so prescribed, shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been pleaded.

XV of 1877.

Portions of the Indian Limitation Act not applicable to such suits, &c.

225. Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall not apply to the suits and applications mentioned in section 224.

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

Saving as to service-tenures.

226. Nothing in this Act shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Power to make rules regarding procedure and powers of officers.

227. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

(a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;

(b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and

(c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

228. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(5) The publication in the official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

Náibs and gumáshtas of landlords.

229. Any appearance, application or act in, before, or to, any Court or other authority required or authorized by this Act to be made or done by a landlord may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by a náib or gumáshta of the landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord; and every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, a náib or gumáshta of the landlord empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

Rights of pasturage, forest-rights, &c.

230. The provisions of this Act applicable to suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall, as far as may be, apply to suits for the recovery of anything payable or deliverable in respect of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, rights over fisheries and the like.

SCHEDULE II.

Extract from Preamble to Regulation VIII of 1819.

"In the exercise of the privilege * * * conceded to zamíndárs under direct engagements with Government, there has been created a tenure which had its origin on the estates of the Rájá of Bardwán, but has since been extended to other zamíndáris; the character of which tenure is, that it is a taluq created by the zamíndár, to be held at a rent fixed in perpetuity, by the lessee and his heirs for ever; the tenant is called upon to furnish collateral security for the rent, and for his conduct generally, or he is excused from this obligation at the zamíndár's discretion; but even if the original tenant be excused, still, in case of sale for arrears, or other operation leading to the introduction of another tenant, such new incumbent has always in practice been liable to be so called upon at the option of the zamíndár.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.
(Schedule III.—Summary Sale of Patní Tenures.)

"By the terms also of the engagements interchanged, it is, amongst other stipulations, provided that, in case of an arrear occurring, the tenure may be brought to sale by the zamíndár, and if the sale do not yield a sufficient amount to make good the balance of rent at the time due, the remaining property of the defaulter shall be further answerable for the demand.

"These tenures have usually been denominated patní taluqs, and it has been a common practice of the holders of them to underlet on precisely similar terms to other persons who, on taking such leases, went by the name of darpatní taluqdárs: these, again, sometimes similarly underlet to bepatnídárs; and the conditions of all the title-deeds vary in nothing material from the original engagements executed by the first holder."

SCHEDULE III.

SUMMARY SALE OF PATNÍ TENURES.

(See section 42.)

Extract from Regulation VIII of 1819, amended in accordance with subsequent enactments.

Zamíndárs allowed sales of tenures, in which right to sell for arrears is reserved.

8. First.—Zamíndárs, that is, proprietors under direct engagements with the Government, shall be entitled to apply in the manner following for periodical sales of any tenures upon which the right of selling or bringing to sale for an arrear of rent may have been specially reserved by stipulation in the engagements interchanged on the creation of the tenure.

The exercise of this power shall not be confined to cases in which the stipulation for sale may have been unrestricted in regard to time, but shall apply equally to tenures held under engagements stipulating merely for a sale at the end of the year, in conformity with the practice heretofore allowed by the Regulations in force.

First sale to be applied for on first Baisákh.

Second.—On the first day of Baisákh, that is, at the commencement of the following year from that of which the rent is due, the zamíndár shall present a petition to the Collector, containing a specification of any balances that may be due to him on account of the expired year, from all or any taluqdárs or other holders of an interest of the nature described in the preceding clause of this section.

The same shall then be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the kachahrí, with a notice that if the amount claimed be not paid before the first of Jeth following, the tenures of the defaulters will on that day be sold by public sale in liquidation.

Should, however, the first of Jeth fall on a Sunday or holiday, the next subsequent day, not a holiday, shall be selected instead; a similar notice shall be stuck up at the sadr kachahrí of the zamíndár himself, and a copy or extract of such part of the notice as may apply to the individual case shall be by him sent to be similarly published at the kachahrí or at the principal town or village upon the land of the defaulter.

The zamíndár shall be exclusively answerable for the observance of the forms above prescribed, and the notice required to be sent into the mufassal shall be served by a single peon, who shall bring back the receipt of the defaulter, or of his manager, for the same; or in the event of inability to procure this, the signatures of three substantial persons residing in the neighbourhood, in attestation of the notice having been brought and published on the spot.

If it shall appear from the tenor of the receipt or attestation in question that the notice has been published at any time previous to the fifteenth of the month of Baisákh, it shall be a sufficient warrant for the sale to proceed upon the day appointed.

In case the people of the village should object or refuse to sign their names in attestation, the peon shall go to the kachahrí of the nearest munsif, or if there should be no munsif, to the nearest thánd, and there make voluntary oath of the same having been duly published; certificate to which effect shall be signed and sealed by the said officers and delivered to the peon.

Mid year sale to be applied for on first of Kártik.

Third.—On the first day of Kártik, in the middle of the year, the zamíndár shall be at liberty to present a similar petition, with a statement of any balances that may be due on account of the rent of the current year, up to the end of the month of Asin, and to cause similar publication to be made of a sale of the tenures of defaulters, to take place on the first of Aghan, unless the whole of the advertised balance shall be paid before the date in question, or so much of it as shall reduce the arrear, including any intermediate demand for the month of Kártik, to less than one-fourth or a four-anna proportion of the total demand of the zamíndár, according to the kistbandí, calculated from the commencement of the year to the last day of Kártik.

Sales how conducted.

9. All sales of saleable tenures applied for under the rules of this Regulation shall be made in public kachahrí; the land shall be sold to the highest bidder, and every one not the actual defaulter shall be free to bid, not excepting the person in satisfaction of whose demand the sale may be made, nor the under-tenants of the defaulter; fifteen per cent. of the purchase-money shall be paid immediately the lot is knocked down, and the officer conducting the sale shall be competent to refuse to accept a bid, or to knock down a lot to any bidder, unless he has assurance to his satisfaction that the amount required to be deposited is in hand for the purpose, or will be produced within two hours.

If the fifteen per cent. be not paid in cash, * * * * * * * * * within two hours of the sale, or an equivalent amount in Government securities be not lodged, the lot shall be resold on the same day, and if the remainder of the purchase-money be not paid by noon of the eighth day, notice shall be given of resale on the following day, that is, on the ninth from the first sale, by proclaiming the same by beat of drum through the bázár of the sadr station of the zila, after which the lot shall be resold at the appointed time at the risk of the first purchaser, who shall forfeit the advance of fifteen per cent. already made, and be further answerable for any sum in which the proceeds of the second sale may fall short of the antecedent one; such deficiency to be levied by the process for the execution of decrees of the Civil Courts.

The forfeited deposit shall be applied to defray the expenses of the sale, and the surplus shall be credited to Government.

Forms to be observed in selling.

10. At the time of the sale, the notice previously stuck up in the kachahrí shall be taken down, and the lots be called up successively in the order in which they may be found in that notice.

A person shall attend on the part of the zamíndár, with a particular statement of the payments made up to the day of sale, on account of the balance of each advertised lot, together with the receipt for, or certificate of, the notice directed to be published in the mufassal, nor shall any lot be put up to sale until the statement produced shall have been inspected, and the existence of a balance for the year ascertained therefrom, nor until the receipt for the notice shall have been read; the observance of which forms shall be recorded in a separate rubakárí to be held upon each lot sold.

If the sale be of the description provided for in the third clause of section 8 of this Regulation, the kistbandí of the defaulter shall likewise be produced, in order that it may be seen that the balance remaining unpaid exceeds a four-anna proportion of the demand up to the date of sale; nor shall the sale take place unless this be ascertained.

The zamíndár shall be exclusively responsible for the correctness and authenticity of the papers to be thus exhibited, nor shall the public officer making the sale be answerable in any respect, except for its fairness and publicity, and for the observance of the rules prescribed for his guidance in this Regulation.

Tenure to be sold free of incumbrance by act of defaulter.

11. First.—It is hereby declared, that any taluq or saleable tenure that may be disposed of at a public sale, under the rules of this Regulation, for arrears of rent due on account of it, is sold free of all incumbrances that may have accrued upon it by act of the defaulting proprietor, his representatives or assignees, unless the right of making such incumbrances shall have been expressly vested in the holder by a stipulation to that effect in the written engagements under which the said taluq may have been held.

No transfer by sale, gift or otherwise, no mortgage or other limited assignment, shall be permitted to bar the indefeasible right of the zamíndár to hold the tenure of his creation answerable, in the state in which he created it, for the rent which is in fact his reserved property in the tenure, except the transfer or assignment should have been made with a condition to that effect, under express authority obtained from such zamíndár.

No under-lease to stand after sale.

Second.—In like manner, on sale of a taluq for arrears, all leases originating with the holder of the former tenure, if creative of a middle interest between the resident cultivators and the late proprietor, must be considered to be cancelled, except the authority to grant them should have been specially transferred; the possessors of such interests must consequently lose the right to hold possession of the land and to collect the rents of the raiyats; this having been enjoyed merely in consequence of the defaulter's assignment of a certain portion of his own interest, the whole of which was liable for the rent.

Reason for allowing under-tenants means of staying sale.

13. First.—With reference to the injury that may be brought upon the holder of a taluq of the second degree by the operation of the preceding rules, in case the proprietor of the superior tenure purposely withholds the rent due from himself to the zamíndár, after having realised his own dues from the inferior tenantry, it is deemed necessary to allow such taluqdárs the means of saving their tenures from the ruin that must attend such a sale; and the following rules have accordingly been enacted for this purpose.

How under-tenants may stay sale.

Second.—Whenever the tenure of a taluqdár of the first degree may be advertised for sale in the manner required by the second and third clauses of section 8 of this Regulation, for arrears of rent due to the zamíndár, the taluqdárs of the second degree, or any number of them, shall be entitled to stay the final sale, by paying into the Collectorate the amount of balance that may be declared due by the person attending on the part of the zamíndár on the day appointed for sale; in like manner they shall be entitled to lodge money antecedently, for the purpose of eventually answering any demand that may remain due on the day fixed for the sale, and should the amount lodged be sufficient, the sale shall notproceed, but after making good to the zamíndár the amount of his demand, any excess shall be paid back to the person or persons who may have lodged it.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Schedule III.—Summary sale of Patní Tenures.)

Procedure in case of amount lodged being rent due from under-tenant;

Third.—If the amount so lodged shall be rent due by the inferior taluqdár to the holder of the advertised tenure, the same shall be stated at the time of making the deposit, and the amount shall be carried to the account of the tenant or tenants lodging it, and be deducted from any claim of rent that may at the time be pending, or be thereafter brought forward against him or them by the proprietor of the advertised tenure, on account of the year or months for which the notice of sale may have been published.

Fourth.—If the person or persons making such a deposit, in order to stay the sale of the superior tenure, shall have already paid the whole of the rent due from himself or themselves, so that the amount lodged is an advance from private funds, and not a disbursement on account of the said rent, such deposit shall not be carried to credit in, or set against, future demands for rent, but shall be considered as a loan made to the proprietor of the tenure preserved from sale by such means, and the taluq so preserved shall be the security to the person or persons making the advance, who shall be considered to have a lien thereupon, in the same manner as if the loan had been made upon mortgage, and he or they shall be entitled, on applying for the same, to obtain immediate possession of the tenure of the defaulter, in order to recover the amount so advanced from any profits belonging thereto.

If the defaulter shall desire to recover his tenure from the hands of the person or persons who, by making the advance, may have acquired such an interest therein, and entered on possession in consequence, he shall not be entitled to do so, except upon repayment of the entire sum advanced, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum up to the date of possession having been given as above, or upon exhibiting proof, in a regular suit to be instituted for the purpose, that the full amount so advanced, with interest, has been realised from the usufruct of the tenure.

Sale not to be stayed unless arrear claim be lodged.

14. First.—Should the balance claimed by a zamíndár on account of the rent of any under-tenure remain unpaid upon the day fixed for the sale of the tenure, the sale shall be made without reserve, in the manner provided for in sections 9 and 10 of this Regulation; nor shall it be stayed or postponed on any account, unless the amount of the demand be lodged.

But suit to lie for its reversal.

It shall, however, be competent to any party desirous of contesting the right of the zamíndár to make the sale, whether on the ground of there having been no balance due, or on any other ground, to sue the zamíndár for the reversal of the same, and upon establishing a sufficient plea, to obtain a decree with full costs and damages.

The purchaser shall be made a party in such suits, and upon decree passing for reversal of the sale, the Court shall be careful to indemnify him against all loss, at the charge of the zamíndár or person at whose suit the sale may have been made.

Defaulter may apply for summary investigation.

Second.—In cases also in which a taluqdár may contest the zamíndár's demand of any arrear, as specified in the notice advertised, such taluqdár shall be competent to apply for a summary investigation at any time within the period of notice; the zamíndár shall then be called upon to furnish his kabuliyat and other proofs at the shortest convenient notice, in order that the award may, if possible, be made before the day appointed for sale.

Sale not to be stayed unless amount claimed be deposited.

Such award, if so made, will of course regulate the ulterior process; but if the case be still pending, the lot shall be called up in its turn, notwithstanding the suit; and if the zamíndár or his agent in attendance insist on the demand, the sale shall be made on his responsibility, nor shall it be stayed, or the summary suit be allowed to proceed, unless the amount claimed be lodged in cash, * * * * * * * * or in Government securities, by the taluqdár contesting the demand; and if such deposit be not made, the alleged defaulter will have no remedy, but by a regular action for damages and for a reversal of the sale.

Delivery of possession to purchaser.

15. First.—So soon as the entire amount of the purchase-money shall have been paid in by the purchaser at any sale made under this Regulation, such purchaser shall receive from the officers conducting the sale a certificate of such payment.

The purchaser shall then proceed with the certificate in question to procure a transfer to his name in the kachahrí of the zamíndár, and upon furnishing security, if required, to the extent of half the jama or annual rent, he shall receive the usual 'amaldastak' or order for possession, together with the notice to the raiyats and others to attend and pay their rents henceforward to him.

The zamíndár shall also be bound to furnish access to any papers connected with the tenure purchased, that may be forthcoming in his kachahrí; and should he in any manner delay the transfer in his office, or refuse to give the orders for possession, notwithstanding that good and substantial security shall have been furnished or tendered on requisition, the new purchaser shall be entitled to apply direct to the Collector; and he shall receive the orders for possession, and shall be put in possession, of the lands by means of the názir, in the same manner as possession is obtained under a decree of Court; * * *

* * * * * *

Second.—When the new purchaser shall proceed to take possession of the lands of his purchase, if the late incumbent himself, or the holders of tenures or assignments derived from the late incumbent, and intermediate between him and the actual cultivators, shall attempt to offer opposition, or to interfere with the collections of the new purchaser, from the lands composing his purchase, the latter shall be at liberty to apply immediately to the Collector for the aid of the public officers in obtaining possession of his just rights.

Procedure in case of opposition to purchaser.

A proclamation shall then issue under the seal and signature of the Collector declaring that the new incumbent having, by purchase at a sale for arrears of rent due to the zamíndár, acquired the entire rights and privileges attaching to the tenure of the late taluqdár, in the state in which it was originally derived by him from the zamíndár, he alone will be recognized as entitled to make the zamíndárí collections in the mufassal, and no payments made to any other individual will on any account be credited to the raiyats or others in any suit for rent or on any other occasion whatever when the same may be pleaded.

Third.—Should the late incumbent or his late under-tenants continue to oppose the entry of the new purchaser, notwithstanding the issuing of such a proclamation, or should there be reason to apprehend a breach of the peace on the part of any one, the aid of the Police-officers and of all other public officers who may be at hand and capable of affording assistance shall be given to the new purchaser, on his presenting a written application for the same; and in the event of any affray or breach of the peace occurring, the entire responsibility shall rest with the party opposing the lawful attempt of the purchaser to assume his rights.

Procedure in case of continued opposition.

* * * * *

17. First.—The following rules have been enacted for the disposal of the proceeds of any sale made under the rules of this Regulation.

Disposal of proceeds of sales.

Second.—One per cent. shall first be deducted from the nett proceeds realised, and shall be carried to the account of Government, for the purpose of meeting the expense of any extra establishments which it may be necessary to maintain for carrying into effect the provisions of this Regulation.

Deduction on account of Government.

Third.—The balance on account of which the sale may have been made shall next be made good in full (with interest and all charges incurred in bringing the taluq to sale) to the zamíndár or other person to whom the same may be due; provided, however, that no former balances, beyond those of the current year (or of that immediately expired, if the sale be at the commencement of the following year), shall be included in the demand to be thus satisfied.

Payment to zamíndárs.

Such antecedent balances, if the zamíndár shall have omitted to avail himself of the process within his reach for having them satisfied at the time, will have become in fact mere personal debts of the individual taluqdár, and must be recovered in the same way as other debts by a regular suit in the Court.

Fourth.—Any excess that may remain after satisfying the demand of the zamíndár, in the manner above described, shall be forthwith sent by the officer conducting the sale to the treasury of the Collector or Assistant Collector of the district, to be there held in deposit to answer the claims of the taluqdárs of the second degree, or of others who, by assignment of the defaulter, may be at the time in possession of a valuable interest on the land composing the taluq sold, or on any part of it.

Disposal of remainder.

Fifth.—It shall be competent to any one conceiving himself to possess such an interest to bring forward his claim to the price he may have paid for the same, or for a just compensation for the loss sustained by him in consequence of the sale, by instituting a regular suit at any time within two months from the date of sale.

Under-tenants free to prosecute for price of their interest or compensation.

If the Court shall, on investigation, consider the plaintiff's claim to be an equitable one, the Court will award to the claimant either the price he may have originally paid, or the value of the interest at the time of sale, or any other amount that may be deemed just and equitable under all the circumstances.

If there be more claimants than one, payment shall not be made from the deposit, until the whole of the claims be settled; and in case the value assessed upon the whole should exceed the amount in deposit, such amount shall be divided proportionately, and the remainder stand as a personal debt against the defaulter, to be realised from him by the usual process for the execution of decrees.

Sixth.—Provided, however, that no taluqdár of the second degree or other possessor of an assigned interest upon the land of the tenure sold, who may be holding under a stipulation for the payment of an annual amount in the way of rent, shall be entitled to recover compensation for the loss of such tenure or assignment upon its becoming cancelled by sale of the superior taluq, except after exhibiting proof that the whole amount of the rent demandable from himself has been paid or lodged for the purpose prior to the date of sale.

When defaulter to receive excess unclaimed.

Seventh.—Should no claims upon the purchase-money of a taluq sold as above be brought forward by any under-tenants or assignees, within the period of two months from the date of sale, or should the amount claimed by those who may have sued not equal the entire deposit, the defaulter whose tenure may have been sold shall be at liberty to petition the Court for the amount so held in deposit, or for the excess thereof, as the case may be, and he shall receive a certificate under the seal of the Court, of there being no claims to afford ground of detention for the whole or any part of the deposit; and upon exhibiting such certificate to the Collector, the amount set free thereby shall be paid to his receipt.

In the same manner, upon executing a decree passed in favour of any under-tenants or assignees, they shall receive certificates under the seal of the Court, declaring the amount adjudged to them out of the deposit; and upon exhibiting these certificates, the amount shall be paid severally to their receipts by the Collector.

Substitution of Government securities for cash in deposit.

Eighth.—It shall be competent to any party interested in a deposit, to withdraw the whole or any part thereof, on substituting Government securities, bearing interest, in lieu of the money so held in deposit; such securities to be taken at the rate of discount or premium of the day, as shown by the Government Gazette last received.

SCHEDULE IV.

(See Section 224.)

PART I.—Suits.

Description of suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
1. To eject any tenure-holder or raiyat on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is a contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach.	One year .	The date of the breach.

PART I.—Suits.—concluded.

Description of Suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
2. For the recovery of an arrear of rent— (a) when the arrear fell due before a deposit was made on account of the rent of the same holding under section 108.	Six months .	The date of the deposit.
(b) in other cases .	Three years .	The last day of the Bengali year in which the arrear fell due, where that year prevails, and the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Amli or Fasli year in which the arrear fell due, where either of those years prevails.

PART II.—Appeals.

Description of Appeal.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
3. From any decree or order under this Act to the Court of a District Judge.	Thirty days .	The date of the decree or order appealed against.

Description of Application.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
5. For the execution of a decree or order made under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, and not being a decree for a sum of money exceeding Rs. 500, exclusive of any interest which may have accrued after decree upon the sum decreed, but inclusive of the costs of executing such decree, except where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree.	Three years .	(1) The date of the decree of order; or (2) where there has been an appeal, the date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court; or (3) where there has been a review of judgment, the date of the decision passed on the review.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE history of landlord and tenant legislation in Bengal, and of the circumstances which have led to the preparation of the present Bill, is given in full detail in the papers which have been published. A very brief summary of it must suffice here.

Immediately before the Permanent Settlement was made, the Court of Directors, in conveying instructions to the Government here regarding it, wrote as follows*:—

"In order to leave no room for our intentions being at any time misunderstood, we direct you to be accurate in the terms in which our determination is announced. * * * * You will, in a particular manner, be cautious so to express yourselves as to leave no ambiguity as to our right to interfere, from time to time, as it may be necessary, for the protection of the raiyats and subordinate landlords, it being our intention, in the whole of this measure, effectually to limit our own demands, but not to depart from our inherent right as sovereigns of being the guardians and protectors of every class of persons living under our Government."

2. In conformity with these instructions, an article was inserted in section 8 of Regulation I of 1793, by which the Permanent Settlement was effected, expressly saving the right of the Government to legislate for the protection of persons having interests in the soil below those of the zamíndárs. It need hardly be said that any such saving was, strictly speaking, superfluous, inasmuch as the Government of an agricultural country like India would, apart altogether from it, be entitled, or rather bound, to legislate from time to time, as occasion might require, for the protection of the inferior occupants of the soil. But the article is important as showing that the view taken of the relations between the Government, the zamíndárs and the inferior landholders under the Permanent Settlement was the same in 1793 as it is to-day.

The article runs as follows:—

"To prevent any misconstruction of the foregoing articles" (fixing the Government revenue for ever) "the Governor General in Council thinks it necessary to make the following declarations to the zamíndárs, independent taluqdárs and other actual proprietors of land:— First, it being the duty of the ruling power to protect all classes of people, and more particularly those who, from their situation, are most helpless, the Governor General in Council will, whenever he may deem it proper, enact such regulations as he may think necessary for the protection and welfare of the dependent taluqdárs, raiyats and other cultivators of the soil; and no zamíndár, independent taluqdár or other actual proprietor of land shall be entitled on this account to make any objection to the discharge of the fixed assessment which they have respectively agreed to pay."

3. Again, it was enacted by section 67 of Regulation VIII of 1793 (a Regulation re-enacting, with modifications, the rules for the Decennial Settlement) that proprietors should be bound by the restrictions in their kabuliyats, and the 9th of these, as stated by Harington (Vol. II, page 255), was "that implicit obedience be shown to all regulations which have been or may be prescribed by Government concerning the rents of the raiyats and the collections from undertenants and agents of every description, as well as from all other persons whatever."

4. The most important enactment passed in pursuance of these provisions is Act X of 1859, the substantive provisions of which, either in their original form or as re-enacted in Act VIII of 1869† (of the Bengal Council), still govern the relations of landlord and tenant in Bengal.

The effect of Act X of 1859 is admitted to have been on the whole beneficial; but on certain important points it cannot be considered a success. In particular, as will presently be explained at greater length, it placed the right of occupancy, which it recognized in the tenant, and the right to enhance rent, which it recognized in the landlord, on a most precarious footing. The result of this has been that, as usually happens with a law which is uncertain in its operation, it has added strength to the strong and further weakened those who were already weak. In Bihár, where the social and economical conditions of the country tend to give the landlords the upper hand, we hear of tenants rack-rented, subjected to quasi-feudal oppressions and arbitrarily ousted from their holdings; in Eastern Bengal, on the contrary, where circumstances favour the tenants, we hear of landlords who not only cannot obtain the enhancements of rent to which they are entitled, but at times, when tenants combine against them, cannot even recover what is admitted to be due at existing rates.

5. The difficulties connected with Act X of 1859 began to be felt at an early period. It received the assent of the Governor General on the 29th of April, 1859, and before the end of 1863 its amendment had been suggested by Sir Barnes Peacock, the Chief Justice of Bengal, and by the Revenue-authorities of the North-Western Provinces. Of late years, successive Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal have borne witness to the existence of chronic evils, which nothing short of comprehensive legislation could cure. In 1873, Sir George Campbell had no doubt that the Government would be eventually compelled to deal with the whole question of the relations of landlords and raiyats in Bengal. In 1876, in the course of the debates on the Agrarian Disputes Act, a measure devised to meet the difficulties between landlords and tenants in Eastern Bengal, the Hon'ble Kristodás Pál, a representative of the zamíndárs, urged that the indefiniteness of the principles of Act X of 1859 had brought suits for the adjustment of rents to a dead-lock. Sir R. Temple concurred in the opinion that some principle for determining rates of rent should be fixed by legislation, and in August, 1876, proposed to introduce a Bill to define the principles on which the rights of occupancy-raiyats and tenure-holders should be fixed, to simplify the procedure for realizing arrears of rent in undisputed cases, to extend the definition of "occupancy-raiyat," and to render the interest of a raiyat of that class liable to sale for default in paying rent and transferable by private agreement.

* Harington II, pp. 191-92.

† Throughout this Statement Act X of 1859 only will be referred to. It will be understood that what is said regarding it applies equally to Act VIII of 1869.

These proposals had not, however, been fully considered when Sir R. Temple, early in 1877, made over charge of the Lieutenant-Governorship to Sir Ashley Eden; and it was then arranged that the larger amendment of the law should be deferred, and a Bill providing only for the realization of undisputed arrears introduced at once.

6. It was, however, found, when the Bill was introduced, that it was impracticable to limit its scope in this way. The discussion as to the transferability of the right of occupancy had materially advanced, and it had been recognized that the legislature would have to alter the law with reference to ejectment, distraint, instalments and deposits of rent, and possibly sub-letting. It began to be apparent that many of the proposed provisions would eventually prove to be intimately connected with other portions of the existing law not ostensibly affected by them; and in February, 1879, a majority of the Select Committee on the Bill recommended that the whole subject of a revision of the Rent Law should be once for all fairly faced. This proposal was supported by Sir Ashley Eden; and in April, 1879, the Government of India sanctioned the formation of a Commission to prepare a digest of the existing statute and case law, and to frame the draft of a consolidating Bill.

7. Meanwhile, a separate discussion had been proceeding with reference to the abuses already mentioned as prevailing in the relations between landlords and tenants in Bihár. As far back as the year 1868, Lord Lawrence, then Governor General, had recorded a minute relating to the depressed state of the peasantry in Bihár, in which he had said that he believed "that it would be necessary for the Government sooner or later to interfere and pass a law which should thoroughly protect the raiyat and make him—what he is now only in name—a free man, a cultivator with the right to cultivate the land he holds, provided he pays a fair rent for it." Again, in the years 1875 and 1876, when the condition of Bihár came under consideration, it was acknowledged that some remedies must be applied. Two years later, the Lieutenant-Governor appointed a committee of experienced Bihár officials to advise upon the matter; and on the 8th March, 1879, they submitted their report, proposing so many changes of the existing law that they did not consider that the requirements of the case would be properly met by a mere amending Bill. They were of opinion that the whole rent law should be recast.

8. Thus, two independent committees arrived simultaneously at the same conclusion, namely, that the time for a complete revision of the existing law had arrived.

The report of the Bihár committee was referred to the Rent Law Commission, which was appointed under the sanction referred to above (paragraph 6), and that Commission, on the 19th June, 1880, submitted its report with a draft Landlord and Tenant Bill, which, having been revised by the Government of Bengal, has furnished the basis of the present Bill.

9. Before proceeding to give the explanations usual in a statement of this description, it should be mentioned, first, that these explanations will, as far as possible, be confined to points on which it is proposed to alter the existing law, and secondly, that the Bill is no more than it purports to be, namely, a Bill to amend and consolidate existing enactments.

10. With reference to this latter remark, it will be observed that the Bill prepared by the Rent Commission was intended to be in some sense a code of the law relating to agricultural tenancies. It, in many instances, incorporated portions of the common law or case law which have not hitherto been embodied in any legislative enactment in this country. In this respect the present Bill does not follow that of the Rent Commission; but it must not be inferred from this that the views of the Government of India on the important subject of codification have undergone any change. It may be desirable, at some future time, to carry out the design of the Rent Commission in its integrity, and make the Bengal Tenancy Act a complete and self-contained statement of the whole law; but it has been considered that the work of codification is one to be undertaken at a season of leisure, and not at a time like the present, when those, who are responsible for the framing of our legislative measures, are absorbed in the consideration of important substantive amendments of particular portions of the existing law, and are consequently unable to devote to the law as a whole that amount of attention, which would be required in order to carry out the work of codification with any prospect of success.

In the following portions of this Statement the order of the Bill will, as far as possible, be adhered to.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

11. The Bill, it will be observed (section 1), extends by its own vigour to the whole of the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa and the Scheduled Districts.

The Lieutenant-Governor is specially empowered by section 1 to extend the whole Bill, or any portion of it, to the Orissa Division, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and he can, with like sanction, extend the whole, or any portion of it, to any Scheduled District under the power conferred on him by the Scheduled Districts Act.

12. The classes of tenants, to which the provisions of the Bill apply, are (section 3 (8)) tenure-holders, raiyats, under-raiyats and persons having a certain interest in bastu land, which will be found explained further on under the head of Chapter VII.

13. The term "tenure-holder" as used in the Bill is defined (section 3 (3) and (4)) to include what are commonly known as undertenure-holders, that is to say, darpatnídárs, sepatnídárs, darijaradárs and such like; and also tenants of the class hitherto known as raiyats at fixed rates. The inclusion of tenants of this latter class in the definition is convenient from the draftsman's point of view, but is, it is believed, otherwise of little importance, inasmuch as the incidents which are attached to their holdings place them to all practical intents and purposes on the same footing as tenure-holders.

14. The term "raiyat" has, following the Bill prepared by the Rent Law Commission, been limited to tenants holding land for purposes of agriculture, horticulture or pasture, or who have come into possession for such purposes, except where bastu or homestead land is included in a raiyat's agricultural holding, in which case it will be treated in the same way as the rest of the holding, and he will be deemed to hold it as a raiyat.

15. Except as just stated, no attempt has been made to define the terms "tenure-holder" and "raiyat," or to settle the distinction between these two classes of tenants.

The importance of this distinction for the purposes of the Bill has not been overlooked, nor has the possibility that cases may occur near the line of separation between the two classes, in which a doubt will arise as to whether the tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat; but it is believed that the distinction is generally well understood, and that, save in exceptional cases, no difficulty will arise. However this may be, no complete definition has as yet been suggested which would not be certain to give rise to difficulties greater than those which it is intended to remove.

16. Under-raiyat, as defined in the Bill, includes all tenants holding whether immediately or mediately below a raiyat.

17. Section 4, besides saving certain special laws which would, as a matter of course, be saved in a general enactment of this description, provides that nothing in the Bill "shall affect any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions."

A saving of this description is unavoidable in a measure which, as already observed, does not purport to be an exhaustive code, and its importance will be seen from the illustration appended, which shows that it will protect such rights as rights of occupancy enjoyed under a custom by under-raiyats, a class of tenants protected only to a limited extent by the Bill.

CHAPTER II.—Of the distinction between khámár and raiyatí land.

18. The second chapter of the Bill deals with the distinction between "khámár land," or the private land of the proprietor, and raiyatí land, or the land destined for occupation by raiyats. The importance of this distinction arises chiefly from the circumstance that raiyats occupying land of the latter class will, under the Bill, enjoy a much larger measure of protection than those occupying land of the former class. Bearing this in mind, and having regard to the efforts made by landlords in some parts of the country, under the existing law, to get into their own hands as large an amount of the raiyatí land as possible and convert it into khámár land, it has been thought necessary to make it clear by the definition that the existing stock of khamar land cannot hereafter be increased, and further to enact (section 6) that all land which is not khamar land shall be deemed to be raiyatí land, and that all land shall be presumed to be raiyatí land until the contrary is proved.

19. In Bihár, owing to the large extent of the khámár, or, as it is there termed, "zeraat", land, and the persistent efforts made by the landlords and their lessees to increase its extent, the question is one of cardinal importance; and there may be other exceptional tracts where the necessity of distinguishing clearly and finally between khámár and raiyatí land may prove to be pressing. To meet such cases, it is further thought necessary to provide (sections 7 to 15) for making a complete survey and record of the existing khámár or zeraat, and thus preclude all possibility of future disputes on the point.

CHAPTER III.—Of Tenure-holders generally.

20. The alterations which it is proposed to make in the existing law regarding tenures, are not of great importance.

Section 14 converts the present raiyats at fixed rates into tenure-holders, but, as already explained (supra, paragraph 13), the change is unimportant.

21. Section 20, which saves to a landlord in a temporarily-settled tract a right to raise the rent of any tenure when a new settlement of the revenue is made, is new; but it may be defended as being in accordance with the views that prevail as to the relative position of the landlord, the tenant and the Government in such tracts. The Government has an undoubted right to raise its revenue on the occasion of a fresh settlement. Of this right no act of the landlord can deprive it; and accordingly, if the landlord were to be bound by a grant at fixed rates, made by him so as to extend beyond the term of the settlement, the result would be that, on the occasion of a new settlement, he might be exposed to the risk of having to pay an enhanced revenue without the possibility of recovering it from his tenant.

22. The Rent Commissioners observe that there are in the existing law no express provisions for the enhancement of the rents of tenures, and that the want of a definite enactment on the point has given rise to much expensive litigation. The sections of the Bill relating to this matter are based on those drafted by the Commissioners, and the grounds on which they rest will be best seen from the following extract from the Commissioners' report:—

"We have," they say, "provided for the enhancement of the rent of tenures and undertenures, by enacting that, in any case in which such rent is liable to enhancement,—there are cases in which it is not so liable,—it may be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures or undertenures in the vicinity, or, where no such customary rate exists, up to such limit as to the Court shall appear fair and equitable, but so that the profit of the tenure-holder or undertenure-holder shall not (in the absence of certain special circumstances, to be noticed hereafter) exceed thirty per centum of the balance which remains after deducting, from the gross rents payable to him, the expenses of collecting such rents. It may be observed that, according to the rule contained in section 8 of Regulation V of 1812, ten per cent. of the balance just mentioned was allowed to the tenure-holder. This section was repealed by Act X of 1859, but, by some oversight, no provision was substituted by this Act, though the principle, as being fair and equitable in itself, and usual by reason of the provisions of the Regulation, was, on several occasions, acted upon by the Courts after that Act was passed. It appears to a majority of us, after careful consideration, that the limit of ten per cent. is too low, and we have accordingly allowed a higher limit, namely, that of a maximum not exceeding thirty per cent. in ordinary cases.* We have provided for the special and well-known case of jangalbari holdings by enacting that, when more than one hundred bíghás of land have been demised for reclamation purposes, more than half being at the time unreclaimed, and the whole having been subsequently reclaimed, the rent of the tenant may not be enhanced so as to leave him a profit of less than twenty per cent. of the net balance above-mentioned, and the Court may allow him such profit in excess of twenty per cent. as to it appears fair and equitable. In order to prevent these new provisions from working hardship by any sudden and great change, we have annexed the following checks:—(a) the enhanced rent shall not in any case be more than double the previous rent: (b) the Court may direct that the enhancement shall take effect gradually, or, in other words, that the rent shall increase yearly during any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached: and (c) that rent once enhanced shall not be altered for ten years unless on account of alluvion or diluvion."

23. The only further points calling for notice in connection with these sections are, that it has been provided that the tenure-holder's profits shall never be less than 10 per cent. of the net balance, that the provision regarding jangalburi tenures has been made applicable to all such tenures irrespective of the area comprised in them, and that a clause has been added providing that, when a tenure-holder has made improvements other than those referred to by the Commissioners, the Court may allow him such amount, by way of profit, as it thinks fit, provided it be not less than 10 per cent.

* Mr. Justice Levinge mentions, in his Minute on Act X, a case in which two-thirds (he does not say, whether of the gross or net collections) were given to the landlord and the residue to the middleman. If the calculation was here made on the net collections, the collection expenses being at ten per cent., the middleman got 30 per cent., being $100 - \frac{2(100-10)}{3} - 10$.

24. In section 26, it is enacted that a permanent tenure-holder shall not be ejected by his landlord except under a decree of Court passed on the ground that he has broken a condition, on breach of which he is, under a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

25. The alterations which are made in the existing law by sections 27 to 35, relating to the registration in the landlord's serishta of transfers of, and successions to, permanent tenures, are (so far as they seem to call for notice) as follows :—

(a) A fee is made payable in respect of the registration of every succession and every transfer other than a transfer on a sale for arrears of rent.

(b) An application for the registration of a voluntary transfer or a succession may, instead of being made to the landlord, be made to a Revenue-officer, who will serve a notice on the landlord requiring him to register.

(c) Where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent, the Court will cause a notice to be served on the landlord requiring him to register the transfer.

(d) If a landlord refuses or neglects to register for one month after he is bound to do so, the persons interested may apply to the Civil Court to compel him to register.

(e) Similarly, if the party or parties concerned do not apply for registration within six months from the date of a voluntary transfer or a succession, the landlord may apply to have him or them compelled to allow the registration and pay the requisite fee.

(f) The landlord is required to give to the parties concerned copies of entries in his register; the first copy to be given free of charge, subsequent copies on payment.

(g) The Board of Revenue is empowered to make rules regulating registration.

26. The proposal of the Rent Commission to extend the registration system to occupancy-holdings has not been adopted, as it is feared that there would be great difficulty in bringing home to persons of the raiyat class the details of such a system.

CHAPTER IV.—Of Patní Tenures.

27. The law relating to patní tenures is left substantially unchanged. The various proposals which have been made for the amendment of the summary sale procedure have not been overlooked; but it is thought that, as they touch only matters of detail relating to an institution of a very special nature, they would be best considered at the Select Committee stage of the Bill, when it is hoped it may be found possible to simplify the form of the law very much without materially changing its substance. Meantime, the existing enactments have been thrown into Schedule III of the Act, and are made operative by section 42.

CHAPTER V.—Of Raiyats with a Right of Occupancy.

It will be seen, from the papers that have been published in connection with this measure, that a controversy has arisen, and has been conducted on both sides with much ability and research, as to whether some such right as that which we usually term a right of occupancy did not originally belong, and ought not now to be recognized as belonging, to all raiyats in Bengal except those whose occupation of the land is of a merely transitory nature. It is unnecessary now to enter upon the merits of that question, inasmuch as, after a full consideration of the position, it has been determined that the legislation to be undertaken by the Government shall proceed on the assumption that the occupancy-right is to be recognized as appertaining only to such tenants as may be shown to be in some special sense settled or permanent. But the problem of defining the class of tenants in whom such a right should be recognized is, when limited by this assumption, one of considerable difficulty.

29. The conditions requisite to confer the status of the "khudkásht raiyat," so frequently referred to in our revenue enactments and records, may in earlier times, and especially when thoroughly organized village-communities prevailed, have been to a certain extent definite and ascertainable; but, in spite of all the learning and research which have been brought to bear, they are not now to be discovered. The probability is that they were always very vague; that, notwithstanding their vagueness, no difficulty arose so long as land was abundant, the pressure of the Government revenue heavy and the status of a privileged cultivator of little value; and that it was only with the progress of agriculture, the increase in the value of landed property and the consequent disputes regarding interests in land, that the need of some more precise definition came to be felt.

30. A definition framed under such circumstances would necessarily be to a great extent artificial, and in moulding its details there would necessarily be a good deal of room left for considerations of equity and expediency. We find accordingly, on referring to the proceedings connected with Act X of 1859, that those who framed that Act assumed a considerable latitude in settling the conditions on which the occupancy-status should be acquired. In the Bill as read a first time, they proposed to confer on every "resident" raiyat a right of occupancy in the "land held by him," and they justified this on the ground that the word "khudkásht," as used in the Regulations, seemed to be synonymous with "resident"; but subsequently, it having been pointed out to them by the Revenue-authorities of the North-Western Provinces that "residence was not always a condition of occupancy," they adopted the rule embodied by them in the Act, namely, that twelve years' holding of the same land shall give a right of occupancy in that land. This rule, which was obviously to a large extent artificial, was copied by them from a similar rule which was issued by the North-Western Provinces Government, apparently as a mere executive suggestion to its officers, in the year 1836, as that "most consistent with the existing practice and recognized rights" in those provinces. The only feature common to the two rules is that of a raiyat in some sense permanent in, or settled in, the locality, and it would seem that the persons who framed those rules considered that as long as they maintained this feature, they were at liberty to define, in such manner as they might think equitable and expedient, the circumstances which should be taken to constitute the requisite degree of permanency or settlement. This is quite intelligible in the view above suggested, that, though the status of the khudkásht raiyat was still a recognized institution, the conditions requisite to establish it were so vague that they could not be described otherwise than as resting on a certain ill-defined degree of permanency in a particular locality.

31. Act X of 1859 is admitted to have done much towards improving the relations between landlord and tenant, but, in this particular matter of defining the conditions requisite to the establishment of a right of occupancy, it cannot be pronounced a success. It would be unjust to charge this want of success altogether against the Act itself. It has been held by the highest judicial authority that the provisions of the Act with respect to the establishment of the right of occupancy should be construed as cumulative and not as exhaustive or exclusive of all other modes of establishing that right; but, as a matter of fact, the Act has come to be regarded as a Code complete in itself, and as superseding all other modes of establishing the right. Its effect has consequently been to injure seriously the rights of the old established raiyats, by throwing upon them the burden of proving, not merely that they have held for twelve years in the village or estate, but further that they have so held in every one of the particular fields or plots, in respect of which they claim to have rights of occupancy, a burden which, it need hardly be said, it is impossible for them, in the absence of any trustworthy agricultural records, to discharge. And, as regards the acquisition of rights of occupancy by new comers,—a matter which is always regarded as absolutely necessary for the prosperity of the agriculturist class in this country,—it becomes almost impossible under a law which enables the landlord to prevent it by the simple device of shifting the tenant from one holding to another before the period of twelve years has run out.

32. It is unnecessary to state here the various remedies which have been proposed for these evils. They will be found described and discussed in paragraph 61 of the letter of the Government of India to the Secretary of State, No. 6, dated 4th March, 1882. It is enough to state the amendment of the law which the Government, after a very full discussion of the question, has resolved to propose. That amendment follows with certain modifications a suggestion of the Famine Commissioners, and consists in making the acquisition of the status of the khudkásht raiyat, or, as he is termed in the Bill, the "settled raiyat," depend not on the holding of one and the same plot of land for twelve years, but (section 45) on the holding of any raiyatí land (whether the same or not it does not matter) in the same village or estate for a period of twelve years whether before or after the passing of the Act. The raiyat may, by ceasing for one year to hold land as a raiyat in the village or estate (section 46), lose the status so acquired, but while it continues to adhere to him, he will, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in any raiyatí land held by him as a raiyat in the village or estate after the 2nd March, 1883, the date on which it is proposed to introduce the Bill. It should be added that, in order to obviate the effect which the minute partitions of estates, so common of late in certain parts of the country, would have in reducing the area in respect of which a settled raiyat of an estate would enjoy his status as such, it is in effect provided by section 48 that the estate shall, for the purposes of this portion of the Act, be taken to be the estate as it would have existed if no partition had taken place since the 1st of January, 1853.

33. It will be observed from the above that a right of occupancy is acquired by a settled raiyat holding raiyatí land "notwithstanding any contract to the contrary." It is considered essential to carry the enactment to this extent. As observed by the Government of India in paragraph 85 of their letter No. 6 of the 21st March, 1882, "such is the power of the zamindárs, so numerous and effective are the means possessed by most of them for inducing the raiyats to accept agreements which, if history, custom and expediency be regarded, are wrongful and contrary to good policy, that to uphold contracts in contravention of the main purpose of the Bill would be, in our belief, to condemn it to defeat and failure. It is absolutely necessary that such contracts should be disallowed, and in this conclusion we have the support not only of the Bengal Government but also of the almost unanimous opinions of the Bengal officers."

34. These provisions apply only to raiyatí land. The acquisition of a right of occupancy in the landlord's khamar land is, by section 49, kept on the same footing as under the existing law

35. It is only necessary to add, as regards the acquisition of the right, that it is provided by section 44 of the Bill that every raiyat, who immediately before the commencement of the Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when the Act comes into force, become an occupancy-raiyat of that land for the purposes of the Act, and that (section 48) a right of occupancy may be acquired by a grant from he landlord.

36. As regards the probable effect of the new provisions regarding the acquisition of the right of occupancy, it should be stated, that no great increase of the area at present subject to that right is looked for from them; indeed, if the statement which has been made by a high authority, that 90 per cent. of the raiyats in Bengal already have that right, is correct, any such increase would scarcely be possible; but what is hoped for is, first, that a stop may be put to the vigorous efforts, which are at present being made by landlords in some parts of the country, to withdraw land from the operation of the right by preventing the natural growth of a fresh occupancy-right in the place of an old right which has determined; and secondly, that, where occupancy-rights do as a matter of fact exist, the proof of their existence may be a matter of less difficulty than it is at present to the ignorant and helpless raiyat.

37. Section 50 states in general terms the more important incidents of the occupancy-right. They attach to the tenancy notwithstanding any contract between the landlord and raiyat, and are briefly as follows:—

(1) the raiyat may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy;

(2) he may make improvements on it as provided by the Bill;

(3) he must pay rent at fair and equitable rates as determined by the Bill;

(4) he cannot be ejected except under a decree passed for breach of certain conditions, or for using the land in such a way as to render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy;

(5) he may sublet the land;

(6) his interest is to be transferable subject to certain rights reserved to the landlord; and

(7) his interest is to descend as if it were land.

38. Several of these incidents will be referred to at greater length in connection with the portions of the Bill specially relating to them. The sixth falls to be considered here, inasmuch as most of the remaining sections of the chapter are occupied with the rules regulating the rights reserved to the landlord when an occupancy-holding is transferred by sale, mortgage, gift or bequest.

The question whether the right of occupancy should be made by express enactment freely transferable everywhere, as it is at present held to be by custom throughout a very large portion of the area to which the Bill applies, has been most fully and carefully considered. It has to be looked at from two points of view, namely, first, from the point of view of the landlord, and secondly, in the interests of the tenant.

39. From the former point of view the question presents comparatively little difficulty. The landlord is concerned only to see that we do not allow an objectionable tenant to be forced on him against his will, and this we can readily guard against by giving him a right of pre-emption, or something equivalent thereto, in every case of transfer. It has accordingly been provided that, in cases of voluntary sale, gift or bequest, the landlord shall have a right to purchase at a price to be fixed by the Civil Court; that in the case of a sale in execution of a decree, when the landlord and any other person bid the same amount, the landlord shall have the right of pre-emption; and that, when an order is passed for foreclosing a mortgage of an occupancy-right, the landlord shall be allowed an opportunity of paying in the amount of the mortgage-debt and taking the place of the mortgagee. The only doubt that has been felt about these provisions is whether, in the case of a voluntary sale, the landlord should not be required, if he exercised his right of pre-emption, to pay the price at which the raiyat has actually agreed to sell the occupancy, right instead of a price to be fixed by the Court; but, on considering the difficulties, by which the right of pre-emption would be clogged in cases of collusion between the vendor and purchaser, and in cases in which a spiteful neighbour might be willing to pay an exorbitant sum for an occupancy-right with a view to harassing the landlord, it has been thought best to put the case of voluntary sale on the same footing as those of gift and bequest.

40. Looking at the question of transferability next from the point of view of the occupancy-raiyat's interest, the Local Government and the Government of India have come to the conclusion that, in the absence of evidence of any evil consequences which have already followed from such transfers, or which may be anticipated as likely to occur in the near future, it would be unwise to oppose the growth of the very strong tendency towards transferability, which the prevailing customs show to existin rights of this class in almost all parts of the country.

The existence of such a tendency indicates—what, indeed, is clear from other evidence—that those most concerned regard the quality of transferability as an important incident of the right; and it cannot be doubted that the enactment of a law absolutely forbidding transfer would, even if it saved existing customs, be regarded as a hardship. It may be added that, if the custom of transferability is so widely established as is stated by some very competent authorities, the operation of a law of this sort would be so limited as to be of but little importance.

41. That the powers of transferring and sub-letting which the Bill recognizes may in time lead to a state of things, in which the great bulk of the actual cultivators would be not occupancy-raiyats but under-raiyats with but little protection from the law, is indeed within the range of possibility; but, if such a state of things should ever arise, we may rest assured that the Government of the day will know how to deal with it. There is nothing in the present Bill which ought in any way to hamper them in doing so—nothing to affect the principle that, in an agricultural country like India, the great mass of the actual cultivators of the soil whoever they may be, and however they may have come into the possession of the land, must be protected by the law.

42. The only other provision of Chapter V which appears to call for notice here is that contained in section 56, and is to the effect that, where a landlord, by way of pre-emption under the foregoing sections or otherwise, acquires an occupancy-right in his own land, any tenant, who subsequently takes the land from him, shall have a right of occupancy in it, and if the rent of the land was previously payable in money, shall be entitled to hold it at a money-rent to be fixed under the Act. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent a landlord, so acquiring an occupancy-right in land, from keeping the land in his own hands and cultivating it by his servants or by hired labourers. All the section would enact is that, if he chooses to let it to a tenant, that tenant shall at once acquire an occupancy-right. This seems necessary in order to guard against the possibility of a landlord buying up on a great scale the occupancy-rights existing on his estate or tenure with a view to locating ordinary raiyats on the land. To a landlord, who buys an occupancy-right, as contemplated by the pre-emption sections of the Bill, merely with a view to excluding an intending purchaser whom he objects to have as his tenant, there would be no appreciable hardship in the restriction.

43. Chapter VI is devoted to the important subject of the rents payable by occupancy-raiyats. In regard to this particular matter, as in regard to that of the acquisition of the right of occupancy, Act X of 1859, whether owing to its inherent defects or to the peculiar construction put upon it by the Courts it is unnecessary now to enquire, has not proved a success. Leaving out of consideration the matter of additions to the rent of a holding on account of an increase of its area, a matter which is relegated to a completely separate division of the present Bill, Act X of 1859 provided by its 17th section that the rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat should be liable to enhancement only where—

1st—its rate was below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in places adjacent, or

2nd—the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land had been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat.

44. Having thus stated the cases in which the rent was to be liable to enhancement, the Act stopped, giving no indication, except such as might be gathered from the statement of those cases, as to the extent to which the Courts were to enhance the rent. In the first of the two cases, no difficulty would arise from this, as the intention of the Act in respect of that case was clear enough; but in the second of the two cases, the question as to the limit of enhancement gave rise to an important discussion, which was at length brought to a close in what is known as "the great rent case." The rule laid down in that case is commonly spoken of as "the rule of proportion," and is to the effect that the enhanced rent should bear to the previous rent the same ratio as the increased value of the produce or increased productive power bears to the value or productive power at the time the previous rent was fixed.

45. This rule, whatever may be said for it on theoretical grounds, has proved to be absolutely unworkable by the Courts in practice, inasmuch as it throws on them the necessity of undertaking elaborate and laborious inquiries into economical questions, with which they are altogether incompetent to deal, and which have reference not merely to the present time but also to past and possibly very remote times, for which no such evidence as could be acted on by a Court of justice is likely to be forthcoming. Moreover, it necessitates enquiries, which are of such a nature that they could with advantage be undertaken only generally, on a great scale, and once for all, being, instead of this, undertaken over and over again in a most imperfect and unsatisfactory manner in individual cases.

46. The result of this is that, though the right of the landlord to enhance is distinctly recognized by the law, and though definite rules are laid down for its enforcement, the law has become to a great extent a dead letter.

The most important object of the chapter we are now considering is, while guarding and limiting the right to enhance in certain respects, which will be presently noticed, to put it on such a footing that it will be readily enforceable in practice; and the chief means adopted for attaining this object is that of separating off the statistical and economical inquiries of a general nature, which have just been referred to, and providing for their being undertaken once for all on a large scale by Revenue-officers.

47. Passing from these preliminary observations to the details of Chapter VI of the Bill, it will be seen that section 60 provides that, except on account of an addition to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, a money-rent payable by an occupancy-tenant shall not be enhanced except by a decree of a Civil Court under the Bill, or by a contract of the nature described in the foregoing section.

48. It is considered, for reasons similar to those stated above in paragraph 33, that it would be destructive of the objects of the Bill if occupancy-raiyats were left perfectly free to deprive themselves by their contracts of the right to hold at fair and equitable rates secured to them by the law. But, on the other hand, absolutely to prevent such contracts would, it is thought, involve too great an interference with the freedom of the parties. A middle course has accordingly been adopted in section 59, which provides that a money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by a contract in writing, approved of and registered by a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, and which goes on in its second sub-section to enact that a Revenue-officer shall not approve or register such a contract until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that he shall be absolutely debarred from registering any contract, by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than six annas in the rupee higher than the existing rent, or more than one-fifth* of the estimated annual value of the gross produce of the land.

49. This 59th section, which, it will be remembered, relates only to the enhancement of the rents of existing tenancies, is supplemented in section 61 by a somewhat similar provision applicable to cases in which a settled raiyat comes in as a new tenant on land previously held by another tenant at a money-rent. Here, too, it is considered that the objects of the law might be defeated if the parties were left absolutely free to contract; and it is accordingly provided that a settled raiyat, taking land under the circumstances referred to, shall not be bound to pay for it a higher rent than that paid by the previous tenant, unless that higher rent has been fixed by a contract registered and approved as already described.

50. Turning now to the matter of enhancement by a decree of the Civil Court, the sub-divisions of Chapter VI which are marked B and C proceed on the assumption that there are, at least in some parts of the country, certain rates of rent generally recognized as the rates payable by occupancy-tenants for the various classes of land held by them. Where this is so, it would, it is presumed, be not very difficult for a Revenue-officer to ascertain those rates, and then, starting from them as a basis, and taking into account such changes in the productive powers of the soil and in the prices of produce as may have occurred since they were fixed, to prepare tables of the enhanced rates, which, subject to allowance in exceptional cases, might fairly and equitably be demanded by the landlord for each class of land under the existing conditions. The Revenue officer, it is thought, might further show in his tables the average gross produce of each class of land and its estimated value. Supposing this to be done, the Civil Courts would be relieved almost entirely of those economical and statistical enquiries, which at present are involved in enhancement-suits. They would accept the rates and produce-statistics shown in the tables as primâ facie correct for lands of the classes to which the tables referred, and might restrict themselves to considering the comparatively simple and limited questions as to whether the particular lands in question in the suit belonged to the class alleged, and whether there were any exceptional circumstances connected with them which would require the rent to be fixed at a different rate from that set down in the table.

51. It is, of course, well understood that there would be many parts of the country for nohich, owing to the non-existence of recognized rates of rent or to the great varieties of the soil, ta such tables could be prepared, and further that, even where it is possible to prepare such hables, their preparation must be a work of time. With a view to these considerations, the Bill ms been so drawn as to provide, first, in sub-division B of Chapter VI, for suits to enhance woney-rents where a table of rates has been prepared, and secondly, in sub-division C, for such suits where a table of rates has not been prepared.

52. It will be convenient, in explaining the details of these portions of the Bill, to begin with the latter set of provisions. The cases, in which a suit may be brought to enhance the money-rent of an occupancy-holding situated in a tract, for which a table of rates has not been prepared, are stated in section 74. They will be found to be in the main the same as those provided for in the section of Act X of 1859 referred to in paragraph 43, the only difference of sufficient importance to call for notice here being, that, for the purpose of estimating the increase in the productive powers of the land or in prices, on which a right to enhance depends, the Court is not compelled, as under the present law, to look to the time at which the rent was fixed, but, when that time cannot be ascertained (as it frequently cannot), or when the productive power and the prices prevailing at that time are undiscoverable, may take, for the purposes of comparison, any other time which may appear to it fair and equitable.

53. Section 75, supplying the defect in Act X of 1859 referred to above (paragraph 44), fixes the limits up to which the Court is to enhance in cases, in which the enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in the productive powers of the land or of prices. It provides that, if the increase has been effected wholly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord, he shall be entitled to the whole benefit of it; that, if it has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord and partly by the agency or at the expense of the tenant, the benefit shall be divided between them in such shares as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the Court thinks fair and equitable; and that, if it is not proved that the increase has been effected by the agency or at the expense either of the landlord or of the tenant, each of them shall be entitled to one-half the benefit: provided in this last case that the enhanced rent shall not bear to the previous rent a higher proportion than the increased productive powers or increased prices bear to the former productive powers or former prices, as the case may be. Thus the rule of proportion, instead of being, as it is at present, under the decision in the "great rent case," the measure of enhancement in all cases, will merely supply a maximum limit in one of the three cases dealt with by section 75; and, as it is not apprehended that landlords will often seek to press their rights of enhancement to the full extent, it seems unlikely that it will give rise to any considerable difficulty.

54. The only other rule relating to the limit of enhancement contained in section 75 is the concluding provision, that the enhanced rent shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time. This limit has been substituted for that of one-fourth originally proposed, as the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal considers that one-fourth of the value of the average crop would be too high a limit. It is to be understood, however, that the point is still under the consideration of the Government.

55. Coming next to the scheme for enhancement by means of a table of rates, it will be seen that section 62 empowers the Local Government to direct a Revenue-officer to prepare for any local area, with the aid of assessors, a table showing, for each class of land comprised in that area, the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats, the average gross produce of the land, and the average value of that produce. The land is to be classified (section 63 (a)) according to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, and section 64 enacts that, in fixing the rates for each class, regard is to be had—

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time the table is prepared;

(b) to the value of the average gross produce of land of that class, and the cost of raising that produce, about the time those rates were fixed, or, where these matters cannot be ascertained for that time, about such other time as it may be fair and equitable to take for the purpose of comparison;

(c) to the value of the average gross produce and the cost of raising that produce at the time the table is prepared; and

(d) to the following rule, namely, that, where the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the value of the produce, the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased value of the produce bears to the former value.

The section concludes with a proviso, corresponding to that mentioned above in connection with section 75, limiting the enhanced rate of rent fixed for land of any class to one-fifth of the average gross produce of land of that class.

56. Sections 65 to 69 provide for a preliminary publication in the vernacular language of the table prepared by the Revenue-officer; for the consideration of objections urged against it by those interested; for the submission to the higher Revenue authorities, and by them to the Government, of the table, with a report setting forth the grounds of the Revenue-officer's decision on each point, and of all objections preferred; and for the further publication of the table when finally settled and approved of.

A table prepared under these provisions will remain in force for such period, not less than ten years or more than thirty years, as the Local Government may direct, and while it remains in force it will (section 71) be conclusive evidence—

(a) that, except as provided by certain clauses to be presently referred to, the rates shown in it for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies; and

(b) that the statistics of gross produce and value given in the table are correct.

58. Section 72 empowers the Local Government to charge the expenses connected with the preparation of a table for any local area to the raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as it thinks fit.

59. Section 73 contains the rules for the guidance of a Court in suits instituted to enhance the rent of an occupancy-raiyat in a local area, for which a table of rates has been prepared, and a glance at it will show what an important simplification of the work of the Court will be effected by the table. The general rule is that the Court shall enhance up to the rate shown in the table for the class of land in question, or, where maximum and minimum rates are shown for land of that class (as will occasionally be the case) to such rate, not higher than the maximum or lower than the minimum, as it thinks fit. It is only in certain exceptional cases that the Court will be required to go behind the rates. Those exceptional cases are of two classes.

60. The first class comprises cases, which may be described with sufficient accuracy for our present purpose as cases in which, owing to some improvement having been effected or having taken place in reference to the land since the commencement of the tenancy, the land has been raised from a lower to a higher class of the table The rules laid down for cases of this class by the first clause of the proviso to section 73 closely follow the corresponding rules laid down in section 75 and referred to above, paragraph 53. They are to the effect that, if the improvement has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed as if the land belonged to the lower class; that if the improvement has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed at such rate intermediate between that of the higher class and that of the lower class as the Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, thinks fair and equitable; and that, if it is not proved that the improvement has been effected by the agency or at the expense either of the landlord or of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed at a rate half-way between the rate of the higher and that of the lower class.

The effect of these rules will be best seen from the illustrations appended to section 73 of the Bill, which are as follows:—

Illustrations.

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

When the land is irrigated from a well . . . . . Rs. 4 per acre.
When the land is not so irrigated . . . . . „ 2 „

The holdings of A, B, C and D, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on these holdings respectively.

The well on A's holding is an ancient one, existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs. 2 per acre, that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

When such land is irrigated from a branch of a river . . . Rs. 4 per acre.
When such land is not so irrigated . . . . . „ 2 „

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs. 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

61. The other class of exceptional cases in which the Court will have to go behind the rates is that referred to in the second clause of the proviso to section 73, where the raiyat proves that by contract, or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than that fixed by the table for land of the class to which his land belongs; and in cases of this class, the Court is required to fix the rent at the lower rate at which the raiyat proves that he is entitled to hold.

62. To complete this portion of the subject it is only necessary to add that all suits for enhancement, whether under a table of rates or otherwise, are by sections 76 to 78 of the Bill made subject to the three rules already referred to under the head of tenures, namely, that a rent shall not be enhanced so as to be more than double the previous rent; that the Court may order the enhancement to take effect by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five; and that, when rent has been enhanced, it shall not be again enhanced for 10 years.

63. How far it will be possible to give effect to the provisions of this chapter regarding the preparation of a table of rates it would be difficult to predict. The members of the Rent Law Commission entertained hopes of those provisions being largely used, and they appear to have thought that, in some cases, if the rates were once settled by authority, landlords and tenants would soon be able to adjust their differences. On the other hand, the result of recent inquiries would seem to show that, in some parts of the country, the rates vary so much from holding to holding as to render the preparation of a table impossible or practically useless. It must, however, be pointed out that it will not follow that, because a table of rates has not been, or cannot be, prepared for a local area, the landlords of that area will necessarily be reduced to the ordinary procedure by civil suit. They will, in many cases, be able to invoke the aid of a Revenue-officer for the settlement of their rents under the provisions of Chapter XI, which will be noticed in their proper place.

64. Section 79 contains the provisions relating to the reduction of money-rents payable by occupancy-tenants. The cases, in which a claim for reduction is allowed are, with certain modifications in detail, which it is unnecessary to notice here, the same as under the existing law, that is to say, a reduction can be claimed only where there has been a decrease of productive power or of prices; and such cases are so rare that it has been thought unnecessary to lay down any elaborate rules for their treatment. Section 79 therefore simply provides that, when a case for reduction is made out, the Court may direct such reduction as it thinks fair and equitable.

65. The case of rents payable for pasture lands, which is provided for in section 80, is likewise one of no great practical importance, inasmuch as such lands are but rarely let to a tenant in this country. Accordingly, no provision for the reduction of rent has here been considered necessary, and it has been thought sufficient, as regards enhancement, to provide that a suit to enhance may be instituted on the ground that the rent is below the prevailing rate paid by raiyats of the same class for similar lands in the vicinity, or that, having regard to the increase of rent on arable land in the vicinity, an enhancement would be reasonable. In either of these cases, the Court is empowered to fix the rent at such rate as it thinks fair and equitable.

66. The next sub-division of the chapter relates to rents payable in kind or varying with the crop, and is of greater importance. Section 81 provides that, when the rent is of this nature, the following rules shall apply, namely :—

(a) notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, the landlord shall not be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which staple crops (such as rice, wheat, and so forth) are grown, more than half the gross produce or its value; and

(b) the landlord shall not, except under a contract in writing, be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding, on which other crops are grown, any other description or any greater amount of rent than a sum equal to one-half of the estimated average value of the produce of that portion of the holding, supposing staple crops to be grown on it.

67. The only objection which it is apprehended might be taken to these provisions is that in some cases a landlord, whose rent is payable in kind, contributes in the shape of seed, labour or otherwise, towards the production of the crop, recovering the price of his assistance in the form of an additional rent, and that, in such cases, the limits which it is proposed to fix might be too low. To meet this, a sub-section has been added, providing that nothing in the section shall prevent a landlord recovering from the tenant the value of assistance so rendered. The result accordingly will be that, though the landlord can no longer include the value of such assistance in the rent, where, by so doing, he would bring the rent above the prescribed limit, he can recover the same amount under another name.

68. Section 82 provides for the commutation into fixed money-rents of rents payable in kind or consisting of the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce.

It provides that an occupancy-raiyat, paying such a rent may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, sue to have his rent commuted, and that the Court shall fix the money-rent at its discretion either—

(a) according to the prevailing money-rent payable by raiyats of the same class for similar land in the vicinity, or

(b) according to the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding five years, subject, however, in this latter case, to a deduction of such amount as the Court thinks reasonable, in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat.

69. The remaining provisions of Chapter VI are merely of a supplementary or subsidiary nature. Section 83 provides for the preparation of price-lists, which, when published with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, will be deemed to be conclusive evidence in proceedings under Chapter VI, and will thus save the Courts a certain amount of work, for the performance of which they are but ill-suited.

Section 84 empowers the Board to make rules for the guidance of officers and (as regards certain matters) of Courts acting under Chapter VI, in particular for determining what crops are to be deemed staple crops for the purposes of the chapter.

70. The Bill prepared by the Rent Commission contained elaborate provisions regarding the use of land for building purposes, which were justified at length in paragraphs 108—113 of their Report. It is unnecessary here to discuss those provisions on their merits. It is enough to say that the present measure is strictly confined to the amendment of the law regarding agricultural tenancies, and can properly deal with the holding of land for building purposes only where the holding of such land is in some sense ancillary to an agricultural tenancy, as e.g., where an occupancy-raiyat has built himself a house in a village with a view to living near his agricultural holding. In such a case there is so close a connection between his house and his agricultural holding that it would in many cases be vain to protect him in the possession of the holding without, at the same time, protecting him in the possession of the house. Besides the inconvenience he might be put to in being ejected from his house and compelled to reside at a distance from his work, it is clear that, if he were left at the landlord's mercy as regards the house, he would be liable at any time to have pressure brought upon him in regard to the holding also, which he might be unable to resist.

71. When the site of the house is included in an occupancy-holding, the raiyat is sufficiently protected under Chapters V and VI, but, when it is a separate holding, some special provision seems necessary; and it is thought that the requirements of the case will be best met by enacting that every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, have a permanent heritable and transferable right in any bastu or other homestead land in that village or estate which is held by him as the site of a dwelling-house for himself and his family; that a person having such a right shall not be ejected except under a decree of the Civil Court for breach of a condition; that, if so ejected, he shall be entitled to compensation; and that his rent may be enhanced at intervals of ten years, so that it may be equal to the rent paid for similar lands in the neighbourhood, or, at the option of the landlord, so that it may be equal to five per centum of the market-value of the land.

CHAPTER VIII.—Of Ordinary Raiyats.

72. Chapter VIII deals with ordinary raiyats, that is to say (section 88) raiyats holding raiyatí land but not having a right of occupancy in respect of it. The principle on which this chapter is based is that, while it is desirable to interfere as little as possible between tenants of this class and their landlords, they should not be exposed to arbitrary rack-renting and eviction at the hands of their landlords, and, further, that the acquisition by them of the status of settled raiyat should in every reasonable way be promoted.

73. Section 89 accordingly provides that, subject to a certain maximum fixed for the rents of all raiyats and under-raiyats, which will be presently referred to, an ordinary raiyat shall pay such rent as may from time to time be fixed by agreement between him and his landlord; but, in order to check extravagant enhancements by the landlord, it is provided in the following sections that, if the landlord proposes an enhancement of the rent, to which the raiyat does not agree, the landlord shall not eject him without paying him, besides any amount that may be due to him as compensation for improvements under the provisions of the Bill, a further sum, by way of compensation for disturbance, equal to a certain multiple of the yearly increase of rent demanded. Ten times the increase is the amount provided for in the Bill as it stands; but it need hardly be said that a figure of this sort is, at this stage of a Bill, entered only tentatively and subject to future consideration. The object in view, it will be understood, is to fix a multiple of the increase high enough to deter the landlord from making an extravagant demand, but not so high that the raiyat would be induced by the prospect of obtaining it to refuse to accede to a reasonable enhancement.

74. The details of the procedure requisite to give effect to this important provision occupy the greater part of the chapter, but they are not such as to call for notice here. The only other provision of the chapter to which it seems necessary to refer is the rule in section 90 limiting the landlord's right to eject, and which is to the effect that a landlord shall not eject an ordinary raiyat except—

(a) for arrears of rent;

(b) on the ground that the raiyat has used the land in a manner, which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken some condition, on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract, liable to be ejected; or

(c) that he has refused to agree to an enhancement of rent on which the landlord insists.

It is in this last case that the provision as to compensation for disturbance will apply.

CHAPTER IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants.

75. We now pass from the chapters dealing with particular classes of tenants to those dealing with matters common to several classes. Chapter IX, which is the first of these, contains most of the general provisions of the Bill regarding rent. It begins with a section (96) providing for such additions to, and deductions from, the rents of tenure-holders and occupancy-tenants as are made on account of an alteration in the area of the holding by alluvion or diluvion, by encroachment, eviction by title paramount to that of the landlord, and so forth. This section applies, in the case of a tenure-holder, only in the absence of a contract to the contrary, but, in the case of an occupancy-raiyat, it overrides any such contract.

76. In the case of land being added to the area of a holding, it provides that the amount added to the rent shall be calculated on the rates payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description, less a deduction, in the case of a tenure-holder, of thirty per cent. for profits, risk and cost of collection. This seems to be the fairest rule to apply in such a case, and it is, moreover, as observed by the Government of Bengal, in harmony with the law regulating additions to the Government revenue in alluvion cases.

77. On the other hand, in the case of a loss of a portion of an area, for the whole of which a single rent has been payable, the only equitable principle to adopt seems to be that the abatement from the rent should bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the yearly value of the land lost bears to the yearly value of the holding prior to the loss, and this is what sub-section (3) of section 96 enacts, adding, however, that, when the yearly value of the land lost cannot be satisfactorily proved, the abatement shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the area lost bears to the area of the holding prior to the loss.

78. Sections 97 to 99 give power to the Board of Revenue to fix the instalments in which rents are to be paid. The power is of little importance in the case of tenures, inasmuch as it can be exercised in respect of them only in the absence of any agreement or custom regulating the matter. In the case of raiyats' holdings, however, it is of considerable importance. Much of the harassment, to which the raiyats are subjected, is said to arise from the number of instalments in which their rents are payable, and, to remedy this, the Board is empowered, subject to certain reservations regarding agreements entered into and customs prevailing before the commencement of the Act, to fix the instalments, in which the rents of raiyats are to be payable, so that there may not be more than four in each year.

79. Section 100 requires every landlord to give to a tenant paying him rent a receipt, containing much fuller details than those prescribed by the existing law, and to keep a counterpart of every receipt so given. It also provides that, when a receipt does not contain the requisite particulars, it shall be deemed to be an acquittance in full up to date.

Section 101 requires every landlord to furnish to his tenant, for each agricultural year, a detailed statement of the account between them for that year, and to keep a counterpart of every statement so furnished.

Section 102, following the existing law regarding receipts, imposes penal damages for refusal or neglect to give receipts or furnish accounts, and further makes it an offence punishable with a fine, not exceeding fifty rupees, to neglect to keep a counterpart as required by the preceding sections.

It is believed that, if these provisions are fully enforced, much advantage will result to both parties. Not only will the tenants be supplied with proper evidence of the payments made by them and of the state of their accounts, but the landlords, if they keep their counterpart statements in a proper manner, will find them useful as evidence before the Courts.

80. Under the existing law, there is but one case, in which a tenant can deposit his rent in a public office, so that the deposit may operate as a payment to his landlord, namely, when he is prepared to declare solemnly that he has tendered the rent to his landlord, and that the landlord has refused to receive it.

It has been found that this declaration has become a mere form, and it is thought better to allow the tenant to deposit his rent whenever he has reason to believe that the landlord will not receive it and grant a receipt. It is also thought advisable that a tenant should be allowed to deposit his rent in two other cases, namely :—

(1) when it is payable to co-sharers jointly, and he is unable to obtain their joint receipt, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent on their behalf; and

(2) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent.

81. This extension of the right to deposit rent necessitates our conferring on the officer empowered to receive deposits a certain discretion not allowed by the present law. He is accordingly given by section 104 a discretion to refuse the deposit, if he does not think the circumstances of the case warrant its being made, and he is further given by section 106 a discretion to pay away the deposit, if he thinks fit, to such one of several rival claimants as may seem to be entitled to it, but subject, of course, to the right of any person actually entitled to it to recover the amount from the person, to whom it is so paid. As regards this last point, however, it will be seen that the officer will have power to retain the deposit if he thinks fit, pending the decision of the Civil Court as to the person entitled to it; and this latter course is doubtless that which he would adopt in all cases in which there might be any reasonable doubt as to the person entitled.

82. The provisions, contained in sections 112 to 116, for the division or appraisement of a crop by a public officer in cases, where the rent is paid in kind or is the value of a certain share of the gross produce, and a dispute arises between the parties, are based on the proposals made for Bihár by the Bihár Committee and the Rent Law Commission; but they are made generally applicable, and their details are taken, for the most part, from enactments in force in Upper India, where rent is very commonly paid in kind or in appraisement of the crops. They enact that, if either party neglects to attend at the proper time for making the division or appraisement, or if there is a dispute regarding the division or appraisement, the Collector may, on application made to him, issue a commission to such person as he thinks fit, directing him to divide or appraise the crop, and may further direct him to associate with himself any other persons as assessors for this purpose. If, in a division made in this way, either party receives less than his proper share, he may, within three months from the date of the division, sue the other party to recover the value of the additional portion of the crop due to him, and, if he does not so sue, the division will be deemed to have been rightly made. When the case is one of appraisement, the commissioner is required to submit his appraisement in writing to the Collector, who shall, after such hearing and enquiry as he thinks necessary, pass an order either confirming or varying it, and that order will be final.

It will be seen that these provisions proceed upon the principle, already referred to in connection with the subject of enhancement, of entrusting to the Revenue authorities the duty of inquiring into, and adjusting, matters, which they are presumably more competent to deal with than the Civil Courts. It is, it will be observed, only the mechanical act of division and the mere framing of the estimate of the crops that, in the cases now in question, are to be entrusted to the Collector and the persons appointed by him, all questions of right being reserved for the Civil Court.

83. Section 117 provides that, if the landlord of any land, of which the rent is payable by division or appraisement of the crop, or any other person, interferes in any way, without the tenant's consent, with the cutting or harvesting of a crop, except by an application to the Collector, under the provisions just referred to, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Penal Code. This is considered necessary in order to put a stop to the oppressive action of landlords in certain parts of the country, who are found to assume a power to prevent the cutting or harvesting of the crops, and to use it as an engine of extortion against their tenants.

84. Section 118, which applies only to Bihár, provides that all danabandi papers shall, within 15 days after the making of an appraisement, be filed in the Collector's office.

85. Section 119 provides that, notwithstanding any contract made after the 2nd March, 1883, the date on which it is proposed to introduce the Bill, a raiyat or under-raiyat shall not, in any case, be bound to pay a money-rent exceeding five-sixteenths of the estimated gross produce of his holding. The limit originally proposed was thirty-five per cent. It has now been lowered at the suggestion of the Lieutenant-Governor; but the figures must be regarded as merely provisional and subject to reconsideration.

86. Section 120 in effect enacts that contracts fixing rents shall, in temporarily-settled tracts hold good only until a fresh settlement is made. The reasons for this provision are similar to those stated above (paragraph 21) in connection with section 20.

87. Section 124 makes the rent of a transferable holding the first charge on that holding.

CHAPTER X.—Other provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants.

88. The question as to the right of a raiyat to make improvements, and to claim compensation therefor on ejectment will, if the proposal to make occupancy-rights freely saleable in execution of a decree is adopted, be of less importance in Bengal than in some other parts of British India. The great mass of the raiyats having a right of occupancy, and not being liable to be ejected except under peculiar circumstances of rare occurrence, and the question of compensation adjusting itself when an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, claims for compensation for improvements will be comparatively few. But the importance, from an economical point of view, of encouraging improvements is so great in this country, that special provision has been made for the matter to meet the case of ordinary raiyats, and such cases as may, from time to time, occur of occupancy-raiyats being ejected from their holdings.

The principle on which the sections of the Bill relating to this subject proceed is that that party to a tenancy whose interest in the land preponderates should have the preferential right to improve and take the full benefit of his improvements; but that, if the party having this preferential right is unable or unwilling to avail himself of it, it should be open to the other party to make an improvement and reap the benefit of it.

Section 127 accordingly confers upon an occupancy-raiyat the preferential right to improve, and provides (subject to one exception to be presently noticed) that, if he does not avail himself of this right and the landlord desires to have any improvement made, he may call upon the raiyat to make it, and that, if the raiyat does not within a reasonable time comply with the request, the landlord may make the improvement himself. Section 128 enacts what may be termed the inverse of these provisions for the case of the ordinary raiyat, that is to say, it gives the preferential right to the landlord, and allows the raiyat to improve only if the landlord, upon being requested by the raiyat to make an improvement, neglects to do so within a reasonable time.

89. There is however, as has been intimated, an exception made to these rules in the case of one sort of improvement, namely, a dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family. This, it is considered, is an improvement which every raiyat, an ordinary as well as an occupancy-raiyat, should be entitled to make; and it is further considered that it is not an improvement, which a landlord should be empowered to force on a raiyat against his will. As regards this improvement, accordingly, it is provided simply that any raiyat may make it; no right to make it, whether preferential or otherwise, being conferred on the landlord.

90. When a landlord makes an improvement under these sections, he will be entitled to reap the full benefit of it in the shape of an enhancement of the rent under the provisions of the Bill relating to that subject. When a raiyat makes an improvement under these sections, he will, if ejected, be entitled, under section 129 of the Bill, subject to certain exceptions which it is unnecessary to notice here, to receive compensation for it. An occupancy-raiyat will further, while he continues to hold, reap the full benefit of his improvements, inasmuch as his rent cannot, under Chapter VI, be enhanced on account of an improvement made by him. An ordinary raiyat under similar circumstances may possibly not be able, in all cases, to retain the full benefit of his improvements, but the check placed on the landlord by the provisions of Chapter VIII will, as a rule, amply protect him in the enjoyment of that benefit.

91. The only other provisions of the Bill, relating to improvements, which seem to call for notice here, are the last clause of section 129, which enacts that improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of the Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act (and therefore to give a claim to compensation), unless it is shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make them and was ready to make them himself, and section 132, which makes void all stipulations in contracts providing (a) that a landlord may prevent a raiyat from improving or eject him for improving, or (b) that a raiyat when ejected shall not be entitled to compensation for improvements.

92. In section 133, providing for the landlord's right to measure lands comprised within an estate or tenure the rents of which are payable to him, the existing law has been modified so as to give a landlord the right to measure all lands lying within the estate or tenure, whether rent-paying or not. As observed by the Government of Bengal, "a landlord has at present no right to measure lákhiráj, and a rent-free holder may, in virtue of a valid grant of ten bíghás, be holding double as much or more. The mere measuring by the landlord cannot harm him, as he could not be ousted from possession save through the Civil Court. But the landlord seems entitled to make a complete survey of his estate." (Letter from Government of Bengal, No. 849T, dated 27th July, 1881, page 25.)

93. The proviso to section 133 enacts that, when land has been measured under that section, it shall not again be measured for ten years without the written permission of the Collector. This seems but reasonable, a right to measure once in ten years being sufficient in all ordinary cases.

94. The only other provisions of this sub-division of the chapter, which deviate in any material respect from the existing law, are those of sections 137 and 138, relating to the standards of measurement. They adhere so closely to the corresponding provisions of the Bill prepared by the Rent Law Commission that the following extract from the Commission's Report (para. 140) will best explain them :—

"The length of the local standard pole, with which a measurement of land should be made, is a fertile subject of dispute and litigation. It is not uncommon for a landlord to make a measurement of his lands with a pole of his own selection, the actual length of which must be a subject of doubt upon the evidence, while the raiyats concerned aver not only that the standard pole of the pargana is different, but that during the measurement a third pole has occasionally been substituted for that which the landlord claims to be the standard. In order to remedy these difficulties as far as possible, we have enacted that all measurements made by order of the Civil Court or Collector shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bígha. It it be shown that the rights of the parties to the suit are regulated by any different local measure depending upon a pargana standard pole, the Government measure shall be converted into local measure for the purposes of the suit. In case of dispute as to the standard pole, the Collector shall, in any suit before himself, or in any suit before a Civil Court, on a reference made for this purpose by such Court, determine the proper length of such pole. We have followed the present law, as settled by the decisions, in enacting that an appeal shall lie from the Collector's decision to the District Judge, but that, if no such appeal be preferred, the decision of the Collector shall be final."

95. It is stated in Mr. Field's digest, section 12 (4), as the result of decided cases, that a raiyat's interest in the land determines when he ceases to cultivate the land and leaves the neighbourhood without arranging for the payment of the rent. Mr. Field observes that the cases leave the matter thus indefinite, and that, if the proposition is adopted by the legislature, it should be made more precise. Section 140 of the Bill, following this suggestion, provides that, when a tenant of a non-transferable holding leaves the holding uncultivated and the rent of it unpaid for a period of one year, he shall be deemed to have surrendered, except in cases in which, owing to an inundation or any other accident to the land beyond his control, it may have been impossible for him to cultivate.

96. Section 141, relating to the doctrine of merger, follows the corresponding provisions (sections 43 and 44) of the Bill prepared by the Rent Commissioners, who state in their Report that some such enactment is needed to settle the law in Bengal. It provides, subject to certain exceptions and qualifications which it is unnecessary to specify here, that, when, in the case of any tenancy, the interest of the landlord and that of the tenant become by transfer, succession or otherwise united in the same person, so as to be owned by him in the same right, the interest of the tenant shall, during the three months following, be presumed to be merged in that of the landlord, unless the person shows that he has not intended it to be so, and shall, after the expiration of the three months, be conclusively deemed to be so merged, unless, within the three months, the person has executed an instrument declaring his intention that a merger should not take place, and the instrument has been registered and published in a certain prescribed manner.

97. Sections 142 to 148, relating to the appointment of a manager on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure, are taken, with slight alterations in the drafting, from the Bill framed by the Rent Law Commission. Their history and the nature of the provisions they contain will be best seen by an extract from the Commission's report. After describing at some length (paragraph 134) the complications, litigation and even riots which arise when co-owners of an estate or tenure (or, as they are sometimes termed, coparceners) quarrel among themselves, and the grievous harassment, to which the tenants are exposed, in such cases, the report proceeds as follows:—

"135. The necessity of a remedy for this state of things was felt at an early period of British administration, and in 1812 it was enacted that, inasmuch as inconvenience to the public and injury to private rights had been experienced in certain cases from disputes subsisting among the proprietors of joint undivided estates, whenever sufficient cause shall be shown by the Revenue-authorities, or by any of the individuals holding an interest in such estates, for the interposition of the Courts of Judicature, it shall be competent to the Zila Judges to appoint a person duly qualified and under proper security to manage the estate; that is, to collect the rents and discharge the public revenue, and provide for the cultivation and future improvement of the estate (Regulation V of 1812, section 26). The Judge was also competent, upon the representation of the Revenue-authorities, or of any such person as aforesaid, to remove any manager so appointed (ib., section 27). A subsequent Regulation (V of 1827) enacted that, when the Zilla Court thought it just and proper under the provision of that Regulation to provide for the administration or management of landed property, it should issue a precept to the Collector, directing him to hold the estate in attachment and appoint a person for the due care and management thereof, under good and adequate security for the faithful discharge of the trust in a sum proportionate to the extent thereof. The reference in Regulation V of 1827 to Regulation V of 1812 was repealed by Act XVI of 1874, so that it is not now competent to a District Judge to send a precept to the Collector directing him to provide for the management of an estate belonging to a joint undivided family. The fragment of Regulation V of 1812 which is still in force is incomplete, and in consequence almost inoperative.

"136. Such being the present state of the law, a majority of us have thought that this fragment might well be repealed and a complete set of effective provisions substituted therefor. We have accordingly enacted that, when coparceners, who jointly own an estate, tenure or under-tenure, disagree as to the joint management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue, (a) inconvenience to the public, (b) injury to private rights, the District Judge may, upon the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in such estate, tenure or under-tenure, direct a notice to be served upon the coparceners, calling upon them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager. If the coparceners do not, within a month, show cause why they should not appoint a common manager, the District Judge may direct them to do so. If they fail to obey that direction, the District Judge may either appoint a manager, or direct that the estate, tenure or under-tenure be managed by the Court of Wards, if it is willing to undertake the charge. We have thought it advisable to give the coparceners an opportunity of appointing a manager of their own selecting, before the District Judge proceeds virtually to depose them. When the Court of Wards undertakes the charge, it will govern itself by the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, IX (B.C.) of 1879. It is discretionary with the Court of Wards to undertake the charge or not. A majority of us have thought it advisable to render this system of management possible, as there may be cases in which no other management will be available. Mr. O'Kinealy doubts if it is advisable to extend the exceptional jurisdiction of the Court of Wards and empower it to manage the estates of persons who happen to disagree amongst themselves. When the District Judge appoints a manager, he is empowered to settle his remuneration, and the manner of it, whether, that is to say, by a fixed salary or a percentage of the collections. He is also empowered to require reasonable security for the proper discharge of the duties of the office. The manager is authorized to exercise the same powers as the coparceners jointly might, but for his appointment, have exercised. He is required to keep regular accounts and to allow the coparceners to inspect and take copies of them. He may be removed upon the application of the Collector, or of any person interested in the estate, tenure or under-tenure. The District Judge may at any time direct that the management be restored to the coparceners, if he is satisfied that they will conduct it without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights."

98. The only other section in this chapter which calls for notice is section 149, which enacts that no tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

99. It has been stated, in the remarks above made on Chapter VI, that it is apprehended that, in many parts of the country, the framing of a table of rates will be impossible. It should be added that, in many instances, the mere framing of a table of rates will not suffice to settle the disputes between landlords and tenants. In either case the only satisfactory remedy may be a settlement of individual rents by a Revenue-officer, conducted somewhat in the same manner as in a Government estate at present; and it is with a view to providing such a remedy that Chapter XI has been framed.

100. There is, however, one cardinal difference between the provisions of this chapter and those of the existing settlement law which should be noted at the outset. Under the existing settlement law, when a Settlement-officer has, after the most careful and protracted inquiry, settled the rents of an estate, and his proceedings have been scrutinized and checked by the superior Revenue-authorities, every individual rent fixed by him is liable to be called in question in the Civil Courts, and that not merely on the ground of error in respect of some matter, such as the status of a tenant or the validity of an alleged lease, falling most appropriately within the cognizance of a Civil Court, but also on the ground of an error in regard to the quality of the soil, the estimated amount of the produce, or some other such matter with which the Revenue-authorities, conducting their inquiries on a great scale, are far more competent to deal than any Civil Court trying a suit relating to a single holding can possibly be; in other words, an important portion of the work, after being done by those authorities, who are most competent to perform it, is liable to be pulled to pieces by another set of authorities, who are far less competent to perform it. The enormous amount of unnecessary expense, trouble and vexation, which this system entails on all concerned can be estimated from the fact, stated by the Board of Revenue in referring to a recent settlement, that out of 2,391 decisions in suits brought to contest the Settlement-officer's rates, 2,202 were absolutely adverse to the plaintiffs. An attempt has been made to avoid this in Chapter XI of the Bill by distinguishing, among the various questions which may arise in a settlement of rents, those which the Revenue-authorities are most competent to determine, and those which a Civil Court is most competent to determine, making the decision of the Revenue-authorities final on the former, and providing that the latter may ultimately be brought for decision before the Civil Court.

101. The procedure of this chapter, besides being available for the purpose of Government settlements, may be made applicable by the Local Government—

(a) when a large proportion of the tenants or of the landlords desires that it should be applied, and

(b) when a resort to it is likely to settle or avert a serious dispute, existing or likely to arise, between landlords and tenants generally.

It is applicable to tenants of any class, but would probably be made use of chiefly for settling the rents of occupancy-tenants.

102. When the rents to be settled are rents, which are subject to alteration by order of a Court, they will be fixed according to the principles embodied in the Bill, and so that they shall not exceed the maximum prescribed by the Bill in cases of enhancement. When, on the contrary, the rents are not of this description, they will be merely ascertained and recorded as rents are under Regulation VII of 1822.

103. The Revenue-officer, having settled the rents, will prepare a jamabandi, showing the status of each tenant, the land held by him, the name of his landlord, whether the rent has been fixed or ascertained, and the amount of the rent fixed or ascertained. This jamabandí will be published, and, after an opportunity for urging objections against it has been allowed, will be submitted to the higher Revenue-authorities with the objections and a report setting forth the grounds, on which the Revenue-officer has proceeded. If ultimately sanctioned by the Local Government, it will be again published, and will then continue in force for 10 years.

104. While it remains in force it will be conclusive (except as will be presently explained) as to the rents payable by those tenants, whose rents are shown in it as fixed. As regards rents shown in it merely as ascertained, and as regards all other matters contained in it, it will be merely presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

105. It will be observed that, in thus empowering a Revenue-officer to fix rents so as to bind the parties, we necessarily empower him to decide certain questions (as, e. g., that of the status of a tenant) which more properly appertain to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts and ought not to be finally decided by any other authority. It is not, however, intended that the Revenue-officer should finally decide such questions. He may, if he thinks fit, when such a question arises, abstain altogether from deciding it, and, under section 155, refer it to a Civil Court, or leave it to be raised before a Civil Court in a suit instituted by any party interested.

In most cases, he would probably decide the question on such evidence as might be readily available; but, whenever he takes this course, his decision will be liable to be challenged in a Civil Court under section 160, which provides that nothing contained in it shall prevent the rent fixed being called in question on the ground—

(a) that the tenancy does not exist, or that the tenant is not liable to pay rent, or

(b) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the jamabandi to belong, or

(c) that the land comprised in the tenancy is different from, or more or less than, that shown in the jamabandí, or

(d) that a rent different from that shown in the jamabandi has been fixed by contract.

It is believed that the above list exhausts all the matters, in regard to which a Civil Court may be regarded as a better tribunal than the Revenue-authorities, and, if this is so, the determinations of the Revenue-authorities in regard to all other matters may safely be made final and conclusive.

106. It only remains to add that, by section 163, the Local Government is empowered to charge the expenses of all proceedings, other than Government settlements, under this chapter to the landlords and tenants concerned, in such shares as it thinks fit

CHAPTER XII.—Of the Preparation of a Record-of-rights by a Revenue-officer.

107. The provisions of Chapter XII are somewhat similar to those of Chapter XI, and have been introduced into the Bill with a similar object, but are more limited in their scope, inasmuch as the operations to be undertaken under them do not, like those under Chapter XI, embrace the fixing of rents, but are confined to the ascertaining and recording of existing rights and existing rates of rent. Moreover, as existing rights and existing rates of rent are matters the determination of which properly belongs to the Civil Courts, an entry in the record-of-rights prepared by a Revenue-officer under this chapter, is in every case merely to be presumed to be true until the contrary is proved.

108. The only other points calling for notice under this chapter are, first, that the Local Government may apply its provisions not only in the cases, in which it is empowered to apply those of Chapter XI, but also in any other case, in which the Governor General in Council may sanction their being applied, and secondly, that the provisions of this chapter being considered a sufficient substitute for those contained in Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869, sections 38-40, these latter are not reproduced in the present Bill.

CHAPTER XIII.—Of the Recovery of Rents from Raiyats and Under-raiyats by distraining the produce of the Holding.

109. This chapter may be said to be the result of a compromise. The Rent Commission, concurring with the Bihár Rent Committee, proposed to abolish the existing law of distraint as an offset of English law, of which the efficacy was impaired by the legislation of 1859, and which had been abused in Bihár and not always applied in a regular manner in other parts of the country. To this strong objections were urged, and the procedure provided by this chapter was then devised by the Government of Bengal, as being likely to secure to the landlords most of the advantages afforded by the existing law, without exposing their tenants to the evils now complained of.

110. The modified power of distraint, which it is now proposed to allow, can be used by any landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat for the recovery of an arrear of rent, which has not been due for more than a year. It extends, as a rule, to all the produce of the holding, including what may have been grown by, and be the property of, a sub-lessee of the tenant, and it may be exercised though the produce has been stored, provided it has not passed out of the possession of the cultivator. The landlord cannot himself interfere with the produce to be distrained, but must apply to a Civil Court to distrain it. The Court, after a brief examination of the case, will depute an officer to distrain and sell the produce, and nothing will stay the sale except the payment into court of the amount of the demand. Any sum paid into court will be retained for one month, with a view to the possibility of the owner of the distrained property claiming compensation as for a wrongful distraint, and on the expiration of that period it will be paid to the landlord.

111. Sections 185 and 186 are directed against illegal distraint and interference with crops. Section 185 provides, in effect, that any person who, otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the Bill, or some other enactment for the time being in force, distrains any produce of a tenant's holding, or interferes with the harvesting of a crop, shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Penal Code; and section 186 imposes a penalty which may extend to three months' imprisonment, or two hundred rupees fine, upon any person who benefits by, or is interested in, the commission of an offence under section 185 if, having reason to believe that the offence was likely to be committed, he has not used all lawful means in his power to prevent its commission.

112. Section 187 empowers the Local Government to suspend in any local area, for such time as it thinks proper, the sections which entitle a landlord to distrain.

CHAPTER XIV.—Special rules of procedure applicable to Suits between Landlord and Tenant.

113. Sections 191 to 198 are intended to embody all those modifications of the ordinary procedure proposed by the Rent Commission and the Government of Bengal, which seem likely to expedite, in any material way, the disposal of suits between landlords and tenants.

Sections 191 to 197 apply to—

(a) suits for recovery of rent;
(b) suits for penalties claimable under any provision of the Bill; and
(c) suits to recover possession of land.

They provide that, in such suits, the summons shall, as a rule, be issued for the final disposal of the case; that the summons may be served by a registered letter; that no written statement shall be filed without the leave of the Court; that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to interrogatories, discovery and affidavits shall not apply; that, whether an appeal lies or not, a simple memorandum of the substance of the evidence, such as is prescribed by the Code for unappealable cases, shall suffice; that, as a rule, execution may issue on the oral application of the decreeholder at the time the decree is passed; and that section 305 of the Code, which enables a judgment-debtor to obtain a suspension of an order made for the sale of his immoveable property, and sections 320 to 325C, which provide for the transfer of decrees to the Collector for execution, shall not apply.

114. A further simplification of the procedure is effected in suits for arrears of rent and for penalties (involving no question of title or of a right to enhance or vary rent) by taking away (section 198) the appeal in such cases from—

(a) a decree or order passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, where the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 100; and

(b) a decree or order passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government, where the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 50.

In so far as regards the class of cases marked (a), the Bill merely reproduces the existing law, with this difference, that it extends the rule to decrees and orders of Subordinate Judges, who, it is thought, may now safely be entrusted with final jurisdiction in cases of this class.

The extension of the provision to the class of cases marked (b) is based on a proposal of the Rent Law Commissioners supported by the Local Government. The Rent Commissioners would have fixed the limit of value in such cases at Rs. 10, but the Lieutenant-Governor, who must be regarded as the best judge of the qualifications of his officers, has recommended that it should be raised to Rs. 50, the limit fixed by the present Bill.

115. It will be observed that the final jurisdiction in this class of cases will be exercised only by specially selected officers, and that a power of revision is reserved to the District Judge by the proviso to the section.

116. Section 199 is completely new. It is intended for the benefit of a landlord in a suit for an arrear of rent, when, as sometimes happens, the defendant admits that the arrear is due, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to some rival claimant. In such a case, it seems only reasonable that the tenant should pay the amount of the rent into court; and the Bill accordingly provides that the Court shall refuse to take cognizance of his plea unless he does so.

117. It is hoped that, when the measure comes to be fully discussed, other expedients for simplifying the procedure in rent-suits may be discovered, but, with the exception of those above referred to, none have hitherto been suggested which the Government of India would be prepared to accept. As regards the possibility of devising any effectual procedure analogous to that on negotiable instruments under Chapter XXXIX of the Code of Civil Procedure, or any other form of summary or provisional remedy, the whole history of such remedies both in this country and elsewhere is against it.

A summary form of procedure can scarcely help a plaintiff unless his case is of the simplest description, admitting of being answered only in the simplest way, and he comes into court armed with documentary evidence of so reliable a character that the presumption against any defence being possible is extremely strong. In such cases the Court may very properly, and with great advantage to the plaintiff, be empowered to decline to hear the defendant, and to decide against him summarily and provisionally, unless he pays the amount of the claim into court or gives security for it. But what advantage could be hoped for from a procedure of this description in rent-suits in Bengal, which admit of the most varied and complicated defences, in which the evidence on both sides is usually of the most worthless character, and charges of forgery and perjury almost common forms in the pleadings? If the legislature consented to provide such a procedure for rent-suits, it would probably feel bound to surround it with so many safeguards that the plaintiff would gain nothing by adopting it; and, even if such safeguards were dispensed with in the Act, the Courts would naturally be so cautious about refusing leave to defend or requiring security from a penniless raiyat, that the so-called summary remedy would cease to be summary, and, like the summary suits of former days in some parts of India, become as lengthy and complicated as an ordinary suit, with the further disadvantage of not being final.

118. The truth would seem to be that facilities for recovering rents in Bengal should be sought for, not so much in novel forms of procedure as in a reliable record of tenancies and their incidents, and a simple mode of adjusting rents; in other words, by going to the root of the disputes which, though they may not always come to the surface, are believed to underlie a very large proportion of the contested rent-suits. If this view is correct, the provisions of the Bill regarding the preparation of tables of rates, settlement of rents and framing of records-of-rights, and those regarding receipts and accounts, may reasonably be expected to remove most of the difficulties of which the landlords now complain.

119. Section 200, following the Bill proposed by the Rent Law Commission, enacts that an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree, unless the landlord's interest in the land has become vested in that assignee.

120. Section 202, relating to relief against forfeitures, is based on section 14 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881. It enacts that a suit for ejectment of a tenant, on the ground of his having forfeited his interest by breach of a condition, or the like, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has given the tenant an opportunity of paying compensation and remedying the breach when it admits of remedy, and that, when a decree is passed in such a suit, it shall not be executed until the defendant is allowed a similar opportunity of repairing or atoning for his wrongful act.

121. The Rent Law Commissioners observe that "there are in the existing law no provisions regarding the away-going crop, and, as a natural consequence, when a tenant is ejected while the crop is on the ground, the right to this crop is a constant source of dispute and litigation." Sections 203 and 204 of the Bill have been framed to meet such cases. They provide, in effect, that it shall be in the option of the landlord to purchase the crop from the raiyat at a valuation, or to allow him to retain possession of the land at a reasonable rent till he gathers the crop. Similarly, when the raiyat has prepared the land for sowing before the date on which he is ejected, section 203 provides that he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the estimated value of the labour and capital expended by him in preparing the land, together with reasonable interest on the same. These sections are, however, guarded by a proviso that a raiyat shall have no claim under them when, after the commencement of the ejectment-proceedings, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

122. Sections 205 and 206 require the Court in all suits and proceedings for ejectment to inquire into and adjust all claims between the landlord and the tenant. This provision will, it is believed, be found useful as tending to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

123. The origin and object of section 207, which provides for the institution of suits to determine the status of a tenant or the incidents of a tenancy, will be best explained by an extract from the report of the Rent Commissioners. After referring to the provisions of the existing law regarding suits for pattás and kabuliyuts, they thus continue :—

"We have just observed that very little use has been made of these provisions by those for whose benefit they were intended. This observation was more particularly concerned with their use as a means of reducing to writing the conditions regulating the relation of landlord and tenant. There is, however, another purpose for which they might have been used, that is, as a means to obtain an authoritative settlement of some essential question connected with the tenancy and in dispute between the parties thereto; the rate of rent, for example, or the quantity of land held by the tenant. The landlord may contend that the raiyat holds twenty bíghás of land, while the raiyat declares that he has but fifteen. Year after year the contention is renewed The landlord threatens a measurement, which the raiyat, afraid of a venal amín and a varying pole, desires to avoid. A bribe to the gomáshta, or compliance with some petty cess, defers the final settlement of the question for a year: and the following year it arises again, perhaps deterring the raiyat from going to his landlord's kachahrí to pay his rent, lest he should be subjected to a demand, the justice of which he will not admit. Or, some fields in the raiyat's holding are by him maintained to be second class rice-land and assessable with the prevailing or usual rate for land of this class, whilst the landlord avers that they are first class rice-land and should pay a higher rent. At every rent-day the point is discussed; and in a country where any discussion is prone to beget a wrangle, seldom conducted with a seemly choice of expressions, an amount of irritation is kept up, which is not in harmony with the friendly relations which should exist between a landlord and his tenantry. It is very desirable that facility be afforded for the ready settlement of questions like these, which are constantly arising in this country, more specially in consequence of the absence of boundaries and fences, and the want of an exact survey upon an uniform standard. It might have been thought that the landlord in the first case could easily have the questions settled by tendering a pattá and demanding a kabuliyat for twenty bíghás; and the landlord, in the second case, by tendering a pattá and demanding a kabuliyat for the field, as first class rice-land: but if the land turned out to be nineteen and a half bíghás instead of twenty, or one of the fields was found to be of some middle class kind of land, the suit, according to the decision of the highest tribunal in India, must fail, and the parties be sent away, the real question in dispute unsettled, and their feelings roused and embittered by litigation.'

"Thus these provisions of the existing law have become ineffectual for the only purpose for which the people cared to use them, and for which they might have been beneficially used. While omitting what has been found useless in practice, we have endeavoured to supply the want thus indicated by experience. Section 151 of the draft Bill accordingly allows either landlord or tenant to sue for the determination of any such questions which may arise between them. A copy of the decree passed in the case will have all the effect of a pattá or kabuliyat upon the point which the parties themselves wish to have determined."

CHAPTER XV.—Sale of transferable Holdings in execution of Decrees for Arrears due on them.

124. The provisions of this chapter are made applicable to all transferable holdings, including such tenures as are transferable, occupancy-holdings, and bastu holdings under Chapter VII, and involve, in certain other respects, substantive changes in the existing law.

The most important of those changes will be best explained in the words of the Rent Commissioners, with whom it originated :—

"The object," they say, "of making sub-leases and incumbrances voidable upon the sale of a tenure for arrears of rent is, that the superior landlord's security for his rent may not be impaired. If the sub-leases and incumbrances of a tenure have not absorbed so much of the tenure-holder's profits as to render the interest left him insufficient to meet the rent which he pays to the proprietor of whom he holds his tenure; if the tenure, subject to these sub-leases and incumbrances, will sell for a sum sufficient to satisfy any decree that can be passed for arrears of the rent payable by the tenure-holder, it cannot be said that the proprietor-landlord's security for his rent has been impaired so far as to bring the case within the above object. The right of sub-letting and creating incumbrances belongs to every tenure-holder: such is the common law of the country. So long as the landlord is certain of the rent to which he is entitled, he cannot justly complain of the exercise of this right, or claim to interfere with it. When, however, the exercise of the right extends so far as to endanger the landlord's rent, to impair the security for such rent afforded by the sale of the tenure by public auction, the case is altered, and the landlord may reasonably demand that these sub-leases and incumbrances be avoided, which have rendered the remaining interest of the tenure-holder an insufficient security for the rent payable by him.*

"In this view of the matter, we have enacted that a tenure, under-tenure or occupancy-holding, about to be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of its own rent, shall first be put up to auction subject to certain incumbrances, and, if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, shall be sold subject to such incumbrances. If the highest amount bid is not sufficient to liquidate the decree, the decree-holder, that is, the landlord, may then claim to have the tenure, &c., sold free of incumbrances. Such sale is not to be had immediately, but upon a subsequent sale-day not less than fifteen or more than thirty days afterwards; and a notification of such tenure being about to be offered for sale free of incumbrances must be posted upon some conspicuous place upon the land of the tenure. The effect of these provisions will be that persons who hold sub-leases and incumbrances will not be endamaged if the bidding on the first sale-day reaches an amount sufficient to satisfy the decree and the tenure is in consequence sold subject to incumbrances. If, on the other hand, the bidding on the first sale-day does not reach an amount sufficient to satisfy the decree, such persons will have time to protect themselves from injury by paying in the amount of the decree (which they can subsequently recover from the defaulter), and so preventing such a sale of the tenure as will avoid incumbrances."

125. Among the objections to the scheme thus propounded by the Commissioners was one to the effect that it was unsuited to the case of occupancy-holdings. This objection is admitted by Mr. Reynolds and by the Government of Bengal to be as a rule well-founded, inasmuch as an ordinary-occupancy-holding is not likely to be saddled with incumbrances which should be respected at a sale. It appears, however, that there are, in some parts of the country, occupancy-holdings of large extent, the land of which is sub-let on such terms that the interest of the lessee is of considerable value. Under these circumstances, the proper course appears to be that proposed by the Government of Bengal, namely, that occupancy-holdings should as a rule be sold at once with power to annul all incumbrances, but that the Local Government should have power to direct that the occupancy-holdings in any local area should be in the first instance put up subject to incumbrances as if they were tenures; and it is on these lines that the present Bill is drawn.

126. The general outline of the chapter will be clear from what has been said, but there are certain details of sufficient importance to call for further explanation. In the first place, it should be stated that the word "incumbrance" is used throughout in a special sense. When it is said that a holding will be sold "free of incumbrances," or as the Bill puts it, "with power to avoid incumbrances," it is not meant that it will be discharged free of everything that might in the wide sense of the word be termed an "incumbrance."

The following interests, which might be termed incumbrances, will not be affected by any sale under this chapter:—

(a) a tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) a tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) a tenure of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) a right of occupancy;

(e) a right conferred on an occupancy-tenant to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord has expressly and in writing given the tenant permission to create.

The last three of these are protected in similar sales under the existing law, and the first three have been added, because such interests, being protected under a sale for arrears of revenue, would seem to be à fortiori entitled to protection under a sale for rent.

127. Again, when the Commissioners propose that the holding shall be put up in the first instance subject to incumbrances, they do not mean that it should be sold subject to all incumbrances, but only to such incumbrances as have been created by a registered instrument of which a copy has been served on the landlord. This limitation they considered necessary to prevent sham incumbrances being fraudulently set up after the sale.

128. The Bill has been drawn in accordance with these views, and accordingly, if it becomes law, the result will be—

(a) that the interests referred to in paragraph 126 will be protected in the case of all sales;

(b) that, in the case of sales subject to encumbrances, the protection will extend also to incumbrances created by registered instruments of which a copy has been served on the landlord; and

(c) that, except as stated in (a) and (b), the holding will be sold with power to avoid all liens, sub-tenancies, easements and other rights or interests created upon it by the tenant in limitation of his own interest.

129. An incumbrance will not become void ipso facto on a sale under this chapter. It must be annulled by a notice served on the incumbrancer through the Collector within one year after the purchaser first has knowledge of the incumbrance. It may be added that it is proposed, by separate legislation, to apply a similar rule to the case of sales for arrears of revenue.

130. When an order for the sale of a holding is passed under this chapter, nothing will stop the sale, unless the amount due is paid into court or the decree-holder acknowledges that his claim has been satisfied.

131. When any person, having in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into court the amount requisite to prevent the sale, he will, with a view to the recovery of his money, be placed by section 218 in the position of a mortgagee of the holding with a first charge and a right to possession. If he is an inferior tenant of the holding, he will have a further remedy under section 219 which entitles him to deduct the amount from his rent.

132. The only other provision of this chapter which need be mentioned is section 220, which permits the decree-holder to bid at the sale without the permission of the Court, and precludes the judgment-debtor from bidding.

CHAPTER XVI.—Limitation.

133. The only provision of this chapter calling for notice is section 225, under which disability will not be recognised as affecting the running of limitation in suits for the recovery of rent. This is in accordance with the recommendation of the Rent Law Commissioners.

"We think," they say, "that a minor ought not to be competent on coming of age to sue a raiyat for rent, which had accumulated during the whole period of his minority; that this kind of debt, which a poor man usually discharges year by year out of the produce of the year, ought not to be allowed to accumulate; and that, if the manager of a minor's estate neglects his duty of realizing rents as they fall due, the minor's remedy ought to be in an action for damages against such manager."

Chapter II.—Survey of Inland Steam-vessels.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Survey, and the Examination and Grant of Certificates to Engineers, of Inland Steam-vessels, and to provide for certain other matters relating to those vessels.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels and the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those vessels;

And whereas it is also expedient to provide for the grant of certificates to the masters of inland steam-vessels, and for investigations into casualties affecting, and into charges against masters and engineers of, those vessels, and for the protection of passengers and goods carried thereon from danger by fire; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title. Extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; and

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Commencement.

2. (1) This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the official Gazette directs.

(2) But any notification, rule or appointment may be made under this Act at any time after the passing thereof, but shall not take effect until the Act comes into force.

(3) And nothing in this Act shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty, or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Repeal of enactments.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Acts mentioned in the first column of the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof.

(2) But all proceedings commenced, investigations held, and certificates granted, cancelled or suspended under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to have been respectively commenced, held, granted, cancelled or suspended under this Act or under the Indian Steamships Act, 1883, as the case may be.

Definitions.

4. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "vessel" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or of property:

(2) "steam-vessel" means every description of vessel propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam:

(3) "inland water" means any canal, river, navigable lake or water in British India:

(4) "inland steam-vessel" means a steam-vessel which ordinarily plies on inland water:

(5) "voyage" includes also the plying of a vessel at or about any place: [Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 1.]

(6) "owner" includes also an agent: and

(7) "master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a vessel.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

Inland steam-vessel not to make a voyage unless furnished with certificate under Act.

5. An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she is furnished under this Act with a certificate of survey then in force. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

Appointment of surveyors and places of survey.

6. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such places within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be places of survey. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 4. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 2. Bom Act IV of 1873, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 2. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 2.]

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Powers of surveyors.

7. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section six may, at any reasonable time, go on board any inland steam-vessel, and may inspect the steam-vessel and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof: [Cf. Act XVI of 1874, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 3. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 3.]

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steam-vessel, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steam-vessel shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steam-vessel, and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

8. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and, when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steam-vessel is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for service as an inland steam-vessel, grant to the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Form of certificate of survey.

9. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

Fees for survey.

10. For every survey made under this Act, the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the vessel according to the rates in the third schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe; and,

[Cf. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 11, and Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 5.]

(b) when the survey is made in any place of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense (if any) of the journey of the surveyor to the place, as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of vessel.

11. The owner or master of every steam-vessel for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the vessel is in use, on some conspicuous part of the vessel where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Term of certificate.

12. A certificate of survey granted under this Act shall not be in force—

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government, to the owner or master of the steam-vessel to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended the certificate.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 13. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13.]

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

13. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe—

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or [17 & 18 Vic. c. 104, s. 315.]

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been granted upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

14. The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired or has been cancelled or suspended to be delivered up to such person as it directs.

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

15. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section thirteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 14. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 14. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 14.]

Power to order a second survey.

16. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section six to survey the steam-vessel.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steam-vessel, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 9. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 8. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 8.]

Power for Local Government to make rules as to surveys.

17. (1) The Local Government may make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the time and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

Chapter III.—Masters and Engineers of Inland Steam-vessels.

ew, t Cf. defin- of sur- ors in Act I of 1871, 2. m. Act II 1864, s. 17. n. Act V 1862, s. 16.]

18. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels shall not apply in the case of any specified class of inland steam-vessels, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

Power for Local Government to exempt certain vessels.

CHAPTER III.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

Ben. Act I of 1879. See also XVI 1871, s. 20. Act IV 1873, s. 18. Act I 1868, s. 11. hich, however, lay down different rule.]

19. (1) An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she has as her master a person possessing a master's certificate, and as her first or only engineer a person possessing an engineer's certificate, duly granted under this chapter and then in force.

Inland steam-vessels not to make voyage without certificated master and engineer.

V. Act XVI 1871, s. 21. m. Act IV 1873, s. 20. n. Act I of 68, s. 13.]

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to any steam-vessel which does not ply with passengers or goods, or as a steam-tug, for hire, and which the Local Government may, by notification, exempt from its operation.

Exception.

f. Act XVI 1871, s. 17. Act IV 1873, s. 15. n. Act I of 68, s. 8. m. Act VII 1879, s. 2.]

20. The Local Government may, by notification, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as masters or as engineers of inland steam-vessels, and make rules—

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining either of these certificates, and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

21. (1) The Local Government shall grant, to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, a master's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as master of an inland steam-vessel.

Grant of masters' certificates of competency.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

f. Act XVI 1871, s. 18. m. Act IV 1873, s. 16. n. Act I of 68, s. 9.]

22. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

Grant of engineers' certificates of competency.

(a) who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, or

(b) who possesses an engineer's certificate under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Acts for the time being in force, or to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869,

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 23. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 2. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 15.] 32 & 33 Vic., c. 11.

an engineer's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as engineer of an inland steam-vessel.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

(3) Before granting a certificate under section twenty-one or this section, the Local Government, if it has reason to believe that the report of the examiners regarding any applicant has been unduly made, may require a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

23. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

Grant of engineers' certificates of service.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 17. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

(a) who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first or second engineer in any foreign-going steam-vessel having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or as first or only engineer in any other steam-vessel, or

(b) who has obtained or shall obtain the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty,

an engineer's certificate of service under this Act:

Provided that a certificate of service shall not be granted to any person until he—

(c) has proved himself to have served or obtained such rank as aforesaid, and has given his name and a full and satisfactory account of the length and nature of his previous services, and

(d) has paid such fees as the Local Government may, by notification, direct.

(2) Every certificate of service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is granted, and shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

24. Every certificate granted under this chapter shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 24. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 22. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 16.]

25. Whenever a master or an engineer proves, to the satisfaction of the Local Government which granted his certificate, that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of it, a copy of the certificate to which, by the record kept as prescribed under section twenty-four, he appears to be entitled shall be granted to him, and shall have all the effect of the original.

Copy of certificate to be granted in certain cases.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 25. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 23. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 17.]

Inland Steam-vessels Bill.

Chapter IV.—Investigation into Casualties.

[Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 5.]

Certificated masters to be deemed pilots under Indian Ports Act.

26. (1) Every master of an inland steam-vessel who possesses a master's certificate duly granted under this Act and then in force shall, in ports to which section 38 of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, has been extended, be deemed, for the purposes of that section, to be the pilot of the steam-vessel of which he is in charge.

XII of 1875.

[Cf. Bom. Act I of 1863, ss. 9 et seq.]

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of Bombay Act I of 1863, which require persons in charge of vessels passing through any of the channels or tidal channels at the mouths of the river Indus to pay fees for pilotage.

CHAPTER IV.

INVESTIGATIONS INTO CASUALTIES.

[See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6. Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 6.]

Report of casualties to be made to Local Government.

27. (1) Whenever—

(a) any inland steam-vessel has been wrecked, abandoned or materially damaged, or

(b) by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any inland steam-vessel, loss of life has ensued, or

(c) any inland steam-vessel has caused loss or material damage to any other vessel, the master shall give immediate notice of the wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss to the nearest Magistrate.

(2) The Magistrate receiving the notice shall, without delay, communicate it to the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 7, and Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Local Government to appoint special Court of Investigation.

28. (1) If in any such case a formal investigation into the facts referred to in section twenty-seven, clause (a), (b) or (c), appears to the Local Government to be requisite or expedient, the Local Government (whether the notice is given or not) may appoint a special Court, consisting of not less than two nor more than four persons, and direct the Court to make the investigation, and may fix the place for making the same.

(2) One of the members of the Court shall be a Magistrate acting in or near the place where the investigation is made; another shall be some person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and the other or others (if any) shall be conversant with either maritime or mercantile affairs or with the navigation of inland steam-vessels.

[See Act V of 1883, s 8.]

Power for principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction to hold investigations into casualties when so directed.

29. Any principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction and the Court of any District Magistrate may, when so directed by the Local Government, make the investigation referred to in section twenty-eight.

Power for Court of Investigation to inquire into charges against masters and engineers.

30. (1) Any Court making an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine may inquire into any charge of incompetency or misconduct arising, in the course of the investigation, against any master or engineer, as well as into any charge of a wrongful act or default on his part causing any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss referred to in section twenty-seven.

[Act XIII of 1875, s. 3.]

(2) In every case in which any such charge, whether of incompetency or misconduct, or of a wrongful act or default as aforesaid, arises against any master or engineer in the course of an investigation, the Court shall, before the commencement of the inquiry into the charge, cause to be furnished to him a copy of the report or statement of the case upon which the investigation has been directed.

Power for Local Government to direct investigation into charges of incompetency or misconduct.

31. (1) If the Local Government has reason to believe that there are grounds for charging any master or engineer of an inland steam-vessel with incompetency or misconduct, otherwise than in the course of an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine, it may transmit a statement of the case to the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction, or the Court of the District Magistrate, at or nearest to the place at which it may be convenient for the parties and witnesses to attend, and may direct the Court to make an investigation into the charge.

(2) Before commencing the investigation, the Court shall cause the master or engineer so charged to be furnished with a copy of the statement transmitted by the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 9 (2). & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Person accused to be heard.

32. For the purpose of an investigation under this chapter into any charge against a master or engineer, the Court may summon him to appear, and shall give him full opportunity of making a defence, either in person or otherwise.

[See Act V of 1883, ss. 11 & 12, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Assessors.

33. (1) When any investigation involves, or appears likely to involve, any question as to the cancelling or suspension of the certificate of a master or engineer, the Court making the investigation under section twenty-nine or section thirty-one shall constitute as its assessors, for the purposes of the investigation, two persons having experience in the merchant service or in the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and in every other investigation the Court making it may, if it thinks fit, constitute as its assessor, for the purposes of the investigation, any person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels and willing to act as assessor.

(2) Every person appointed under this section shall attend during the investigation and deliver his opinion in writing, to be recorded on the proceedings. But the exercise of all powers conferred on the Court by this Act shall rest with the Court.

Chapter IV.—Investigations into Casualties. Chapter V.—Suspension and Cancellation of Masters' and Engineers' certificates.

[Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 12 (1).& Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power of Court as to evidence and regulating proceedings.

34. For the purpose of any investigation under this chapter, the Court making the investigation, so far as relates to compelling the attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents and the regulation of the proceedings, shall have—

(a) if the Court is a special Court—the same powers as are exercisable by the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction for the place at which the investigation is made;

(b) if the Court is a principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction or the Court of the District Magistrate—the same powers as are exercisable respectively by either Court in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 15. Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879.]

Power to arrest witnesses and cause entry and detention of vessels.

35. (1) If any Court making an investigation under this chapter thinks it necessary for obtaining evidence that any person should be arrested, it may issue a warrant for his arrest, and may, for the purpose of effecting the arrest, authorize any officer (subject, nevertheless, to any general or special instructions from the Local Government) to enter any vessel.

(2) Any officer so authorized may, for the purpose of enforcing the entry, call to his aid any officers of Police or Customs, or any other persons, and may seize and detain the vessel for such time as is reasonably necessary to effect the arrest; and every such officer or other person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

(3) No person shall be detained by virtue of this section for more than forty-eight hours.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 15. Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power to commit for trial and bind over witnesses.

36. (1) Whenever, in the course of any investigation, it appears that any person has committed, within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India, an offence punishable under any law in force in British India, the Court making the investigation may (subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court may, from time to time, prescribe) cause him to be arrested, or commit him or hold him to bail to take his trial before the proper Court; and may bind over any person to give evidence at the trial, and may, for the purposes of this section, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate of the first class or of a Presidency Magistrate.

(2) For the purposes of this section the Recorder of Rangoon shall, within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, be deemed to be the High Court.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 16(1). Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Depositions.

37. (1) Whenever, in the course of any such trial, the testimony of any witness is required in relation to the subject-matter, any deposition previously made by him in relation to the same subject-matter before any Court making an investigation under this chapter shall, if authenticated by the signature of the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate, be admissible in evidence on proof—

(a) that the witness cannot be found within the jurisdiction of the Court before which the trial is held; and

(b) that it was made in the presence of the person accused, and that he had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness.

(2) A certificate by the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate that the deposition was made in the presence of the accused and that he had that opportunity shall, unless the contrary be proved, be sufficient evidence that it was so made and that he had that opportunity.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 17 (1). Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Report by Court to Local Government.

38. The Court shall, in the case of every investigation under this chapter, transmit to the Local Government a full report of the conclusions at which it has arrived, together with the evidence.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 15. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 8. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 6.]

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

39. (1) Whenever any explosion occurs on board any inland steam-vessel, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that an investigation into the cause of the explosion be made by such person or persons as it thinks fit.

(2) The person or persons so directed may enter into and upon the steam-vessel, with all necessary workmen and labourers, and remove any portion of the steam-vessel, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of the investigation, and shall report to the Local Government what in their opinion was the cause of the explosion.

(3) Every such person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

CHAPTER V.

SUSPENSION AND CANCELLATION OF MASTERS' AND ENGINEERS' CERTIFICATES.

[See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 8, and Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 20.]

Power for Local Government to suspend or cancel certificates in certain cases.

40. Any certificate granted under this Act to any master or engineer may be suspended or cancelled by the Local Government which granted it, or by any other Local Government, in the following cases, that is to say:—

(a) if, on any investigation made under this Act, the Court reports that the wreck or abandonment of, or loss or damage to, any inland steam-vessel, or loss of life, has been caused by his wrongful act or default, or that he is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of drunkenness, tyranny or other misconduct; or

(b) if he is proved to have been convicted of any non-bailable offence:

Provided that, in any case in which an investigation has been made, into a charge against any master or engineer, a certificate shall not be suspended or cancelled under clause (a) of this section unless the Local Government is satisfied that the holder of the certificate has been furnished before the commencement of the investigation with the copy of the report or statement required by section thirty or section thirty-one, as the case may be.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 21.]

Obligation to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

41. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty shall deliver it to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 22.]

Report to other Local Governments.

42. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends, under section forty, a certificate is not the Local Government which granted the certificate, the Local Government so cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the proceedings, and the fact of cancellation or suspension, to the Local Government which granted the certificate.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 24.]

Power to revoke cancellation or suspension and to grant new certificate.

43. (1) Any Local Government may at any time revoke any order of cancellation or suspension which it may have made under section forty, or grant, without examination, to any person whose certificate it has so cancelled, a new certificate.

(2) A certificate so granted shall have the same effect as if it had been granted after examination.

CHAPTER VI.

PROTECTION OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS FROM DANGER BY FIRE.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 8, cl. (d).]

Power for Governor General in Council to declare dangerous goods.

44. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 16.]

Carriage of dangerous goods.

45. (1) A person shall not take with him on board an inland steam-vessel, and a person shall not deliver or tender for carriage on an inland steam-vessel, any dangerous goods without giving notice of their nature to the owner or master of the steam-vessel, or, in the case of goods delivered or tendered for carriage, without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the goods.

(2) The owner or master of an inland steam-vessel may refuse to carry upon an inland steam-vessel any luggage or parcel which he suspects to contain dangerous goods, and may require the luggage or parcel to be opened to ascertain the fact previously to carrying the same; and, in case any such luggage or parcel is received for the purpose of being carried in any inland steam-vessel, the owner or master of the vessel may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

Power to throw overboard dangerous goods.

46. Where any dangerous goods have been sent or brought on board any inland steam-vessel in contravention of section forty-five, the owner or master of the steam-vessel may cause the goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained, and neither the owner nor the master shall, in respect of his having so thrown the goods overboard, be subject to any liability, civil or criminal, in any Court.

[New.]

Power for Local Government to make rules for protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

47. (1) The Local Government may make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

(2) Rules under this section may provide for the following among other matters, that is to say:—

(a) the conditions on, and subject to, which dangerous goods shall be carried on board inland steam-vessels;

(b) the precautions to be taken to prevent explosions or fires on board inland steam-vessels; and

(c) the apparatus for the purpose of extinguishing fires, which is to be kept on board inland steam-vessels.

(3) Any rule under this section may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VII.

PENALTIES AND LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 27. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 5.]

Penalty for steam-vessel making a voyage in contravention of section 5.

48. If any inland steam-vessel makes a voyage in contravention of section five, the owner and master of the steam-vessel, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees:

Provided that, if any steam-vessel is not in any place of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate in respect of any voyage which the steam-vessel may make from the place where she is when her certificate expires to the nearest place of survey.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12 as amended by Ben. Act I of 1868.]

Liability of master or officer, when a licensed pilot, to lose his license.

49. If the master or any other officer on board of an inland steam-vessel which makes a voyage in contravention of section five is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot taken away from him entirely, or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 28. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 6. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 6.]

Penalty for neglect to affix certificate of survey.

50. The owner and master of any inland steam-vessel, or either of them, on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed, in manner provided by section eleven, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 30. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Penalty for neglect or refusal to deliver up certificate as required under section 14.

51. If the owner or master of an inland steam-vessel, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under section

Penalty for serving, or engaging a person to serve, as master or engineer without certificate.

52. (a) Whoever, having been engaged to serve as master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies, proceeds on any voyage in that steam-vessel as master or first or only engineer without being at the time entitled to and possessed of the certificate required by that section, and

(b) Whoever employs any person as a master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies without ascertaining that he is at the time entitled to, and possessed of, a master's or an engineer's certificate, as the case may be, under this Act, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 6. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6.]

Master failing to give notice as required by section 27.

53. If any master wilfully fails to give notice, as required by section twenty-seven, of any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months,

[See Act V of 1883, s. 21.]

Master or engineer failing to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

54. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty, and who fails to deliver the certificate to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

[Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 30.]

Penalty for taking dangerous goods on board inland steam-vessels without notice.

55. Whoever, in contravention of section forty-five, takes with him on board any inland steam-vessel any dangerous goods, or delivers or tenders any such goods for the purpose of being carried on any inland steam-vessel, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

[Cf. Act I of 1859, s. 79.]

Penalty for misconduct endangering vessel or life or limb.

56. Any person employed or engaged in any capacity on board an inland steam-vessel—

(a) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, does any act tending to the immediate wreck, destruction or material damage of the vessel, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person belonging to or on board the vessel, or

(b) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving the vessel from immediate wreck, destruction or material damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board of the vessel from immediate danger to life or limb, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with both.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Distress of vessel.

57. Where the owner or master of a steam-vessel is convicted of an offence under this Act committed on board of, or in relation to, that steam-vessel, and sentenced to pay a fine, the Magistrate may, in addition to any other power he may have for the purpose of compelling payment of the fine, direct the amount thereof to be levied by distress and sale of the vessel and the tackle, apparel and furniture thereof, or so much thereof as is necessary.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Magistrates having jurisdiction.

58. A Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class, shall not try any offence under this Act, or the rules under it.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Place of trial.

59. Whoever commits an offence against this Act or the rules under it shall be triable for the offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, by notification, direct in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any other law for the time being in force.

Saving of prosecutions under other Acts

60. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules under it, or from being liable under that other law to any other or higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules under it:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.

(3) The Local Government shall receive and submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two, and the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, if he or it thinks fit, amend the rule with a view to meeting the objection or suggestion without again publishing the rule:

Provided that a failure of the Local Government to submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion made with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two shall not be deemed to invalidate any rule sanctioned by him under this Act.

(4) A rule sanctioned under this Act by the Governor General in Council shall not take effect until it has been published in the local official Gazette.

(5) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every rule when so sanctioned and published shall have the force of law.

Notifications.

63. (1) Except in the case of the notification under section two, sub-section one, all powers to issue notifications conferred by this Act on the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

(2) A notification issued by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government under this Act shall not take effect until it has been published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be.

(3) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every notification shall, when published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT has been found expedient to legislate in order to bring the law regarding the survey of sea-going steam-vessels into conformity with the law of England and to have one law on that subject applicable to the whole of British India. The present law regulating the survey of these vessels is contained in various local Acts, which also contain provisions relating to inland steam-vessels; and it was thought that it would be better to repeal the whole of these Acts and separately enact the parts relating to sea-going and inland steam-vessels than to repeal only so much as was necessary and leave the Acts in a mutilated and probably obscure form. Moreover, it was thought desirable that there should be one law regarding inland steamers relating to the whole of India. The present law is insufficient. Madras is unprovided for, and there is no law to govern steamers plying in the province of Assam. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It is drawn so that it may be brought into force along with the Indian Steamships Bill, and it repeals the seven local Acts, relating to steamships, which are now in force.

2. The Bill is divided into eight chapters. It deals with the survey of inland steam-vessels, the examination and grant of certificates to masters and engineers of those vessels, the investigation into casualties occurring to them, the suspension and cancellation of masters' and engineers' certificates, and the protection of the vessels from fire, and also prescribes the penalties for offences against the provisions of the Act, the jurisdiction of Magistrates and the place of trial.

3. In its main provisions the Bill follows the existing law so far as it goes. The points in which the law is changed and which require notice are as follows. The term for which the certificate of survey is to last is, by section 12 of the Bill, extended to one year, instead of six months as at present; but section 13 enables the Local Government, under certain circumstances, to cancel or suspend a certificate of survey. The power conferred by section 17 of the Bill of making rules to regulate a survey is somewhat larger than that given by the present law. The duties of each of the two surveyors are different, and the Bill therefore enables the Local Government to assign and regulate the duties of each. To meet local requirements, power is given in section 18 of the Bill to Local Governments to exempt any specified class of inland steam-vessels from all or any of the provisions relating to survey. In section 22 the Bill provides for the grant, without examination, of a certificate as engineer to a person who possesses a certificate granted under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act or a certificate which is by the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, equivalent thereto. It further provides in section 23 for the grant of certificates of service to engineers who have served for a certain time in certain steamships, or who have obtained the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty. The provisions of Chapters IV and V of the Bill, regarding investigations into casualties and the cancelling and suspending of the certificates of masters and engineers, are taken, with slight modifications, from the Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, which was recently passed.

4. The whole of Chapter VI is new. At present, there is no way of securing that due precautions are taken against fire and against the carriage of dangerous goods on passenger steamers. Chapter VI follows to a certain extent the provisions of the Indian Railway Act, 1879. It confers on the Governor General in Council power to declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of the Act, dangerous goods, and prohibits persons from taking those goods on board except under certain conditions. Following section 23 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1873, it empowers (section 46) the master or owner of a vessel to throw overboard dangerous goods which have been brought on board without notice or without being marked as required by the Act. It also (section 47) enables the Local Government to make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

5. In Chapter VII a section (56) has been inserted, providing a penalty for misconduct on the part of persons employed on board inland steam-vessels. This section is taken from the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, section 79, the penalty being modified so as to permit of an offence being punished by fine only.

6. Lastly, with regard to the rules which may be made under the Act, the Bill, section 62, secures that they shall be duly published for general information and criticism before they are sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

7. A statement is annexed showing how the provisions of the Acts which are repealed by the Bill are dealt with in this Bill and the Indian Steamships Bill.

The 5th March, 1883.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Survey of Steamships and the Grant of Certificates to Engineers of those Ships.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the survey of steamships and the grant of certificates to engineers of those ships; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Steamships Act, 1883;

Extent.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

(3) And it shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the official Gazette directs.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

(1) "steamship" means every description of vessel used in navigation and propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam: and

(2) "passenger" includes any person carried in a steamship other than the master and crew and the owner, his family and servants.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF STEAMSHIPS.

Steamship not to carry passengers unless furnished with certificate under Act.

[17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 291 & 318; see also 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 16. See also Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, s. 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

3. A steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any place out of British India, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey under this chapter then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed.

Exception of certain steamships from provisions of section 3.

[Cf. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4, paragraph 2.]

4. Nothing in section three shall apply to—

(a) any steamship furnished with a certificate of survey, granted by the Board of Trade or any British Colonial Government, which is then in force and applicable to the voyage on which that steamship has proceeded or is about to proceed, or the service on which she has been or is about to be employed, unless there is reason to believe that the steamship has, subsequently to the grant of the certificate, sustained injury or damage, or been found unseaworthy or otherwise inefficient; or

(b) any inland steam-vessel as defined in the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; or

(c) any steamship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Penalty for carrying passengers in contravention of section 3.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 27. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Bom. Act V of 1862, s. 5.]

5. If any steamship carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, the owner and master of the steamship, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees:

Provided that, if any steamship is not in any port of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate until she first begins to carry passengers after her next subsequent arrival at some port of survey.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

If master or officer of ship carrying passengers in contravention of section 3 is a licensed pilot, he is liable to loss his license.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 28. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 6. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 6.]

6. If the master or any other officer of any steamship which carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot cancelled or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order.

Port-clearance not to be granted until certificate of survey produced.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 7. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 5. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 318.]

7. No officer of Customs shall grant a port-clearance, nor shall any pilot be assigned to any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three, until after the production by the owner or master thereof of a certificate under this Act then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed.

Power to detain ship not furnished with certificate.

8. If any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three leaves or attempts to leave any port of survey without a certificate, any officer of Customs or any pilot on board the ship may detain her until she is duly furnished with the certificate.

Appointment of surveyors and ports of survey.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 4. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 2. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 2. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 305.]

9. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such ports within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be ports of survey.

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Indian Steamships Bill.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 3. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 3. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 315.]

Powers of surveyors.

10. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section nine may, at any reasonable time go on board any steamship, and may inspect the steamship and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof:

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steamship, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steamship shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steamship and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 316-13.]

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

11. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steamship is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for the service on which it is intended to employ it, grant to the owner or master of the steamship surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Form of certificate of survey.

12. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the first schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 10. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 10 amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 10, amended by Ben. Act III of 1871, s. 1. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 314. Bom. Act of of 1873, 3, & Ben. Act I of 1868, s.]

Fees for survey.

13. For every survey made under this Act the owner or master of the steamship surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the ship according to the rates in the second schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may from time to time by notification prescribe, and

(b) when the survey is made in any port of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense, if any, of the journey of the surveyors to the port, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom. Act II of 1864, s.

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of ship.

14. (1) The owner or master of every steamship for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the ship is in use, on some conspicuous part of the ship where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof. [Bom. Act V of 1862, s. 11. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 317.]

(2) The owner and master of every steamship (or either of them), on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed in manner provided by this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 30 Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.

Term of certificates.

15. A certificate granted under this Act shall not be in force— [Act XVI of 1871, s 12. Bom. Act II of 1862, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 315.

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government to the owner, agent or master of the steamship to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended it.

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

16. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe— [Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13. Act XVI of 1871, s 13. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 316.]

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been issued upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

17. (1) The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired, or has been cancelled or suspended, to be delivered up to such person as it directs. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

(2) If the owner or master, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 31. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

18. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section sixteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

Power to order a second survey.

19. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steamship surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section nine to survey the steamship.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steamship, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[See 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 19.]

Survey of foreign steamships.

20. When a foreign steamship requires to be furnished with a certificate of survey under this Act, and the Local Government is satisfied, by the production of a certificate of survey attested by a British Consular Officer at the port of survey, that the ship has been officially surveyed at a foreign port, and that the requirements of this Act are proved by that survey to have been substantially complied with, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, dispense with any further survey of the ship in respect of the requirements so complied with, and give a certificate which shall have the same effect as a certificate given after survey under this Act:

Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of an official survey at any foreign port with respect to which Her Majesty has by order in Council directed that section 19 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, shall not apply.

Local Government to make rules as to survey.

21. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the times and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

[New. But cf. definition of "Surveyors" in Act XVI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 17. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 16.]

Power for Local Government to exempt certain steamships.

22. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this chapter shall not apply in the case of any specified class of steamships, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

CHAPTER III.

EXAMINATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ENGINEERS.

Certificates to be of two grades.

23. Engineers' certificates shall be of two grades, namely, "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates." [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (1).]

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

24. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as engineers, and, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules— [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, ss. 6 & 7. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 17. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 15. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 8.]

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates"; and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

Grant of certificates of competency.

25. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications a certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as a first class engineer or as a second class engineer, as the case may be: [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 8. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 18. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 16. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 9.]

Provided that the Local Government may, in any case in which it has reason to believe that the report has been unduly made, require, before granting a certificate, a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Grant of certificates of service.

26. (1) The Local Government shall grant certificates of service as engineers, differing in form from certificates of competency, as follows, namely:— [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c., 13, s. 9. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 17. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

(a) To every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in the service of Her Majesty—a "first class engineers' certificate" of service:

(b) To every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as second engineer in any foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or as first or only engineer in any other steamship, or who has obtained or shall obtain the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty—a "second class engineers' certificate" of service:

Provided that a certificate of service shall not be granted to any person until he—

(c) has proved himself to have served or attained such rank as aforesaid, and has given his name and a full and satisfactory account of the length and nature of his previous services, and

(d) has paid such fees as the Local Government may, by a notification in the official Gazette, from time to time direct.

(2) Each of such certificates of service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is granted, and shall be in such form as the Local Government may from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 24. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 22. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 16.]

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

27. Every certificate granted under this chapter shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Local Government may from time to time by rule prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 25. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 23. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 17.]

Copy of certificate to be granted in certain cases.

28. Whenever an engineer proves to the satisfaction of the Local Government which granted his certificate that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of it, a copy of the certificate to which, by the record kept as provided under section twenty-seven, he appears to be entitled shall be granted to him, and shall have all the effect of the original.

Number of engineers and nature of certificates necessary in case of different steamships.

29. (1) A foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards shall not go to sea from any port in British India unless she has as her first and second engineers two certificated engineers, the first possessing a "first class engineers' certificate" and the second a "second class engineers' certificate" or a certificate of the higher grade, granted under this Act or the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, for the time being in force, or to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869.

(2) A home-trade steamship of a burden exceeding three hundred tons shall not go to sea from any port in British India unless she has as her only or first engineer an engineer possessing a second class engineers' certificate or a certificate of the higher grade, of the nature referred to in sub-section one.

[See Act I of 1859, s. 118.]

(4) In this section "foreign-going steamship" includes every steamship employed in trading between any port of British India and any port or place not in British India, nor on the continent of India, nor in the island of Ceylon; and

Penalty for serving, or engaging a person to serve, as engineer without a certificate.

30. (a) Whoever, having been engaged to serve in any of the capacities referred to in section twenty-nine in any steamship to which that section applies, goes to sea in that capacity without being at the time entitled to, and possessed of, the certificate required by that section, and [25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (5). (b) whoever employs any person in any capacity referred to in section twenty-nine in any steamship to which that section applies, without ascertaining that he is at the time entitled to, and possessed of, the certificate required by that section, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Investigation into Explosions.

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

31. (1) Whenever any explosion occurs on board any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required under this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that an investigation into the cause of the explosion be made by such person or persons as it thinks fit. 1871, s. 15. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 8. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 6.]

(2) The person or persons so directed may enter into and upon the steamship with all necessary workmen and labourers, and remove any portion of the steamship, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of the investigation, and shall report to the Local Government what, in their opinion, was the cause of the explosion.

(3) Every such person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

Miscellaneous.

Magistrate having jurisdiction.

32. A Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class, shall not try any offence under this Act. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Place of trial.

33. Whoever commits an offence against this Act shall be triable for the offence in any place in which he may be found, or which the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any other law for the time being in force. [See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33 Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Fees recoverable as fines.

34. All fees payable, and all fines imposed, under the provisions of this Act may be recovered in like manner as a fine may be recovered under the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, Act I of 1859, section 113. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A CASE having occurred in Bombay which showed that the Bombay law relating to the survey of steamships was not in harmony with the English law on the subject, it was thought desirable to amend the Bombay law. When, however, the question of legislation came to be considered, it appeared that there were no less than seven local Acts relating to steamships. Bombay, Bengal and Burma each had its special law regulating the survey of these ships, while there was no law on the subject in the Presidency of Madras. The multiplicity of laws relating to the survey of steamships, it was thought, could not but be inconvenient to shipowners whose ships traded between different Provinces. For instance, Act XVI of 1871, which is in force in Burma, requires every steam-vessel plying on any of the rivers or waters of British Burma, except steam-vessels plying between a port in British Burma and a port not in British India, to be surveyed twice a year. In the same way, the Bombay Act II of 1864, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, requires every British steam-vessel, not holding a Board of Trade, British Indian or Colonial certificate, carrying passengers between any port of the Presidency of Bombay and any other port, to be surveyed twice a year, and the Bengal Act V of 1862, as amended by Act I of 1868, also requires the survey twice in every year of all steam-vessels plying on any of the rivers or waters within the Province of Bengal, except steam-vessels which may ply between some port within that Province and some port not in British India. Under these laws, a steam-vessel which was surveyed in Bombay might, apparently, be required to undergo a fresh survey on arrival in Calcutta, and another survey on arrival at a port in Burma. As legislation is necessary, it is, therefore, clearly expedient to have one uniform law relating to the survey of steam-vessels applicable to the whole of British India.

2. Besides providing for the survey of steam-vessels, the local Acts provide also for the examination of, and the grant of certificates to, engineers, and for holding investigations into explosions occurring on board steam-vessels. In these matters uniformity in the law is desirable.

3. After consulting the Local Governments concerned, the Government of India has decided to legislate so as to provide one law relating to the survey of sea-going steamships, the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those ships, and the investigation into explosions occurring thereon. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It was, however, found at the same time necessary to legislate in like manner for steam-vessels plying on rivers and inland waters, inasmuch as the provisions of the local Acts related, to a certain extent, to those vessels as well as to sea-going vessels. With this view, a separate Bill—the Inland Steam-vessels Bill—has been prepared, so as to keep the law relating to merchant shipping—a law liable to be affected by legislation in England—entirely separate from the law regulating inland steam-vessels, which is a matter solely within the scope of Indian legislation.

4. The present Bill is divided into three chapters. The first chapter is purely formal. The second deals with the subject of the survey of steamships. It provides that a steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and that a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any foreign port, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey. It exempts steamships furnished with Board of Trade certificates or Colonial certificates, provides for the appointment of surveyors and ports of survey, prescribes the powers of surveyors and the conditions on which they are to grant certificates. It provides for the fees which are to be paid for certificates and the term for which they are to last, and it confers on the Local Government the power, under certain circumstances, of cancelling or suspending a certificate. It further enables the Local Government to make rules to regulate the time, place and manner in which surveys shall be made, and to assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making it. To meet local requirements, a section (22) is also added, enabling the Local Government to exempt any specified class of steamships from all or any of the provisions of the chapter.

5. The principal changes introduced in the law by the provisions contained the second chapter are as follows:—

Section 3 follows the English law (39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80, section 16), and only requires a survey in the case of steamships carrying more than twelve passengers.

The law as at present in force in Bengal and Burma is thus amended in an important point, and cargo steamers are exempted from survey.

Another change in the law is made by section 15 of the Bill, which provides that a certificate of survey shall not remain in force for more than twelve months. At present, the law requires a survey twice a year, but it is thought that the power which the Local Government has under section 16 of the Bill of cancelling or suspending a certificate renders a survey every six months unnecessary.

Section 20 of the Bill enacts the provisions (regarding the grant of certificates of survey to foreign ships) of section 19, 39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80. It is considered that these provisions will be of use in India in the case of foreign ships which have been officially surveyed at a foreign port.

6. The third chapter of the Bill deals with the examination of, and grant of certificates to, engineers. It also contains a provision as to inquiries into cases of explosion, and miscellaneous sections regulating the jurisdiction and place of trial in cases of offences under the Act, and applies to steamships going to sea from a place in the Bombay Presidency, the provisions as to boats for sea-going ships of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

7. Following the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, the chapter provides that there are to be two grades of engineers—first class engineers and second class engineers. The Local Government is empowered to appoint examiners, and to make rules as to the conduct of the examinations, the qualifications to be required from the applicants and the fees to be paid by them. Certificates will be granted to those who, by the result of the examination, show themselves to be possessed of the necessary qualifications.

8. This chapter also provides (section 26) for the grant of certificates of service as engineers. A first class certificate may be granted to a person who has served, before the passing of the Act, for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship carrying engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in Her Majesty's service.

A second class certificate may be granted to a person who has, before the passing of the Act, served as second engineer in such a steamship or as sole engineer in a smaller one, or who obtains the rank of first class assistant engineer in Her Majesty's service. It is doubtful whether it is necessary or expedient to provide for the grant of certificates of service. The attention of the Local Governments concerned will be drawn to the point.

9. It is further provided (section 29), that foreign-going steamships shall not proceed to sea without engineers possessing certain specified certificates. Similar provisions are made for home-trade steamships, the steamships which are inland steam-vessels within the meaning of the Inland Steam-vessels Act being excepted.

10. The provisions of section 31, as to investigations into explosions, require no comment; and the last four sections of the Bill merely re-enact the existing law as to jurisdiction, the place of trial, the recovery of fees and fines, and the application to steamships leaving a port in the Bombay Presidency of certain provisions of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, concerning boats for sea-going ships.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th February, 1883:—

No. 8 OF 1883.

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Amendment of section 22.

1. For the last clause of section 22, the following shall be substituted:—

"may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as he or it thinks fit, who, being

(a) members of the Covenanted Civil Service,

(b) members of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3,

(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces, or

are invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, to be Justices of the Peace within and for the territories mentioned in the notification."

Amendment of section 25.

2. In section 25, after the words "British India" the following shall be inserted:—

"Sessions Judges and District Magistrates are Justices of the Peace within and for the whole of the territories administered by the Local Government under which they are serving".

Amendment of section 443.

3. In section 443, the words "and an European British subject" shall be omitted.

New section substituted for section 444.

4. For section 444 the following shall be substituted:—

Assistant Sessions Judges who may try European British subjects.

"444. An Assistant Sessions Judge shall not exercise jurisdiction over an European British subject, unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years, and has been specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government."

Repeal of section 450 and, of the last sixteen words of section 459.

5. Section 450 and the last sixteen words of section 459 are hereby repealed.

Construction of Act with Code of Criminal Procedure.

6. (1) In this Act "section" means section of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882. X of 1882.

(2) All references to that Code made in enactments heretofore passed or hereafter to be passed shall be read as if made to that Code as amended by this Act.

Saving for existing appointments.

7. Nothing in this Act shall affect the validity of any appointment made before the passing of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SHORTLY after the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act X of 1882, was passed, the question was raised whether the provisions of that Code which limit the jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to judicial officers who are themselves European British subjects should not be modified. It was thought anomalous that, while Natives of India were admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace and to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns.

2. After consulting the Local Governments, the Government of India has arrived at the conclusion that the time has come for modifying the existing law and removing the present bar upon the investment of Native Magistrates in the interior with powers over European British subjects. The Government of India has accordingly decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinctions.

3. With this object the present Bill has been prepared. In section one it amends section 22 of the Code, which provides that only European British subjects can be appointed Justices of the Peace, and gives the Government power to appoint to that office such persons as it thinks fit belonging to the following classes:—

(a) Members of the Covenanted Civil Service;
(b) Members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules made under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3;
(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces; or
(d) Cantonment Magistrates,

and being persons invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class.

4. The Bill then in section two amends section 25 of the Code, and makes all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates ex officio Justices of the Peace.

5. Section three repeals so much of section 443 of the Code as limits jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to Magistrates who are themselves European British subjects.

6. Section four repeals the similar provision of section 444 of the Code with regard to Sessions Judges.

7. Lastly, section five repeals section 450 of the Code, which provides for the case where the Sessions Judge of the division within which the offence is ordinarily triable is not an European British subject. The same section of the Bill also repeals so much of section 459 of the Code as provides that that section shall not be deemed to confer on Magistrates and Sessions Judges outside the Presidency-towns, not being European British subjects, jurisdiction over European British subjects.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

HON. MR. MACAULAY said:—I have the honour to move that the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government, which I introduced at the last meeting of the Council, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon. the Advocate-General, Hon. Mr. Reynolds, Hon. Mr. Allen, Colonel the Hon. S. T. Trevor, Hon. Bhudeb Mookerjee, Hon. Mohamed Yusuf, Hon. Hurbuns Sahai, and myself. As I entered so fully into the nature of the scheme to which this Bill gives expression when I had the honour of moving for leave to introduce it, I need not now trouble the Council with any detailed review of its provisions. I will only draw attention to some points which appear specially to call for elucidation, and which I was unable to discuss at sufficient length in my introductory speech. The Council will observe that the authorities for the execution of the Act will be Union Committees, Local Boards, and a Central Board, all under the control of Government. The first point to which I wish to invite particular attention is the qualification of Union electors in section 7 of the Bill. That qualification has been fixed with the object of excluding only landless labourers, who cannot be expected to take any interest in the affairs of the Union. It will be observed that all persons who pay the minimum chowkidari rate will be qualified as electors. Where the Chowkidari Act is not in force the cultivators generally will be admitted under the provision that all persons who pay any road-cess shall be entitled to vote. There will be cases where cultivators do not themselves pay road-cess, but hold land which stands in the name of others. Most of these, however, will again be admitted under the qualification of a clear income, from any source, of sixty rupees a year. I do not think it would be possible to frame a more comprehensive system of qualification than section 7 provides. In my opening speech I said that it would be a part of the policy of this measure to foster and strengthen these Union Committees and to make them a real link between the people and the Local Boards. If the Council will turn to the sections which relate to the Union Fund, and the duties and powers of Union Committees, they will, I think, recognise that every endeavour has been made to fulfil that pledge. They will, I think, admit that the position of the Committees will be sufficiently important, and the powers and responsibilities entrusted to them sufficiently substantial, to attract the most intelligent villagers and to promote an interest in the management of their own affairs among the rural electors at large.

The constitution of the Local Boards will be such as I have already described to the Council. There will ordinarily be three members for each thanna, but, as some thannas are very much larger and more important than others, power has been reserved to sanction departure from this standard in special cases. Where one-half of the area of a thanna is under Union Committees, at least two members for that thanna will necessarily be elected. Where this is not the case the members may be either elected or nominated as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct. In any case one-third of the whole number will be appointed by the Central Board, but the number of Government servants appointed must not be more than one-fourth of the whole number constituting the Board. Where election can be held, the electoral body will be composed of the members of the Union Committees of the thanna, and men of a certain standard of education who possess local interest in the thanna and reside either within the circle or in a contiguous Municipality. The qualifications of candidates have not been altered, except that I have included persons residing within five miles of the circle. In England the limit is seven miles. It will thus be possible for a person to be a member of more than one Local Board, but I do not see that there can be any objection to this.

The area under each Local Board, in other words the area of each Local Government Circle, will be such as may be determined by the Central Board acting under the control of Government. The Local Government Circle may be conterminous with the district, or there may be several circles in the same district. As I have said in the statement of objects and reasons, the principles to be borne in mind are, on the one hand, that the area under a Local Board should not be so large as to render it impossible that the bulk of the members should have some knowledge of the tract to be administered, and should be able to devote personal and practical attention to its administration; and, on the other hand, that it should be large enough to provide duties of sufficient importance to interest men of education, and advanced enough to provide men of education and some knowledge of affairs for the performance of those duties. I need not now repeat the reasons for which it is considered that the district area is too large to secure these advantages of knowledge, practical interest and personal attention. And I think it is equally obvious that no area smaller than that of a sub-division will as a rule give a charge of sufficient interest and importance. There are districts where, from the paucity of men capable of serving with efficiency on Local Boards, it will be impossible to have more than one Board, but undoubtedly where this is the case the work will be badly done and Local Self-Government will only be a name. It is generally admitted that we cannot make any advance if we have nothing intermediate between the District Board and the village. But, it is asked, why should we not have Local Boards in the different sub-divisions, with a District Board to control them? I will state the objections to such a system. In the first place the District Board would take away from the importance and prestige of the Local Boards to which we must really look for the work of the sub-division. In the second place it would also add another link to the administrative chain, and cause delay, waste of power and division of responsibility. Under the scheme which the Bill proposes, if a complaint is made to the Central Board, by one of its Inspectors or otherwise, that some Union Committee is neglecting its duty, the Central Board will send an order, or a request for enquiry, to the Local Board, and the Local Board, which will meet frequently, will be able to take early action upon it, and to issue the necessary injunction to the Union Committee. Now suppose that there is a District Board. The Central Board must send all its orders and enquiries through it. The District Board could not meet more frequently than once a month, and there would thus necessarily be delay, which would be repeated in the transmission of the reply from the Local Board; and to this delay at both stages would be added the waste of power, the friction and the division of responsibility which must result from the intervention of a number of authorities. If it is urged that the orders or reports could be transmitted by a standing committee of the District Board, I reply that if this is merely routine work it could as well be done without the intervention of a District Board at all, while if it is not routine work it should be considered by the full Board. If it is to be considered by a small working body, that body may as well be the Local Board on the spot as a Committee at head-quarters. I do not lose sight of the fact that there are objects of common interest which cannot with advantage be dealt with by each Board independently. Some of these only affect Boards in the same district; others affect Boards in different districts, and these would not be provided for under a system of District Boards only. Among the first is the rate of road-cess. It is plain that this cannot be different in different parts of the same district. It would be quite impossible for the Collector to realize it under such circumstances. Provision has therefore been made in section 74 for an annual meeting of delegates from each Local Board in the district, where there is more than one, for the purpose of fixing the rate of road-cess. For purposes in which two or more Boards, whether in the same district or in different districts, is interested, such as a main road, a system of drainage, a system of water-supply, and the like, provision has been made for the creation of Joint Boards which will exercise, in regard to the work in question, all the power of the concurring authorities. The Joint Boards can only be created with the sanction of the Central Board, but, subject to that sanction, arrangements can be made for their appointment, so far as they regard circles within the district, at the annual conference of delegates. Joint Boards for circles in different districts must be formed from time to time as circumstances arise. This system will secure such advantages as may be claimed for District Boards, while it will secure other advantages which they would not give and will at the same time be free from their disadvantages. The Joint Boards will be in no way superior to the Local Boards. They will deal only with the subjects of common interest which have been entrusted to them, and will have nothing to do, in their corporate capacity, with the ordinary work of the constituting Boards; while each will correspond directly with the Central Board in regard to its own functions. There will thus be neither waste of time nor waste of power nor division of responsibility, and there will be the manifest advantage that Boards belonging to different districts will not be debarred from concurring for common objects.

The more the plan of District Boards is examined the less does it commend itself on the grounds of necessity, of convenience or of precedent. The Bengal District is merely a fiscal unit established for administrative purposes and liable to modification as administrative convenience suggests. Beyond the fact that they have the same Collector to deal with, the same Judge to appeal to, and, should necessity arise, the same jail to go to, the people of many a sub-division have nothing whatever in common with those of other sub-divisions in the same district. In many cases they have much more in common with the people of a sub-division in another district. Ranaghat has much more in common with Baraset than it has with Kooshtia ; Serampore has more in common with Howrah than it has with Jehanabad. A sub-division belongs to one district to-day, to another to-morrow. I might give a score of instances. Raneegunge has been attached at different times to Beerbhoom, to Bankoora and to Burdwan. Jehanabad and Rampore Haut have passed more than once from one jurisdiction to another. The other day Khoolna and Bagirhat were under Jessore, and Satkhira was under the 24-Pergunnahs; they now form a district by themselves. Bankoora to-day contains a large tract which a few years ago belonged to Purulia, and Purulia contains a large tract which a few years ago belonged to Bankoora. Midnapore is made up of the old districts of Midnapore and Hidgellee, while Tirhoot has been split up into the new districts of Mozufferpore and Durbhunga. The boundaries of districts are fixed or modified to suit the special purposes which the district unit is supposed to serve. But there is no magic in the word district, and no tradition in the particular combination of thannas or pergunnahs which in each case it represents. If a different combination is found more suitable for a special purpose, that combination should be adopted. Now a different combination for the purposes of Local Self-Government is more suitable where the thannas forming a sub-division can produce work and men for a Local Board; and in such cases that combination should accordingly be accepted. I quite allow the force of the statement that, as a rule, there are more educated men at the head-quarters of a district than at an outlying sub-division. This is perfectly true, and it affords a good ground for having a Board for the head-quarters sub-division. But it affords no ground for refusing a Board to other sub-divisions, in which there are also qualified men, and it affords no ground for injuring the efficiency of such a Board by putting it under another Board at head-quarters. I have seen our districts compared with English counties. But I would ask what analogy exists between such geographical expressions as I have described, and counties of which the boundaries have been unchanged for centuries, and which have sent their own representatives to Parliament, since the days of Simon de Montfort. I would ask what analogy exists in point of education, of communications, of tradition, of public spirit, of physical habits, of personal activity, whether among the country gentlemen or among the yeomanry and the peasantry between Buckinghamshire and Burdwan. Yet they are only now constituting real county Boards in England after centuries of Local Self-Government. Are we to begin in Bengal at the point which they have only just reached in England ? I cannot too strongly urge, what I said on a previous occasion, that if the educated men in Bengal seek to attain the end without practising the means, the policy by which Government is seeking to promote their welfare will result in failure. That end is political advancement. Those means are the steady, thorough and efficient discharge of public duty, and by it the acquirement and transmission among the people of habits of self-reliance and self-help in public matters, and of sound and practical interest in the administration of local affairs. And it is by its success or failure in providing for the employment of those means that this measure must stand or fall.

I now turn to the funds to be at the disposal of each Local Board. It will be observed that the first item in the Circle Fund is "such proportion as the Central Board may direct of the District Road Fund of the district, after payment of the expenses mentioned in section 109 of the Bengal Act IX of 1880 as amended by this Act." I must explain that, though the term

"District Road Fund" will in districts where there are two or more Local Boards be a misnomer, it has been found impossible to dispense with it without re-casting the whole of the Cess Act. Not only the general cost of district establishments, but the cost of special valuations, service of notices and other expenses have to be borne by the District Fund, and it would lead to endless confusion to attempt to lay the charges upon separate funds for each sub-division according to the estates contained in it. The term "District Road Fund" is therefore retained down to section 109 of the Cess Act, the point at which its application is dealt with, and it is provided that, after payment of all expenses connected with valuation and collection, it shall be divided among the Circle Funds of the district in such proportion as the Central Board may direct. It is evident that such a provision as this is required, and that each Local Board cannot claim to spend the whole of the road cess levied within its circle. Some circles, especially the head-quarters circles, will contain roads which benefit other tracts, and it is impossible that they should have to bear all the expense of maintaining communications in the advantages of which other circles participate. The only points connected with the application of the Circle Fund to which I need advert are that the provision contained in section 181 of the Cess Act is reproduced, the Central Board being specially mentioned as one of the establishments towards the cost of which the Fund must contribute, and that provision is made for the payment of the travelling expenses of members delegated to attend the annual conference of Local Boards, or attending a Joint Board when its office is situated in any other circle.

As regards the general duties and functions of the Local Boards, I have first to point out that they are authorized to elect their Vice-Chairman absolutely, and their Chairman subject to the approval of Government. An important provision has been made in section 65 to ensure that a copy of all papers connected with the business to be transacted at each meeting shall be in the hands of each member at least five days before it is held. From section 69 it will be observed that the Board will have power to determine its own establishment subject to the provisoes that no appointment carrying a monthly salary of Rs. 100 or upwards shall be created or filled up without the sanction of the Central Board, and that the aggregate amount spent by it on its Public Works establishment, with a proportionate share of the cost of its general establishment, shall not exceed 25 per cent on the total amount available for expenditure on public works. With reference to the first of these, I need only remind the Council that the Government of India cannot create an appointment of Rs. 250 a month without the sanction of the Secretary of State.

I now desire to invite the particular attention of the Council to sections 77 and 78 of the Bill, and to sections 151, 152, and 153 of the Cess Act for which they are substituted. Under one section of the present law, the District Committee is empowered to fix the rate at which the road cess shall be levied, and under another the Lieutenant-Governor is empowered to compel them to levy the cess at the maximum rate should he consider that the rate at which they have determined to levy it is insufficient for the performance of necessary works. That is to say, we tell them one day to fix the rate they may consider suitable, and we may the next day compel them to fix some other rate. It seems to me that we must adopt one of two alternatives. Either we must fix by law the rate at which we consider that the cess should be levied, or we must abandon direct interference with the discretion which we give of fixing the rate. Speaking for myself only, and without any authority to bind Government on this point, I must say that to my mind the second course is the only one that is consistent with the policy which we have adopted There will be very little Self-Government, even in theory, if we fix by law the rates at which local cesses for local purposes are to be levied. The only ground for fixing the rate by law would be the fear that it might be reduced by the Boards to the detriment of the public interests. I venture to think that fear is not likely to be realized. I do not lay much stress upon the fact that all the Committees now levy the cess at full rates, except in Backergunge where full rates are avowedly not required. The Committees have doubtless acted very much under the influence and guidance of the officers of Government. I trust and believe that that influence and guidance will continue to be felt. But if we grant a discretion, we must count upon its being exercised. In many districts the Local Boards will, I hope, be really working bodies under non-official Chairmen. But I have confidence that in these last districts the men to whom it will fall to give this system its first essay will not do anything to discredit it. I have confidence that they will not abuse the privileges to be accorded to them, and that they will have the good sense as well as the patriotism to recognize that on the manner in which they acquit themselves before the world of the trust now committed to them, will depend in great measure the immediate political future of their country. Had I not that confidence, I should say that an extension of Local Self-Government in Bengal was a mistake. Should, however, the power be abused, and works be allowed to suffer, there will always remain the power of supersession which section 164 of the Bill confers upon Government. It seems to me far better to rely upon that power than to fence in the system with a provision which would deprive it of a great deal of its essential character. As I have said, these are my personal views only, and are not given as the views of Government. The Bill will be circulated for the opinions of all the district and divisional officers, and it will hereafter be for the Select Committee to recommend and for the Council to adopt, such a provision as may seem to them most suitable under the circumstances.

It is not necessary that I should notice in any detail the further sections which refer to the responsibilities and powers of the Local Boards. Some of the sections relating to local works are transposed from Part III of the Cess Act which it is proposed to repeal with the exception of two sections. It will be seen that large powers are to be given in regard to education, medical, pounds, ferries, sanitation, water-supply, vaccination, census taking, famine relief, exhibition and fairs, and the like. It is provided in section 30, clause 6, that all sums allotted by Government for such purposes as famine relief and taking of a census shall be credited to the Circle Fund. The sections relating to Control follow the lines which I indicated in my opening speech, when I explained fully the principles which it is intended to adopt; and I need not recapitulate their provisions.

Before I conclude, I must say a few words regarding the attitude of the officers of Government in relation to this measure. The Members of the Council have already been supplied with copies of the opinions of the Commissioners and of such reports of district officers as the Commissioners have submitted, and the papers have been published with the Bill I may say at once that it was never expected, and that it could not be expected, that all officers would or could recommend an immediate extension to their charges of a complete measure of Local Self-Government, comprising a system of general election and freedom from internal control and direction. It was fully recognized by Government that there were districts in which a very limited measure only could be introduced, and that there must be many gradations from a practical continuance of present arrangements up to the full development of the measure in contemplation. The Bill which I have laid before the Council distinctly provides for this. But, though officers may very properly represent that their district is not fit for general election (indeed I think that there are few districts regarding which as a whole any other representation could be made), or that they think trained guidance for a time will be necessary in the interest of the Boards themselves, this is surely not opposition to the policy of Government. On the contrary, with very few exceptions, the criticisms and proposals made indicate a distinct approval of that policy as a policy, and a desire to give it the fullest effect and to lead it to ultimate success. I cannot think that the original proposal to have general election by the people of large areas could properly have been accepted in view of the circumstances of the majority of our districts. But I believe that, when this Bill comes to be reported upon, much of the objection that has been made, and properly made, not to the principle, but to the local application, of the elective system, will give place to acceptance of that system now that it is proposed to make it practicable through the medium of Union Committees In regard to Chairmen much the same may be said. In some districts the immediate appointment of non-official Chairmen has been proposed; in others arrangements are suggested under which non-official Vice-Chairmen may become Chairmen after a period of probation; in others it is frankly, and I doubt not correctly, stated that no person can be found who is willing and able to discharge the duties of the post. But I see in the great majority of the reports nothing but a desire to help the policy forward so far as may be practicable with due regard to its own ultimate success, and I can see no jealousy of non-official influence. The most liberal-minded officer in charge of a backward district would be wanting in his duty if he reported in favour of an extension to it of the measure as originally proposed in its integrity. But if the Council desire to see how the officers in charge of advanced districts have received the proposals of Government, I would ask them to turn to the reports of Mr. Westmacott, Magistrate of Dacca; of Mr. Stevens, Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs; and Mr. Larminie, Magistrate of Burdwan.

I have only one word more to say. I have seen it stated, in an article which combined much able criticism with some misconception of the scope of this measure, that the scheme which I developed in my opening speech would be unfavourably received because it rests on a basis of work, and that this indeed is its worst feature. I am, perhaps, not the best judge of the features of the measure; but I must confess that in my judgment this is not its worst feature, but its best feature. It is said that the scheme should aim more directly at political education and less directly at work. Now, Sir, I cannot conceive how any scheme of Local Self-Government in India, whether as a measure of administration, or as a measure of education, could possibly succeed unless it proceeded on a basis of work. I cannot see how any Government could, without a grave dereliction of its duty, introduce a system of Local Self-Government in India resting on any other principle than work. I cannot see that there could be any value, any solidity, any endurance about political education that was derived from talk and not from work. We do not teach boys Thucydides and Demosthenes before we teach them Xenophon and Lucian; and if we were now to neglect the practical part of Local Self-Government, we should only unfit our educated men for political education in its highest sense by setting them to work upon unrealities. They would lose and the public interests would suffer. Local Self-Government can only be successful if the people do the work; they will learn nothing by leaving it undone. It is for this reason, and because we believe that Local Self-Government must inevitably fail if we look to names and theory, instead of to realities and practice, that we have proposed to combine the political enthusiasm of our educated men and the practical knowledge and interest of the rural population, through the system of Local Boards and Union Committees. And I am glad to see that the importance of this object has been fully acknowledged by the leaders of native opinion. I am glad to see that, far from receiving the scheme with disfavour on the ground that it is based upon work, the representatives of the educated classes of Bengal cordially recognise that the Union Committees, as supplying a basis of work, will be essential to the stability of the measure. I accept that recognition as a matter of very happy augury. It confirms me in the confidence that the demand for Local Self-Government in Bengal rests on something more stable than sentiment. It confirms me in the confidence that those who have been credited with nothing more than visionary political enthusiasm will shew that they are capable of a sound and practical conception of the work to be done in order that the legitimate objects of that enthusiasm may ultimately be realized. And in this confidence, I submit the Bill to the consideration of the Council.

The HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said: "The observations which I am about to make might have been made, perhaps, more opportunely at the introduction of the Bill. I understood, however, that the papers would be circulated and the Bill itself would be sent to members, in order that they might be able thoroughly to understand the measure before expressing any decided opinion upon it, and I now avail myself of this opportunity which has been afforded me. Although the observations which I shall presently offer might have been made on a former occasion, they are nevertheless relevant to the motion now before the Council, as they convey a clear expression of opinion on my part that the present motion should be negatived. Having read and heard much of what can be said on the Bill under discussion, I have arrived at the conclusion in my own mind that the present measure is a mistake. I think I may fairly lay claim to some—if not an accurate—knowledge of this country and of its people, of their capacity and their habits, of their virtues and their failings; and forming my opinion on my knowledge and experience, I feel satisfied that the country is not sufficiently advanced, and that its people do not possess the necessary qualifications to undertake and carry out the responsible and difficult task of Local Self-Government; that, in point of fact, the time has not yet arrived for a complete and radical change in the constitution of Municipalities and for the transfer by the Government of some of its most important powers, duties, and obligations to a class of persons not yet fitted to be entrusted with such powers, or to be charged with such duties and obligations. The explanation given at the outset of the considerations to which the present Bill owes its origin will be found in paragraph 5 of the Government Resolution of the 18th May 1882, and I proceed to read it:—

"'At the outset, the Governor-General in Council must explain that, in advocating the extension of Local Self-Government, and the adoption of this principle in the management of many branches of local affairs, he does not suppose that the work will be, in the first instance, better done than if it remained in the sole hands of the Government District Officers. It is not, primarily, with a view to improvement in administration that this measure is put forward and supported. It is chiefly desirable as an instrument of political and popular education. His Excellency in Council has himself no doubt that, in course of time, as local knowledge and local interest are brought to bear more freely upon local administration, improved efficiency will in fact follow. But at starting there will doubtless be many failures calculated to discourage exaggerated hopes, and even in some cases to cast apparent discredit upon the practice of Self-Government itself. If, however, the officers of Government only set themselves, as the Governor-General in Council believes they will, to foster sedulously the small beginnings of independent political life; if they accept loyally and as their own the policy of the Government; and if they come to realise that the system really opens to them a fairer field for the exercise of administrative tact and directive energy than the more autocratic system which it supersedes,—then it may be hoped that the period of failures will be short, and that real and substantial progress will very soon become manifest."

"Now, Sir, I am not aware that a legislative body can with justice or propriety be moved to interfere with or to disturb any existing state of things by an appeal to displace it in favour of a measure tentative and experimental, depending upon principles either untried heretofore or tried under powerful control, or under different conditions. The desire to use a legislative scheme as an instrument of political and popular education implies that the persons to whom power is to be entrusted are yet not fitted for the discharge of their duties, and that they require to be educated before they become fit and competent. This position itself is a sufficiently strong condemnation of the proposed scheme. In the ordinary routine or concerns of private or public life, we do not employ workmen to do work for which they are not fitted; we do not place a man in the Army and order him to command a company without having previously educated him for that purpose; we do not engage a person to construct a bridge unless he has been educated in engineering and has a practical knowledge of the subject; we do not appoint as the principal officer of any public department of Government one who is not at the time of nomination absolutely fit for the appointment: why then is this Council called upon or required to sanction a scheme for Municipal administration to be conducted by persons who have not as yet received their education, and who will have to learn before they will be fit and competent to undertake their duties? While on the one hand I admit that it is fair and honourable to indulge in the hope that the people of this country will learn the lessons they are to be taught, on the other hand I am unable to shut out from my mind the serious consideration due to the following contingencies: That the people may altogether fail to master their lessons; that, if they succeed, their success may be achieved at some distant period of time; that in the interval and before the promised land of happiness and sunshine is reached gross blunders may be committed and grave mishaps may occur; and that public interests may thereby suffer irreparable damage or serious injury. If it be a fact, either patent or not open to reasonable doubt, that the people of this country are sufficiently advanced to undertake the responsibilities which it is proposed to cast upon their leading members, and urgent necessity exists for the proposed step, or if it can be demonstrated that the present arrangement is defective and deserves to be superseded by a system more practical, more perfect and effective, a Bill originating in these circumstances and prepared in reference to these points may with propriety be laid before this Council for its consideration and adoption; but in the present instance the grounds which I have mentioned are not taken; on the contrary, it is broadly asserted that the Governor-General in Council does not suppose that the work will be, in the first instance, better done than if it remained in the sole hands of the Government District Officers.

"Under these circumstances it is but too plain that we are invited to initiate and adopt a new principle of legislation, to give countenance and support to a measure admittedly experimental, attended with the risk of failure, enveloped in doubt and uncertainty, and unsuited to by far the major portion of the native population of India, and that the requisition or appeal now preferred is based on nothing more nor less than the desire to favour political and popular education, inducing and inspiring the hope that the experiment to be tried under our sanction will, in due course of time, the limit of which it is impossible to predict, bear fruit and prove beneficial to the people of India. This prospect, though full of fascination, and these considerations, though laudable and doubtless conceived in a spirit of pure benevolence, do not, in my humble judgment, furnish sufficient or valid ground for our interference with the existing state of things by the introduction of a piece of experimental legislation. Were I satisfied that the measure under consideration would result in a present and permanent benefit, that it would secure beyond reasonable doubt the welfare and happiness of the people of India, I would gladly and cordially support it. But while I would do so if substantial reasons were found to exist, I must enter my humble protest against the invitation to legislate on the subject of a scheme more or less speculative and clearly open to the risk of failure. My sense of the responsibility which attaches to our functions as legislators precludes me from according my assent to the proposed measure. I believe it to be the duty of every person in power to do his utmost to secure the welfare and happiness of the people amongst whom he lives. Had I the honour of being entrusted with a measure of reform, my thoughts would turn in a different direction and to other matters which certainly require and demand reform. I would endeavour to improve the administration of justice so that the people of India might enjoy greater security in regard to themselves and their property. Reverting to the subject of political education, I would point out that the intention of the Government to promote the political education of the people would be better carried out by associating members of the native community with District Officers trained in the duties which appertain to Municipal institutions, than leaving them to educate themselves in a state of isolation—of disassociation with those from whom they might learn their lessons on the subject of Local Self-Government."

THE HON. MAHOMED YUSUF said:—Before I entered this hall I had not the remotest idea that there would be any opposition to the Bill. Leave having already been unanimously given by the Council to my hon. friend Mr. Macaulay, at a previous sitting of the Council, to introduce the Self-Government Bill, the business now before the Council was, as appears from the list of business, the consideration of a motion to introduce into the Council a certain Bill circulated amongst the members of the Council with a statement of the objects and reasons appended to it. This implies a foregone conclusion in favour of the expediency and necessity of an enactment on the subject. So that strictly speaking the proper matter for the present consideration of the Council is the form and shape of the Bill which has just been introduced by the Hon. Mover, who next intends to move that the same be referred to the Select Committee. The questions open for discussion on occasions like the present relate to a consideration of the best form which the Bill should assume, and not to a consideration that the Bill should assume no form at all.

Although the Hon. Advocate-General, who has opposed the Bill, being of opinion that the measure is a mistake, is aware that he is strictly speaking not in time to put forward his opposition to it, still I am obliged to make these observations, because no one who has had any experience of Mr. Advocate-General's talents and abilities ever likes to see him in the opposition. Every one who knows him also knows the strength of his mind, and the force of the arguments which he adduces in support of the particular view which he takes. The position which he takes is frequently unassailable, and the ground upon which he stands is often too impregnable for an attack. But in the present instance, speaking with the highest deference to the views which he entertains, I submit, with all respect due to him, that his premises are not correct, and therefore the conclusion drawn by him is erroneous. And that, although the observations made by him should lead the Council to be careful as to the form and mode which legislation should assume, still those observations have failed to convince me that the measure is in any way unwise or inexpedient, or that it is not good policy to introduce the same in India, or that the country is unfit to receive the same and unprepared for it.

Stated shortly, the position taken by the Hon. Advocate-General amounts to this: That it is admitted that the measure is a tentative and experimental one, and its success is doubted by its best advocates; that although the people of the country have not qualified themselves for it, still the measure is sought to be introduced as the means of educating the people in the political line. He argues that inasmuch as qualification should precede and not follow the introduction of the measure by which Self-Government is to be given to the people, and inasmuch as it is admitted that the necessary qualification does not exist, Self-Government should not be introduced into the country. By way of illustrating his argument he points to the case of the Engineer, for instance, who must first have a certain qualification before he could be entrusted with certain duties, and in support of his position he cites a passage from the resolution of the Supreme Government where it is said that the measure is chiefly desirable as an instrument of political and popular education.

Now I deny that the country is generally disqualified for Self-Government, or that the people of the country have not sufficiently advanced in education to be considered fit to be entrusted with the duties and privileges of Self-Government. I deny that those who advocate the policy of Self-Government admit that the people are disqualified, and I deny that the measure is sought to be introduced altogether as a tentative and experimental one.

I think that a large portion of the country is prepared for Self-Government, and that the people have under the beneficence of the British rule attained that point of general education and general culture when they could very properly be considered fit to be entrusted with the duties and privileges of Self-Government, which would simply enable them to advance one step from their general education by introducing them to political education, and thus furnishing them with opportunities of familiarising themselves with political matters which, notwithstanding their capacity and fitness, they have been unable to do as they never had an opportunity to do so. The germs of success are existing; there is no lack of ability or qualification in the people; the only thing that was wanting was opportunity, and that opportunity is now furnished by the Government to the people. A new faculty is not sought to be created, but that which had lain dormant in consequence of disuse and want of practice is sought to be revived by occasion being given for its use and full development.

If an opportunity is not afforded, there never will be a beginning. There is no school for education in political matters, where people should first go and qualify themselves in politics in the abstract before you could put them in charge of a district for the purposes of Self-Government; but if the people are sufficiently advanced and educated in a general way, you may safely entrust them with the duties of Self-Government, although they may not have had a trial before. To entrust them with such duties is to begin with their political education, which can only be acquired by practice, and not by going to any particular school.

It is incorrect to cite the above passage from the resolution of the Supreme Government as an admission that the people generally are unprepared for the duties of Self-Government, and that the measure seeks to qualify them for the first time; because, reading the whole of the resolution, it seems to me that the conviction that the country was prepared for the measure preceded the idea of introducing this measure. Not only is there in the resolution a conviction that the country is prepared for the duties and privileges of Self-

Government, but the Supreme Government is delighted to learn that success has invariably been achieved in the past, whenever some step, however small, was taken to introduce in the country Self-Government in any small shape however, and that if previous attempts have resulted in failure, that was because those attempts "have been too far overridden and practically crushed by direct though well-meant official interference." I may also here mention that in this country even illiterate persons shew a very marked degree of intelligence, and that, although they may not have received what is called a liberal education, still every just critic entertains the belief that they evince every aptitude and fitness for the practical management of the ordinary duties of life, and are not wanting in stamina and energy to make life successful.

When those who are better judges than myself have thought in this train, it is useless for me to say that I do not agree with the Advocate-General in thinking that the measure should not at all be introduced, or that the political education of the people would be better advanced by associating them with the district officers rather than by leaving them to educate themselves in a state of isolation and of disassociation with those from whom they might learn their lessons.

But, as I said above, the arguments of the learned Advocate-General are not without their effect, and if they have failed to convince me that the measure is one which should be put a stop to, they have not failed to assure me and support me in what I have thought in the matter, viz. that the scheme should be one having very great elasticity in it. Because, although it is impossible to say that no part of the country has attained the requisite point in education, and has not qualified itself to be entrusted with the duties and privileges of Self-Government, it is likewise impossible to affirm that every part of the country is so educated and qualified.

In India and Bengal there are parts of the country in which no one can doubt that the scheme will prove a success. On the other hand there are other parts of the country in which the success of the scheme will be doubtful, and although it is no argument that because the scheme is not likely to succeed in every part of the country, it should not be introduced at all, still the anticipated failure of the scheme in some parts of the country shews that too great care on the general frame of the Act cannot be bestowed. I therefore submit that the only lesson which the speech of the learned Advocate-General should teach us is to shew that the scheme should be drafted with such elasticity that it should provide both for places where every one believes it would succeed and for places of apprehended failure; that although there is no valid objection that the measure should at first be extended to the whole of the country, still the Bill should provide for its being withdrawn from places where it shall have been found that it would not by any means succeed.

There being therefore no sufficient reason for throwing out the Bill, I fully support the Hon. Mover who has moved for its introduction, and before it is referred to a Select Committee, I desire to make a few observations on some of the salient points of the Bill.

And in submitting my observations to the Council, I am fully aware that the present is the first reading of the Bill, when observations made upon it necessarily relate to general principles, and the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill having done me the honour of naming me a Member of the Select Committee, I will not trouble the Council with matters of details which will come to be considered by the Select Committee in the natural course. But while I am addressing the Council, I desire to avail myself of this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to the Government for the initiation of this policy, and I hope I shall not be called to order for doing so, although by doing so I may make a small digression from the business in hand.

Sir, believe me that, in the whole of India, there is but one feeling pervading all the educated and intelligent and right-thinking population of the country, viz. that of thankfulness and gratitude to both the Supreme Government and the Local Government for the initiation of the policy which has resulted in the introduction of a measure which seeks to bestow on the conquered race the privilege of governing themselves within certain limits. The scheme will go down to posterity with the names of your Honor and Lord Ripon as the promoter and originator of the scheme, and those names will ever be cherished and remembered by the people of the country for generations to come with feelings of most sincere thankfulness; for it is impossible to exaggerate the benefits of the scheme to the country, or to say where the results of it would stop. But our thanks are due to the Government, not only for the initiation and introduction of this measure, but also for the manner in which it has been initiated and introduced. Not only is a real and substantial scheme introduced, but, what is more to the point, it is introduced with the most anxious care that it should succeed. Whether it will succeed or not, it is impossible for me at present to say; but this I can say without fear of contradiction, that both the Supreme and Local Governments are imbued with one desire, viz. that the scheme should prove a true success in the country. Whatever is likely to conduce to its success is clearly and steadily kept in view; whatever is supposed to have operated as a cause of past failure in cognate matters, or may tend to produce a similar failure, is thoroughly sifted and eliminated, and nothing which would tend towards its success is left unthought of. And, generally, the attitude taken by the local officers has not been one of hostility towards the measure, although in certain matters there is observable, as was expected, great diversity of views, as the mass of papers freely circulated with the Bill amply demonstrate.

The task of framing the Bill could not have devolved upon an abler person than the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill; for we find he has spared no pains in executing his task in the same liberal spirit in which it was conceived by the Government, and within a comparatively small space of time, since leave was given, we have before us a thoroughly practical Bill logically arranged, part by part, in which the principal matters to be provided for are clearly and categorically dealt with, and the whole of the subject is exhaustively treated and clearly and lucidly enunciated. The Bill is an enduring monument of the Hon. Mover's ability, industry, wisdom, and liberality of views, and our best thanks are due to him, not only for what he has done, but for what he thinks in the matter, and for the views which he entertains in favour of the policy which he sincerely maintains, and honestly and earnestly carries out, with a considerable degree of care and forethought.

The subject with which the Hon. Mover had to deal was one of immense difficulty. It is easier to lay down the principles than to prepare a scheme, and the Local Self-Government scheme is one of peculiar difficulty because you cannot rely upon past experience of any very great value. A new Act is to be framed; no old Act is to be amended and improved upon. A new foundation is to be laid, and all the while you are seized with a certain degree of mistrust which enhances the difficulty of the task, for men whose opinions could not be lightly treated have entertained doubts as to its success, and those doubts the framer of the scheme cannot by any means lose sight of or disregard.

But notwithstanding the difficulty of legislation in the matter, the question is, in what way to legislate so as to present a workable scheme and at the same time ensure success and avoid failure. The difficulty of the case is further increased by the circumstance that, having no past experience for our guide, we cannot pronounce with positive certainty upon any particular scheme which might suggest itself, or which might be suggested by others, for consideration in connection with the subject, as the one likely to succeed as a matter of course.

Our present position in connection with the measure I take to be this. I take this Bill to be the first embodiment of the principles of Self-Government. That Bill must be taken to be the groundwork upon which the fabric of Self-Government is to be built. It contains the first impressions on the subject. All suggestions are to be made in reference to it; although nobody is at present committed to anything. The Bill, after it shall have been referred to the Select Committee, will stand over for a time, and the public will have ample opportunity to criticise the Bill, and there can be no doubt that the Select Committee will have to consider various suggestions, some of which there can be no doubt will be very valuable, and might be fit for being adopted.

But notwithstanding all this, we must see whether the Bill embodies the necessary general principles, and whether any suggestion could now with propriety be made for the consideration of the Council in general, or of the Select Committee in particular.

The Government having determined, for certain reasons, that the administration of certain departments of Education, Sanitation, Medical Charity and Local Public Works should be made over to the people of the country, the question is, what is the best way of carrying this determination into effect. The solution of the question, although attended with great difficulty, is not unlikely to be attained if we keep in view two general principles in the matter of the Self-Government policy. The first principle is that, when unpaid labour is sought to be utilized, you must so contrive as to secure both local interest and local knowledge in the people whose labour you seek to utilize. I do not think this principle can be disputed. If I were called upon to do something for the people in Bombay or Madras, I would have neither local interest nor local knowledge in any scheme put forward for the benefit of the people, and the result would be that my efforts would end in failure. But if I were called upon to manage something connected with my own house or mohullah, I think I shall in all probability succeed, because the work is of a nature so that I have interest in seeing it carried out, and as to which I have local knowledge. It is for this reason that I think the idea of Union Committees is a wise and happy idea, and cannot but command success. It is therefore clear to my mind that in every district, where intelligent non-official agency can be found, there should be extended and maintained a network of Local Boards to be charged with definite duties and entrusted with definite funds. Hence, as at present advised, and until a better idea is suggested, I am prepared to support the idea of Unions to be found in the Bill proposed by the Hon. Mover.

The second general principle referred to above is that the agency for the execution of the principles of Self-Government, the persons who are to be entrusted with the duties of Self-Government should have some freedom, although, at the same time, they must be placed under some sort of control. As regards the application of this principle, I am not quite clear whether the Bill contains all that it should contain, and nothing more. And although it is not necessary for me at the present stage to draw the attention of the Council to what might be objectionable in the Bill from this point of view, because, as I have said above, the Bill will be carefully considered by the Select Committee, and its provisions would be altered and modified, where alterations and modifications would be deemed necessary and desirable, still it would be better for me in the meanwhile to invite attention to the following considerations. In the Resolution of the 10th October 1881, the Supreme Government, in paragraph 9, expressed itself in the following terms:—

"It would be hopeless to expect any real development of Self-Government if local bodies were subject to check and interference in matters of detail; and the respective powers of Government and of the various local bodies should be clearly and distinctly defined by statute, so that there may be as little risk of friction and misunderstanding as possible. Within the limits to be laid down in each case, however, the Governor-General in Council is anxious that the fullest possible liberty of action should be given to Local Bodies."

It is therefore quite clear that the scheme, in order to succeed, must be one by which real power is entrusted to the local authorities, and real responsibility thrown on them. No artificial restrictions should be imposed on the transfer of the local funds to the local authorities: the transfer should be with as full control as may be practically expedient over the details of the expenditure.

The Board should be left unfettered in the initiation, direction, and control of certain measures: the success of the scheme will depend upon the amount of independent power to be conferred upon the local agencies, and the greater the trust reposed in those bodies the greater will be the cordiality, earnestness, and industry with which the work will be performed.

All the generous wishes of the Government may be defeated if the provisions of the Bill do not ensure honest and effectual working. The most important condition necessary for satisfactory working is to secure the sympathy of the workers, and this cannot be done unless the members of the local bodies are convinced that they are entrusted with and have responsible duties to perform. On the one hand it is necessary to be cautious, and to provide for checks against maladministration, but on the other hand if the checks be such as to make the members of the Local Boards think that they are mere ciphers designed to play a spectacular part, you cannot have their sympathy, nor convince them that they are responsible. In order that the plan should succeed, you must find out where check will be salutary, and where it may be meddling.

To what extent this middlesome course has been adopted in the Bill I shall not now dwell upon to any extent; but I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that the checks and counterchecks devised seem to me to leave no room for any very great liberty of action. If the Unions can do nothing without orders, and have to do everything under orders, their liberty might be likened to that of the private soldiers in the ranks of a regiment, and if this analogy is correct, it is hard to conceive that there would be Self-Government in anything else but in the name. If there should be failure under such circumstances, the punishment should go to the Central Board and not to the members of the Unions who have merely been the passive instrument of higher authorities.

If these observations have any force, and if the Bill is susceptible of improvement in these matters, I feel sure that the necessary amendments will be made by the Select Committee. But I have thought it necessary to draw attention to this portion of the Bill in order that we should see whether the Bill does really vest any real responsibility in the Local Boards. So far as the intentions of my friend the Hon'ble Mover are concerned, I have not the slightest ground for any objection, because I learn from his speeches made on two occasions—once when leave was asked for the introduction of the Bill, and for a second time to-day—that it is his wish that real responsibility should be imposed on the Local Boards and substantial powers given to them. The intention being clear, and being all that could be desired, the whole matter is reduced to this—what are the words that should be used, and what are the provisions that should be embodied in the Bill in order to give effect to that intention.

The next point upon which I shall touch relates to the offices of the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman. In this matter I do not think that any improvement can be made in the provisions of the Bill: no fault can be found with them. The offices of Chairman and Vice-Chairman have been left to election, and it is necessary that this should be done, because cordiality of action between the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman and the members of Local Boards is essential to the success of the measure; and that could only be secured when people shall feel that the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman are taken out of them and belong to their number. But there is one matter to which I should draw attention, and that relates to a point which has been, to a certain extent, discussed in the Select Committee in connection with the Municipal Bill, namely, the advisability of allowing the Magistrate to be appointed a Chairman even by election. Some doubts have been entertained on this point by competent people. The Supreme Government, in the 18th paragraph of the Resolution of the 18th May 1882, referred to this subject; and although some passages in it do not quite bear on this precise question, I will, with the permission of the President, read an extract from it to the Council. The Resolution says—

"It does not appear necessary for the exercise of these powers that the chief executive officers of towns, sub-divisions, or districts should be Chairmen or even members of the local Boards. There is, indeed, much reason to believe that it would be more convenient that they should supervise and control the acts of those bodies without taking actual part in their proceedings. The Governor-General in Council is aware that many high authorities hold that the district officer should always be ex-officio Chairman of all the local Boards within the district, and should directly guide and regulate their proceedings This was, indeed, the view taken by the Government of India itself in the circular letters of the 20th October last, so far as the constitution of district Boards was concerned. But even then the Governor-General in Council did not see his way to accepting the principle in the case of municipal Boards, and further consideration has led him to the belief that, on the whole, it is better to lay down no such general rule in the case of any class of local Boards. There appears to him to be great force in the argument that so long as the chief executive officers are, as a matter of course, Chairman of the municipal and district committees, there is little chance of these committees affording any effective training to their members in the management of local affairs, or of the non-official members taking any real interest in local business. The non-official members must be led to feel that real power is placed in their hands, and that they have real responsibilities to discharge. * * * *

"The Governor-General in Council, therefore, would wish to see non-official persons acting, wherever practicable, as Chairman of the local Boards."

It does not appear that this precise question, whether the Magistrate should be appointed a Chairman even by election, was before the mind of the Supreme Government when recording this Resolution, because the Resolution uses the words "as a matter of course" in connection with the question before it. This question is perhaps for the first time raised in this Council, and whatever solution may be arrived at in reference to this point under consideration in connection with the Municipal Bill might be considered equally applicable to the present Bill. I myself have not quite made up my mind what suggestion to offer in this matter. I should first like to know what persons more competent than myself think on the point. In the meantime, however, I have thought it my duty to draw the attention of the Council to it.

The next point relates to the constitution of District Boards, whether in substitution of, or in conjunction with, the Local Boards. On this question, although, as on other questions, it is not necessary that the Council should form a final and decided opinion at the present stage of the Bill, ample time being left to consider it in all its phases before the final passing of the measure, still, as at present advised, it does not appear to me why these District Boards are necessary or desirable. It is essentially necessary that there should be Union Committees, because, without them, there will be no local interest or local knowledge. If there are Union Committees, it follows that there should be Local Boards to preside over and control a certain number of Unions, it being impossible for one Board sitting in the district to undertake the gigantic task of controlling all the Unions in the district; but I cannot understand what necessity exists that, in addition to the Unions and the Local Boards, there should be District Committees. No doubt, in the ordinary course of events, we naturally find in the district what we expect, viz. that there is a larger number of educated and intelligent men there than elsewhere; but at the same time we find that the people in the district are ignorant of the wants of the people in the mofussil, and they themselves not being even remotely affected by what very intimately concerns the villagers, they have no interest in the work and no inducement to devote their time to it; whereas in the Local Boards, although there will not be that amount of intelligence and education, still there will be all that is required and necessary of local knowledge and local interest. Therefore I think District Boards are not necessary. No doubt the District Boards will be a talkative or talking body, but what we want is a working body, as contradistinguished from the talking body. There will, however, be District Boards in one sense, namely, that there will be a Local Board in the district; and if experience shows that the working of the District Boards as Local Boards is so immensely superior to that of the Local Boards proper, and that we cannot do without a District Board for the whole of the district, it will then be time to think of it and to consider whether or not District Boards should be placed over the Local Boards or in place of them. There being in the Bill several provisions for the sitting of the Joint Boards, we shall have, according to the present constitution, all the advantages of the District Boards with none of its failings. In fact, the idea of a Joint Board is so considerably superior to that of the District Committee, that I am at a loss to find out why there should be any demand for the District Board.

There is another point to which I must draw the attention of the Council, and that is a matter in which the poor and unlucky Mahomedan community is more closely concerned than their more powerful and more fortunate brethren, the Hindus—I mean the question regarding the representation of minority. Everybody knows that there are parts of the country in which the feeling between Mahomedans and Hindus runs very high.

The Council will be pleased to remember that in most places the Mahomedan population, though numerically large, still, against the larger bodies of Hindus, forms a minority. Or it may be that in some places, though fewer, the case is the reverse, and the Hindus form a minority. In such cases, when there is party spirit and angry feeling between the classes of people, it is necessary to reserve power for the representation of the minority. The Bill proposes to provide for this by nomination, but it would be an advantage, and a more fit recognition of the claims of the Mahomedan population if provision could be made in the Bill for the election of Mahomedans by reserving a certain number of memberships for that community. Whatever may be the step that might be taken, and whatever may be the means that might be devised, the matter should be fully considered.

The sections of the Bill by which a certain amount of power is reserved in the hands of the Central Board may, in some cases, be sufficient for the purpose; but I submit that this point is of such manifest importance that the Council will very carefully consider it before the Bill becomes law, for it is extremely desirable that the law on this point should be made after such mature consideration as to leave no room for any doubt, and so as to meet the requirements of the case most thoroughly and efficiently. I may mention that this matter has struck the minds of other people also, because in one of the papers circulated with the Bill, namely, the report of the Commissioner of the Presidency Division (paragraph 47), I find something which bears on the question. That officer says—

"In connection with this part of the subject I have to notice one almost certain result of the adoption of the elective principle in mofussil districts, and that is the exclusion from Local Boards, and the neglect of the interests of Mahomedans. To every one who knows the country and has watched the progress of the present movement, it is very evident that the agitators in this matter are Hindus, and that Local Boards instituted as proposed will be comprised almost entirely of Hindus to the exclusion of Mahomedans. Whether the Mahomedans may or may not have themselves to blame for this state of things is another question; but the fact remains, as I have stated above, and this fact goes very far to show how non-representative the character and constitution of Local Boards on the elective principle will be. The exclusion from administrative posts of Mahomedans in favour of Hindus is not unfelt by the former, and public expression has only lately been given to the feeling by an able Mahomedan gentleman in the pages of the Nineteenth Century. 'The Mahomedans,' he remarks, 'have simply been crowded of' to use an expressive Americanism, 'from the public service and the independent professions.' The entire government of the country, so far as it affects the natives of India, is virtually in the hands of the Hindus. Their influence is all powerful in every department of State, and their influence is almost invariably exercised to exclude the Mahomedans whom they regard as aliens from their proper and legitimate share in official preferment."

The same learned Commissioner then draws further attention to this measure by which he supposes only a small section of the community will be represented, and he goes on to say that it will have the effect of excluding fifty millions of the people of India who are Mahomedans. Although the passage which I have read was written for a very different purpose, still, inasmuch as it embodies the true facts of the case, I have quoted it in order to strengthen my position. If the Bill is capable of improvement on this point, I hope that improvement will not be withheld.

There is another matter with which I must trouble the Council for a moment, although the opinion of some of the people is against me in this matter, namely, the sex of the voter. As in the Municipal Bill, so in this, the voters must be of the male sex, and females are purposely excluded. There may be some history attached to the question of female suffrage in other countries, but the matter is worth our serious and unbiassed consideration here. The females are in many cases holders of large zemindaries, and they manage their own property themselves. It would therefore be hard to exclude them from exercising the power of voting in the Self-Government scheme. The reasons which justify the exclusion of females in other countries do not justify their exclusion in this country. If the females were incapable of holding property and managing it, there might be some reason for their exclusion in this Bill. But to say to the females, you may hold property in your own right, you may manage it yourself, and you may appoint your servants and managers privately, but you shall not be allowed to do so publicly, passes beyond my humble comprehension. The answer to the position which I take up is that it will open a wide door to fraud. But even in the case of males there is fraud practised, and in order to avoid fraud it does not follow that males or females should be excluded altogether, because means could be devised to defeat fraud and prevent the perpetration of it. The fact that some classes of females are purda nashin ladies is not a sufficient argument for excluding all. Females of the upper classes only are purda nashin; but there are parts of the country where females of other classes hold property, and they do not conform themselves to the custom of seclusion. I submit that although conditions might be imposed to secure the proper working of the principle of female suffrage, still we are not pressed on account of any weighty considerations to exclude the females altogether from taking a part in the working of the Self-Government scheme. I find in the report of the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division the opinion of the Vice-Chairman of the Burdwan Municipality thus stated—

"He suggests that purda nashin women and certain wealthy persons should give written votes. This is coming close to the ballot system, and opens up a wide question. As we have not yet heard of bribery or intimidation at these elections, I do not think it is as yet necessary to consider the introduction of the ballot. Persons who cannot appear in public might send an accredited agent to give their votes."

There are places where tracts of land for miles and miles together are owned by females, or of which, according to the law of succession, the females would be owners, although males should happen to hold them at any particular time. What would be their position in such places? Who would vote for the local bodies who would have to govern these large zemindaries? The result of excluding the females would be that the vote will be given by persons who are not interested, and who would have no concern whatever in the matter. I submit that this point should be considered by the Council and some solution arrived at. For the present I do not think females should be entirely excluded from voting; but, if excluded, they may be allowed to transfer their right to vote to some member of the family, or to vote by means of a power-of-attorney to an agent.

The females at present are not only disentitled from being a member of the Board, but they cannot give their vote at all. It is possible to understand the former, because although females in other countries, as well as in Bengal, have been Bachelors of Arts, or, strictly speaking, Maids of Art, and also Doctors, still time has not arrived when they can be expected to undertake arduous duties, and sit in the meetings of the Boards or the Municipalities. But I do not see what objection there could be to females not being disqualified from voting for or against candidates.

The point having been raised by me in the Select Committee in connection with the Municipality Bill, the answer given was that females are secluded, and it is therefore difficult to say, in particular cases, whether they have attained majority. But in the first place I say this objection has no force in it, and in the second place the objection is not of universal or general application in India, inasmuch as the purda custom, as already pointed out by me, is confined to higher classes, and females of the lower classes also own property in the mofussil. It will, however, not be difficult in small places like the Unions to know by reputation whether a particular female voter has attained majority or not, and as time progresses, the enforcement of the rules of Self-Government, which provide for the registration of births, marriages, and deaths, will make the difficulty less and less every day. In the meanwhile it is, as I have said above, undesirable to exclude in some cases very large owners of property, who happen to be, or might very soon be by virtue of the law of succession, females.

The next matter to which I wish to refer was the provision contained in section 50. It provides that "the Union Committee may require the owner of any tank, stream, or well to cleanse or fill up the same, or may require the owner or occupier of any land which appears to be in a state injurious to health, or offensive to the neighbourhood, to clear or drain it, or take such other action with respect thereto as may be deemed necessary. If such owner or occupier makes default in carrying out the said order, the Union Committee may perform the work, and may recover the expense thereby incurred from such owner. Such expense shall be recoverable in the manner provided by any law for the time being in force for the recovery of public demands."

"Provided further that when the cost of carrying out any order under this section shall be estimated as likely to exceed Rs. 100, the Union Committee shall not issue such order without the previous consent of the Local Board."

Now I cannot help thinking that the power conferred by section 50 in the hands of the committee may be a dangerous power in some cases. It is possible to imagine cases in which it would operate to the detriment of the people in an unwarrantable manner. It gives power to Union Committees to spend any amount of money they think proper on the work, and to levy the amount from the owner of the property. I would suggest that the proper principle is either to make the improvement after purchasing the land from the owner, or by requiring the owner to spend a certain percentage of his income from that property to effect the improvement; but it is going too far to empower local bodies to expend any amount of money they think proper, and levy the same from the owner of the land. In some instances this power would be ruinous to landowners, and deprive them of their right to property.

The last point on which I shall trouble the Council with my remarks relates to the provision of the Bill regarding persons convicted of non-bailable offences, and sentenced to imprisonment, which, according to the Bill, is to operate as a disability both before and after the election. In the Local Self-Government Act relating to the Central Provinces, I find this provision in a somewhat different shape. In cases of conviction it is under that Act a matter for consideration whether the person convicted of the offence continues fit to be a member of the local body; and a little consideration would show that this is the correct way of looking at the subject, because no body would suppose that a person sentenced to whipping should be considered fit and eligible, while one sentenced to imprisonment is unfit and ineligible. But in this Bill I find that the conviction of a non-bailable offence is an absolute disability. And it is also provided that if a person is sentenced to imprisonment, he shall cease to be a member.

But I do not think that in the case of a conviction for a non-bailable offence, a man, even if sentenced to imprisonment, is necessarily so degraded as to lose his right to sit in a local body, and be unfit to be associated with by others, or that he should cease to be trustworthy, although at the same time I think that it may be that the conviction of an offence of a less heinous nature might imply that result. I therefore think that in case of conviction for any offence, a man's election or continuance in office should be left a matter of consideration for the local body. Every case must be considered on its own merits, the conviction having only the effect of starting an enquiry.

These are the observations which I have the honour to submit to the Council on the Bill, and in conclusion I submit that the Government has done its duty by providing a scheme giving the greatest facilities for the working of Local Self-Government principle. It will now remain for the people of the country to show whether the measure will prove a success or a failure. If the Government should give to the people, as it intends to do, the scheme in a workable form, and if the best advocates and friend of the people should be satisfied that that is all that is desirable, all the intelligent and educated portion of the community are of opinion that the scheme will succeed, and if after that the scheme should fail, the failure would very properly be attributed to the people. Let us in the meantime hope and trust that all will end well.

THE HON. HARBANS SAHAI said:—I beg leave to make a few observations regarding the provisions of the Local Self-Government Bill which has been conceived in such a very liberal and enlightened spirit, and has been hailed with feelings of satisfaction and gratitude throughout Bengal.

Since the time India has passed into the hands of the English, it has been their sincere and constant efforts to improve her intellectual, material, and political condition, and promote her welfare generally. The generous desire of doing good and justice to the sons of the soil underlies all the measures of the Government. England has done much for India. She is daily leading her onward in the regions of progress, civilization, and enlightenment with a helping hand. For all this India is sincerely grateful to her. Whatever the natives of India may be wanting in, they are not wanting in gratitude, and this part of their character lies unimpeached even by the bitterest of their enemies.

The boon of Self-Government—the epoch-creating boon as it has been appropriately designated—is the latest on the part of the Government to the people of India, and they too from one end of the country to the other—from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin, from British Burmah to the Punjab—have sung in one voice in praise of Lord Ripon, the originator of the policy, which is calculated to base the British Government firmly upon the gratitude and affection of the people, and unite the destinies of England and India into one harmonious whole.

This policy of Local Self-Government, Sir, which is so noble in its principle, and likely to prove still nobler by the magnificent results it will doubtless achieve, has received a careful and liberal consideration at your hands. You, Sir, have acquainted yourself personally with the wants and wishes of the people, and have bestowed immense labour and pains on the subject in adapting this policy to the varied requirements and circumstances of this vast province, and elaborating it into the practical scheme now laid before the Council. Above all, you have shown a heartfelt sympathy with the just aspirations of the people, without which any scheme would but be a failure, and have resolved to bestow the boon liberally upon the people of Bengal.

For all this the sincere and heartfelt thanks of Bengal are due to you, to the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill, and other Government officers who are lending their hearty co-operation in carrying out the scheme. Though there may be differences of opinion as to details, the main principles of the Bill have been received with general satisfaction throughout the province. As to this, I speak with some degree of confidence as regards my own province, where it has given entire satisfaction to the intelligent portion of the community. The local papers speak of it in high terms; and such of the members of the Behar Landholders Association, and educated native gentlemen of the province, as I had the pleasure of conversing with upon the subject, were loud in their praise of the principles of the Bill. This is as it should be.

Sir, the events of the last few months have clearly demonstrated that the seed which our noble Viceroy is going to sow in India will not fruitlessly be thrown over a barren land, and that it will germinate and grow into a goodly harvest under the fostering care of the Government, and through the intelligent care that the educated people themselves will take of it.

The joyous enthusiasm which the intelligent people have evinced of late, and the anxious interest with which they are watching the progress of the scheme, doubtless, augurs well for the future of Local Self-Government, and at the same time refutes directly the specious arguments that have been here and elsewhere so ostentatiously brought forward against the fitness of the people for receiving this great boon. I cannot for a moment admit that the country is unprepared to have Local Self-Government. The enlightened policy of the British Government has been for a long time to diffuse education throughout the land, and that policy, Sir, has thoroughly changed the phase of the country: it has dispelled darkness from the land by the rays of western culture and civilization: in short, it has brought about wonderful results which England can justly be proud of, and for which India is sincerely grateful to her. It has awakened just aspirations in those that have been receiving such education, and surely this noble and bright policy would have been barren of results had this not been the case. So the seed of constitutionalism is being sown in good time, and in a land well prepared and full of promise.

Is this measure calculated to weaken the hold of the Government upon the land? I can only answer by an emphatic no; nor do I at all understand how intelligent men could concoct such unreal phantoms out of the figment of their inner consciousness. Well has the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill said that despite the surrender of the management of petty local affairs to the people, British rule may be maintained, and then humorously that the members of the Local Boards will not insist upon turning the English out of the country.

In my humble opinion this noble policy is calculated to enhance the love, loyalty, and gratitude of the people towards the British Government, which will be placed on a solid basis.

The Union Committee of the Bill is a very grand idea, and will give universal satisfaction throughout the province. Through it the electoral franchise will reach the very masses, excepting the most ignorant, who may not avail themselves of the opportunity of exercising control over local affairs. It affords me extreme pleasure to find that to the present Government belongs the credit of awakening the dormant political life of the nation. India, amidst her innumerable vicissitudes of fortune, still fondly cherishes the memory of her ancient village communities, and still preserves its relics with pride, which contributed in times of old so much to her peace and happiness. Notwithstanding what has been said by some in power and position as to the utter want of any representative constitution among the Hindus, their ancient village communities bear sufficient testimony to their being not wholly unacquainted with the elective system. Even at the present time the remnants of the time-honoured institution of the punchayets are found here and there, and in Behar the custom of choosing umpires for settling differences and of referring petty disputes to the punchayets, wherever they exist, is familiar to, and followed by, the most ignorant villager. In support of my above observations, I beg leave to refer to the following authorities*:— The Hindus were never an imperial people; provided that the village was free from oppression and obnoxious taxes, they did not much care who sat on the imperial throne. "Dynasty after dynasty tumbled down; revolution succeeded to revolution; Hindu, Pathan, Mogul, Maharatta, Sikh, English were masters in turn," as Lord Metcalfe, whose name is still held in veneration throughout the country, has so forcibly expressed, but the village community remained wholly indifferent to and heeded them not.†

It was satisfied with managing its own affairs, in levying its own share of the revenue due to the State for defraying imperial expenses, in taxing itself for providing funds for its internal expenses, in managing its own mandirs, dharmasalas, tanks, wells, and in administering justice to its own members and in punishing small offences. The constitution, simple as it is, was in a high degree conducive to the well-being, happiness, and the enjoyment of a great portion of freedom and independence of the people. Satisfied with managing their own affairs, they devoted the rest of their time to the study of philosophy and religion, so congenial to the Indian mind, and left the empire to take care of itself. This, Sir, was the source of their weal and woe.

Now, Sir, it affords me much pleasure to find that the ancient village council is going not only to be revived in a different shape, but placed upon a new and reformed basis as provided for in this Bill.

This system of political education placed side by side with our present excellent scheme of primary education will, at no distant date, send a current throughout national life, from which every well-wisher of the country would expect the best results. The villagers now have no opportunity of taking any part in public affairs; these Unions will teach them to do so, will make the scheme a reality, and establish the cause upon a solid basis. The Union Committees, as the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill says, should be selected by such simple processes as may be familiar to them. This is very judicious, for any particular method of election proposed by the Government may be unknown to the villagers, and prove to be a source of unnecessary confusion and trouble.

When these Union Committees are firmly established they will exercise a great and wholesome influence over the people and command their entire confidence and respect. The day will not be far distant when the villagers will refer their petty civil disputes and differences for the decision of the Union Committee in preference to the ordinary courts, and then the committee having the best means and opportunity of ascertaining the truth will be able to arrive at a right decision. This simple mode of trial will at once secure the ends of justice and save the litigant all the trouble, expense, and time of going through a formal law proceeding, and consequently not only the executive but the judicial officers of the Government will ultimately be relieved from a portion of their work.

The educational test is very satisfactory, inasmuch as the success of the measure will rest with the educated classes, and will be received, I believe, throughout the province with joy and gratitude. The educated men are the natural leaders of the country, and to exclude them would have certainly been courting failure. But the right of voting according to the scheme will be given to holders of university degrees and diplomas. This standard, Sir, in my humble opinion, seems to be too high even for the most advanced districts of Bengal Proper, not to speak of the districts of Behar and Orissa that are comparatively backward. As a fact the majority of our graduates are attracted to the district sudder stations. Even in Bengal non-official graduates in the Local Government Circles will be found only in a few exceptional places in the vicinity of Calcutta. Therefore I beg leave to say that to extend the right of voting to those that have passed the Entrance examination of the Calcutta University would be more suited to the present condition of the country.

In regard to the constitution of the Local Board, I think the property as well as educational qualifications required of electors and candidates are too high. I would reduce them, and, in reference to section 17, I would include among the electors those who pay as road cess in respect of land situated either wholly or in part within such Government Local Circle a sum of not less than Rs. 50, irrespective of their permanent place of residence, and also those who pay a license tax of Rs. 25, and who reside within the Government Local Circle or Municipality town close to it. The principal object of the Bill appears to me to give real power to the members of local committee to manage the local affairs, and to relieve the executive officials from a portion of their work. In regard to section 8, I would only say that those who are qualified to vote should also be qualified to be elected.

In regard to the office of Chairman and Vice-Chairman, my views are the same which I expressed in the last meeting of the Select Committee on the Municipality Bill. In my humble opinion if we leave section 54 as it stands, in many districts Magistrates and Sub-Divisional Officers will be elected as Chairmen, and other officials as Vice-Chairmen of the Local Board, and the object of the Bill will be defeated. There will not be any real local Self-Government. As regards the Vice-Chairman I think it should clearly be provided that he should be always a non-official gentleman; as regards the office of Chairmen there ought to be two classes of Local Boards—A and B. Class A should be composed of those Local Boards which are, in the opinion of the Central Board or the Local Government, sufficiently advanced to elect non-official gentlemen as their Chairmen, and Class B should consist of those Local Boards which may be, in the opinion of the Local Government, comparatively backward and cannot elect non-official gentlemen as their Chairmen. It should be provided that for Class B the Government should appoint the Magistrate or Sub-Divisional officer as Chairman. It would be more befitting the dignified position of a Magistrate that he should be appointed as a Chairman by the Government whose servant he is. The Magistrate has very important work to do, and I do not see what right the Local Boards have to elect him as a Chairman and compel him to spend a portion of his valuable time in doing their work to the detriment of his legitimate duties. I would give the Government power to transfer Local Boards from one class to another, as may be found necessary from time to time.

The idea of the proposed Central Board is an excellent one, and quite in keeping with the general principles of Local Self-Government. The hard-worked Government officials will be relieved of some portion of their present work. The constitution of the proposed Central Board is all that can be desired. The association of non-official native gentlemen of education and influence with a specially selected officer of the Government, will lead to most beneficial results, and I hope that Behar will not be left unrepresented in the proposed Board. The Board so constituted cannot be regarded in the light of a purely official body, and its interference with or control over the affairs of the Local Boards will be far from that of an official nature. Thus the independent and the non-official characteristic of the entire organization of Local Self-Government from the village Unions to the Central Board will be strictly maintained. The Hon. Member in charge of the Bill in the concluding part of his speech very appropriately made an appeal to the educated men of Bengal. I have no doubt that this appeal will be responded to in the same spirit in which it was made, that educated men throughout the country, being actuated with patriotic feeling, will come forward to accept the powers and responsibilities of the new position assigned to them, and exert their utmost to ensure the success of such an important measure which is calculated to do so much good to their country, and thus justify the privilege which has been accorded to them, and prove themselves to be the worthy sons of their motherland.

Now let us closely and critically examine the proposed organization of Local Self-Government as provided for in the Bill from a practical point of view, and see whether it is complete, and whether it will work well in practice, and ensure the success of the scheme. I am sorry to say that in my humble opinion it will not, and I now proceed to give my reasons for the same. The existing district road cess and public instruction committees have not been assigned their proper and legitimate share in the administration of the Local Self-Government scheme. As a rule the district sudder towns are the centres of intelligence, education, public spirit, commerce, trade, and wealth. In such towns generally the big zemindars and the other well-to-do people of the mofussil reside during a greater portion of the year for the education of their relatives in the Government zillah schools, for medical treatment, for supervising and transacting their legal business and affairs in the several Government offices and courts, and sometimes also for pleasure and amusements. We also generally find Government officials, pleaders and mookhtears, merchants, and traders belonging to the several parts of the district living in such places. It is the district sudder towns which used hitherto to supply a large number of the members to district road cess and public instruction committees. The success of the Local Self-Government scheme will depend in a great measure upon the efficient and adequate agency that we employ to work. Now we find that district road cess and public instruction committees have been in existence for many years, and the members thereof have received regular training, and have acquired practical experience in the working of the above institutions. The Hon. Member in charge of the Bill has very properly remarked that a guiding principle to be observed is the utilization to the utmost of existing and well established institutions, the construction of our edifice as far as possible with existing materials. Have we utilized the above institutions? No. The Hon. Member has been pleased to remark that, as a rule, they have been failures, but failures in what sense? I freely admit that there was failure so far as there was no real Self-Government, and that the non-official members had no real authority in the working of the committees, but I am bold to say that they had a fair share in the management of the affairs of the committee. On the whole the district committees, according to my experience, have done their work well and in an efficient manner. On the other hand the branch road cess committees have very perfunctorily performed their duties Some of these committees, though there is no lack of work, do not spend the amount of funds assigned to them, and some who do spend the money do not apply the same judiciously, usefully, and economically.

The branch committee have partially failed, for simple reason that the services of intelligent and educated men could not be secured to a large extent. Such being my past experience, I fail to see the advisibility of abolishing the district committee, and placing the local committee practically in independent charge of the roads operations The members of the proposed Unions and Local Boards will be, as a general rule, quite inexperienced, and the work will be quite new to them. The Local Boards will not be able therefore to discharge their new onerous duties satisfactorily without fair guidance, judicious instruction, advice, sympathetic help, and quiet control of some supervising local bodies possessing local interest, knowledge, and experience such as the existing district committee. The area of the proposed local government circle will be very small, and the total number of all the Local Boards throughout this vast province will be very large. The area of the proposed Central Board will be very extensive, and its work heavy. Thus it is not to be expected that the Central Board situated at Calcutta, however able and competent its members may be, will be Argus-eyed to watch vigilantly the proceedings of the numerous Local Boards of this vast province. I also fail to see how the Central Board, having no local knowledge and experience, can be expected to exercise efficient control over them, and supervise and check the works which may be initiated by them. Moreover, it is feared that the views of the Local Boards will be contracted and limited to their own small sphere, and all the money entrusted to them will be frittered away in merely local works. In the absence of a District Board, who is to take a comprehensive view of the whole district, and conceive, design and execute large and important works affecting the whole district? The proposed joint committee, I am afraid, will not be equal to this task. I do not approve of the principle of creating a number of joint committees which will be so difficult to work in practice. In my humble opinion such committees cannot efficiently and satisfactorily perform the work of the present district committees and supply their place. Besides this, another difficulty will be in regard to the strength and cost of the establishment. Each Local Board will be required to maintain a highly paid efficient staff, complete by itself, for engineering, medical, and educational purposes. This will not, as a rule, be sufficient within the limits of a local circle to keep the highly paid superior officers engaged throughout the year. Their services could not be utilized as it is done at present by employing them anywhere in the district. Thus there will be useless and unnecessary multiplication of establishments throughout the district. I, Sir, would utilize the services of the well trained, experienced, intelligent, and educated members of the existing district committees which ought to be continued. I, Sir, advocate the continuance of the District Board not because the Local Board will not satisfy the ambition of those who hanker after high political power—not because the Local Board will not be gratifying to those who will only talk but will not work; but because, in my opinion; the District Board will prove useful and an efficient connecting link between the Central Boards and the Local Boards, and because without the co-operation and supervision of the educated and intelligent members of the District Boards, I am afraid the scheme cannot successfully and efficiently be worked at least at the outset. I would place the Local Board under the control and supervision of the District Board. The best and safest rule for the constitution of the District Board, in my humble opinion, would be to have one-third of its members elected by the several Local Boards, one-third elected by the sudder district town, and one-third may be appointed by the Government. The Local Boards may elect their representatives for the District Board either from their own body or from among the persons of their circle residing at the sudder station. We might make some provision as regards qualifications of voters and candidates for the district membership. For the members who would be elected by the district town, in addition to other qualifications, they must have served as a member of the district road cess committee. There ought to be a provision made that the Local Board will be at liberty to pay from its funds the actual bonâ fide expenses incurred by its representatives in attending the District Board Committee. The District Board should be in direct charge of the zillah school, sudder charitable dispensary, district roads, which begin within the limit of one local government circle and end in another, and other institutions and properties in which the whole people of the district are commonly interested. It should design and execute large and important works affecting the whole district, and generally control and supervise the several Local Boards subordinate to it. The Local Board being in charge of the sub-divisional roads and institutions, and union committees being in charge of the village roads and institutions, each body would have charge of what it is interested in, and of what it has the local knowledge and capacity to manage.

The District Board will be in a position to set an example and show the way to Local Boards.

Now that the means of communication from the mofussil to sudder station have so much improved, and as some of the delegates of the Local Board may be living at the sudder station, and as others travelling from the mofussil will get their travelling expenses, I do not think that there will be much difficulty in securing regular attendance of the delegates of the Local Board at the meeting of the District Board. There cannot be much apprehension of constant and vexatious meddling on the part of the District Board with Local Boards, as the District Board will partly be composed of the delegates from the Local Board, and the interest of both the bodies will be common and identical. It may be said that in the backward districts in which several independent

Local Boards cannot be constituted, you may have one Local Board for the whole district, but you cannot have both Local Boards and District Boards.

In reply to such a proposition, I would say that if you have only one Local Board for the whole district, you cannot expect that the delegates of the several Unions will take the trouble of travelling from very long distances to attend the meeting of the Local Board at the sudder station, and take an intelligent part in discussing important subjects and managing large business which affect the whole district and do not directly concern their Unions.

It may be urged that there are sub-divisions, in some districts, which are quite prepared to accept the powers and responsibilities of the Local Boards, independent of the District Board. To meet such cases I would proceed on the model of 165th section of the present Road Cess Act, No. IX of 1880, and provide that the Local Government may declare that any such Local Government Board shall have the full powers of the District Board within its local Government circle, and in that case the powers of the District Board shall cease therein. I would also maintain the present engineering establishment, making only such necessary changes as may be rendered necessary to suit the altered state of things.

In almost all the districts I think we have got one professional engineer in the employ of the District Road Cess Committee, who prepares plans, estimates and designs of large works and generally supervises construction and repairs of district roads and bridges. Then each Road Cess Branch Committee has got its own overseer or sub-overseer, who receives a moderate amount of pay, and is quite competent to do the petty works of the sub-division. These gentlemen entered the service on the understanding that the posts to which they were appointed were permanent. They have been doing their work satisfactorily, and have acquired local knowledge and experience. Neither the interests of justice, economy, nor efficiency require that these persons should be turned out without any fault of their own and new persons appointed in their places.

To sum up, I fully approve of the liberal and enlightened principles of the Bill, and I have only to suggest that, according to the guiding principle laid down by the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill, we should utilize the existing District Board and Engineering Establishment.

At this stage the President adjourned the debate.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 10th instant.

LIBERALITY OF BABOO RASHBEHARY LAL SINGH OF MANBHOOM.

No. 657P, dated Calcutta, the 8th March 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

To—The Commissioner of Chota Nagpore.

WITH reference to your letter No. 187IM, dated the 13th January last, and its enclosures, I am directed to request that you will be so good as to convey the thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor to Baboo Rashbehary Lal Singh, a zemindar in the district of Manbhoom, for his liberal contribution of Rs. 3,670 towards the construction of the Govindpore Lake.

2. I am add that this correspondence will be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

No. 187IM, dated Camp Kusumghat, the 13th January 1883.

From—J. F. K. HEWITT, Esq., Commissioner of the Chota Nagpore Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department.

IN submitting herewith copy of letter No. 1768R, dated 28th December 1882, from the Deputy Commissioner of Manbhoom, together with its enclosure, I have the honour to state that I hope that the thanks of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor may be given to Baboo Rashbehary Lal Singh for the great public spirit he has shewn in contributing such a large sum as Rs. 3,670 towards the construction of the Govindpore Lake. This work will be of the greatest possible benefit to the people of the sub-division, who are constantly obliged to visit Govindpore, and also to the numerous travellers along the Grand Trunk Road and the inhabitants of Govindpore. The donor is a most active landowner, and takes the greatest interest in the improvement of his estate. He fully deserves the thanks of Government.

No. 1768R, dated Puruliah, the 28th December 1882.

From—A. L. CLAY, Esq., Officiating Deputy Commissioner of Manbhoom,

To—The Commissioner of the Chota Nagpore Division.

I BEG to send herewith copy of Govindpore Sub-Divisional Officer's No. 1160, dated the 19th instant.

2. The liberality of the Jheria zemindar deserves public recognition and encouragement, the rather that his conduct is a marked contrast to that of the zemindars of Manbhoom generally. The lake at Govindpore will, when finished, be a work of very great public utility, and its construction would perhaps have been indefinitely postponed but for the handsome donations of the Jheria zemindar and the late Maharani of Pandra.

3. The Maharani of Pandra being dead, and her estate in Chancery, her liberality as regards the Govindpore Lake cannot now be recognised. If the heir to her estate proves as public-spirited as she was, his name may yet be brought to the favourable notice of Government.

No. 1160, dated Govindpore, the 19th December 1882.

From—BABOO KALI PROSUNO SIRKAR, Sub-Divisional Officer of Govindpore,

To—The Deputy Commissioner of Manbhoom.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that the Jheria Zemindar, Baboo Rashbehary Lal Singh, has paid up the whole of his promised contribution towards the construction of the Govindpore Lake, amounting to Rs. 2,370; previously he contributed Rs. 1,300, so that his total contribution, including the present donation, amounts to Rs. 3,670, which is a very liberal payment. The zemindar, who is also an Honorary Magistrate, takes considerable interest in all matters of public importance.

2. The zemindar's liberal contributions to charitable dispensaries and schools, and his efforts to promote the cause of education in this district, are too well known to you to require any detailed notice here.

3. It may be noticed that the late Maharani of Pandra contributed Rs. 1,300 towards the construction of the lake.

CALCUTTA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, 1883-84.

THE following Proceedings of the Government of Madras, Public Department, are published for general information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. P. MACDONNELL,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

READ—The following papers :—

Circular No. 8Ex., dated Calcutta, the 3rd February 1883.

From—T. W. HOLDERNESS, Esq., C.S., Officiating Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department (Exhibition),

To—The Chief Secretary to Government of Madras, Public Department.

Letter from Government of Bengal, No. 163—33, dated the 15th January 1883, and the following annexures:—
Resolution, dated the 16th January 1883.
Prospectus with regulations.

I AM directed to forward copy of the papers noted in the margin, relative to an International Exhibition to be opened in Calcutta on the 4th of next December, and to say that the Government of India will be glad if the Government of Madras will consent to co-operate in contributing to the success of the Exhibition.

2. The prospectus, which forms one of the enclosures, will explain the classes of products and manufactures which the Exhibition will embrace; and a further communication is being addressed to you to-day, which deals with the questions of money allotment and collection of exhibits.

3. The point to be here considered is the formation of Provincial Committees. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has, it will be seen, nominated a General Committee in Calcutta of all the chief officers of the Local and Supreme Governments, and proposes to add to it the name of the head of any Provincial Committee which may be formed by the Government of Madras, as also the names of leading officials and private individuals, both European and Native, of your province. I am to request that, should there be no objection, an intimation regarding these may, as desired by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, be made directly to the Bengal Secretariat.

ORDER—Dated 19th February 1883, No. 342, Public.

His Excellency the Governor in Council resolves to appoint the gentlemen named in the margin to form a Committee to act in concert with the Central Committee at Calcutta, and to manage the collection and preparation of specimens of local products. All Collectors in the mofussil will appoint local committees at their head-quarters for the collection and despatch of natural and manufactured produce to Madras or Calcutta, and will furnish lists of members of mercantile firms and other leading residents of their districts, Native and European, whose names it may seem advisable to add to the General Committee.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2·80° lower; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 8t, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table—"Prof. papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 1 0.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, BENGAL,
The 3rd March 1883.

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the four weeks ended 25th December 1882.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, SEALDAH TERMINUS.

Dated Calcutta, the 14th February 1883.

From—W. INNES, ESQ., Traffic Superintendent, Eastern Bengal Railway Company,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway Company.

I BEG to forward the usual comparative statement of traffic for the four weeks ended the 25th December last, from which it will be seen that the gross weight carried over the railway during that period was 14,22,210 maunds, or 26 per cent. over the figures for the corresponding period of 1881.

There are considerable fluctuations under the various heads, the most important of which are—

Increases.

Cotton, manufactured ... ... 4,779 Mds

Piece-goods is now included under this head. The increase is partly attributable to a brisk demand in the mofussil bazars for home-made cloth, and partly in traffic from Dacca and Narayangunj.

Fibrous products (gunny-bags) .. .. 27,385 Mds.

Nearly the whole of this increase is on traffic from the Northern Bengal State Railway, and is attributable to the reduced rates of freight conceded by both railways, which have been in force since last July.

Jute, unscrewed ... ... 1,76,512 Mds.

Less do., screwed ... ... 28,974 „

Net increase ... 1,47,538 „

The greater part of this increase is on traffic from Northern Bengal State Railway, and is attributable to the abundant crop of last season.

Miscellaneous ... ... 71,599 Mds.

Railway material is included under this head. The increase is partly due to materials forwarded to Diamond Harbour for the Calcutta and South-Eastern State Railway extension, and partly to materials for the Bengal Central Railway.

Salt ... ... 23,245 Mds.

This traffic fluctuates from month to month. The increase of one month about counterbalances the decrease of another.

Tea ... ... 4,918 Mds.

On referring to previous statement, it will be seen that the decreases then recorded are being made up by the increases noted in the last report, and also the one under review; stocks appear to have been kept back in the hope of securing better prices.

Decreases.

Coal and Coke ... ... 8,211 Mds.

This decrease is on traffic from Chitpore to Sealdah, and is probably due to consumers endeavouring to exhaust their present stocks before taking in new supplies

Grain and pulse ... ... 11,625 Mds.

Traffic from all stations shares in the decrease which is attributable to the stocks of last season's crop having been exhausted

Tobacco ... ... 3,597 Mds.

This decrease is attributable to a dull market, and also to increased despatches in previous month.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 100.

The 19th March 1883.

THE following annual accounts and abstracts of the reports of the Road Cess Committees of the districts of Chittagong, Noakhally, Tipperah, and Chittagong Hill Tracts for the cess year 1881-82, together with the remarks thereon of the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, are published for general information.

G. F. E. S. NEILL, Major, M.S.C.,

Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. D.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Chittagong, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1881-82.

THERE were six meetings held of the District Road Committee during the year; members of the Committee shewed an interest in their work, and their attendance was satisfactory.

A Branch Committee at Cox's Bazar sub-division, with control over the local roads, was formed from the beginning of the year under report, but the works of the sub-division were managed under the direct control of the District Road Committee as there was no separate allotment made for the Branch Committee during the year.

A sum of Rs. 10,000 was allotted for village roads, of which Rs. 7,000 were spent in improving the various local communications in the several thanas of the sudder sub-division, and the remaining Rs. 3,000 made over to the Cox's Bazar sub-divisional officer for improvement of the village communications in his sub-division.

The state of the roads in the district is generally satisfactory; almost all of the existing roads in the district run north and south, and the district is in great need of cross-communications to connect these lines. Recently three cross-communications have been opened—one in the northern portion of the district from the Halda valley towards the west to the trunk road. This road will eventually be an important feeder to the new railway. Two other cross-communications are in the southern part of the district. These latter are not suitable for wheel traffic. To make them so requires a large sum of money, which the Committee are not in a position to give. Trees planted on the sides of Ramghur road have been maintained, but nothing more has been done during the year.

H. F. J. T. MAGUIRE, for Chairman, District Road Committee.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Noakhally, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1881-82.

THE realization of cess in this district has been good in the past year, being 100 per cent. in excess on the year's demand. The public are, however, very exacting, and unhesitatingly apply to have their lands improved and drained at the expense of the Road Cess Committee.

Some members of the District Committee took a real interest in their work, but unfortunately the more zealous members are those who seldom leave head-quarters and consequently they are not possessed with much local knowledge, and have to depend for the formation of an opinion on the reports and views of others.

The Branch Committee of the Fenny sub-division has been only concerned with village roads in the sub-division, and the members have shewn a praiseworthy desire to do their work.

The progress made in village roads in the district is not great, as it is difficult to find such roads, those that are so represented by the people being in fact more private than village roads.

A good deal has been done in improving the inland communications of the district, and a considerable sum spent in constructing and temporarily bridging new roads in the islands of Hatiya and Sundeep and a new road from Fenny to Chagulnaya. The earthwork of a new road to Senbag was completed and a commencement made of a new road from Fenny to Parasuram. Of the two great projects that were proposed, that of excavating the Noakhaily khall has been abandoned owing to the contemplated railway from Daudkandi to Chittagong, but it is intended to commence the bridge at Dhoom chur in the coming year. A considerable amount of work was carried out in widening and repairing existing ones.

Trees were planted on the sides of four roads at a cost of Rs. 297-4. These trees, which are generally fruit-bearing, are thriving well.

The different establishments under the Road Committee have given entire satisfaction.

No. 6.—Part I.

RAM LAL SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

Abstract of a Report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Tipperah, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1881-82.

TEN meetings of the District Road Cess Committee were held during the year, of which nine were special and one was an ordinary meeting. The attendance of the members of the Road Committee, and of the Muradnagar and Chowdagram Branch Committees was fair, but that of the members of the Brahmunbariah and Chandpore Branch Committees was not better than it was last year.

The chief original works taken in hand during the year were—

(1) The Duttpore bridge, on the Laksham road, which was completely finished.
(2) The bridging, widening, and realignment of the road from Modafagunj to Hajigunj, which was almost finished.
(3) The bridging of the Brahmunbariah road, which was completed as far as Ranta Hat, and partially completed between that place and the Jitas river.

There were several other works in progress, which the Committee are anxious to finish before taking up any new projects. Any future projects will have to be considered in relation to the projected railway through the district.

Owing to want of funds the various Branch Committees have not been able to undertake many new works on village roads, but they have kept the existing village roads in repair to the best of their ability. The total expenditure on these roads during the year amounted to Rs. 8,664.

The planting of new trees has not made any progress during the year. Most of the young trees planted during the previous year died, or were destroyed by cattle, consequent on the lack of supervision on the part of the District Engineer. The efforts of the Committee were therefore necessarily confined to replacing dead trees and concentrating supervision on living ones.

Repairs were executed to all the roads in the district, and the important lines of communication kept open for foot passengers during the rains by means of temporary bamboo bridges.

With the exception of the District Engineer (who resigned his post at the close of the year) the different establishments under the Road Committee are reported to have worked satisfactorily.

L. R. FORBES,

Deputy Commissioner.

No. 90GM, dated Chittagong, the 1st February 1883.

From—E. E. LOWIS, Esq., Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following annual report on the administration of the district road funds in the districts of the Chittagong Division for the cess year ending 30th September 1882, and to enclose the district reports and accounts in original, together with a general abstract of the accounts for the whole division.

2. An abstract of particulars regarding the meetings of the District Road and Branch Committees in the regulation districts of the Chittagong Division during the year under report is also enclosed.

3. The provisions of the Road Cess Act have not been in force in the Hill Tracts of Chittagong. There is no Committee for the management of its road fund, the administration of which solely rests with the Deputy Commissioner.

4. The Committee in Chittagong consisted of five official and ten non-official members, and the average attendance was 8·16. From the commencement of the year under report a Branch Committee was formed at the Cox's Bazar sub-division, but the particulars of meetings of this Committee have not been given by the Chairman of the District Road Committee.

5. The Committee in Noakholly consisted of five official and twelve non-official members, and the average attendance was 7·26. There is a Branch Committee at Fenny sub-division consisting of two official and seven non-official members, the average attendance being 6.

6. The Committee in Tipperah consisted of six official and thirteen non-official members, and the average attendance was 8·5. There are four Branch Committees in this district, viz. Brahmunberiah, Chandpore, Moradnaggur, and Chowdagram. The average attendance of members at these Committees was 6·6, 9, 10·7, and 9·2 respectively.

7. The attendance of members of all the District and Branch Committees was fair, as in the previous year, except in the case of the Brahmunbariah and Chandpore Branch Committees. The members of all the Committees are reported to have taken interest in their work.

8. The total receipt of the division during the year under report on account of the district road fund amounted to Rs. 2,90,829-11-5¾. This, together with the unexpended balance of the previous year, including the entries under the heads advances and deposits gave a total income of Rs. 5,09,085-14-7 available for expenditure during the cess year under report. Out of this sum Rs. 3,88,802-3 were actually expended, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,20,283-11-7 remaining at the close of the year. The total disbursement, including advances and deposits, amounted to Rs. 4,24,739-6-5.

9. In Chittagong the total disbursement exceeds the total receipts by Rs. 2 657-9-4 in consequence of there being an excess expenditure on account of printing forms and repairing roads. In this district the amount expended on account of repairing roads was the heaviest as in preceding year, while in Noakholly and Tipperah larger amounts were spent on account of original works.

10. In Chittagong and Tipperah nothing has been done during the cess year under review towards the planting of trees on road sides, while in Noakholly fair progress has been made in this direction at a total cost of Rs. 297-4.

11. Village roads—In Chittagong Rs. 10,000 was spent during the cess year under report in improving the various village communications, and in Tipperah Rs. 8,664-7 were spent on same account, while in Noakholly this branch of their duties does not seem to have had the attention of the Committee. It is true that in this district the village communications are mostly mere foot-paths, but still something might be done to improve them.

Divisional Annual Account of Income and Expenditure on account of the District Roads and Ferry Fund of the Chittagong Division for the cess year ending 30th September 1882.

.....	1298	Dehee Punchannogram, Division IV, Subdivision B, Holding No. 27A.	B. C. CH. 0 3 13	Rs. A. P. 0 4 0 only	Rs. 50 per cotta	The land was sold under Act XI of 1859 on default of former tenant to pay rent for 1284 B.S., and purchased by Foyzullabhoy. A compromise was then effected by Government with the auction-purchaser, who received on 1st October 1880 Rs. 3,500, a full discharge of all his claims to the land. Although no formal conveyance has been executed by him in favour of Government, such right as has accrued to Government by the above compromise is to be sold. The sale of this holding has been sanctioned by Government in its letter No. 374 I—R, dated 2nd September 1882.

C. C. STEVENS, Collector.

(2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Local extent.

(3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the Town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to the Division of Orissa.

Repeal.

2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedule I hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation.

(2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division, or, where a part only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that part, shall be repealed in that Division.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

Construction of Act.

3. The following definitions and rules shall apply in the construction of this Act unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context:—

(1) "Estate" means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands, prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Collector of a district: [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.]

(2) "Proprietor" means a person or a number of persons owning an estate: [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.]

(3) "Tenure" includes an under-tenure and the interest of every tenant of the class referred to in section 14.

Illustrations.

(a)—A durpatni or sipatni interest or a mokurrerree holding is a tenure.

(b)—A dar-ijarah or a farm for a term of years is a tenure.

(4) "Tenure-holder" means a person or a number of persons owning a tenure.

(5) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat, in respect of any land, or to hold that land as a raiyat, unless he holds it for the purpose of agriculture, horticulture or pasture, or he or his predecessor in interest came into possession of it for such purpose: [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3. ("raiyat" and "land.")]

Provided that a person shall be deemed to hold as a raiyat any bastu or homestead land included in the same holding with other land held by him as a raiyat.

Explanation.—A person may hold land for a purpose mentioned in this clause though he has sublet it.

(6) "Under-raiyat" means a tenant holding land whether immediately or mediately below a raiyat.

(7) "Bastu holding" means bastu or other homestead land held by a tenant having the right provided for by Chapter VII. New.

(8) "Tenant" does not include any person who is not a tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat, or the tenant of a bastu holding. New.

(9) "Landlord" means a person or a number of persons immediately under whom a tenant holds.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter I.—Preliminary. Sec. 4.) and (Chapter II.—Khamar and Raiyatí Land. Secs. 5—8.)

[D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3. See s. 230.]

(10) "Rent" means whatever is payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant.

(11) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

[D. § 101. C. B., s. 56. B. B., s. 48.]

(12) "Arrear" means an instalment, or part of an instalment, of rent which is not paid before sunset of the day on which it is payable.

(13) "Holding" means a parcel of land held by a tenant of a landlord under one lease or one set of conditions.

(14) "Agricultural year" means, where the Bengalí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Bysáck, and where the Faslí or Amlí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin.

[D. § 20 & 37. C. B., ss. 6 & 16. B. B., ss. 6 & 15.]

(15) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Bihár and Orissa made in the year 1793.

(16) "Transfer" includes sale, whether voluntary or in execution of a decree, and mortgage and gift.

(17) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession.

[B. B., s. 3.]

(18) "Bihár" means all the districts of the Patna Division, and such district or parts of districts of the Bhágalpur Division as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare to be included in Bihár for the purposes of this Act.

[C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.]

(19) "Signed" includes "marked" when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to.

(20) "Prescribed" means prescribed by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette.

(21) "Collector" means the Collector of a District or any other officer appointed by the Local Government to discharge the functions of a Collector under this Act.

(22) "Revenue-officer" in any provision of this Act means such officer as the Local Government may appoint to discharge the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

[D. § 2. C. B., s. 4. Report of Rent Commission, § 3. B. B., s. 4.]

Saving of custom, special law, &c.

4. Nothing in this Act shall affect—

(a) any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions;

(b) the powers and duties of Settlement-officers as defined by any law not expressly repealed by this Act;

(c) any enactment regulating the procedure for the realization of rents in estates belonging to the Government, or under the management of the Court of Wards or of the revenue-authorities;

(d) any enactment relating to the avoidance of tenancies by a sale for arrears of the Government revenue;

(e) any enactment relating to the partition of out revenue-paying estates;

(f) any other special or local law not repealed either expressly or by necessary implication by this Act or;

(g) any incident of a ghátwálí or other service tenure.

Illustration.

The custom that an under-raiyat should, under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be affected by this Act. [C. B., s. 4, Expl. 4 (f). B. B., s. 4, Expl. 4 (e), proviso.]

CHAPTER II.

OF THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN KHAMAR AND RAIYATÍ LAND.

Khamar land defined.

5. "Khamar land" means—

1st, land situated elsewhere than in Bihár which a proprietor has held, whether under the name of khamar, nij-jote, ser or otherwise, as his private land for twelve continuous years before the commencement of this Act, and [C. B., s. 81. B. B., ss. 3, 75.]

2nd, land situate in Bihár which—

(a) is recognized as zeraat by a village custom established before the commencement of this Act: or

(b) is proved to have been held by a proprietor as zeraat for twelve continuous years immediately before the commencement of this Act.

All other land to be raiyatí.

6. All land which is not khamar land of some estate shall be deemed to be raiyatí land, and all land shall be presumed to be raiyatí land until the contrary is proved. [B. B., ss. 19 & 75.]

Power to order survey and register of khamar lands.

7. The Local Government may direct that a survey and register shall be made of all khamar land situate in any district or part of a district. [B. B., s.

Mode of making survey.

8. The survey shall be made by the Collector or by an officer authorized by the Collector in that behalf, under such rules as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government for the conduct of such surveys; and the Collector or such officer may exercise any of the powers conferred upon a Collector by the Bengal Survey Act of 1875, except the powers in Part IV of the said Act relating to the apportionment and recovery of expenses. [B. B., s. V. (B. C. of 1875)

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

[B., s. 78.] Publication of register.

9. The Collector shall make a register, in such form as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, of such lands in each village as he may ascertain to be khamar lands within the meaning of the definition contained in section five; and copies of that register shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

[B., s. 79.] Appeals.

10. (1) Any person dissatisfied with any entry in the register may appeal to the Commissioner within one month after the publication; and the Commissioner shall make such enquiry as he considers necessary, and may direct the register to be amended in such manner as he thinks fit.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Board of Revenue from any order passed by the Commissioner under this section, if preferred within one month from the date of the order.

[B., s. 80.] Submission of register to Board of Revenue and Local Government.

11. If no appeal is preferred to the Commissioner, or after such appeals as have been so preferred have been disposed of, the Commissioner shall submit to the Board of Revenue a copy of the register, with a report showing how the survey and register have been made; and, if the Board are satisfied that the register is correct, they shall transmit the same to the Local Government for its approval.

[B., s. 81.] Approval of register.

12. If the Local Government approves the register, it may direct that its approval of the same be notified in the official Gazette: Provided that its approval shall not in any case be given until after three months from the date of the publication under section nine.

[B., s. 82.] Consequence of notification of approval.

13. When the approval of a register by the Local Government has been notified under section twelve, all land entered in the register shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, be deemed to be khamar land, and all other land situate in the local area for which the register has been prepared shall, notwithstanding anything as aforesaid, be deemed to be raiyatí land.

CHAPTER III.—OF TENURE-HOLDERS GENERALLY.

A.—Of the Right to hold at fixed rents.

[§§ 20 & B., ss. 6 & B., ss. 6 & 7] Land held at rent unchanged since Permanent Settlement not liable to enhancement.

14. Where land has been held by a tenant and his predecessors in interest at a rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, then, subject to the provisions of this Act, the rent shall not be liable to enhancement, and the tenant shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder for the purposes of this Act.

[D. §§ 21 & 38. C. B., ss. 6 & 17. B. B., ss. 6 & 16.] Presumption from twenty years' holding at unchanged rent.

15. Where land has been held by a tenant and his predecessors in interest at a rent which has not been changed for twenty years, then, subject to the provisions of this Act, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that it has been held by them at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

[D. §. 38. C. B., s. 16, Expl. I. B. B., s. 15, Expl. I.] Application of sections 14 and 15 when rent is paid in kind.

16. When a tenant has paid as rent a fixed share or the value of a fixed share of the produce of the land, the rent shall not be deemed to have been changed within the meaning of sections fourteen and fifteen merely by reason of the amount paid having varied from year to year, or by reason of the rent having been commuted to a fixed money-rent.

[D. §. 37. C. B., s. 16, Expl. II. B. B., s. 15, Expl. II.] Effect of separation or amalgamation of holding.

17. The operation of the foregoing sections of this chapter shall not be affected by the fact of land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

[D. s. 19. C. B., s. 7. B. B., s. 7.] Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

18. (1) Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof —

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by the special custom of the district, or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

(2) A reduction of rent granted to a tenure-holder, on account of diluvion or for land taken under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force for the acquisition of land for public purposes or companies, shall not be deemed a reduction within the meaning of this section.

[D. §. 20. C. B., s. 6. B. B., s. 6.] Saving as to land held under terminable agreement.

19. Nothing in the foregoing sections of this chapter shall apply to land held under a terminable agreement.

[C. B., ss. 6, Excep, & 17, Exception B. B., ss. 6, Excep., & 16. Exception.] Saving as to land held in a district not permanently settled.

20. Where the area comprised in a tenure is situate in an estate which has never been permanently settled, nothing in the foregoing sections of this chapter shall prevent the enhancement of the rent upon the expiration of a temporary settlement of the revenue, unless the right to hold beyond the term of the settlement at a fixed rate of rent has been expressly recognized in settlement-proceedings by a Revenue-authority empowered by the Government to make definitively or confirm settlements.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders generally. Secs. 21—28.)

B.—Of the enhancement of rent.

[D. § 23. C. B., ss. 9 & 12. B. B., ss. 9 & 10.]

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

21. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, the Court shall not, except as provided in sub-sections four and five, leave the tenure-holder as profit more than thirty per centum or less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting those rents.

(4) If more than half the land included in the area of the tenure was unreclaimed at the time when the tenure was created, and if the reclamation of the unreclaimed land was one of the objects of the creation of the tenure, and that land was reclaimed accordingly, the Court, in determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, shall not leave the tenure-holder as profit less than twenty per centum of the balance mentioned in sub-section three, and may leave him as profit any share of that balance whether it exceeds thirty per centum thereof or not.

(5) If, in any case to which sub-section four does not apply, the tenure-holder has made improvements on the land, the Court, in determining what is fair and equitable under sub-section two, may leave him as profit any share of the balance mentioned in sub-section three it thinks fit, provided it be not less than ten per centum of the balance.

(6) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

[C.B., s. 10(a). B.B., s. 11(a).]

Enhanced rent not to be more than double the previous rent.

22. Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, the enhanced rent fixed under section 21 shall not be more than double the rent previously payable.

[C.B., s. 10(a). B.B., s. 11 (b).]

Power to order gradual enhancement.

23. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

[C.B., s. 10(b). B. B., s. 11(c).]

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for ten years.

24. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced under section 21 or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced under that section during the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

C.—Of the Incidents of permanent tenures.

[C. B., s. 18. B. B., ss. 12 17.]

Incidents of permanent tenures generally.

25. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act in respect of registration, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

26. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except under a decree of a Civil Court passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

D.—Of the registration of transfers of, and succession to, permanent tenures.

[D. § 25. C. B., s. 46. B. B., s. 37.]

Landlord bound to register voluntary transfer or succession on application.

27. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by a summary sale under Chapter IV) or a succession to such a tenure takes place, the landlord shall, subject, in the case of a patní tenure, to the provisions of section 39, register the same on application made to him by the transferor and transferee, or by the person succeeding, as the case may be, and on payment by the applicant of the fee next hereinafter prescribed.

[D. § 27. C. B., ss. 47, 49. B. B., ss. 39, 41.]

(a) When the application is made not more than six months from the date of the transfer or succession, a fee of two per centum upon the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees.

(b) When the application is made more than six months from the date of the transfer or succession, a fee of twenty per centum upon the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than ten rupees or more than one thousand rupees.

(3) When a landlord refuses to comply with an application for registration, made as required by sub-section one, he shall deliver to the applicant a statement in writing of the reasons for his refusal.

Application may be served through Revenue-officer.

28. (1) An application for the registration of a transfer of or a succession to a tenure may, instead of being made to the landlord under section 27, be made to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf; and, on its being so made, and on the fee payable under section 27 being paid to the officer, he shall cause a notice to be served

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders generally. Secs. 29—35.)

on the landlord, requiring him to register the transfer or succession, and informing him that the fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected.

(2) A landlord on whom a notice is served under this section shall, subject in the case of a patní tenure to the provisions of section 39, be bound to comply forthwith with the requisition therein contained.

C.B., ss. 47, 8 (c). B., ss 39, 0 (c).]

Registration in case of transfer by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

29. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 314 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay into Court the registration fee prescribed by section 27, clause (a), and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed by the rules under section 35.

IV of 1882.

(2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall forthwith cause to be served on the landlord a notice of the sale, requiring him to register the same, and informing him that the registration-fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected; and the landlord shall be bound to comply with the requisition forthwith.

Registration in case of transfer by sale in execution of decree for rent or by summary sale.

30. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, or by summary sale under Chapter IV, the landlord shall be bound to register the transfer without any application or requisition being made to him in this behalf, and without the payment of any fee.

D. § 10. . B., ss. 46, 8 (a), 49. B., ss. 37, (a) and 41.]

Effect of omission to register voluntary transfer.

31. When a transfer of a permanent tenure (not being a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under Chapter IV) has taken place, the landlord may, until the transfer has been registered under section 27, or a Revenue-officer has ordered a notice to be served under section 28, hold the transferor and transferee jointly and severally liable for arrears of rent accruing subsequent to the transfer.

C. B., s. 52. B. B., s. 44.]

Application to Court to compel landlord to register.

32. (1) When a landlord refuses or neglects for a period of one month to register a transfer or succession which he is bound to register under the foregoing sections, the transferor or transferee, or, as the case may be, the person succeeding, may apply to any Civil Court having jurisdiction in the local area within which the land is situate to compel such registration.

(2) The Court to which an application is made under sub-section one may issue a notice to the landlord, and, when the application is made by one party to a transfer, also to the other party or parties to the transfer, requiring him or them, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place therein specified, why the transfer or succession should not be registered.

(3) If no cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may make an order directing the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and the order so made shall have the force of a decree in a suit.

Application by landlord to compel registration.

33. (1) When a transfer (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under Chapter IV) or a succession, registrable under the foregoing sections, has taken place, and no application is made for its registration within the six months following the date on which it has taken place, the landlord may apply to any Civil Court as aforesaid to compel the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to consent to its registration and pay the fee mentioned in section 27, clause (b). [C. B., ss. 50 and 51. B. B., ss. 42 and 43.]

(2) The Court to which an application is made under sub-section one may issue a notice calling upon the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place specified in the notice, why they or he should not consent to the registration and pay the fee.

(3) If no cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may make an order authorising the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and directing the transferee, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee; and the order so made shall have the force of a decree in a suit.

Landlord to give copies of entries in the register.

34. When a transfer of, or a succession to, a tenure has been registered under the foregoing sections, every person to or from whom the tenure or any share thereof is transferred, or (as the case may be) every person succeeding to the tenure, shall be entitled to receive free of charge from the landlord on demand a copy of the entry in the register relating to the tenure, certified under his hand as a true copy, and to receive from time to time in like manner as many additional copies as he may demand: provided that for every such additional copy he shall pay to the landlord such fee, not less than eight annas or more than five rupees, as the Board of Revenue may from time to time fix in this behalf. [C. B., s. 54. B. B., s. 46.]

Power to make rules regarding registration.

35. (1) The Board of Revenue may from time to time, by rules consistent with this Act and published in the official Gazette, prescribe forms for the registers to be maintained under the foregoing sections, and determine the mode in which, and the place at which, applications are to be made under section 27, and generally the procedure to be followed in regard to registration. [C. B., s. 54. B. B., s. 46.]

Bengal Tenancy Bill.
(Chapter IV.—Patní Tenures. Secs. 36—42,) and (Chapter V.—Of Occupancy Raiyats generally.—Secs. 43—45.)

(2) In making any rule under sub-section one the Board may provide that any breach thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

CHAPTER IV.

OF PATNÍ TENURES.

[D. § 26. C. B., ss. 14 & 15. B. B., ss. 13 & 14.]

Definition of patní tenure.

36. "Patní tenure" means a tenure of the kind described in Schedule II annexed to this Act, and includes the darpatní and other similar under-tenures referred to in that schedule.

[D. § 26. C. B., s. 14. B.B., s. 13.]

Incidents of patní tenures.

37. (1) Every patní tenure shall be deemed to be a permanent tenure.

(2) The holder of a patní tenure may, subject to the provisions of this Act, let the land comprised in his tenure or any part thereof.

[D. § 27. C. B., s. 53 (a). B. B., s. 45 (a).]

Right of landlord of patní tenure to demand security from transferee.

38. When a patní tenure is transferred, whether voluntarily or by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, the landlord may require the transferee to furnish substantial security, to the amount of one half year's rent of the tenure, for the payment of the rent and the fulfilment of the other conditions of the tenure.

[D. § 28. C. B., s. 53 (a). B. B., s. 45 (a).]

Landlord may refuse registration of voluntary transfer when security is not given.

39. When a patní tenure is transferred otherwise than by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, the landlord may refuse to register the transfer under Chapter III of this Act until the security required under section 38 is furnished.

[D. § 29. C. B., s. 53 (b). B. B., s. 45 (b).]

Landlord may attach tenure sold in execution or by summary sale when security is not given.

40. (1) In the case of a transfer by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under section 42, if security is demanded by the landlord from the purchaser under section 38, and is not furnished within one month from the date on which it is so demanded, the landlord may attach and hold possession of the tenure to the exclusion of the transferee until the security is furnished.

(2) While an attachment under this section continues, the landlord may collect the rents from the undertenure-holders or raiyats, and, after deducting therefrom the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection and the rent due to himself, he shall hold the balance in trust for the purchaser.

(3) If the rents so collected are not sufficient to discharge the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection, and the rent due to the landlord, the purchaser shall be liable for the deficiency, and the landlord may proceed against him for the recovery of the same.

[D. § 28. C. B., s. 53 (b) B. B., s. 45 (c)]

Application to Civil Court, if security tendered is refused.

41. (1) If the security tendered under section 38 by any transferee is rejected by the landlord, the transferee may, within three months from the date of the rejection, apply to the Civil Court for an order directing the landlord to receive the security, and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the security tendered, may make such order, or, if not so satisfied, may make an order rejecting the application.

(2) No appeal shall lie from any order under this section.

[D. § 135. C. B., s. 133 B. B., s. 14

Recovery of arrears by summary sale.

42. If default is made in payment of the rent due in respect of a patní tenure, held immediately from a proprietor, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy given him by law, apply for the summary sale of the tenure in accordance with the rules for the sale of patní taluqs at the instance of zamíndárs, contained in Schedule III annexed to this Act:

Provided that nothing in those rules shall entitle a purchaser at any such sale to eject an occupancy-raiyat or cancel any contract entitling him to hold at a rent which was fair and equitable at the time the contract was made.

CHAPTER V.—OF OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS GENERALLY.

[B. B., s. 1 Expl. II.]

Interpretation.

43. For the purposes of this chapter—

(a) "village" means an area included in a village-map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, and, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as the Local Government or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine; and

(b) where two or more estates have been created by one or more partitions taking place since the first day of January, 1853, the area comprised in the parent estate of which they would have formed part if no such partition had taken place, shall be deemed to be a single estate.

[B. B., s. 19 (1), & Exp IV (e), prov so.]

Present occupancy-raiyats to become occupancy-raiyats under Act.

44. Every raiyat who, immediately before the commencement of this Act, has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom having the force of law, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land shall, when this Act comes into force, become, for the purposes of this Act, an occupancy-raiyat of that land.

Acquisition of status of settled raiyat of village or estate.

45. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held, as a raiyat, raiyatí land situate in any village or estate, shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, and though the land so held by him at different times during that period may have been different, be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Of Occupancy Raiyats generally. Secs. 46—52)

(2) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have held as a raiyat any raiyatí land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(3) Raiyatí land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have been held as a raiyatí holding also by each such co-sharer.

Loss of status of settled raiyat.

46. If a settled raiyat of a village or estate has ceased for a period of one year, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, to hold raiyatí land as a raiyat in that village or estate, either alone or as a co-sharer with others, he shall be deemed to have ceased, on the expiration of that period, to be a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Settled raiyat to have occupancy-right in raiyatí land held by him in village or estate.

47. Every settled raiyat of a village or estate holding after the second day of March, 1883, as a raiyat any raiyatí land comprised in that village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to acquire or have acquired in that land a right of occupancy under the law for the time being in force:

[D. § 40, Expls. I & V. C. B., s. 19, Expl. IV. B. B., s. 19, Expl. IV (d).]

Provided that a person shall not acquire a right of occupancy under this section in respect of any land held by him alone as owner, tenure-holder or ijáradár.

Acquisition of occupancy-right by grant.

48. (1) A proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, from whom a person takes land as a raiyat, or immediately under whom a person holds land as a raiyat, may grant to that person an occupancy-right in respect of that land.

(2) An occupancy-right granted under this section shall be deemed to be an occupancy-right within the meaning of this Act.

[D. § 40, Expl. V. C. B., s. 19, Expl. 3 (d), Expl. (4) (g) B. B., s. 19, Expl. III (b), Expl. IV (f).]

Acquisition of occupancy-right in khamar land.

49. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years ending after the commencement of this Act, has held khamar land as a raiyat shall, unless he has held it for any portion of that period under a lease for a fixed period, acquire a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The holding of the father or other person from whom a raiyat inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the raiyat for the purposes of this section.

Incidents of occupancy-right generally.

50. When a raiyat has an occupancy-right in respect of any land, the following provisions shall, notwithstanding any contract between him and his landlord to the contrary, apply, namely:—

[B., s. 69.]

(a) he may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy:

[B., s. 77. B., s. 69.]

(b) he may make improvements on the land as by this Act provided:

(c) he shall pay rent at fair and equitable rates determined as by this Act provided: [D. § 42. B. B., s. 21. (d).]

(d) he shall not be ejected by his landlord from the land, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected: [C. B., s. 20 (e). B. B., ss. 21 (e), 31, 69 (a).]

(e) he may sub-let the land or any part thereof: [D. § 40, note 7. B. B., s. 71.]

(f) his interest in the land shall, subject to the rights reserved to the landlord by this Act, be capable of being transferred, and bequeathed by will in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property: [C. B., s. 20 (a), (b) and (d). B. B., s. 21 (a) and (b).]

(g) his interest in the land shall, if he dies intestate in respect of it, descend in the same manner as any other immoveable property: provided that, in any case in which, under the law of inheritance to which he is subject, his other property goes to the Crown, his interest in the land shall go to his landlord. [D. § 41, note 9. C. B., s. 20 (e). B. B., s. 21 (c).]

Landlord's right of pre-emption on voluntary sale of occupancy-right.

51. (1) When an occupancy-raiyat intends to sell his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord, he shall file in the office of the Collector, or of the officer in charge of the sub-division, for service on the landlord, a written notice of his intention, stating the person to whom he intends to sell the right, and shall defer proceeding with the sale for one month from the date on which he files the notice.

(2) The officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord.

(3) The landlord may, within the period of one month from the date of the notice being filed, claim to purchase the occupancy-right from the raiyat at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of one month; and, if the landlord so claims, the raiyat shall sell the right to him accordingly.

(4) If a raiyat sells his right of occupancy in contravention of this section, the landlord may, within six months from the date of the sale, claim to purchase the right from the purchaser or any other person into whose hands it may have passed at a price ten per centum below its estimated value, and, if the landlord so claims, the purchaser or that person, as the case may be, shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on sale in execution.

52. Where an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, and two or more persons, one of whom is the landlord, respectively ad- [Act XIV of 1882, s. 310.]

vance the same sum at any bidding, the bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the landlord.

Landlord's right to take the place of mortgagee on foreclosure.

53. (1) Where a right of occupancy has been mortgaged by the raiyat and an order absolute for foreclosure is applied for in respect of it under section 87 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Court shall, if it proposes to make the order, cause a notice of the application to be served on the landlord, and shall defer making the order for a period of one month from the service of the notice.

IV of 1882.

(2) If the landlord within the said period of one month pays into Court the amount requisite to redeem the mortgage, the Court shall pay that amount to the plaintiff in the suit, declare the landlord entitled to stand in the place of the plaintiff, and pass an order absolute for foreclosure in favour of the landlord.

(3) An order absolute passed under sub-section two shall have the same effect as if the landlord had been the mortgagee and the plaintiff in the suit.

Landlord's right to purchase in case of gift of occupancy-right.

54. (1) When an occupancy-raiyat makes a gift of his occupancy-right to any person other than his landlord, he shall forthwith file in the office of the Collector, or of the officer in charge of the sub-division, for service on the landlord, a written notice of the gift, stating the person to whom he has made it.

(2) The officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord.

(3) The landlord may, within the period of one month from the date on which the notice is filed, claim to purchase the right from the donee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of one month, and, if the landlord so claims, the donee or other person as aforesaid shall sell the right to him accordingly.

(4) If a raiyat makes a gift of his occupancy-right, and does not comply with the provisions of this section, the landlord may, within six months from the date on which the gift is made, claim to purchase the right from the donee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at a price ten per centum below its estimated value; and, if the landlord so claims, the donee or that person, as the case may be, shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Landlord's right to purchase where occupancy-right is bequeathed.

55. When an occupancy-raiyat dies, and any person, other than a person to whom, if the raiyat had died intestate, the occupancy-right would have descended, acquires that right under a bequest made by the raiyat, the landlord may, within the period of six months from the date on which the right is so acquired, claim to purchase the right from the legatee, or any other person into whose hands it may have passed, at such price as may be agreed upon between them, or, if they cannot agree upon a price, at such price as the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, made within the said period of six months, fix in this behalf, and if the landlord so claims the legatee or other person as aforesaid shall sell the right to him accordingly.

Raiyat of land of which landlord has acquired occupancy-right to be an occupancy-raiyat.

56. Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, when the landlord of an occupancy-raiyat acquires, under the foregoing sections or otherwise, the occupancy-right in any of the land comprised in the holding, any person thereafter holding the land as a raiyat shall have a right of occupancy in respect of it, and, if immediately before the acquisition of the right by the landlord the rent of the land was a money-rent, shall be entitled to hold at a money-rent fixed in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Acquisition of status of settled raiyat by succeeding to occupancy-right.

57. Every person succeeding by way of intestate succession to the occupancy-rights, or any share of the occupancy-rights, of a settled raiyat of a village or estate, in respect of any land situate in that village or estate, shall become a settled raiyat of the village or estate:

Provided that, when a person so succeeding holds as a raiyat at the time when he so succeeds other land in the same village or estate, he shall not, merely by reason of becoming a settled raiyat of the village or estate under this section, acquire, under section 47, an occupancy-right in that other land.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE RENT PAYABLE BY OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

(A).—Of money-rents generally.

Existing money-rents payable until altered as herein provided.

58. A money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable, and shall continue to be paid by him until it is enhanced under this Act or reduced. [D. § 42. R. B., s. 21 (d).]

Enhancement of money-rents by contract.

59. (1) A money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by a contract in writing approved of, and registered by, a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) A Revenue-officer shall not, under this section, approve or register any contract by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than six annas per rupee greater than that previously payable, or more than one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time, or any contract, until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that the raiyat in entering into it acts as a free agent.

[B. B., s. 21 ...] 60. Except as provided by section 59, or on account of an addition to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, a money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced otherwise than by a decree passed under this chapter.

Money-rents not enhanceable except as provided.

61. (1) When raiyati land which has previously been held by a tenant at a money-rent is let to a settled raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, that raiyat shall not be bound to pay therefor any rent higher than that which was paid by the previous tenant, unless the higher rent has been fixed by a contract in writing, approved of and registered by a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

Limit of money rent payable by settled raiyat taking new holding.

(2) A Revenue-officer shall not under this section approve of or register any contract by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time, or any contract, until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that the raiyat in entering into it acts as a free agent.

B.—Of the preparation of a table of rates and produce, and of suits to enhance money rents where such a table is in force.

B. B., ss. 131 & 132.] 62. The Local Government may, by an order in the official Gazette, direct a Revenue-officer to prepare for any local area, with the aid of such assessors as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, a table showing for each class of land comprised in that area the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats, the average gross produce of the land and the average value of that produce.

Power to direct preparation of table.

Contents of table. 63. The table shall specify—

[B. B., s. 133.]

(a) the several classes of land for which, having regard to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, it is necessary to fix different rates of rent;

(b) the rate, or the maximum and minimum rates, of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats holding land of each such class; and

(c) the estimated average amount, or the maximum and minimum estimated average amounts, of the gross produce in staple crops of land of each such class, and the estimated average value or values of that produce.

Principle on which rent-rates are to be fixed.

64. In fixing the rate of rent for any class of land under section 63 regard shall be had— [B. B., s. 133.]

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time the table is prepared;

(b) to the value of the average annual gross produce of land of that class and the cost of raising such produce about the time at which those rates were fixed, or, if that time or the value and cost about that time cannot readily be ascertained, to the value of the average annual gross produce and the cost of raising such produce about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for the purpose of comparison;

(c) to the value of the average annual gross produce of land of that class and the cost of raising such produce at the time at which the table is prepared; and

(d) to the following rule, namely, that when the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the value of the average gross produce of land of that class, the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased value of the produce bears to the former value: [C. B., s. 23, (b). B. B., s. 24, (b).]

Provided that the rate fixed for any class of land shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce in staple crops of land of that class, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time. [C. B., s. 23, (c). B. B., s. 24, (c).]

65. When the Revenue-officer has prepared the table, he shall publish it in the local area to which it relates in the vernacular language prevailing in that local area, in such manner as the Board of Revenue may from time to time prescribe. [B. B., s. 137.]

Local publication of the table.

66. Any person objecting to any entry in the table may present a petition to the Revenue-officer within a period of one month after the publication; and the Revenue-officer, with the aid of the assessors, shall consider any such objection, and may alter or amend the table. [B. B., s. 138.]

Revenue-officer to deal with objections.

67. If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after those objections have been disposed of, the Revenue-officer shall submit the table, together with his proceedings, a report setting forth the grounds of his decision on each point, and any petitions of objection which may have been [B. B., s. 139.]

Table to be submitted to superior Revenue-authorities.

received, through the Commissioner of the Division, to the Board of Revenue for approval.

[B. B., s. 140.] 68. The Board of Revenue may amend the table submitted under section 67 in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently made, or may return the case for further enquiry.

Proceedings of Board of Revenue thereupon.

[B. B., s. 141.] 69. When a table of rates has been sanctioned by the Board, it shall be submitted to the Local Government, which may amend the same in any manner it thinks fit, and may direct, if it thinks fit, that the table or amended table shall be published in the official Gazette with a specification of the local area to which it applies.

Publication of table after final sanction.

[B. B., s. 143.] 70. A table for any local area published under section 69 shall come into force on the date on which it is so published, and shall continue in force for such period, not less than ten or more than thirty years, as the Local Government at the time of publication may direct.

Period for which table remains in force.

Table to be conclusive evidence.

(1) that the proceedings for the preparation of the table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act:

(2) that, except as in this Act provided, the rates shown in the table for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies:

(3) that the average gross produce of land of any class, and the average value thereof, are in accordance with the gross produce and the value specified in regard to that class in the table.

72. All expenses incurred by the Government in preparing a table of rates and produce for any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in its preparation, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in its preparation in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by occupancy-raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as the Local Government may from time to time determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

Expenses incurred in preparing table how defrayed.

[B. B., s. 144.] 73. When a table is in force under the foregoing sections for any local area, the landlord of any holding within that area, held by an occupancy-raiyat at a money rent, may, subject to the provisions of section 78, institute a suit to enhance the rent then payable on the ground that it is below that which would be payable at the rates shown in the table; and the Court shall enhance the rent in accordance with the rates shown in the table, or, where for any class of land a maximum and a minimum rate are entered in the table, to such rate, not higher than the maximum and not lower than the minimum, as it thinks fit: Provided that—

Suit to enhance where table is in force.

1st.—Where the rent of any land comprised in the holding would, by reason of a change having taken place in or in regard to the land since the raiyat or his predecessor in interest began to hold it, be fixed under this section at a higher rate, and would, but for that change, have been fixed under this section at a lower rate, the following rules shall apply, namely:—

(a) if the change has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of that land at the lower rate; [D. § 43. C. B., s. 22, cls. (3) and (4). B. B., s. 23, cls. (3) & (4).]

(b) if the change has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at such rate intermediate between the higher rate and the lower rate as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks fair and equitable; and

(c) if it is not proved that the change has been effected by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at a rate equal to the lower rate, together with half the difference between the higher rate and the lower rate. [C. B., s. 23, cl. (a). B. B., s. 24 (a).]

2ndly.—When the raiyat proves that by contract or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than the rate applicable under this section, the Court shall fix the rent at the lower rate. [B. B., ss. 24 (e), 142, proviso.]

Illustrations.

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

when the land is irrigated from a well ... Rs. 4 per acre.
when the land is not so irrigated ... Rs. 2 „

The holdings of A, B, C and D, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on these holdings respectively.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VI.—Rent payable by Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 74—76.)

The well on A's holding is an ancient one existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs. 2 per acre, and that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

when such land is irrigated from a branch of a river ... ... Rs. 4 per acre, when such land is not so irrigated ... Rs. 2 per acre.

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs. 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

C.—Of suits to enhance money rents where a table of rates and produce is not in force.

[B. § 43 (1) and (2). C. B., s. 22 (1), (3) and (4). B. B., s. 23 (1), (3) and (4).]

Grounds on which landlord may sue to enhance where table is not in force.

74. (1) The landlord of a holding held at a money rent by an occupancy-raiyat and situate in a local area for which a table of rates and produce, prepared under the foregoing sections, is not in force, may, subject to the provisions of section 78, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, namely:—

(1) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity;

(2) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat, as compared with those powers at the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the productive powers at that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the productive powers at any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have increased otherwise than by the sole agency or at the sole expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest and from causes not merely temporary or casual; and

(3) that the average prices of produce in the locality, or at the usual markets, as compared with similar prices about the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the prices prevailing about that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the similar prices about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have increased otherwise than by the sole agency or at the sole expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, and from causes not merely temporary or casual.

Illustrations of Ground (1).

(a.) A's paternal grandfather seventy years ago reclaimed the land which A, an occupancy-raiyat, now holds, and which came to him by inheritance from such paternal grandfather. B is an occupancy-raiyat who holds land which was in a culturable state when B was first let into possession thereof. There is evidence that the hereditary descendant of a raiyat who, being the first settler, reclaimed the land has a special privilege. A and B are not raiyats of the same class.

(b.) A is in possession of a holding which has descended to him from his great-grandfather, who held it at the time of the Permanent Settlement. B was let into possession of his holding twenty years ago. There is evidence that the descendants of raiyats who were in possession at the time of the Permanent Settlement customarily hold at rates less than raiyats who have come into possession at a later period. A and B are not raiyats of the same class.

Rules for enhancement under section 74.

75. All enhancements of rent on the second or third of the grounds specified in section seventy-four shall be subject to the following rules, namely:— [C. B., s. 23 (a), (b) and (c). B. B., s. 24 (a), (b) and (c).]

(a) If the increase of the productive powers of the land, or of the prices of produce, has been effected wholly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, the landlord shall be entitled to the whole benefit of the increase:

(b) If the increase has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the benefit shall be divided between the landlord and the raiyat in such shares as the Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, thinks fair and equitable:

(c) If it is not proved that the increase has taken place by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, each shall be entitled to one-half of the benefit: Provided that in any such case the enhanced rent shall not bear to the rent previously payable a higher proportion than the increased productive powers or increased prices bear (as the case may be) to the former productive powers or former prices:

D.—Rules applicable to suits to enhance money rents generally.

No enhancement beyond double the rent previously payable.

76. The rent of a holding shall not be enhanced in a suit under any of the foregoing sections of this chapter so that the enhanced rent shall be more than double the rent previously payable. [C. B., s. 23 (b). B. B., s. 24 (b).]

Power to order progressive enhancement.

77. When a Court passing a decree for enhancement under any of those sections considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent would be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

[B. B., s. 143.]

Rent enhanced or commuted not enhanceable for 10 years.

78. When the rent of an occupancy-holding has been enhanced by a decree under any of those sections or under any enactment repealed by this Act, or by contract, or has been commuted under section 82, a suit for its enhancement shall not be instituted under this chapter within the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced or commuted, except on the ground that since the rent has been so enhanced or commuted an improvement has been made by the landlord which, but for this section, would entitle him to an enhancement.

E.—Of suits for the reduction of money rents.

[D. § 47. C. B., s. 25 (2) and (3). B. B., s. 25 (2) & (3).]

Occupancy-raiyat when entitled to reduction of rent.

79. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money rent may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on either or both of the following grounds, and, except as provided by section 96, not otherwise, namely :—

(a) on the ground that the productive powers of the land, as compared with those powers at the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the productive powers at that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the productive powers at any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have decreased from some cause beyond the raiyat's control, and not merely temporary or casual;

(b) on the ground that the average prices of produce in the locality or at the usual markets, as compared with similar prices about the time when the rent was fixed, or, when that time or the prices prevailing about that time cannot readily be ascertained, with the average prices prevailing about any other time which it may appear equitable to take for purposes of comparison, have decreased from some cause beyond the raiyat's control, and not merely temporary or casual.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Special rules for pasture lands.

80. (1) Sections 62 to 79, both inclusive, shall not apply to land fit to be used, or which in accordance with local usage is used, only as pasture; but when such land is held at a money rent by an occupancy-raiyat, the landlord may, subject to any contract between the parties, institute a suit to enhance the rent on the ground—

(a) that the rate of rent payable by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, or

(b) that, having regard to the increase of rent on arable land in the vicinity since the rent payable by the raiyat was fixed, it is reasonable to enhance that rent.

(2) Where an enhancement is applied for on the ground mentioned in clause (b), the Court shall fix the rent at such rate as it thinks fair and equitable.

G.—Of rents payable in kind or varying with the crop.

[C. B., s. 2. B. B., s. 23.]

Limit to amount of rent payable in kind or varying with crop.

81. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays rent in kind, or pays as rent the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce, the following rules shall apply, namely :—

(a) notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, the landlord shall not be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which staple crops are grown, more than half the gross produce or its value, as the case may be;

(b) the landlord shall not, except under a contract in writing, be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which other crops are grown, any other description or any greater amount of rent than a sum equal to one-half of the estimated average value of the produce of that portion of the holding if staple crops were grown on it.

(2) Nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord recovering the value of any seed, labour or other assistance he may have contributed towards the production of the crop.

[C. B., s. 86. B. B., ss. 90 and 92.]

Commutation of rents.

82. (1) An occupancy-raiyat whose holding consists of raiyatí land, and who pays rent in kind, or pays as rent the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce of the holding, may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, sue to have his rent commuted into a money-rent.

(2) The money-rent shall be fixed at the discretion of the Court—

(a) according to the prevailing money-rent payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, or

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VII.—Right of Settled Raiyat in Bastu Land. Secs. 83—85.) and (Chapter VIII.—Ordinary Raiyats. Secs. 86—90.)

(b) according to the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding five years.

(3) When a money-rent is fixed under clause (b), a reasonable deduction shall be made by the Court from the average value aforesaid in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat.

H.—Supplementary provisions.

B., s. 122. B., s. 145.]

Collectors to prepare annual price-lists of staple crops.

83. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare annually lists of the market-prices at harvest-time of staple crops grown in such local areas as the Board of Revenue may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(2) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette under the signature of one of the Secretaries to the Board.

(3) Any such price-list so published shall, in any proceedings under this chapter, be conclusive evidence of the prices prevailing in the local area at harvest-time in the year to which it relates.

B., ss. 120, and 23(c). B., ss 134, and 24

Power to make rules.

84. The Board of Revenue may from time to time, subject to the approval of the Local Government and to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

(a) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of tables of rates and produce under this chapter;

(b) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of price-lists under section 83;

(c) determining what crops shall be deemed to be staple crops for the purposes of this chapter in any local area;

(d) for the guidance of Revenue-officers registering contracts under section 59 and section 61.

(e) for the guidance of Revenue-officers and Courts in estimating the average annual value of the gross produce of land for the purposes of sections 59 and 61 and section 75, clause (d).

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE RIGHT OF A SETTLED RAIYAT IN BASTU LAND.

Settled raiyat to have permanent right in bastu land.

85. (1) A person who is under Chapter V a settled raiyat of a village or estate as defined in that chapter shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, have a right permanent, heritable and capable of being transferred and bequeathed, in any bastu or other homestead land in that village or estate which is not comprised in an occupancy-holding and which is held by him as the site of, or for the purpose of erecting, a dwelling-house suitable for himself and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(2) A person having a right under sub-section one in any land in a village or estate shall not lose that right merely by reason of his ceasing to be a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

[B. B., s. 72.]

Provisions regarding ejectment.

86. (1) Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, a person having in respect of any land a right under section 85 shall not be ejected from that land except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected, and, if he is so ejected, shall be entitled to compensation for any house or offices of the description referred to in section 85 which may have been erected on the land by him or his predecessor in interest whether before or after the commencement of this Act.

(2) A Court passing a decree for the ejectment of such a person shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due to him under sub-section one and shall make the decree conditional on the payment of that amount by the decree-holder.

[C. B., s. 42. B. B., s. 33.]

Rule for enhancement.

87. When a person has in respect of any land a right under section 85, and the rent of the land has not been enhanced during the previous ten years, the landlord may, unless barred by any contract between the parties, enhance the rent, so that it may be equal to the rent paid by other tenants for land in the neighbourhood having similar advantages and used for similar purposes, or at his option so that it may be equal to five per centum of the market-value of the land.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF ORDINARY RAIYATS.

Ordinary raiyat defined.

88. Every person holding raiyatí land as a raiyat and not having a right of occupancy in respect of it shall be deemed to hold it as an ordinary raiyat.

Rents regulated by agreement.

89. An ordinary raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of section 119, pay such rent as may, from time to time, be fixed by agreement between him and his landlord.

[C. B., s 79 (5). B. B., ss. 26, 72 (5).]

Grounds on which an ordinary raiyat may be ejected from raiyatí land.

90. Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, an ordinary raiyat shall not be ejected from raiyatí land by his landlord as such except—

(a) as hereinafter provided for arrears of rent,

(b) in execution of a decree for ejectment passed in accordance with this Act on the ground

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VIII.—Ordinary Raiyats. Secs. 91—95) and (Chapter IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants. Sec. 96.)

that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected, or

(c) in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground that he has refused to agree to an enhancement of rent demanded by his landlord in accordance with the provisions next hereinafter contained.

Notice of enhancement to be served through Civil Court.

91. When a landlord wishes to enhance, within the limit fixed by section 119, the rent of an ordinary raiyat holding raiyatí land at a money-rent not fixed for a term by agreement, and the raiyat does not agree to the enhancement, the landlord may cause to be served on the raiyat through the Civil Court a notice of the enhancement not less than six months before the commencement of the agricultural year in which the landlord desires the enhancement to take effect.

Raiyat may agree to enhancement. If he does not, landlord may sue to eject.

92. (1) If, within the period of one month from the service of a notice under section 91, the raiyat on whom the notice has been served presents to the Court issuing the notice a statement in writing declaring his willingness to pay the enhanced rent, he shall be deemed to have agreed to pay that rent from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(2) If the raiyat does not, within the said period of one month, present to the Court a statement as aforesaid, the landlord may, not less than ten weeks before the commencement of the agricultural year next following, institute a suit to eject the raiyat.

Procedure in suit.

93. (1) If, in any suit instituted under section 92, the defendant appears and agrees to pay the enhanced rent demanded, his agreement shall thereupon be recorded, and he shall not be ejected, but shall be liable to pay that rent from the commencement of the agricultural year next following the date of the agreement.

(2) If the defendant does not appear, or if, on appearing, he does not agree to pay the enhanced rent demanded, the Court may pass a decree for his ejectment on condition that, within fifteen days from the date of the decree, the landlord deposits in Court—

(a) such sum (if any) as may be declared by the decree to be payable to the raiyat as compensation for improvements; and

(b) a further sum as compensation for disturbance equal to ten times the yearly increase of rent demanded.

Decree when absolute:

94. (1) If these sums are so deposited, the decree shall be made absolute, and the sums deposited shall be paid to the raiyat.

when to become void.

(2) If these sums are not so deposited, the decree shall become void, and the raiyat shall remain in occupation of his holding at the rent previously paid by him.

Fresh proceedings not to be taken for ten years.

95. When a raiyat has agreed, under section 92 or section 93, to pay an enhanced rent for his holding, or a decree to eject him from the holding has become void under section 94, no notice shall be served on him under section 91 in respect of that holding during the ten years next following the date on which he has so agreed, or the decree has become void, as the case may be.

CHAPTER IX.

PROVISIONS REGARDING RENT APPLICABLE TO SEVERAL CLASSES OF TENANTS.

A.—Of alterations of rent consequent on alterations of the area of the holding of a tenure-holder or occupancy raiyat.

Additions to, and deductions from, rent in respect of alteration of area.

96. (1) Notwithstanding anything in Chapter III or Chapter VI, every tenure-holder shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, and every occupancy-tenant shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary,— [D. §§ 19, 2 43 (3) & 47. C. B., ss. 8 18, 22 (2) & 25 (1). B.B., ss. 8, 18, 23 (2) & 25 (1).]

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land added to the area of his holding by alluvion or otherwise, unless he can show that the land has reformed on the site of land which was formerly included in that area, and for the loss of which he has had no abatement of rent; and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any diminution of the area of his holding caused by diluvion or otherwise, unless it is proved that the land lost was added to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) The amount added to the rent shall be calculated at the rates payable by occupancy-raiyats for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, less a deduction, in the case of a tenure-holder, of thirty per cent. for profits, risk and cost of collection.

(3) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 97—102.)

as the diminution of the total yearly value of the holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the holding.

B.—Instalments in which money-rents are payable by tenure-holders, raiyats and under-raiyats.

[C. B., s. 55 (a). B. B., s. 47 (a).]

Rent of tenure-holder in what instalments and on what dates payable.

97. A money-rent payable by a tenure-holder shall be paid in such instalments and on such dates as may have been agreed upon between the tenure-holder and his landlord; in the absence of agreement, in such instalments and on such dates as may be customary; and, in the absence of any agreement or custom, in such instalments and on such dates as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf for any local area.

[C. B., s. 53 (b). B. B., s. 47 (b).]

Rent of raiyat or under-raiyat in what instalments and on what dates payable.

98. A money-rent payable by a raiyat or under-raiyat shall, notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, be paid in such instalments, and on such dates, not being more than four in each year, as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf for any local area:

Provided that, when the instalments in which, and the dates on which, rent is payable are fixed by an agreement made before the commencement of this Act, or by a custom which has prevailed from before the commencement of this Act, the amount payable on each date fixed by the Board under this section for the payment of an instalment shall be equal to the aggregate of the instalments which would, under the agreement or custom, have fallen due since the date so fixed by the Board for the payment of the last previous instalment.

Making and publication of orders under sections 97 and 98.

99. (1) Every order made by the Board of Revenue under section 97 or section 98 shall be made after a consideration of the prevailing customs and the time of harvest in the local area to which it is to apply.

(2) Every such order shall be published in manner prescribed not less than three months before the commencement of the agricultural year in which it is to take effect.

C.—Of the Receipts and Accounts to be given to tenants.

[D. § 61. C. B., s. 57. B. B., s. 49 (c) and (b).]

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt.

100. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him.

(2) The receipt shall specify—

(a) the date of payment;

(b) the amount paid on account of principal and interest respectively, or, where the payments are made in kind, the quantity and description of produce delivered;

(c) where other money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force is paid with the rent, the amount so paid.

(d) the holding in respect of which the rent is paid;

(e) the name of the person (if any) registered in the landlord's serishta as the tenant;

(f) the annual rent payable for the holding and the amount of rent then in arrear; and

(g) the instalment and year on account of which the payment is declared by the tenant to be made, or, in the absence of any such declaration, the instalment and year on account of which it has been credited by the landlord.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterpart of the receipt containing similar particulars.

(4) Every receipt which does not contain substantially the above particulars shall be deemed to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

[C. B., s. 51 (b). B. B., s. 49 (c).]

Tenant entitled to statement of account at close of the year.

101. (1) Every tenant shall be entitled to receive from his landlord, within three months after the expiry of each agricultural year, a statement of account for that year showing—

(a) the holding for which the tenant pays rent to the landlord;

(b) the name of the person (if any) registered in the landlord's serishta as the tenant;

(c) the annual rent payable for the holding;

(d) the amount of rent in arrear at the beginning of the year;

(e) the payments made during the year on account of principal and interest respectively, or, when the payments are made in kind, the quantity and description of produce delivered;

(f) the portion of each payment credited to the rent of the year, and the portion credited to the arrears of previous years; and

(g) the amount, if any, remaining unpaid at the close of the year.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterpart of the statement containing similar particulars.

[D. § 65. C. B., s. 57(d) B. B., ss. 49 (d) and 96.]

Penalties and fine for withholding receipts and statements of accounts and failing to keep counterparts.

102. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 100 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within six months from the date of the demand, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount or value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 103—109.)

(2) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 101, the tenant may, within six months from the date of the demand, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during that year.

(3) If a landlord fails to prepare and retain a counterpart of a receipt or statement as required by section 100 or section 101, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

D.—Of the deposit of rent by a tenant in a public office.

[D. § 99. C. B., ss. 58 & 59. B. B., ss. 50 & 51.]

Application to deposit rent in public office.

103. (1) In any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe that the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive the same and to grant him a receipt therefor :

(b) when the money is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers therefor, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent in their behalf : or

(c) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent :

the tenant may present, to such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf for the local area in which the holding is situate, an application in writing for permission to deposit in his office the full amount of the money then due.

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made, shall be signed by the tenant or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant, and shall be accompanied by a fee of eight annas.

[D. §§ 99 & 100. C. B., s. 60. B. B., s. 52.]

Receipt granted by public officer for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

104. (1) If it appears to the officer to whom an application is made under section 103 that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, he shall receive the rent and give a receipt for the same under his official seal.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the rent had been received—

(a) in case (a) of section 103 by the person specified in the application as the person to whom the rent was payable ;

(b) in case (b) of section 103 by the co-sharers jointly ; and

(c) in case (c) of section 103 by the person entitled to it.

[D. § 100 C. B., s. 61 B. B., s. 53 (a).]

Notification of receipt of deposit.

105. (1) The officer receiving a deposit under section 104 shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place in his office a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars contained in the application under section 103, and, when the deposit is made under section 103, clause (a), shall send a copy of the notification by post in a registered cover to the person to whom the rent is alleged by the depositor to be payable.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under section 106 within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is affixed as aforesaid the officer shall cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served (free of charge) upon every person who he has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

[D. § 100. C. B., s. 61 B. B., s. 53 (b).]

Deposit to whom payable.

106. (1) The officer may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to him to be entitled to the same, or may, if he thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

(2) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Revenue-officer under this section ; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

[C. B., s. 61 (c). B. B., s. 53 (c).]

Refund to depositor.

107. If no payment is made under section 106 before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given under section 104.

E.—Of arrears of rent.

[D. § 101. C. B., s. 56. B. B., s. 48.]

Interest on arrears.

108. Every arrear of rent shall, unless otherwise provided by a written contract between the parties, be liable to interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum.

[D. § 68. C. B., s. 90. B. B., s. 96.]

Power to award damages on rent withheld without reasonable cause.

109. If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due by him, the Court may award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as it thinks fit:—

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 110—118.)

Provided that, when damages are awarded under this section, interest shall not be decreed under section 108.

[D. § 69. C. B., s. 91. B. B., s. 97.]

Power to award damages to defendant improperly sued for rent.

110. If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff as it thinks fit.

[D. §§ 12 (5) & 93. C. B., ss. 79(5 & 152. B. B., ss. 72 (5) & 169.]

Ejectment from non-transferable holding for arrears.

111. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due in respect of a non-transferable holding at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fusli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.

(2) A decree passed in favour of the plaintiff in any such suit shall specify the amount of the arrear together with the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

F.—Of rent taken by division or estimation of the crop.

[C. B., s. 84. B. B., s. 88.]

Commission for dividing or estimating crops.

112. Whenever rent is taken by division of the produce, or by estimate or appraisement of the crop, if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the division, estimate or appraisement, or if there is a dispute about the division of the produce, or the quantity or value of the crop, the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, issue a commission to such person as he thinks fit, to divide, estimate or appraise the crop.

Appointment of assessors, &c.

113. (1) When a Collector appoints a commissioner for any of the purposes mentioned in section 112, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the commissioner to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selecting those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the division, estimate or appraisement.

(2) The commissioner so appointed shall make the division, estimate or appraisement in accordance with those instructions, and submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

Remedy for error in division.

114. (1) If in any division under section 113 either party receives less than the share to which he is entitled, he may, within three months from the date on which the division is completed, institute a suit against the other party to recover the value of the additional portion of the crop due to him at the price which prevailed on that date.

(2) If no such suit is instituted within the said period of three months, the division shall for all purposes be deemed as between the parties thereto to have been rightly made.

Procedure where crop has been estimated or appraised.

115. (1) When a crop has been estimated or appraised under section 113 the estimate or appraisement shall be reduced to writing and signed by the commissioner making the same, and shall be submitted to the Collector by whom the commission was issued.

(2) The Collector shall consider the commissioner's estimate or appraisement, and, after such hearing and inquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass an order thereon either confirming or varying the estimate or appraisement; and that order shall be final.

Costs of proceedings under foregoing sections.

116. All expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of sections 112 to 115 (both inclusive) shall be payable by the landlord or tenant, or partly by one and partly by the other, as the Collector may in each case direct; and the amount payable by any person under such a direction shall be recoverable from him as if it was an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

Interference with produce of land otherwise than under section 112, criminal trespass.

117. If the landlord of any land of which the rent is payable in the manner mentioned in section 112, or any other person, interferes in any way, without the consent of the tenant, with the cutting or harvesting of any produce of the land except by an application to the Collector under section 112, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860

[C. B., s. 85. B. B., s. 89.]

Danabandi or appraisement papers in Bihár to be deposited in Collector's office.

118. When the rent payable for land in Bihár is the equivalent money-value of a fixed proportion of the actual gross produce thereof, and such equivalent

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 119—125), and (Chapter X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants. Sec. 126.)

money-value is determined by an estimate or appraisement (danabandi) of the standing crop, or by some similar proceeding, the danabandi or appraisement papers shall, within fifteen days after the making of the appraisement, be lodged in the office of the Collector of the district.

G.—Further provisions regarding rent.

[C.B., s. 23 (c). B. B., s. 30.]

Limit to rents of raiyats and under-raiyats.

119. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections of this Act, or in any contract made after the second day of March, 1883, a raiyat or under-raiyat shall not be bound to pay for his holding a money-rent exceeding five-sixteenths of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the holding in staple crops, calculated, in such manner as the Board of Revenue may from time to time, by rules, direct, at the prices at which raiyats sell at harvest time.

Presumption that rent continues unchanged.

120. The rent payable by a tenant in any agricultural year shall be presumed to be the rent payable by him in the following agricultural year until the contrary is shown.

[D. § 42.]

Power to alter rent in case of new assessment of revenue.

121. When a landlord grants a lease, or makes any other contract, purporting to entitle the tenant of land not included in an area permanently settled to hold that land free of rent or at a fixed rent, and while the lease or contract is in force—

(a) land-revenue is for the first time made payable in respect of the land, or

(b) land-revenue having been previously payable in respect of it, a fresh settlement of land revenue is made,

a Revenue-officer may, notwithstanding anything in the contract between the parties, by order, on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, fix a fair and equitable rent for the land in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

[D. § 9. C. B., s. 78. B. B., s. 70.]

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord without notice of the transfer.

122. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has given notice of the transfer to the tenant.

(2) When there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

[D. §§ 13 & 17. C. B., s. 71. B. B., s. 63 (2).]

Abwab, &c., illegal.

123. All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwab, mahtut, or other like appellations, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such shall be void.

[D. § 64. B. B., ss. 62 (2), 64 (a), 93.]

Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

124. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding five hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds five hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

[C. B., s. 64. B. B., s. 56.]

Rent first charge on tenures, occupancy-holdings and ba-tu holdings.

125 (1) The rent of a tenure, occupancy-holding or bastu holding shall be a first charge on the same.

(2) If the right, title and interest of the tenant is brought to sale in execution of a decree for money obtained by a person other than the landlord, the landlord shall be entitled to be first paid out of the sale proceeds any rent which may be due to him by the tenant.

CHAPTER X.

OTHER PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO SEVERAL CLASSES OF TENANTS.

A.—Of improvements on raiyats' holdings and compensation therefor.

[C. B., s. 29. B. B., s. 69.]

"Improvement."

126. (1) For the purposes of this chapter the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the letting-value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) It shall include for those purposes—

(a) the construction of wells, tanks and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture;

(b) the preparation of land for irrigation;

(c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable;

(d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes;

(e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto; and

(f) the erection of a dwelling-house suitable for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this chapter if it substantially diminishes the value of any other part of the estate or tenure of his landlord.

(3) A work which benefits several holdings shall for the purposes of this chapter be deemed to be, with respect to each of them, an improvement.

[..B., s. 77. B., s. 69]

Right to make improvements in case of occupancy-holding.

127. (1) The landlord of an occupancy-raiyat shall not be entitled as such to prevent the raiyat making an improvement in respect of his holding, and shall not, except as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of the holding without the permission of the raiyat.

(2) A landlord of an occupancy-holding who would, but for the want of his raiyat's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of the holding, may, if he desires that any improvement, other than an improvement of the description mentioned in section 126, clause (f), be made, deliver or cause to be delivered to the raiyat a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the raiyat is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

Right to make improvements in case of ordinary raiyat's holding.

128. (1) An ordinary raiyat shall not, except as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission any improvement other than an improvement of the description mentioned in section 126, clause (f).

(2) An ordinary raiyat, who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

[. B., ss. (e) & 29].

Compensation for improvements payable to raiyat on ejectment.

129. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been made.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act, unless it is shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make the improvement and was ready to make it himself.

Power to make rules for appointment of assessors.

130. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under section 129, for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

131. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under section 129 for an improvement, regard shall be had—

(a) to the amount by which the letting-value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement; and

(c) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the landlord and raiyat may, if they think fit, agree that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Certain stipulations in contracts to be void.

132. A stipulation in a contract providing—

(a) that a landlord shall be entitled to prevent a raiyat from making, or to eject him for making, such improvements on his holding as he is entitled to make under this Act, or

(b) that a raiyat ejected from his holding shall not be entitled to compensation for improvements

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 133—140.)

in any case in which he would, under this Act, be entitled to such compensation, shall be void.

B.—Of the landlord's right to measure land.

[D. § 58. C. B., s. 75. B. B., s. 67.]

Landlord entitled to measure land unless restrained by contract.

133. Subject to the provisions of any contract, a landlord may, by himself or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, enter upon and measure all land comprised in any estate or tenure, of the rents of which he is in receipt, except land entered in the general register of revenue-free lands prepared under the Land Registration Act, 1876 (B. C.) of 1876:

Provided that, when any land has been measured by a landlord, whether before or after the passing of this Act, it shall not, without the written permission of the Collector, be again measured by the landlord within the ten years next following the date on which it was so measured.

Illustration.

A., a proprietor, grants a portion of his estate in patní to B, to whom the raiyats pay rent. Both A and B are entitled to make a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in the patní lease.

[D. § 94. B. B., s. 176.]

Tenant bound to point out boundaries.

134. When a landlord desires to measure, under section 133, any land held by his tenant, the tenant shall, if the landlord requires him to do so, attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

[D. § 94 B. B., s. 176.]

Remedy when landlord is obstructed or tenant does not point out boundaries.

135. (1) When a landlord desires to measure any land under section 133, and any person occupying the land obstructs him in so doing, or any tenant, bound under section 134 to attend and point out the boundaries of his land, refuses or neglects so to do, the landlord may apply to the Court which would have jurisdiction to hear a suit for the recovery of the land, to make an order directing such person to permit the measurement, or such tenant to attend and point out the boundaries, as the case may be.

(2) The Court may, on receiving an application under this section, cause a notice to be served on the occupant or tenant, as the case may be, requiring him to show cause, at a time and place specified therein, why the order applied for should not be made.

(3) If the person on whom a notice is served under sub-section (2) does not show cause as aforesaid, the Court may make the order applied for.

Presumption against tenant not attending to point out boundaries.

136. If a tenant ordered under section 135 to attend and point out the boundaries of the land held by him refuses or neglects to do so, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land prepared under the direction of the landlord, at the time the tenant was ordered to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Measurement in suits between landlord and tenant to be made according to Government measure.

137. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bighá. [D. § 94. C. B., s. 76 (a). B. B., s. 68 (a).]

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any different local measure, the Government measure shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit.

Determination of the length of the standard in case of dispute.

138. (1) If any dispute as to the length of a standard used in a local measure arises in any suit under this Act, the Collector shall, on a reference made to him for this purpose by the Court, determine the proper length thereof. [D. § 98. C. B., s. 76 (b). B. B., s. 68 (b).]

(2) An appeal shall lie from the Collector's decision to the District Judge.

(3) If no such appeal be preferred, the decision of the Collector, or, if an appeal be preferred, the decision of the District Judge thereon, shall be conclusive.

C.—Of surrender and abandonment.

Surrender by raiyat.

139. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding; but notwithstanding the surrender he shall continue to be liable for the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless— [D. § 12 (3). C. B., s. 79 (3). B. B., s. 72 (3).]

(a) he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice in writing of his intention to surrender; or

(b) the holding is let to another person for a agricultural year following the surrender.

(2) If the landlord refuses to receive a notice, tendered to him under clause (a), or to sign a receipt for the same, the raiyat may apply to the Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate, and the Court shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on the landlord.

Non-transferable holding in certain cases to be deemed surrendered.

140. Any tenant of a holding which is not transferable, who leaves his holding uncultivated and the rent of it unpaid for a period of one year, shall, at the expiration of that period, be deemed to have surrendered the holding: [D. s. 12 (4). C. B., s. 79 (4). B. B., s. 72 (4).]

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants. Secs. 141—145.)

Provided that, in reckoning that period, any time during which, owing to an inundation or any other accident to the land beyond the tenant's control, it may have been impossible to cultivate the land, shall be excluded.

[C. B., ss. 43 & 44. B. B., ss. 34 & 35.]

D.—Of Merger.

Merger of tenant's interest in landlord's interest.

141. (1) When in the case of any tenancy the interest of the landlord and that of the tenant become, by transfer, succession or otherwise, united in the same person, so as to be owned by him in the same right, the interest of the tenant shall—

(a) during the period of three months mentioned in sub-section (2) be presumed to be merged in the interest of the landlord and extinguished, unless the person proves that he has not intended it to be merged, and

(b) after the expiration of that period be deemed to be so merged and extinguished, unless within that period the person executes an instrument declaring his intention that a merger shall not take place, and the instrument is registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, and is published in the prescribed manner.

III of 1877.

(2) The period of three months referred to in sub-section (1) shall, when the interests become united after the commencement of this Act, begin to run from the date on which they become united, and, when they have become united before the commencement of this Act, begin to run from the commencement of this Act:

Provided that, when, at the time the interests become united, the person in whom they become united has not attained his age of majority or is of unsound mind, the period shall not begin to run before he has attained that age or become of sound mind, as the case may be.

(3) A merger under this section shall not operate to the prejudice of any person having a lien upon the interest merged.

(4) When, at the time of a merger taking place in respect of a tenancy under this section, a sub-tenancy exists immediately under that tenancy, the person who becomes the owner of the consolidated interests shall, subject to the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to sales of land for arrears of Government revenue and to the provisions of this Act as to sales for arrears of rent, have the same rights against, and be subject to the same obligations towards, the sub-tenants, as the owner of the tenant's interest had, and was subject to, before the merger.

E.—Of the appointment of a Manager on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

142. When co-owners of an estate or tenure disagree as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue, [D. § 16. C. B., s. 65(1). B. B., s. 57 (1).]

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, upon the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served upon all the co-owners, calling upon them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under Act VII of 1876 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

143. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under section 142, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served upon any co-owner who did not appear before it was made. [C.B., s. 65 (2.) B.B., s. 57(2).]

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

144. If the co-owners do not, within one month after the making of an order under section 143, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within one month after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may— [C. B., s. 66 (1). B. B., s. 58 (1.)]

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards assents to undertake the management thereof; or

(b) in any case appoint a manager.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under section 144(b).

145. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under section 144, clause (b); and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager. [C.B., s. 66(2). B.B., s. 58 (2).]

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Other Provisions applicable to several classes of tenants. Secs. 146—150) and (Chapter XI.—Settlement of Rents by Revenue-officer. Secs. 151—155.)

[C. B., s. 66(3). B. B., s. 58(3).]

The Court of Wards Act, 1879, applicable to management by Court of Wards under section 144 (a).

IX (B. C.) of 1879.

146. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes the management of an estate or tenure under section 144, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management.

[C. B., s. 67. B. B., s. 59.]

Provisions applicable to manager appointed under section 144(b).

147. (1) A manager appointed under section 144, clause (b), shall receive by way of remuneration such fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager as the District Judge from time to time directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(4) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts; and

(5) He shall be removeable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

[C. B., s. 68. B. B., s. 60.]

Power to restore management to co-owners.

148. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 144, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners if he is satisfied that such management will be conducted by them jointly without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

F.—Miscellaneous.

[C. B., s. 79 (5), (6) & (7). B. B., s. 72 (5), (6) and (7).]

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

149. No tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

[B. B., ss. 21 (b), 37.]

Portion of holding not transferable.

150. Nothing in this Act shall entitle a tenant whose holding is transferable to transfer or bequeath, without the consent of his landlord, a portion only of the land comprised in the holding so that it may be held from the landlord by the transferee as a separate holding.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF RENTS BY A REVENUE-OFFICER.

Power to order Revenue-officers to settle rents.

151. (1) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that the rents of all tenants or of any class of tenants in any local area shall be settled by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section are the following, namely:—

(a) where a large proportion of the tenants or of the landlords applies for such an order, and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the making of such an order is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing, or likely to arise, between the tenants and their landlords generally;

(c) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area, or the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure owned or managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made, and an order so notified shall continue in force until it is rescinded by an order notified in like manner.

Bar to jurisdiction of Civil Courts while order is in force.

152. While an order under section 151 continues in force in respect of any tenants, a Civil Court shall not, except as provided by section 155, clause (b), entertain a suit for the enhancement or reduction of the rents of those tenants under this Act.

Rents of certain tenants to be fixed.

153. (1) When the rents of any tenants to whom an order under section 151 applies are subject to alteration by order of a Court, the officer appointed to settle the rents of those tenants under this chapter shall, without any application being made to him in this behalf, fix those rents in accordance with the principles embodied in this Act, and so that no rent fixed under this section shall exceed the maximum prescribed by this Act in cases of enhancement.

(2) Where the Local Government has, under this chapter, directed a settlement of the rents of the occupancy-raiyats of any local area, and a table of rates and produce has not been prepared under Chapter VI for that local area, it may further direct the officer appointed to settle the rents to prepare such a table before proceeding to fix the rents of those raiyats.

Rents of other tenants to be ascertained and recorded.

154. When the rents of any tenants to whom an order under section 151 applies are not subject to alteration as aforesaid, the officer appointed to settle the rents of those tenants shall, without any application being made to him in this behalf, ascertain and record the rents payable by them.

Power to refer question to Civil Court or leave case to be dealt with by Civil Court.

155. (1) If in the course of the proceedings taken for fixing the rent of a tenant under section 153 any question arises which, in the opinion of the officer conducting

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XI.—Settlement of Rents by Revenue-officer. Secs. 156—161.)

those proceedings, would be more properly decided by a Civil Court, the officer may in his discretion, but subject to any rules made by the Local Government in this behalf,

(a) refer the question for decision to the Civil Court which would, but for section 152, have had jurisdiction to try a suit for the enhancement or reduction of the rent, or

(b) by order in writing direct that the tenant's case be excluded from the operation of this chapter and be left to be disposed of by suit in a Civil Court, as if the order under section 151 did not apply to it.

(2) When a Revenue-officer makes a reference under clause (a) of this section in respect of a tenant, he may either stay his proceedings in respect of that tenant, or, if the nature of the case admits of his doing so, pass an order in alternative form or otherwise fixing the rent contingent upon the decision of the Civil Court.

Preparation of jamabandí.

156. (1) A Revenue-officer settling rents under this chapter shall prepare, in the prescribed form, one or more jamabandís, comprising all or such numbers of the tenants whose rents he is appointed to settle as the Board of Revenue may direct.

(2) Every jamabandí prepared under this section shall show in respect of each tenant comprised therein—

(a) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat or under-raiyat;

(b) the land held by him;

(c) the name of his landlord;

(d) whether the rent has been fixed under section 153 or ascertained under section 154;

(e) the amount of the rent fixed or ascertained, and, when the rent is a gradually increasing one, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases.

Publication of jamabandí and objections thereto.

157. Every jamabandí prepared under section 156 shall be published in the prescribed manner, and any person objecting to any entry therein may, within one month from the date of the publication, present to the Revenue-officer, for transmission to the Commissioner of the Division, a petition stating his objection to the entry.

Submission of jamabandí and petitions of objection to the Commissioner and Board.

158. (1) On the expiration of the said period of one month, the Revenue-officer shall submit to the Commissioner of the Division a copy of the jamabandí, with a report setting forth the grounds on which it has been prepared, and the petitions of objection (if any) which he may have received under section 157.

(2) The Commissioner shall consider the jamabandí and report, and the objections (if any), and, after allowing the objectors (if any) an opportunity of being heard, shall forward the papers to the Board of Revenue with his opinion regarding the same.

Sanction to and final publication of jamabandí, and date from which it comes into force.

159. (1) The Board of Revenue may return the papers for further inquiry, or may submit the jamabandí with or without modifications to the Local Government for sanction.

(2) The Local Government may return for further inquiry the papers received under sub-section (1) or may sanction the jamabandí with or without modification.

(3) When a jamabandí has been sanctioned by the Local Government under this section, it shall be published in the prescribed manner.

(4) A jamabandí published under this section shall come into force from the commencement of the agricultural year next following the publication.

Rent fixed under foregoing provisions to be deemed the rent payable.

160. When a jamabandí has come into force under section 159, a tenant's rent shown therein as fixed under section 153 shall be deemed to be the rent payable by him, and shall not, during the period of ten years next following the date on which the jamabandí comes into force, be enhanced in a suit instituted under this Act, except on the ground that since the jamabandí came into force an improvement has been made by the landlord which, but for this section, would entitle him to an enhancement:

Provided that—

(2) nothing in this section shall prevent the rent shown in a jamabandí in respect of a tenancy from being called in question on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that the tenancy does not exist or that the tenant is not liable to pay rent;

(b) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the jamabandí to belong;

(c) that the land comprised in the tenancy is different from, or more or less than, that shown in the jamabandí;

(d) that a rent different from that shown in the jamabandí has been fixed by a contract legally binding on the parties, and which has been brought to the notice of the officer preparing the jamabandí.

Rent ascertained under foregoing provisions to be presumed to be the rent payable.

161. When a jamabandí has been published under section 159 a tenant's rent shown therein as, ascertained under section 154, shall be presumed to be the rent payable by that tenant until the contrary is shown.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XII.—Preparation of Record-of-rights by Revenue-officer. Secs. 162—164.) and (Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 165—166.)

Certain other entries in jamabandí to be presumed to be correct.

162. An entry made in a jamabandí under clause (a), clause (b) or clause (c) of section 156 shall, after the jamabandí has been published under section 159, be presumed for all purposes to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Expenses incurred in proceedings under this chapter how defrayed.

163. All expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, in any case mentioned in section 151, clause (a) or clause (b), including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in carrying out those provisions therein, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in carrying out those provisions therein in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants in that local area whose rents are fixed or ascertained under this chapter, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE PREPARATION OF A RECORD-OF-RIGHTS BY A REVENUE-OFFICER.

Power to order preparation of record-of-rights.

164. (1) The Local Government may, in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a record-of-rights shall be prepared for all tenancies or any class of tenancies in a local area by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following, namely:—

(a) where a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally; and

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) The Local Government shall, in any order made by it under this section, specify the particulars to be included in the record-of-rights to be prepared under that order.

(4) The particulars so specified may be all or some of the following, namely:—

(a) the name of each tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat or under-raiyat;

(c) the land held by him;

(d) the name of his landlord;

(e) the rent payable;

(f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed, whether by contract, by order of a Court or otherwise.

(5) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

Presumption as to entries in record.

165. Every entry in a record-of-rights prepared under section 164 shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE RECOVERY OF RENTS FROM RAIYATS AND UNDER-RAIYATS BY DISTRAINING THE PRODUCE OF THE HOLDING

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

166. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Court, having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the arrear, requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator, [B. B., ss. 101 104, 123.]

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, on a threshing-floor, or place for treading out grain or the like (whether in the fields or within a homestead) or in a storehouse.

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Bengal Land Registration Act, 1876, or a VII (B. C.) of 1876.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.
(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 167—172.)

mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

[B. B., ss. 71, 125.] (3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sublet with the written consent of the landlord.

[B. B., ss. 104-5.] Form of application and fee payable.

167. (1) Every application under section 166 shall specify—

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification;

(b) the name of the tenant;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed;

(d) the amount of the arrear, with the interest, if any, claimed thereon, and, when an amount in excess of the rent payable by the tenant in the last preceding agricultural year is claimed, the contract, or proceeding as the case may be, under which that amount is payable;

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained; and

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification.

(2) Every such application shall be liable to the court-fee which would be payable in a suit instituted for the recovery of the arrear therein claimed.

(3) Every such application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints; and, if the application so verified contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be subject to punishment according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence.

[B. B., ss. 105 & 106.] Procedure on receipt of application.

168. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under section 166, or as soon after as the Court permits, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

(2) The Court may examine the applicant, and may admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

[B.B., s., 107.] Procedure if application is admitted.

169. If the application is admitted, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

[D. § 211.] Provided that produce, which from its nature does not admit of being stored, shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

[B.B., s. 108.] Service of demand and account.

170. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on the outer door of the house in which he usually resides.

[B. B., ss. 109 and 110.] Right to reap, &c., produce.

171. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

(2) In default of the person entitled to do so, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and shall store the same in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

[B.B., s. 113.] Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

172. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the application for distraint, be immediately satisfied, an officer distraining property

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 173—182.)

under section 169 shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a specified day, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

[B. B., s. 114.] 173. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

Place of sale.

[D. s. III.] 174. Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter upon the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

Power to sell produce before it is reaped or gathered.

[B. B., s. 115.] 175. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Manner of sale.

[B. B., s. 116.] 176. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day or (if a market be held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until such day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Postponement of sale.

[B. B., s. 117.] 177. The price of every lot shall be paid in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale thinks necessary, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Payment of purchase-money.

[B. B., s. 118.] 178. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

[B. B., s. 119.] 179. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay to the applicant for distraint the expenses incurred by him on account of the distraint, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made by the Board of Revenue in this behalf.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale, and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

180. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers. [B. B., s. 120.]

Certain officers may not purchase.

181. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 170, together with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn. [B. B., ss. 111, 112 & 123.]

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay the same into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay over the same to the applicant for distraint, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

182. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under section 181, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and, if that landlord is not the defaulter, he shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord and so on until the defaulter is reached. [B. B., s. 124.]

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under section 181 to institute a suit for the recovery from

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 183—187) and (Chapter XIV.—Procedure in Suits between Landlord and Tenant. Secs. 188—192.)

the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

B.B., s. 126.] 183. When land is sublet, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

184. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail, but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid to the owner of the property under section 179 without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

[B. B., ss. 91, 122.] 185. Any person who, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force, distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or prevents or attempts to prevent any person from reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of the holding, shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Penalty for illegal distraint.

186. When any offence punishable under section 185 is committed for the benefit of, or in behalf of, any person owning or claiming any interest in the land in respect of which the offence is committed, or having or claiming any interest in a dispute which has led to the commission of the offence, or when any person has accepted or derived any benefit from the commission of any such offence, he shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both, if, having reason to believe that the offence was likely to be committed, he has not used all lawful means in his power to prevent its commission.

Persons benefiting, &c., by offences under section 185 liable to punishment.

[B. B., s. 127.] 187. (1) The Local Government may, by an order published in the official Gazette, suspend the provisions of sections 166 to 184 (both inclusive) in any local area for such time as it thinks proper.

Power to suspend provisions of sections 166 to 184.

(2) So long as an order under this section continues in force, in respect of any local area, no Court shall receive an application for distraint for arrears of rent due on lands situate within that local area.

CHAPTER XIV.

SPECIAL RULES OF PROCEDURE APPLICABLE TO SUITS BETWEEN LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A.—Rules applicable to suits between landlord and tenant generally.

188. The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the land in respect of which the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. [D. § 174 C. B., s. 148. B. B., s. 165.] XIV of 1882.

Place of suing.

189. Every náib or gumáshta of a landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord shall, for the purposes of every such suit, be deemed to be the recognised agent of the landlord within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the landlord may reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is to be instituted or is pending. [D. § 169. C. B., s. 150 B. B., s. 167(a).]

Náibs or gumáshtas to be authorised agents.

190. The particulars referred to in section 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in the case of such suits, instead of being entered in the register of civil suits prescribed by that section, be entered in a special register to be kept by each Civil Court, in such form as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf. [D. § 173 C. B., s. 147. B. B., s. 164. XIV o 1882

Special register of suits.

B.—Rules applicable to particular classes of suits between landlord and tenant.

191. Sections 121 to 127 (both inclusive), 129, 194 to 197 (both inclusive), 305, and 320 to 325C (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply in any suits of the following classes between landlord and tenant as such, namely:— [C. B., s. 165. B. B., s. 187.] XIV of 1882.

Sections 121 to 127, 129, 194 to 197, 305, and 320 to 325C of Code not to apply in suits for possession, rent or damages.

(a) suits for the recovery of rent:

(b) suits for penalties claimable under any provision of this Act:

(c) suits to recover possession of the land.

192. The plaint in every suit of a description mentioned in section 191 shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a statement of the extent, situation, designation and boundaries of the land held by the tenant; or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification. [D. §§ 149 & 185. C. B., s. 167. B. B., s. 189. XIV of 1882.

Particulars to be specified in plaint in such suits.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Procedure in Suits between Landlord and Tenant. Secs. 193—202.)

[D. § 192. C. B., s. 173. B. B., s. 195.]

Summons in such suits to be for final disposal.

193. The summons shall in every such suit be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only.

Service of summons in such suits by registered letter.

194. The service of a summons on a defendant in any such suit may, if the Court so directs, be effected by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866.

XIV of 1866.

[D. § 108. C. B., s. 184. B. B., s. 206.]

Written statements not to be filed in such suits without leave.

195. A written statement shall not be filed in any such suit without the leave of the Court.

[B. B., s. 214.]

XIV of 1882.

Mode of recording evidence in such suits.

196. The rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in all such suits whether an appeal is allowed in them or not.

[D. §§ 177 & 223. C. B., ss. 155 & 197. B. B., ss. 171 & 219.]

Execution in such suits on oral application.

197. When a decree, not being a decree of the description referred to in section 111, sub-section (2), is passed in any such suit, the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof.

[D. § 179. C. B., ss. 157 & 220 B. B., ss. 173 & 242.]

No appeal in certain suits for arrears and penalties.

198. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal in any suit instituted by a landlord, for arrears or by a tenant for a penalty claimable under any provision of this Act where—

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, and, if he is satisfied that a failure of justice has been caused by a substantial error, defect or irregularity in the proceedings or in the decision, may pass such order as he thinks fit.

Defendant in suit for arrear admitting arrear is due, but disputing plaintiff's title, to pay into Court.

199. (1) When, in a suit for an arrear of rent instituted against a tenant, the defendant admits that the arrear is due by him, but pleads that it is due to a person other than the plaintiff, the Court may, if it thinks fit, refuse to take cognizance of the plea until the defendant has paid the amount of the arrear into Court.

(2) When the amount of an arrear has been paid into Court under this section, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt for the same, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance for the arrear, in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been paid to the person entitled to it.

(3) The Court shall forward the amount paid in to the officer to whom an application to deposit the rent would be made under section 103 and it shall thereupon be deemed to be a deposit received under clause (c) of that section.

[C. B., s. 198. B. B., s. 220.]

When assignee of decree for arrears may apply for execution.

200. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become, and is vested in him.

[C. B., ss. 96 & 98 (b). B. B., ss. 128 & 130, cl. (b).]

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

201. (1) A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall not take effect before the commencement of the agricultural year next following, and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall not take effect before the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), it shall be in the discretion of the Court to fix the date from which any such decree shall take effect.

[B. B., ss. 21 (e), 31, 44 & 45 Vic., C. 41, s. 14.]

Relief against forfeitures.

202. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejectment, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has requested the tenant, where the damage or breach is capable of remedy, to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the damage or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the damage or breach, and whether, in

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Procedure in Suits between Landlord and Tenant. Secs. 203—207) and (Chapter XV.—Sale of Transferable Holdings in Execution, &c. Sec. 208.)

the opinion of the Court, the damage or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the damage or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may from time to time extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2) for remedying a damage or breach.

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the damage or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the damage or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

[B., s. 80. B., s. 73.]

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

203. The following rules shall be applicable in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

(a) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment.

(b) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value:

Provided that a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section when, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

[B., s. 80. B., s. 73.]

Payment by raiyat for occupation of land under section 203.

204. When a landlord elects, under section 203, clause (a), to allow a raiyat to retain possession of any land for the purpose specified in that clause, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

All claims between landlord and tenant to be determined in ejectment-proceedings.

205. In all suits and proceedings for ejectment, the Court shall inquire into and determine all claims under this Act by the landlord against the tenant as such, or by the tenant against the landlord as such.

Procedure when, on ejectment, money is due by the landlord to the tenant.

206. (1) When it appears to a Court making an inquiry under section 205 that the amount payable by the landlord to the tenant as such exceeds the amount payable by the tenant to the landlord as such, the decree or order for ejectment (if any) shall, unless the landlord and tenant come to an arrangement regarding the payment of the excess sum, specify a time within which it must be paid into Court.

(2) If it is so paid within the time specified, the Court shall eject the tenant; and if it is not so paid, the Court shall refuse to eject the tenant.

C.—Suit to determine status, &c., of tenant.

Suit to determine status, &c., of tenant.

207. Every landlord may institute a suit against his tenant, and every tenant against his landlord, for the determination of all or any of the following matters, namely:— [C. B., s. 151 B. B., s. 168.]

(a) the land held by the tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, occupancy-raiyat, tenant of a bastu holding, ordinary raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether his rent is liable to enhancement; and

(c) the rent payable by him at the time the suit is instituted.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE SALE OF TRANSFERABLE HOLDINGS IN EXECUTION OF DECREES FOR ARREARS DUE ON THEM.

Definitions.

208. (1) "Incumbrance" in this chapter, used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created upon the holding by the tenant in limitation of his own interest therein, except— [D. §§ 12 (11) and 155. C. B., ss. 206, Expl., & 210. B. B., ss. 228, Expl., & 232.]

(a) a tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) a tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) a tenure of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals,

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XV.—Sale of Transferable Holdings in Exe ution, &c. Secs. 209—214.)

places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) a right of occupancy;

(e) a right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord has expressly and in writing given the tenant permission to create.

[C. B., s. 208, Expl. B. B., s. 228, Expl.]

(2) "Registered incumbrance" in this chapter, used with reference to a tenancy on which an arrear of rent is due, means any incumbrance which the defaulter or his predecessor in interest has created by an instrument registered under the Registration Act for the time being in force, and of which, after it has been registered, a copy has been served on the landlord under section 223, not less than six months before the arrear became due.

[C. B., s. 201. B. B., s. 223.]

Application for sale of holding.

209. (1) When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a transferable holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the holding in execution of the decree, his application shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in that section and section 237 of the said Code, a statement of the annual rent of the holding.

XIV of 1882.

(2) When the holding is a permanent tenure, there shall be filed with the application a copy of so much of the register kept under Chapter III as relates to the tenure.

[D. § 152. C. B., s. 203. B. B., s. 225.]

Proclamation announcing sale.

210. (1) When an order has been passed for the sale of a holding upon an application made under section 209, the proclamation made under section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in that section, announce—

XIV of 1882.

(a) in the case of a tenure, that the tenure will first be put up to auction subject to the registered incumbrances and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day of which due notice will be given with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, or bastu holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(2) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

Sale of tenure subject to registered incumbrances and effect thereof.

211. (1) When a tenure has been advertised for sale under section 210, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

[C. B., s. 2 B. B., s. 228(and Expl.]

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure not being a registered incumbrance.

Sale of tenure with power to avoid all incumbrances and effect thereof.

212. (1) If the bidding for a tenure put up to auction under section 211 does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

XIV of 188

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure.

[D. § 155. C. B., s. 2 B. B., s. 23

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances and effect thereof.

213. (1) When an occupancy-holding or bastu holding has been advertized for sale under section 210, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

[B. B., s. 2 (b)]

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 214, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

214. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under section 211, section 212, or section 213, and desiring to avoid the same, may within one year from the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for a service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

215. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings in that local area shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

[D. § 246. C. B., s. 211. B. B., s. 233.]

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

216. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say :— XIV of 1882.

(a) There shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the holding to sale.

(b) There shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made.

(c) If there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale, but not more than six months after the date of the final decree.

(d) The balance (if any remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

[D. § 153. C. B., s. 204. B. B., s. 226.] XIV of 1882.

Holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

217. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to institute a suit to set aside the sale of a holding under this chapter.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the holding.

218. (1) When any person having, in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be voidable upon such sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale, [D. §§ 35, 36, 154. C. B., s. 205. B. B., s. 227.]

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per cent. per annum and secured by a mortgage of the holding to him ;

(b) his mortgage shall, subject to the provisions of section 125, be deemed to be the first charge on the holding ; and

(c) he shall be entitled to take possession of the holding as mortgagee, and retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

219. When a holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord ; and, if that landlord is not the defaulter, he may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached. [D. §§ 35, 36, 154. C. B., s. 205. B. B., s. 227.]

Decree-holder may bid at sale ; judgment-debtor may not.

220. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a holding is sold under this chapter may without the permission of the Court bid for or purchase the holding. XIV of 1882. [C. B., s. 208 (1). B. B., s. 230 (1).]

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a holding so sold.

Operation of sections 313 and 326 of Code of Civil Procedure excluded.

221. Sections 313 and 326 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this chapter. XIV of 1882.

Registration of certain instruments creating incumbrances.

222. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any transferable holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act. Portions of the Indian Limitation Act not applicable to such suits, &c.

225. Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall not apply to the suits and applications mentioned in section 224.

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

Saving as to service-tenures.

226. Nothing in this Act shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Power to make rules regarding procedure and powers of officers.

227 The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

(a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;

(b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and

(c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

228. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(5) The publication in the official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

Náibs and gumáshtas of landlords.

229. Any appearance, application or act in, before, or to, any Court or other authority required or authorized by this Act to be made or done by a landlord may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by a náib or gumáshta of the landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord; and every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, a náib or gumáshta of the landlord empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

Rights of pasturage, forest-rights, &c.

230. The provisions of this Act applicable to suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall, as far as may be, apply to suits for the recovery of anything payable or deliverable in respect of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, rights over fisheries and the like. SCHEDULE II.

(See Section 36.)

Extract from Preamble to Regulation VIII of 1819.

"In the exercise of the privilege * * * conceded to zamíndárs under direct engagements with Government, there has been created a tenure which had its origin on the estates of the Rájá of Bardwán, but has since been extended to other zamíndáris; the character of which tenure is, that it is a taluq created by the zamíndár, to be held at a rent fixed in perpetuity, by the lessee and his heirs for ever; the tenant is called upon to furnish collateral security for the rent, and for his conduct generally, or he is excused from this obligation at the zamíndár's discretion; but even if the original tenant be excused, still, in case of sale for arrears, or other operation leading to the introduction of another tenant, such new incumbent has always in practice been liable to be so called upon at the option of the zamíndár.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.
(Schedule III.—Summary Sale of Patní Tenures.)

"By the terms also of the engagements interchanged, it is, amongst other stipulations, provided that, in case of an arrear occurring, the tenure may be brought to sale by the zamíndár, and if the sale do not yield a sufficient amount to make good the balance of rent at the time due, the remaining property of the defaulter shall be further answerable for the demand.

"These tenures have usually been denominated patní taluqs, and it has been a common practice of the holders of them to underlet on precisely similar terms to other persons who, on taking such leases, went by the name of darpatní taluqdárs: these, again, sometimes similarly underlet to be patnídárs; and the conditions of all the title-deeds vary in nothing material from the original engagements executed by the first holder."

SCHEDULE III.

SUMMARY SALE OF PATNÍ TENURES.

(See section 42.)

Extract from Regulation VIII of 1819, amended in accordance with subsequent enactments.

Zamíndárs allowed sales of tenures, in which right to sell for arrears is reserved.

8. First.—Zamíndárs, that is, proprietors under direct engagements with the Government, shall be entitled to apply in the manner following for periodical sales of any tenures upon which the right of selling or bringing to sale for an arrear of rent may have been specially reserved by stipulation in the engagements interchanged on the creation of the tenure.

The exercise of this power shall not be confined to cases in which the stipulation for sale may have been unrestricted in regard to time, but shall apply equally to tenures held under engagements stipulating merely for a sale at the end of the year, in conformity with the practice heretofore allowed by the Regulations in force.

First sale to be applied for on first Baisákh.

Second.—On the first day of Baisákh, that is, at the commencement of the following year from that of which the rent is due, the zamíndár shall present a petition to the Collector, containing a specification of any balances that may be due to him on account of the expired year, from all or any taluqdárs or other holders of an interest of the nature described in the preceding clause of this section.

The same shall then be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the kachahrí, with a notice that if the amount claimed be not paid before the first of Jeth following, the tenures of the defaulters will on that day be sold by public sale in liquidation.

Should, however, the first of Jeth fall on a Sunday or holiday, the next subsequent day, not a holiday, shall be selected instead; a similar notice shall be stuck up at the sadr kachahrí of the zamíndár himself, and a copy or extract of such part of the notice as may apply to the individual case shall be by him sent to be similarly published at the kachahrí or at the principal town or village upon the land of the defaulter.

The zamíndár shall be exclusively answerable for the observance of the forms above prescribed, and the notice required to be sent into the mufassal shall be served by a single peon, who shall bring back the receipt of the defaulter, or of his manager, for the same; or in the event of inability to procure this, the signatures of three substantial persons residing in the neighbourhood, in attestation of the notice having been brought and published on the spot.

If it shall appear from the tenor of the receipt or attestation in question that the notice has been published at any time previous to the fifteenth of the month of Baisákh, it shall be a sufficient warrant for the sale to proceed upon the day appointed.

In case the people of the village should object or refuse to sign their names in attestation, the peon shall go to the kachahrí of the nearest munsif, or if there should be no munsif, to the nearest thánd, and there make voluntary oath of the same having been duly published; certificate to which effect shall be signed and sealed by the said officers and delivered to the peon.

Mid year sale to be applied for on first of Kártik.

Third.—On the first day of Kártik, in the middle of the year, the zamíndár shall be at liberty to present a similar petition, with a statement of any balances that may be due on account of the rent of the current year, up to the end of the month of Asin, and to cause similar publication to be made of a sale of the tenures of defaulters, to take place on the first of Aghan, unless the whole of the advertised balance shall be paid before the date in question, or so much of it as shall reduce the arrear, including any intermediate demand for the month of Kártik, to less than one-fourth or a four-anna proportion of the total demand of the zamíndár, according to the kistbandí, calculated from the commencement of the year to the last day of Kártik.

Sales how conducted.

9. All sales of saleable tenures applied for under the rules of this Regulation shall be made in public kachahrí; the land shall be sold to the highest bidder, and every one not the actual defaulter shall be free to bid, not excepting the person in satisfaction of whose demand the sale may be made, nor the under-tenants of the defaulter; fifteen per cent. of the purchase-money shall be paid immediately the lot is knocked down, and the officer conducting the sale shall be competent to refuse to accept a bid, or to knock down a lot to any bidder, unless he has assurance to his satisfaction that the amount required to be deposited is in hand for the purpose, or will be produced within two hours.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Schedule III.—Summary sale of Patní Tenures.)

If the fifteen per cent. be not paid in cash, * * * * * * * * * * within two hours of the sale, or an equivalent amount in Government securities be not lodged, the lot shall be resold on the same day, and if the remainder of the purchase-money be not paid by noon of the eighth day, notice shall be given of resale on the following day, that is, on the ninth from the first sale, by proclaiming the same by beat of drum through the bázár of the sadr station of the zila, after which the lot shall be resold at the appointed time at the risk of the first purchaser, who shall forfeit the advance of fifteen per cent. already made, and be further answerable for any sum in which the proceeds of the second sale may fall short of the antecedent one; such deficiency to be levied by the process for the execution of decrees of the Civil Courts.

The forfeited deposit shall be applied to defray the expenses of the sale, and the surplus shall be credited to Government.

Forms to be observed in selling.

10. At the time of the sale, the notice previously stuck up in the kachahrí shall be taken down, and the lots be called up successively in the order in which they may be found in that notice.

A person shall attend on the part of the zamíndár, with a particular statement of the payments made up to the day of sale, on account of the balance of each advertised lot, together with the receipt for, or certificate of, the notice directed to be published in the mufassal, nor shall any lot be put up to sale until the statement produced shall have been inspected, and the existence of a balance for the year ascertained therefrom, nor until the receipt for the notice shall have been read; the observance of which forms shall be recorded in a separate rubakárí to be held upon each lot sold.

If the sale be of the description provided for in the third clause of section 8 of this Regulation, the kistbandí of the defaulter shall likewise be produced, in order that it may be seen that the balance remaining unpaid exceeds a four-anna proportion of the demand up to the date of sale; nor shall the sale take place unless this be ascertained.

The zamíndár shall be exclusively responsible for the correctness and authenticity of the papers to be thus exhibited, nor shall the public officer making the sale be answerable in any respect, except for its fairness and publicity, and for the observance of the rules prescribed for his guidance in this Regulation.

Tenure to be sold free of incumbrance by act of defaulter.

11. First.—It is hereby declared, that any taluq or saleable tenure that may be disposed of at a public sale, under the rules of this Regulation, for arrears of rent due on account of it, is sold free of all incumbrances that may have accrued upon it by act of the defaulting proprietor, his representatives or assignees, unless the right of making such incumbrances shall have been expressly vested in the holder by a stipulation to that effect in the written engagements under which the said taluq may have been held.

No transfer by sale, gift or otherwise, no mortgage or other limited assignment, shall be permitted to bar the indefeasible right of the zamíndár to hold the tenure of his creation answerable, in the state in which he created it, for the rent which is in fact his reserved property in the tenure, except the transfer or assignment should have been made with a condition to that effect, under express authority obtained from such zamíndár.

No under-lease to stand after sale.

Second.—In like manner, on sale of a taluq for arrears, all leases originating with the holder of the former tenure, if creative of a middle interest between the resident cultivators and the late proprietor, must be considered to be cancelled, except the authority to grant them should have been specially transferred; the possessors of such interests must consequently lose the right to hold possession of the land and to collect the rents of the raiyats; this having been enjoyed merely in consequence of the defaulter's assignment of a certain portion of his own interest, the whole of which was liable for the rent.

* * * * *

Reason for allowing under-tenants means of staying sale.

13. First.—With reference to the injury that may be brought upon the holder of a taluq of the second degree by the operation of the preceding rules, in case the proprietor of the superior tenure purposely withholds the rent due from himself to the zamíndár, after having realised his own dues from the inferior tenantry, it is deemed necessary to allow such taluqdárs the means of saving their tenures from the ruin that must attend such a sale; and the following rules have accordingly been enacted for this purpose.

How under-tenants may stay sale.

Second.—Whenever the tenure of a taluqdár of the first degree may be advertised for sale in the manner required by the second and third clauses of section 8 of this Regulation, for arrears of rent due to the zamíndár, the taluqdárs of the second degree, or any number of them, shall be entitled to stay the final sale, by paying into the Collectorate the amount of balance that may be declared due by the person attending on the part of the zamíndár on the day appointed for sale; in like manner they shall be entitled to lodge money antecedently, for the purpose of eventually answering any demand that may remain due on the day fixed for the sale, and should the amount lodged be sufficient, the sale shall not proceed, but after

Bengal Tenancy Bill.
(Schedule III.—Summary sale of Patní Tenures.)

making good to the zamíndár the amount of his demand, any excess shall be paid back to the person or persons who may have lodged it.

Procedure in case of amount lodged being rent due from under-tenant;

Third.—If the amount so lodged shall be rent due by the inferior taluqdár to the holder of the advertised tenure, the same shall be stated at the time of making the deposit, and the amount shall be carried to the account of the tenant or tenants lodging it, and be deducted from any claim of rent that may at the time be pending, or be thereafter brought forward against him or them by the proprietor of the advertised tenure, on account of the year or months for which the notice of sale may have been published.

and in case of amount lodged being advanced from private funds.

Fourth.—If the person or persons making such a deposit, in order to stay the sale of the superior tenure, shall have already paid the whole of the rent due from himself or themselves, so that the amount lodged is an advance from private funds, and not a disbursement on account of the said rent, such deposit shall not be carried to credit in, or set against, future demands for rent, but shall be considered as a loan made to the proprietor of the tenure preserved from sale by such means, and the taluq so preserved shall be the security to the person or persons making the advance, who shall be considered to have a lien thereupon, in the same manner as if the loan had been made upon mortgage, and he or they shall be entitled, on applying for the same, to obtain immediate possession of the tenure of the defaulter, in order to recover the amount so advanced from any profits belonging thereto.

If the defaulter shall desire to recover his tenure from the hands of the person or persons who, by making the advance, may have acquired such an interest therein, and entered on possession in consequence, he shall not be entitled to do so, except upon repayment of the entire sum advanced, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum up to the date of possession having been given as above, or upon exhibiting proof, in a regular suit to be instituted for the purpose, that the full amount so advanced, with interest, has been realised from the usufruct of the tenure.

Sale not to be stayed unless arrear claim be lodged.

14. First.—Should the balance claimed by a zamíndár on account of the rent of any under-tenure remain unpaid upon the day fixed for the sale of the tenure, the sale shall be made without reserve, in the manner provided for in sections 9 and 10 of this Regulation; nor shall it be stayed or postponed on any account, unless the amount of the demand be lodged.

But suit to lie for its reversal.

It shall, however, be competent to any party desirous of contesting the right of the zamíndár to make the sale, whether on the ground of there having been no balance due, or on any other ground, to sue the zamíndár for the reversal of the same, and upon establishing a sufficient plea, to obtain a decree with full costs and damages.

The purchaser shall be made a party in such suits, and upon decree passing for reversal of the sale, the Court shall be careful to indemnify him against all loss, at the charge of the zamíndár or person at whose suit the sale may have been made.

Defaulter may apply for summary investigation.

Second.—In cases also in which a taluqdár may contest the zamíndár's demand of any arrear, as specified in the notice advertised, such taluqdár shall be competent to apply for a summary investigation at any time within the period of notice; the zamíndár shall then be called upon to furnish his kabuliyat and other proofs at the shortest convenient notice, in order that the award may, if possible, be made before the day appointed for sale.

Sale not to be stayed unless amount claimed be deposited.

Such award, if so made, will of course regulate the ulterior process; but if the case be still pending, the lot shall be called up in its turn, notwithstanding the suit; and if the zamíndár or his agent in attendance insist on the demand, the sale shall be made on his responsibility, nor shall it be stayed, or the summary suit be allowed to proceed, unless the amount claimed be lodged in cash, * * * * * * * * or in Government securities, by the taluqdár contesting the demand; and if such deposit be not made, the alleged defaulter will have no remedy, but by a regular action for damages and for a reversal of the sale.

Delivery of possession to purchaser.

15. First.—So soon as the entire amount of the purchase-money shall have been paid in by the purchaser at any sale made under this Regulation, such purchaser shall receive from the officers conducting the sale a certificate of such payment.

The purchaser shall then proceed with the certificate in question to procure a transfer to his name in the kachahrí of the zamíndár, and upon furnishing security, if required, to the extent of half the jama or annual rent, he shall receive the usual 'amaldastak' or order for possession, together with the notice to the raiyats and others to attend and pay their rents henceforward to him.

The zamíndár shall also be bound to furnish access to any papers connected with the tenure purchased, that may be forthcoming in his kachahrí; and should he in any manner delay the transfer in his office, or refuse to give the orders for possession, notwithstanding that good and substantial security shall have been furnished or tendered on requisition, the new purchaser shall be entitled to apply direct to the Collector; and he shall receive the orders for possession, and shall be put in possession, of the lands by means of the názir, in the same manner as possession is obtained under a decree of Court; * * *

* * * * * *

Procedure in case of opposition to purchaser.

Second.—When the new purchaser shall proceed to take possession of the lands of his purchase, if the late incumbent himself, or the holders of tenures or assignments derived from the late incumbent, and intermediate between him and the actual cultivators, shall attempt to offer opposition, or to interfere with the collections of the new purchaser, from the lands composing his purchase, the latter shall be at liberty to apply immediately to the Collector for the aid of the public officers in obtaining possession of his just rights.

A proclamation shall then issue under the seal and signature of the Collector declaring that the new incumbent having, by purchase at a sale for arrears of rent due to the zamíndár, acquired the entire rights and privileges attaching to the tenure of the late taluqdár, in the state in which it was originally derived by him from the zamíndár, he alone will be recognized as entitled to make the zamíndárí collections in the mufassal, and no payments made to any other individual will on any account be credited to the raiyats or others in any suit for rent or on any other occasion whatever when the same may be pleaded.

Procedure in case of continued opposition.

Third.—Should the late incumbent or his late under-tenants continue to oppose the entry of the new purchaser, notwithstanding the issuing of such a proclamation, or should there be reason to apprehend a breach of the peace on the part of any one, the aid of the Police-officers and of all other public officers who may be at hand and capable of affording assistance shall be given to the new purchaser, on his presenting a written application for the same; and in the event of any affray or breach of the peace occurring, the entire responsibility shall rest with the party opposing the lawful attempt of the purchaser to assume his rights.

* * * * *

Disposal of proceeds of sales.

17. First.—The following rules have been enacted for the disposal of the proceeds of any sale made under the rules of this Regulation.

Deduction on account of Government.

Second.—One per cent. shall first be deducted from the nett proceeds realised, and shall be carried to the account of Government, for the purpose of meeting the expense of any extra establishments which it may be necessary to maintain for carrying into effect the provisions of this Regulation.

Payment to zamíndárs.

Third.—The balance on account of which the sale may have been made shall next be made good in full (with interest and all charges incurred in bringing the taluq to sale) to the zamíndár or other person to whom the same may be due; provided, however, that no former balances, beyond those of the current year (or of that immediately expired, if the sale be at the commencement of the following year), shall be included in the demand to be thus satisfied.

Such antecedent balances, if the zamíndár shall have omitted to avail himself of the process within his reach for having them satisfied at the time, will have become in fact mere personal debts of the individual taluqdár, and must be recovered in the same way as other debts by a regular suit in the Court.

Disposal of remainder.

Fourth.—Any excess that may remain after satisfying the demand of the zamíndár, in the manner above described, shall be forthwith sent by the officer conducting the sale to the treasury of the Collector or Assistant Collector of the district, to be there held in deposit to answer the claims of the taluqdárs of the second degree, or of others who, by assignment of the defaulter, may be at the time in possession of a valuable interest on the land composing the taluq sold, or on any part of it.

Under-tenants free to prosecute for price of their interest or compensation.

Fifth.—It shall be competent to any one conceiving himself to possess such an interest to bring forward his claim to the price he may have paid for the same, or for a just compensation for the loss sustained by him in consequence of the sale, by instituting a regular suit at any time within two months from the date of sale.

If the Court shall, on investigation, consider the plaintiff's claim to be an equitable one, the Court will award to the claimant either the price he may have originally paid, or the value of the interest at the time of sale, or any other amount that may be deemed just and equitable under all the circumstances.

If there be more claimants than one, payment shall not be made from the deposit, until the whole of the claims be settled; and in case the value assessed upon the whole should exceed the amount in deposit, such amount shall be divided proportionately, and the remainder stand as a personal debt against the defaulter, to be realised from him by the usual process for the execution of decrees.

Suit not to lie if under tenant be himself in arrear at time of sale.

Sixth.—Provided, however, that no taluqdár of the second degree or other possessor of an assigned interest upon the land of the tenure sold, who may be holding under a stipulation for the payment of an annual amount in the way of rent, shall be entitled to recover compensation for the loss of such tenure or assignment upon its becoming cancelled by sale of the superior taluq, except after exhibiting proof that the whole amount of the rent demandable from himself has been paid or lodged for the purpose prior to the date of sale.

When defaulter to receive excess unclaimed.

Seventh.—Should no claims upon the purchase-money of a taluq sold as above be brought forward by any under-tenants or assignees, within the period of two months from the date of sale, or should the amount claimed by those who may have sued not equal the entire deposit, the defaulter whose tenure may have been sold shall be at liberty to petition the Court for the amount so held in deposit, or for the excess thereof, as the case may be, and he shall receive a certificate under the seal of the Court, of there being no claims to afford ground of detention for the whole or any part of the deposit; and upon exhibiting such certificate to the Collector, the amount set free thereby shall be paid to his receipt.

In the same manner, upon executing a decree passed in favour of any under-tenants or assignees, they shall receive certificates under the seal of the Court, declaring the amount adjudged to them out of the deposit; and upon exhibiting these certificates, the amount shall be paid severally to their receipts by the Collector.

Substitution of Government securities for cash in deposit.

Eighth.—It shall be competent to any party interested in a deposit, to withdraw the whole or any part thereof, on substituting Government securities, bearing interest, in lieu of the money so held in deposit; such securities to be taken at the rate of discount or premium of the day, as shown by the Government Gazette last received.

SCHEDULE IV.

(See Section 224.)

PART I.—Suits.

Description of suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
1. To eject any tenure-holder or raiyat on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is a contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach.	One year .	The date of the breach.

PART I.—Suits—concluded.

Description of Suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
2. For the recovery of an arrear of rent— (a) when the arrear fell due before a deposit was made on account of the rent of the same holding under section 103.	Six months .	The date of the deposit.
(b) in other cases .	Three years .	The last day of the Bengali year in which the arrear fell due, where that year prevails, and the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Amli or Fasli year in which the arrear fell due, where either of those years prevails.

PART II.—Appeals.

Description of Appeal.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
3. From any decree or order under this Act to the Court of a District Judge.	Thirty days .	The date of the decree or order appealed against.
4. From any order of a Collector under this Act to the Commissioner.	Thirty days .	The date of the order appealed against.

PART III.—Applications.

Description of Application.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
5. For the execution of a decree or order made under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, and not being a decree for a sum of money exceeding Rs. 500, exclusive of any interest which may have accrued after decree upon the sum decreed, but inclusive of the costs of executing such decree, except where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree.	Three years .	(1) The date of the decree of order; or (2) where there has been an appeal, the date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court; or (3) where there has been a review of judgment, the date of the decision passed on the review.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE history of landlord and tenant legislation in Bengal, and of the circumstances which have led to the preparation of the present Bill, is given in full detail in the papers which have been published. A very brief summary of it must suffice here.

Immediately before the Permanent Settlement was made, the Court of Directors, in conveying instructions to the Government here regarding it, wrote as follows*:—

"In order to leave no room for our intentions being at any time misunderstood, we direct you to be accurate in the terms in which our determination is announced. * * * * You will, in a particular manner, be cautious so to express yourselves as to leave no ambiguity as to our right to interfere, from time to time, as it may be necessary, for the protection of the raiyats and subordinate landlords, it being our intention, in the whole of this measure, effectually to limit our own demands, but not to depart from our inherent right as sovereigns of being the guardians and protectors of every class of persons living under our Government."

2. In conformity with these instructions, an article was inserted in section 8 of Regulation I of 1793, by which the Permanent Settlement was effected, expressly saving the right of the Government to legislate for the protection of persons having interests in the soil below those of the zamíndárs. It need hardly be said that any such saving was, strictly speaking, superfluous, inasmuch as the Government of an agricultural country like India would, apart altogether from it, be entitled, or rather bound, to legislate from time to time, as occasion might require, for the protection of the inferior occupants of the soil. But the article is important as showing that the view taken of the relations between the Government, the zamíndárs and the inferior landholders under the Permanent Settlement was the same in 1793 as it is to-day.

The article runs as follows:—

"To prevent any mi-construction of the foregoing articles" (fixing the Government revenue for ever) "the Governor General in Council thinks it necessary to make the following declarations to the zamíndárs, independent taluqdárs and other actual proprietors of land:— First, it being the duty of the ruling power to protect all classes of people, and more particularly those who, from their situation, are most helpless, the Governor General in Council will, whenever he may deem it proper, enact such regulations as he may think necessary for the protection and welfare of the dependent taluqdárs, raiyats and other cultivators of the soil; and no zamíndár, independent taluqdár or other actual proprietor of land shall be entitled on this account to make any objection to the discharge of the fixed assessment which they have respectively agreed to pay."

3. Again, it was enacted by section 67 of Regulation VIII of 1793 (a Regulation re-enacting, with modifications, the rules for the Decennial Settlement) that proprietors should be bound by the restrictions in their kabuliyats, and the 9th of these, as stated by Harington (Vol. II, page 255), was "that implicit obedience be shown to all regulations which have been or may be prescribed by Government concerning the rents of the raiyats and the collections from undertenants and agents of every description, as well as from all other persons whatever."

4. The most important enactment passed in pursuance of these provisions is Act X of 1859, the substantive provisions of which, either in their original form or as re-enacted in Act VIII of 1869† (of the Bengal Council), still govern the relations of landlord and tenant in Bengal.

The effect of Act X of 1859 is admitted to have been on the whole beneficial; but on certain important points it cannot be considered a success. In particular, as will presently be explained at greater length, it placed the right of occupancy, which it recognized in the tenant, and the right to enhance rent, which it recognized in the landlord, on a most precarious footing. The result of this has been that, as usually happens with a law which is uncertain in its operation, it has added strength to the strong and further weakened those who were already weak. In Bihár, where the social and economical conditions of the country tend to give the landlords the upper hand, we hear of tenants rack-rented, subjected to quasi-feudal oppressions and arbitrarily ousted from their holdings; in Eastern Bengal, on the contrary, where circumstances favour the tenants, we hear of landlords who not only cannot obtain the enhancements of rent to which they are entitled, but at times, when tenants combine against them, cannot even recover what is admitted to be due at existing rates.

5. The difficulties connected with Act X of 1859 began to be felt at an early period. It received the assent of the Governor General on the 29th of April, 1859, and before the end of 1863 its amendment had been suggested by Sir Barnes Peacock, the Chief Justice of Bengal, and by the Revenue-authorities of the North-Western Provinces. Of late years, successive Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal have borne witness to the existence of chronic evils, which nothing short of comprehensive legislation could cure. In 1873, Sir George Campbell had no doubt that the Government would be eventually compelled to deal with the whole question of the relations of landlords and raiyats in Bengal. In 1876, in the course of the debates on the Agrarian Disputes Act, a measure devised to meet the difficulties between landlords and tenants in Eastern Bengal, the Hon'ble Kristodás Pál, a representative of the zamíndárs, urged that the indefiniteness of the principles of Act X of 1859 had brought suits for the adjustment of rents to a dead-lock. Sir R. Temple concurred in the opinion that some principle for determining rates of rent should be fixed by legislation, and in August, 1876, proposed to introduce a Bill to define the principles on which the rights of occupancy-raiyats and tenure-holders should be fixed, to simplify the procedure for realizing arrears of rent in undisputed cases, to extend the definition of "occupancy-raiyat," and to render the interest of a raiyat of that class liable to sale for default in paying rent and transferable by private agreement.

† Throughout this Statement Act X of 1859 only will be referred to. It will be understood that what is said regarding it applies equally to Act VIII of 1869.

These proposals had not, however, been fully considered when Sir R. Temple, early in 1877, made over charge of the Lieutenant-Governorship to Sir Ashley Eden; and it was then arranged that the larger amendment of the law should be deferred, and a Bill providing only for the realization of undisputed arrears introduced at once.

6. It was, however, found, when the Bill was introduced, that it was impracticable to limit its scope in this way. The discussion as to the transferability of the right of occupancy had materially advanced, and it had been recognized that the legislature would have to alter the law with reference to ejectment, distraint, instalments and deposits of rent, and possibly sub-letting. It began to be apparent that many of the proposed provisions would eventually prove to be intimately connected with other portions of the existing law not ostensibly affected by them; and in February, 1879, a majority of the Select Committee on the Bill recommended that the whole subject of a revision of the Rent Law should be once for all fairly faced. This proposal was supported by Sir Ashley Eden; and in April, 1879, the Government of India sanctioned the formation of a Commission to prepare a digest of the existing statute and case law, and to frame the draft of a consolidating Bill.

7. Meanwhile, a separate discussion had been proceeding with reference to the abuses already mentioned as prevailing in the relations between landlords and tenants in Bihár. As far back as the year 1868, Lord Lawrence, then Governor General, had recorded a minute relating to the depressed state of the peasantry in Bihár, in which he had said that he believed "that it would be necessary for the Government sooner or later to interfere and pass a law which should thoroughly protect the raiyat and make him—what he is now only in name—a free man, a cultivator with the right to cultivate the land he holds, provided he pays a fair rent for it." Again, in the years 1875 and 1876, when the condition of Bihár came under consideration, it was acknowledged that some remedies must be applied. Two years later, the Lieutenant-Governor appointed a committee of experienced Bihár officials to advise upon the matter; and on the 8th March, 1879, they submitted their report, proposing so many changes of the existing law that they did not consider that the requirements of the case would be properly met by a mere amending Bill. They were of opinion that the whole rent law should be recast.

8. Thus, two independent committees arrived simultaneously at the same conclusion, namely, that the time for a complete revision of the existing law had arrived.

The report of the Bihár committee was referred to the Rent Law Commission, which was appointed under the sanction referred to above (paragraph 6), and that Commission, on the 19th June, 1880, submitted its report with a draft Landlord and Tenant Bill, which, having been revised by the Government of Bengal, has furnished the basis of the present Bill.

9. Before proceeding to give the explanations usual in a statement of this description, it should be mentioned, first, that these explanations will, as far as possible, be confined to points on which it is proposed to alter the existing law, and secondly, that the Bill is no more than it purports to be, namely, a Bill to amend and consolidate existing enactments.

10. With reference to this latter remark, it will be observed that the Bill prepared by the Rent Commission was intended to be in some sense a code of the law relating to agricultural tenancies. It, in many instances, incorporated portions of the common law or case law which have not hitherto been embodied in any legislative enactment in this country. In this respect the present Bill does not follow that of the Rent Commission; but it must not be inferred from this that the views of the Government of India on the important subject of codification have undergone any change. It may be desirable, at some future time, to carry out the design of the Rent Commission in its integrity, and make the Bengal Tenancy Act a complete and self-contained statement of the whole law; but it has been considered that the work of codification is one to be undertaken at a season of leisure, and not at a time like the present, when those, who are responsible for the framing of our legislative measures, are absorbed in the consideration of important substantive amendments of particular portions of the existing law, and are consequently unable to devote to the law as a whole that amount of attention, which would be required in order to carry out the work of codification with any prospect of success.

In the following portions of this Statement the order of the Bill will, as far as possible, be adhered to.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

11. The Bill, it will be observed (section 1), extends by its own vigour to the whole of the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa and the Scheduled Districts.

The Lieutenant-Governor is specially empowered by section 1 to extend the whole Bill, or any portion of it, to the Orissa Division, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and he can, with like sanction, extend the whole, or any portion of it, to any Scheduled District under the power conferred on him by the Scheduled Districts Act.

12. The classes of tenants, to which the provisions of the Bill apply, are (section 3 (8)) tenure-holders, raiyats, under-raiyats and persons having a certain interest in bastu land, which will be found explained further on under the head of Chapter VII.

13. The term "tenure-holder" as used in the Bill is defined (section 3 (3) and (4)) to include what are commonly known as undertenure-holders, that is to say, darpatnídárs, sepatnídárs, darijaradárs and such like; and also tenants of the class hitherto known as raiyats at fixed rates. The inclusion of tenants of this latter class in the definition is convenient from the draftsman's point of view, but is, it is believed, otherwise of little importance, inasmuch as the incidents which are attached to their holdings place them to all practical intents and purposes on the same footing as tenure-holders.

14. The term "raiyat" has, following the Bill prepared by the Rent Law Commission, been limited to tenants holding land for purposes of agriculture, horticulture or pasture, or who have come into possession for such purposes, except where bastu or homestead land is included in a raiyat's agricultural holding, in which case it will be treated in the same way as the rest of the holding, and he will be deemed to hold it as a raiyat.

15. Except as just stated, no attempt has been made to define the terms "tenure-holder" and "raiyat," or to settle the distinction between these two classes of tenants.

The importance of this distinction for the purposes of the Bill has not been overlooked, nor has the possibility that cases may occur near the line of separation between the two classes, in which a doubt will arise as to whether the tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat; but it is believed that the distinction is generally well understood, and that, save in exceptional cases, no difficulty will arise. However this may be, no complete definition has as yet been suggested which would not be certain to give rise to difficulties greater than those which it is intended to remove.

16. Under-raiyat, as defined in the Bill, includes all tenants holding whether immediately or mediately below a raiyat.

17. Section 4, besides saving certain special laws which would, as a matter of course, be saved in a general enactment of this description, provides that nothing in the Bill "shall affect any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions."

A saving of this description is unavoidable in a measure which, as already observed, does not purport to be an exhaustive code, and its importance will be seen from the illustration appended, which shows that it will protect such rights as rights of occupancy enjoyed under a custom by under-raiyats, a class of tenants protected only to a limited extent by the Bill.

CHAPTER II.—Of the distinction between khámár and raiyatí land.

18. The second chapter of the Bill deals with the distinction between "khámár land," or the private land of the proprietor, and raiyatí land, or the land destined for occupation by raiyats. The importance of this distinction arises chiefly from the circumstance that raiyats occupying land of the latter class will, under the Bill, enjoy a much larger measure of protection than those occupying land of the former class. Bearing this in mind, and having regard to the efforts made by landlords in some parts of the country, under the existing law, to get into their own hands as large an amount of the raiyatí land as possible and convert it into khámár land, it has been thought necessary to make it clear by the definition that the existing stock of khamar land cannot hereafter be increased, and further to enact (section 6) that all land which is not khamar land shall be deemed to be raiyatí land, and that all land shall be presumed to be raiyatí land until the contrary is proved.

19. In Bihár, owing to the large extent of the khámár, or, as it is there termed, "zeraat", land, and the persistent efforts made by the landlords and their lessees to increase its extent, the question is one of cardinal importance; and there may be other exceptional tracts where the necessity of distinguishing clearly and finally between khámár and raiyatí land may prove to be pressing. To meet such cases, it is further thought necessary to provide (sections 7 to 13) for making a complete survey and record of the existing khámár or zeraat, and thus preclude all possibility of future disputes on the point.

CHAPTER III.—Of Tenure-holders generally.

20. The alterations which it is proposed to make in the existing law regarding tenures, are not of great importance.

Section 14 converts the present raiyats at fixed rates into tenure-holders, but, as already explained (supra, paragraph 13), the change is unimportant.

21. Section 20, which saves to a landlord in a temporarily-settled tract a right to raise the rent of any tenure when a new settlement of the revenue is made, is new; but it may be defended as being in accordance with the views that prevail as to the relative position of the landlord, the tenant and the Government in such tracts. The Government has an undoubted right to raise its revenue on the occasion of a fresh settlement. Of this right no act of the landlord can deprive it; and accordingly, if the landlord were to be bound by a grant at fixed rates, made by him so as to extend beyond the term of the settlement, the result would be that, on the occasion of a new settlement, he might be exposed to the risk of having to pay an enhanced revenue without the possibility of recovering it from his tenant.

22. The Rent Commissioners observe that there are in the existing law no express provisions for the enhancement of the rents of tenures, and that the want of a definite enactment on the point has given rise to much expensive litigation. The sections of the Bill relating to this matter are based on those drafted by the Commissioners, and the grounds on which they rest will be best seen from the following extract from the Commissioners' report:—

"We have," they say, "provided for the enhancement of the rent of tenures and under-tenures, by enacting that, in any case in which such rent is liable to enhancement,—there are cases in which it is not so liable,—it may be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures or undertenures in the vicinity, or, where no such customary rate exists, up to such limit as to the Court shall appear fair and equitable, but so that the profit of the tenure-holder or undertenure-holder shall not (in the absence of certain special circumstances, to be noticed hereafter) exceed thirty per centum of the balance which remains after deducting, from the gross rents payable to him, the expenses of collecting such rents. It may be observed that, according to the rule contained in section 8 of Regulation V of 1812, ten per cent. of the balance just mentioned was allowed to the tenure-holder. This section was repealed by Act X of 1859, but, by some oversight, no provision was substituted by this Act, though the principle, as being fair and equitable in itself, and usual by reason of the provisions of the Regulation, was, on several occasions, acted upon by the Courts after that Act was passed. It appears to a majority of us, after careful consideration, that the limit of ten per cent. is too low, and we have accordingly allowed a higher limit, namely, that of a maximum not exceeding thirty per cent. in ordinary cases.* We have provided for the special and well-known case of jangalbari holdings by enacting that, when more than one hundred bíghás of land have been demised for reclamation purposes, more than half being at the time unreclaimed, and the whole having been subsequently reclaimed, the rent of the tenant may not be enhanced so as to leave him a profit of less than twenty per cent. of the net balance above-mentioned, and the Court may allow him such profit in excess of twenty per cent. as to it appears fair and equitable. In order to prevent these new provisions from working hardship by any sudden and great change, we have annexed the following checks:—(a) the enhanced rent shall not in any case be more than double the previous rent: (b) the Court may direct that the enhancement shall take effect gradually, or, in other words, that the rent shall increase yearly during any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached: and (c) that rent once enhanced shall not be altered for ten years unless on account of alluvion or diluvion."

23. The only further points calling for notice in connection with these sections are, that it has been provided that the tenure-holder's profits shall never be less than 10 per cent. of the net balance, that the provision regarding jangalburi tenures has been made applicable to all such tenures irrespective of the area comprised in them, and that a clause has been added providing that, when a tenure-holder has made improvements other than those referred to by the Commissioners, the Court may allow him such amount, by way of profit, as it thinks fit, provided it be not less than 10 per cent.

* Mr. Justice Levinge mentions, in his Minute on Act X, a case in which two-thirds (he does not say, whether of the gross or net collections) were given to the landlord and the residue to the middleman. If the calculation was here made on the net collections, the collection expenses being at ten per cent., the middleman got 30 per cent., being $100-\frac{2(100-10)}{3}-10$.

24. In section 26, it is enacted that a permanent tenure-holder shall not be ejected by his landlord except under a decree of Court passed on the ground that he has broken a condition, on breach of which he is, under a written contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

25. The alterations which are made in the existing law by sections 27 to 35, relating to the registration in the landlord's serishta of transfers of, and successions to, permanent tenures, are (so far as they seem to call for notice) as follows :—

(a) A fee is made payable in respect of the registration of every succession and every transfer other than a transfer on a sale for arrears of rent.

(b) An application for the registration of a voluntary transfer or a succession may, instead of being made to the landlord, be made to a Revenue-officer, who will serve a notice on the landlord requiring him to register.

(c) Where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent, the Court will cause a notice to be served on the landlord requiring him to register the transfer.

(d) If a landlord refuses or neglects to register for one month after he is bound to do so, the persons interested may apply to the Civil Court to compel him to register.

(e) Similarly, if the party or parties concerned do not apply for registration within six months from the date of a voluntary transfer or a succession, the landlord may apply to have him or them compelled to allow the registration and pay the requisite fee.

(f) The landlord is required to give to the parties concerned copies of entries in his register; the first copy to be given free of charge, subsequent copies on payment.

(g) The Board of Revenue is empowered to make rules regulating registration.

26. The proposal of the Rent Commission to extend the registration system to occupancy-holdings has not been adopted, as it is feared that there would be great difficulty in bringing home to persons of the raiyat class the details of such a system.

CHAPTER IV.—Of Patní Tenures.

27. The law relating to patní tenures is left substantially unchanged. The various proposals which have been made for the amendment of the summary sale procedure have not been overlooked; but it is thought that, as they touch only matters of detail relating to an institution of a very special nature, they would be best considered at the Select Committee stage of the Bill when it is hoped it may be found possible to simplify the form of the law very much without materially changing its substance. Meantime, the existing enactments have been thrown into Schedule III of the Act, and are made operative by section 42.

CHAPTER V.—Of Raiyats with a Right of Occupancy.

28. Chapter V, which treats of the acquisition of the occupancy-right and of the incidents generally of that right, is one of the most important chapters in the Bill.

It will be seen, from the papers that have been published in connection with this measure, that a controversy has arisen, and has been conducted on both sides with much ability and research, as to whether some such right as that which we usually term a right of occupancy did not originally belong, and ought not now to be recognized as belonging, to all raiyats in Bengal except those whose occupation of the land is of a merely transitory nature. It is unnecessary now to enter upon the merits of that question, inasmuch as, after a full consideration of the position, it has been determined that the legislation to be undertaken by the Government shall proceed on the assumption that the occupancy-right is to be recognized as appertaining only to such tenants as may be shown to be in some special sense settled or permanent. But the problem of defining the class of tenants in whom such a right should be recognized is, when limited by this assumption, one of considerable difficulty.

29. The conditions requisite to confer the status of the "khudkásht raiyat," so frequently referred to in our revenue enactments and records, may in earlier times, and especially when thoroughly organized village-communities prevailed, have been to a certain extent definite and ascertainable; but, in spite of all the learning and research which have been brought to bear, they are not now to be discovered. The probability is that they were always very vague; that, notwithstanding their vagueness, no difficulty arose so long as land was abundant, the pressure of the Government revenue heavy and the status of a privileged cultivator of little value; and that it was only with the progress of agriculture, the increase in the value of landed property and the consequent disputes regarding interests in land, that the need of some more precise definition came to be felt.

30. A definition framed under such circumstances would necessarily be to a great extent artificial, and in moulding its details there would necessarily be a good deal of room left for considerations of equity and expediency. We find accordingly, on referring to the proceedings connected with Act X of 1859, that those who framed that Act assumed a considerable latitude in settling the conditions on which the occupancy-status should be acquired. In the Bill as read a first time, they proposed to confer on every "resident" raiyat a right of occupancy in the "land held by him," and they justified this on the ground that the word "khudkásht," as used in the Regulations, seemed to be synonymous with "resident"; but subsequently, it having been pointed out to them by the Revenue-authorities of the North-Western Provinces that "residence was not always a condition of occupancy," they adopted the rule embodied by them in the Act, namely, that twelve years' holding of the same land shall give a right of occupancy in that land. This rule, which was obviously to a large extent artificial, was copied by them from a similar rule which was issued by the North-Western Provinces Government, apparently as a mere executive suggestion to its officers, in the year 1836, as that "most consistent with the existing practice and recognized rights" in those provinces. The only feature common to the two rules is that of a raiyat in some sense permanent in, or settled in, the locality, and it would seem that the persons who framed those rules considered that as long as they maintained this feature, they were at liberty to define, in such manner as they might think equitable and expedient, the circumstances which should be taken to constitute the requisite degree of permanency or settlement. This is quite intelligible in the view above suggested, that, though the status of the khudkásht raiyat was still a recognized institution, the conditions requisite to establish it were so vague that they could not be described otherwise than as resting on a certain ill-defined degree of permanency in a particular locality.

31. Act X of 1859 is admitted to have done much towards improving the relations between landlord and tenant, but, in this particular matter of defining the conditions requisite to the establishment of a right of occupancy, it cannot be pronounced a success. It would be unjust to charge this want of success altogether against the Act itself. It has been held by the highest judicial authority that the provisions of the Act with respect to the establishment of the right of occupancy should be construed as cumulative and not as exhaustive or exclusive of all other modes of establishing that right; but, as a matter of fact, the Act has come to be regarded as a Code complete in itself, and as superseding all other modes of establishing the right. Its effect has consequently been to injure seriously the rights of the old established raiyats, by throwing upon them the burden of proving, not merely that they have held for twelve years in the village or estate, but further that they have so held in every one of the particular fields or plots, in respect of which they claim to have rights of occupancy, a burden which, it need hardly be said, it is impossible for them, in the absence of any trustworthy agricultural records, to discharge. And, as regards the acquisition of rights of occupancy by new comers,—a matter which is always regarded as absolutely necessary for the prosperity of the agriculturist class in this country,—it becomes almost impossible under a law which enables the landlord to prevent it by the simple device of shifting the tenant from one holding to another before the period of twelve years has run out.

32. It is unnecessary to state here the various remedies which have been proposed for these evils. They will be found described and discussed in paragraph 61 of the letter of the Government of India to the Secretary of State, No. 6, dated 4th March, 1882. It is enough to state the amendment of the law which the Government, after a very full discussion of the question, has resolved to propose. That amendment follows with certain modifications a suggestion of the Famine Commissioners, and consists in making the acquisition of the status of the khudkásht raiyat, or, as he is termed in the Bill, the "settled raiyat," depend not on the holding of one and the same plot of land for twelve years, but (section 45) on the holding of any raiyatí land (whether the same or not it does not matter) in the same village or estate for a period of twelve years whether before or after the passing of the Act. The raiyat may, by ceasing for one year to hold land as a raiyat in the village or estate (section 46), lose the status so acquired, but while it continues to adhere to him, he will, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in any raiyatí land held by him as a raiyat in the village or estate after the 2nd March, 1883, the date on which it is proposed to introduce the Bill. It should be added that, in order to obviate the effect which the minute partitions of estates, so common of late in certain parts of the country, would have in reducing the area in respect of which a settled raiyat of an estate would enjoy his status as such, it is in effect provided by section 43 that the estate shall, for the purposes of this portion of the Act, be taken to be the estate as it would have existed if no partition had taken place since the 1st of January, 1853.

33. It will be observed from the above that a right of occupancy is acquired by a settled raiyat holding raiyatí land "notwithstanding any contract to the contrary." It is considered essential to carry the enactment to this extent. As observed by the Government of India in paragraph 85 of their letter No. 6 of the 21st March, 1882, "such is the power of the zamíndárs, so numerous and effective are the means possessed by most of them for inducing the raiyats to accept agreements which, if history, custom and expediency be regarded, are wrongful and contrary to good policy, that to uphold contracts in contravention of the main purpose of the Bill would be, in our belief, to condemn it to defeat and failure. It is absolutely necessary that such contracts should be disallowed, and in this conclusion we have the support not only of the Bengal Government but also of the almost unanimous opinions of the Bengal officers."

34. These provisions apply only to raiyatí land. The acquisition of a right of occupancy in the landlord's khamar land is, by section 49, kept on the same footing as under the existing law

35. It is only necessary to add, as regards the acquisition of the right, that it is provided by section 44 of the Bill that every raiyat, who immediately before the commencement of the Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when the Act comes into force, become an occupancy-raiyat of that land for the purposes of the Act, and that (section 48) a right of occupancy may be acquired by a grant from he landlord.

36. As regards the probable effect of the new provisions regarding the acquisition of the right of occupancy, it should be stated that no great increase of the area at present subject to that right is looked for from them; indeed, if the statement which has been made by a high authority, that 90 per cent. of the raiyats in Bengal already have that right, is correct, any such increase would scarcely be possible; but what is hoped for is, first, that a stop may be put to the vigorous efforts, which are at present being made by landlords in some parts of the country, to withdraw land from the operation of the right by preventing the natural growth of a fresh occupancy-right in the place of an old right which has determined; and secondly, that, where occupancy-rights do as a matter of fact exist, the proof of their existence may be a matter of less difficulty than it is at present to the ignorant and helpless raiyat.

37. Section 50 states in general terms the more important incidents of the occupancy-right. They attach to the tenancy notwithstanding any contract between the landlord and raiyat, and are briefly as follows:—

(1) the raiyat may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy;

(2) he may make improvements on it as provided by the Bill;

(3) he must pay rent at fair and equitable rates as determined by the Bill;

(4) he cannot be ejected except under a decree passed for breach of certain conditions, or for using the land in such a way as to render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy;

(5) he may sublet the land;

(6) his interest is to be transferable subject to certain rights reserved to the landlord; and

(7) his interest is to descend as if it were land.

38. Several of these incidents will be referred to at greater length in connection with the portions of the Bill specially relating to them. The sixth falls to be considered here, inasmuch as most of the remaining sections of the chapter are occupied with the rules regulating the rights reserved to the landlord when an occupancy-holding is transferred by sale, mortgage, gift or bequest.

The question whether the right of occupancy should be made by express enactment freely transferable everywhere, as it is at present held to be by custom throughout a very large portion of the area to which the Bill applies, has been most fully and carefully considered. It has to be looked at from two points of view, namely, first, from the point of view of the landlord, and secondly, in the interests of the tenant.

39. From the former point of view the question presents comparatively little difficulty. The landlord is concerned only to see that we do not allow an objectionable tenant to be forced on him against his will, and this we can readily guard against by giving him a right of pre-emption, or something equivalent thereto, in every case of transfer. It has accordingly been provided that, in cases of voluntary sale, gift or bequest, the landlord shall have a right to purchase at a price to be fixed by the Civil Court; that in the case of a sale in execution of a decree, when the landlord and any other person bid the same amount, the landlord shall have the right of pre-emption; and that, when an order is passed for foreclosing a mortgage of an occupancy-right, the landlord shall be allowed an opportunity of paying in the amount of the mortgage-debt and taking the place of the mortgagee. The only doubt that has been felt about these provisions is whether, in the case of a voluntary sale, the landlord should not be required, if he exercised his right of pre-emption, to pay the price at which the raiyat has actually agreed to sell the occupancy, right instead of a price to be fixed by the Court; but, on considering the difficulties, by which the right of pre-emption would be clogged in cases of collusion between the vendor and purchaser, and in cases in which a spiteful neighbour might be willing to pay an exorbitant sum for an occupancy-right with a view to harassing the landlord, it has been thought best to put the case of voluntary sale on the same footing as those of gift and bequest.

40. Looking at the question of transferability next from the point of view of the occupancy-raiyat's interest, the Local Government and the Government of India have come to the conclusion that, in the absence of evidence of any evil consequences which have already followed from such transfers, or which may be anticipated as likely to occur in the near future, it would be unwise to oppose the growth of the very strong tendency towards transferability, which the prevailing customs show to existin rights of this class in almost all parts of the country.

The existence of such a tendency indicates—what, indeed, is clear from other evidence—that those most concerned regard the quality of transferability as an important incident of the right; and it cannot be doubted that the enactment of a law absolutely forbidding transfer would, even if it saved existing customs, be regarded as a hardship. It may be added that, if the custom of transferability is so widely established as is stated by some very competent authorities, the operation of a law of this sort would be so limited as to be of but little importance.

41. That the powers of transferring and sub-letting which the Bill recognizes may in time lead to a state of things, in which the great bulk of the actual cultivators would be not occupancy-raiyats but under-raiyats with but little protection from the law, is indeed within the range of possibility; but, if such a state of things should ever arise, we may rest assured that the Government of the day will know how to deal with it. There is nothing in the present Bill which ought in any way to hamper them in doing so—nothing to affect the principle that, in an agricultural country like India, the great mass of the actual cultivators of the soil whoever they may be, and however they may have come into the possession of the land, must be protected by the law.

42. The only other provision of Chapter V which appears to call for notice here is that contained in section 56, and is to the effect that, where a landlord, by way of pre-emption under the foregoing sections or otherwise, acquires an occupancy-right in his own land, any tenant, who subsequently takes the land from him, shall have a right of occupancy in it, and if the rent of the land was previously payable in money, shall be entitled to hold it at a money-rent to be fixed under the Act. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent a landlord, so acquiring an occupancy-right in land, from keeping the land in his own hands and cultivating it by his servants or by hired labourers. All the section would enact is that, if he chooses to let it to a tenant, that tenant shall at once acquire an occupancy-right. This seems necessary in order to guard against the possibility of a landlord buying up on a great scale the occupancy-rights existing on his estate or tenure with a view to locating ordinary raiyats on the land. To a landlord, who buys an occupancy-right, as contemplated by the pre-emption sections of the Bill, merely with a view to excluding an intending purchaser whom he objects to have as his tenant, there would be no appreciable hardship in the restriction.

CHAPTER VI.—Of the Rent payable by Occupancy-raiyats.

43. Chapter VI is devoted to the important subject of the rents payable by occupancy-raiyats. In regard to this particular matter, as in regard to that of the acquisition of the right of occupancy, Act X of 1859, whether owing to its inherent defects or to the peculiar construction put upon it by the Courts it is unnecessary now to enquire, has not proved a success. Leaving out of consideration the matter of additions to the rent of a holding on account of an increase of its area, a matter which is relegated to a completely separate division of the present Bill, Act X of 1859 provided by its 17th section that the rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat should be liable to enhancement only where—

1st—its rate was below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in places adjacent, or

2nd—the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land had been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat.

44. Having thus stated the cases in which the rent was to be liable to enhancement, the Act stopped, giving no indication, except such as might be gathered from the statement of those cases, as to the extent to which the Courts were to enhance the rent. In the first of the two cases, no difficulty would arise from this, as the intention of the Act in respect of that case was clear enough; but in the second of the two cases, the question as to the limit of enhancement gave rise to an important discussion, which was at length brought to a close in what is known as "the great rent case." The rule laid down in that case is commonly spoken of as "the rule of proportion," and is to the effect that the enhanced rent should bear to the previous rent the same ratio as the increased value of the produce or increased productive power bears to the value or productive power at the time the previous rent was fixed.

45. This rule, whatever may be said for it on theoretical grounds, has proved to be absolutely unworkable by the Courts in practice, inasmuch as it throws on them the necessity of undertaking elaborate and laborious inquiries into economical questions, with which they are altogether incompetent to deal, and which have reference not merely to the present time but also to past and possibly very remote times, for which no such evidence as could be acted on by a Court of justice is likely to be forthcoming. Moreover, it necessitates enquiries, which are of such a nature that they could with advantage be undertaken only generally, on a great scale, and once for all, being, instead of this, undertaken over and over again in a most imperfect and unsatisfactory manner in individual cases.

46. The result of this is that, though the right of the landlord to enhance is distinctly recognized by the law, and though definite rules are laid down for its enforcement, the law has become to a great extent a dead letter.

The most important object of the chapter we are now considering is, while guarding and limiting the right to enhance in certain respects, which will be presently noticed, to put it on such a footing that it will be readily enforceable in practice; and the chief means adopted for attaining this object is that of separating off the statistical and economical inquiries of a general nature, which have just been referred to, and providing for their being undertaken once for all on a large scale by Revenue-officers.

47. Passing from these preliminary observations to the details of Chapter VI of the Bill, it will be seen that section 60 provides that, except on account of an addition to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, a money-rent payable by an occupancy-tenant shall not be enhanced except by a decree of a Civil Court under the Bill, or by a contract of the nature described in the foregoing section.

48. It is considered, for reasons similar to those stated above in paragraph 33, that it would be destructive of the objects of the Bill if occupancy-raiyats were left perfectly free to deprive themselves by their contracts of the right to hold at fair and equitable rates secured to them by the law. But, on the other hand, absolutely to prevent such contracts would, it is thought, involve too great an interference with the freedom of the parties. A middle course has accordingly been adopted in section 59, which provides that a money-rent payable by an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by a contract in writing, approved of and registered by a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, and which goes on in its second sub-section to enact that a Revenue-officer shall not approve or register such a contract until he has satisfied himself that it is fair and equitable, and that he shall be absolutely debarred from registering any contract, by which a raiyat engages to pay a rent more than six annas in the rupee higher than the existing rent, or more than one-fifth* of the estimated annual value of the gross produce of the land.

49. This 59th section, which, it will be remembered, relates only to the enhancement of the rents of existing tenancies, is supplemented in section 61 by a somewhat similar provision applicable to cases in which a settled raiyat comes in as a new tenant on land previously held by another tenant at a money-rent. Here, too, it is considered that the objects of the law might be defeated if the parties were left absolutely free to contract; and it is accordingly provided that a settled raiyat, taking land under the circumstances referred to, shall not be bound to pay for it a higher rent than that paid by the previous tenant, unless that higher rent has been fixed by a contract registered and approved as already described.

50. Turning now to the matter of enhancement by a decree of the Civil Court, the sub-divisions of Chapter VI which are marked B and C proceed on the assumption that there are, at least in some parts of the country, certain rates of rent generally recognized as the rates payable by occupancy-tenants for the various classes of land held by them. Where this is so, it would, it is presumed, be not very difficult for a Revenue-officer to ascertain those rates, and then, starting from them as a basis, and taking into account such changes in the productive powers of the soil and in the prices of produce as may have occurred since they were fixed, to prepare tables of the enhanced rates, which, subject to allowance in exceptional cases, might fairly and equitably be demanded by the landlord for each class of land under the existing conditions. The Revenue officer, it is thought, might further show in his tables the average gross produce of each class of land and its estimated value. Supposing this to be done, the Civil Courts would be relieved almost entirely of those economical and statistical enquiries, which at present are involved in enhancement-suits. They would accept the rates and produce-statistics shown in the tables as primâ facie correct for lands of the classes to which the tables referred, and might restrict themselves to considering the comparatively simple and limited questions as to whether the particular lands in question in the suit belonged to the class alleged, and whether there were any exceptional circumstances connected with them which would require the rent to be fixed at a different rate from that set down in the table.

51. It is, of course, well understood that there would be many parts of the country for which, owing to the non-existence of recognized rates of rent or to the great varieties of the soil, no such tables could be prepared, and further that, even where it is possible to prepare such tables, their preparation must be a work of time. With a view to these considerations, the Bill has been so drawn as to provide, first, in sub-division B of Chapter VI, for suits to enhance money-rents where a table of rates has been prepared, and secondly, in sub-division C, for such suits where a table of rates has not been prepared.

52. It will be convenient, in explaining the details of these portions of the Bill, to begin with the latter set of provisions. The cases, in which a suit may be brought to enhance the money-rent of an occupancy-holding situated in a tract, for which a table of rates has not been prepared, are stated in section 74. They will be found to be in the main the same as those provided for in the section of Act X of 1859 referred to in paragraph 43, the only difference of sufficient importance to call for notice here being, that, for the purpose of estimating the increase in the productive powers of the land or in prices, on which a right to enhance depends, the Court is not compelled, as under the present law, to look to the time at which the rent was fixed, but, when that time cannot be ascertained (as it frequently cannot), or when the productive power and the prices prevailing at that time are undiscoverable, may take, for the purposes of comparison, any other time which may appear to it fair and equitable.

* See as to this limitation, para. 54 infra.

53. Section 75, supplying the defect in Act X of 1859 referred to above (paragraph 44), fixes the limits up to which the Court is to enhance in cases, in which the enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in the productive powers of the land or of prices. It provides that, if the increase has been effected wholly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord, he shall be entitled to the whole benefit of it; that, if it has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord and partly by the agency or at the expense of the tenant, the benefit shall be divided between them in such shares as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the Court thinks fair and equitable; and that, if it is not proved that the increase has been effected by the agency or at the expense either of the landlord or of the tenant, each of them shall be entitled to one-half the benefit: provided in this last case that the enhanced rent shall not bear to the previous rent a higher proportion than the increased productive powers or increased prices bear to the former productive powers or former prices, as the case may be. Thus the rule of proportion, instead of being, as it is at present, under the decision in the "great rent case," the measure of enhancement in all cases, will merely supply a maximum limit in one of the three cases dealt with by section 75; and, as it is not apprehended that landlords will often seek to press their rights of enhancement to the full extent, it seems unlikely that it will give rise to any considerable difficulty.

54. The only other rule relating to the limit of enhancement contained in section 75 is the concluding provision, that the enhanced rent shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average annual value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time. This limit has been substituted for that of one-fourth originally proposed, as the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal considers that one-fourth of the value of the average crop would be too high a limit. It is to be understood, however, that the point is still under the consideration of the Government.

55. Coming next to the scheme for enhancement by means of a table of rates, it will be seen that section 62 empowers the Local Government to direct a Revenue-officer to prepare for any local area, with the aid of assessors, a table showing, for each class of land comprised in that area, the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats, the average gross produce of the land, and the average value of that produce. The land is to be classified (section 63 (a)) according to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, and section 64 enacts that, in fixing the rates for each class, regard is to be had—

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time the table is prepared;

(b) to the value of the average gross produce of land of that class, and the cost of raising that produce, about the time those rates were fixed, or, where these matters cannot be ascertained for that time, about such other time as it may be fair and equitable to take for the purpose of comparison;

(c) to the value of the average gross produce and the cost of raising that produce at the time the table is prepared; and

(d) to the following rule, namely, that, where the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the value of the produce, the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased value of the produce bears to the former value.

The section concludes with a proviso, corresponding to that mentioned above in connection with section 75, limiting the enhanced rate of rent fixed for land of any class to one-fifth of the average gross produce of land of that class.

56. Sections 65 to 69 provide for a preliminary publication in the vernacular language of the table prepared by the Revenue-officer; for the consideration of objections urged against it by those interested; for the submission to the higher Revenue authorities, and by them to the Government, of the table, with a report setting forth the grounds of the Revenue-officer's decision on each point, and of all objections preferred; and for the further publication of the table when finally settled and approved of.

A table prepared under these provisions will remain in force for such period, not less than ten years or more than thirty years, as the Local Government may direct, and while it remains in force it will (section 71) be conclusive evidence—

(a) that, except as provided by certain clauses to be presently referred to, the rates shown in it for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies; and

(b) that the statistics of gross produce and value given in the table are correct.

58. Section 72 empowers the Local Government to charge the expenses connected with the preparation of a table for any local area to the raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as it thinks fit.

59. Section 73 contains the rules for the guidance of a Court in suits instituted to enhance the rent of an occupancy-raiyat in a local area, for which a table of rates has been prepared, and a glance at it will show what an important simplification of the work of the Court will be effected by the table. The general rule is that the Court shall enhance up to the rate shown in the table for the class of land in question, or, where maximum and minimum rates are shown for land of that class (as will occasionally be the case) to such rate, not higher than the maximum or lower than the minimum, as it thinks fit. It is only in certain exceptional cases that the Court will be required to go behind the rates. Those exceptional cases are of two classes.

60. The first class comprises cases, which may be described with sufficient accuracy for our present purpose as cases in which, owing to some improvement having been effected or having taken place in reference to the land since the commencement of the tenancy, the land has been raised from a lower to a higher class of the table. The rules laid down for cases of this class by the first clause of the proviso to section 73 closely follow the corresponding rules laid down in section 75 and referred to above, paragraph 53. They are to the effect that, if the improvement has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed as if the land belonged to the lower class; that if the improvement has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed at such rate intermediate between that of the higher class and that of the lower class as the Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, thinks fair and equitable; and that, if it is not proved that the improvement has been effected by the agency or at the expense either of the landlord or of the raiyat, the rent shall be fixed at a rate half-way between the rate of the higher and that of the lower class.

The effect of these rules will be best seen from the illustrations appended to section 73 of the Bill, which are as follows:—

Illustrations.

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

When the land is irrigated from a well	Rs. 4	per acre.
When the land is not so irrigated	„ 2	„

The holdings of A, B, C and D, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on these holdings respectively.

The well on A's holding is an ancient one, existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs. 2 per acre, that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(b) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are as follows:—

When such land is irrigated from a branch of a river . . .	Rs. 4	per acre.
When such land is not so irrigated	„ 2	„

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs. 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

61. The other class of exceptional cases in which the Court will have to go behind the rates is that referred to in the second clause of the proviso to section 73, where the raiyat proves that by contract, or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than that fixed by the table for land of the class to which his land belongs; and in cases of this class, the Court is required to fix the rent at the lower rate at which the raiyat proves that he is entitled to hold.

62. To complete this portion of the subject it is only necessary to add that all suits for enhancement, whether under a table of rates or otherwise, are by sections 76 to 78 of the Bill made subject to the three rules already referred to under the head of tenures, namely, that a rent shall not be enhanced so as to be more than double the previous rent; that the Court may order the enhancement to take effect by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five; and that, when rent has been enhanced, it shall not be again enhanced for 10 years.

63. How far it will be possible to give effect to the provisions of this chapter regarding the preparation of a table of rates it would be difficult to predict. The members of the Rent Law Commission entertained hopes of those provisions being largely used, and they appear to have thought that, in some cases, if the rates were once settled by authority, landlords and tenants would soon be able to adjust their differences. On the other hand, the result of recent inquiries would seem to show that, in some parts of the country, the rates vary so much from holding to holding as to render the preparation of a table impossible or practically useless. It must, however, be pointed out that it will not follow that, because a table of rates has not been, or cannot be, prepared for a local area, the landlords of that area will necessarily be reduced to the ordinary procedure by civil suit. They will, in many cases, be able to invoke the aid of a revenue-officer for the settlement of their rents under the provisions of Chapter XI, which will be noticed in their proper place.

64. Section 79 contains the provisions relating to the reduction of money-rents payable by occupancy-tenants. The cases, in which a claim for reduction is allowed are, with certain modifications in detail, which it is unnecessary to notice here, the same as under the existing law, that is to say, a reduction can be claimed only where there has been a decrease of productive power or of prices; and such cases are so rare that it has been thought unnecessary to lay down any elaborate rules for their treatment. Section 79 therefore simply provides that, when a case for reduction is made out, the Court may direct such reduction as it thinks fair and equitable.

65. The case of rents payable for pasture lands, which is provided for in section 80, is likewise one of no great practical importance, inasmuch as such lands are but rarely let to a tenant in this country. Accordingly, no provision for the reduction of rent has here been considered necessary, and it has been thought sufficient, as regards enhancement, to provide that a suit to enhance may be instituted on the ground that the rent is below the prevailing rate paid by raiyats of the same class for similar lands in the vicinity, or that, having regard to the increase of rent on arable land in the vicinity, an enhancement would be reasonable. In either of these cases, the Court is empowered to fix the rent at such rate as it thinks fair and equitable.

66. The next sub-division of the chapter relates to rents payable in kind or varying with the crop, and is of greater importance. Section 81 provides that, when the rent is of this nature, the following rules shall apply, namely :—

(a) notwithstanding any contract or custom to the contrary, the landlord shall not be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding on which staple crops (such as rice, wheat, and so forth) are grown, more than half the gross produce or its value; and

(b) the landlord shall not, except under a contract in writing, be entitled to recover, in respect of any portion of the holding, on which other crops are grown, any other description or any greater amount of rent than a sum equal to one-half of the estimated average value of the produce of that portion of the holding, supposing staple crops to be grown on it.

67. The only objection which it is apprehended might be taken to these provisions is that in some cases a landlord, whose rent is payable in kind, contributes in the shape of seed, labour or otherwise, towards the production of the crop, recovering the price of his assistance in the form of an additional rent, and that, in such cases, the limits which it is proposed to fix might be too low. To meet this, a sub-section has been added, providing that nothing in the section shall prevent a landlord recovering from the tenant the value of assistance so rendered. The result accordingly will be that, though the landlord can no longer include the value of such assistance in the rent, where, by so doing, he would bring the rent above the prescribed limit, he can recover the same amount under another name.

68. Section 82 provides for the commutation into fixed money-rents of rents payable in kind or consisting of the value of a certain share of the actual gross produce.

It provides that an occupancy-raiyat, paying such a rent may, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, sue to have his rent commuted, and that the Court shall fix the money-rent at its discretion either—

(a) according to the prevailing money-rent payable by raiyats of the same class for similar land in the vicinity, or

(b) according to the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding five years, subject, however, in this latter case, to a deduction of such amount as the Court thinks reasonable, in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat.

69. The remaining provisions of Chapter VI are merely of a supplementary or subsidiary nature. Section 83 provides for the preparation of price-lists, which, when published with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, will be deemed to be conclusive evidence in proceedings under Chapter VI, and will thus save the Courts a certain amount of work, for the performance of which they are but ill-suited.

Section 84 empowers the Board to make rules for the guidance of officers and (as regards certain matters) of Courts acting under Chapter VI, in particular for determining what crops are to be deemed staple crops for the purposes of the chapter.

CHAPTER VII.—Of the Right of a settled Raiyat in Bastu Land.

70. The Bill prepared by the Rent Commission contained elaborate provisions regarding the use of land for building purposes, which were justified at length in paragraphs 108—113 of their Report. It is unnecessary here to discuss those provisions on their merits. It is enough to say that the present measure is strictly confined to the amendment of the law regarding agricultural tenancies, and can properly deal with the holding of land for building purposes only where the holding of such land is in some sense ancillary to an agricultural tenancy, as e.g., where an occupancy-raiyat has built himself a house in a village with a view to living near his agricultural holding. In such a case there is so close a connection between his house and his agricultural holding that it would in many cases be vain to protect him in the possession of the holding without, at the same time, protecting him in the possession of the house. Besides the inconvenience he might be put to in being ejected from his house and compelled to reside at a distance from his work, it is clear that, if he were left at the landlord's mercy as regards the house, he would be liable at any time to have pressure brought upon him in regard to the holding also, which he might be unable to resist.

71. When the site of the house is included in an occupancy-holding, the raiyat is sufficiently protected under Chapters V and VI, but, when it is a separate holding, some special provision seems necessary; and it is thought that the requirements of the case will be best met by enacting that every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, have a permanent heritable and transferable right in any bastu or other homestead land in that village or estate which is held by him as the site of a dwelling-house for himself and his family; that a person having such a right shall not be ejected except under a decree of the Civil Court for breach of a condition; that, if so ejected, he shall be entitled to compensation; and that his rent may be enhanced at intervals of ten years, so that it may be equal to the rent paid for similar lands in the neighbourhood, or, at the option of the landlord, so that it may be equal to five per centum of the market-value of the land.

CHAPTER VIII.—Of Ordinary Raiyats.

72. Chapter VIII deals with ordinary raiyats, that is to say (section 88) raiyats holding raiyatí land but not having a right of occupancy in respect of it. The principle on which this chapter is based is that, while it is desirable to interfere as little as possible between tenants of this class and their landlords, they should not be exposed to arbitrary rack-renting and eviction at the hands of their landlords, and, further, that the acquisition by them of the status of settled raiyat should in every reasonable way be promoted.

73. Section 89 accordingly provides that, subject to a certain maximum fixed for the rents of all raiyats and under-raiyats, which will be presently referred to, an ordinary raiyat shall pay such rent as may from time to time be fixed by agreement between him and his landlord; but, in order to check extravagant enhancements by the landlord, it is provided in the following sections that, if the landlord proposes an enhancement of the rent, to which the raiyat does not agree, the landlord shall not eject him without paying him, besides any amount that may be due to him as compensation for improvements under the provisions of the Bill, a further sum, by way of compensation for disturbance, equal to a certain multiple of the yearly increase of rent demanded. Ten times the increase is the amount provided for in the Bill as it stands; but it need hardly be said that a figure of this sort is, at this stage of a Bill, entered only tentatively and subject to future consideration. The object in view, it will be understood, is to fix a multiple of the increase high enough to deter the landlord from making an extravagant demand, but not so high that the raiyat would be induced by the prospect of obtaining it to refuse to accede to a reasonable enhancement.

74. The details of the procedure requisite to give effect to this important provision occupy the greater part of the chapter, but they are not such as to call for notice here. The only other provision of the chapter to which it seems necessary to refer is the rule in section 90 limiting the landlord's right to eject, and which is to the effect that a landlord shall not eject an ordinary raiyat except—

(a) for arrears of rent;

(b) on the ground that the raiyat has used the land in a manner, which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken some condition, on breach of which he is, under the terms of a written contract, liable to be ejected; or

(c) that he has refused to agree to an enhancement of rent on which the landlord insists.

It is in this last case that the provision as to compensation for disturbance will apply.

CHAPTER IX.—Provisions regarding Rent applicable to several classes of Tenants.

75. We now pass from the chapters dealing with particular classes of tenants to those dealing with matters common to several classes. Chapter IX, which is the first of these, contains most of the general provisions of the Bill regarding rent. It begins with a section (96) providing for such additions to, and deductions from, the rents of tenure-holders and occupancy-tenants as are made on account of an alteration in the area of the holding by alluvion or diluvion, by encroachment, eviction by title paramount to that of the landlord, and so forth. This section applies, in the case of a tenure-holder, only in the absence of a contract to the contrary, but, in the case of an occupancy-raiyat, it overrides any such contract.

76. In the case of land being added to the area of a holding, it provides that the amount added to the rent shall be calculated on the rates payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description, less a deduction, in the case of a tenure-holder, of thirty per cent. for profits, risk and cost of collection. This seems to be the fairest rule to apply in such a case, and it is, moreover, as observed by the Government of Bengal, in harmony with the law regulating additions to the Government revenue in alluvion cases.

77. On the other hand, in the case of a loss of a portion of an area, for the whole of which a single rent has been payable, the only equitable principle to adopt seems to be that the abatement from the rent should bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the yearly value of the land lost bears to the yearly value of the holding prior to the loss, and this is what sub-section (3) of section 96 enacts, adding, however, that, when the yearly value of the land lost cannot be satisfactorily proved, the abatement shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the area lost bears to the area of the holding prior to the loss.

78. Sections 97 to 99 give power to the Board of Revenue to fix the instalments in which rents are to be paid. The power is of little importance in the case of tenures, inasmuch as it can be exercised in respect of them only in the absence of any agreement or custom regulating the matter. In the case of raiyats' holdings, however, it is of considerable importance. Much of the harassment, to which the raiyats are subjected, is said to arise from the number of instalments in which their rents are payable, and, to remedy this, the Board is empowered, subject to certain reservations regarding agreements entered into and customs prevailing before the commencement of the Act, to fix the instalments, in which the rents of raiyats are to be payable, so that there may not be more than four in each year.

79. Section 100 requires every landlord to give to a tenant paying him rent a receipt, containing much fuller details than those prescribed by the existing law, and to keep a counterpart of every receipt so given. It also provides that, when a receipt does not contain the requisite particulars, it shall be deemed to be an acquittance in full up to date.

Section 101 requires every landlord to furnish to his tenant, for each agricultural year, a detailed statement of the account between them for that year, and to keep a counterpart of every statement so furnished.

Section 102, following the existing law regarding receipts, imposes penal damages for refusal or neglect to give receipts or furnish accounts, and further makes it an offence punishable with a fine, not exceeding fifty rupees, to neglect to keep a counterpart as required by the preceding sections.

It is believed that, if these provisions are fully enforced, much advantage will result to both parties. Not only will the tenants be supplied with proper evidence of the payments made by them and of the state of their accounts, but the landlords, if they keep their counterpart statements in a proper manner, will find them useful as evidence before the Courts.

80. Under the existing law, there is but one case, in which a tenant can deposit his rent in a public office, so that the deposit may operate as a payment to his landlord, namely, when he is prepared to declare solemnly that he has tendered the rent to his landlord, and that the landlord has refused to receive it.

It has been found that this declaration has become a mere form, and it is thought better to allow the tenant to deposit his rent whenever he has reason to believe that the landlord will not receive it and grant a receipt. It is also thought advisable that a tenant should be allowed to deposit his rent in two other cases, namely :—

(1) when it is payable to co-sharers jointly, and he is unable to obtain their joint receipt, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent on their behalf; and

(2) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent.

81. This extension of the right to deposit rent necessitates our conferring on the officer empowered to receive deposits a certain discretion not allowed by the present law. He is accordingly given by section 104 a discretion to refuse the deposit, if he does not think the circumstances of the case warrant its being made, and he is further given by section 106 a discretion to pay away the deposit, if he thinks fit, to such one of several rival claimants as may seem to be entitled to it, but subject, of course, to the right of any person actually entitled to it to recover the amount from the person, to whom it is so paid. As regards this last point, however, it will be seen that the officer will have power to retain the deposit if he thinks fit, pending the decision of the Civil Court as to the person entitled to it; and this latter course is doubtless that which he would adopt in all cases in which there might be any reasonable doubt as to the person entitled.

82. The provisions, contained in sections 112 to 116, for the division or appraisement of a crop by a public officer in cases, where the rent is paid in kind or is the value of a certain share of the gross produce, and a dispute arises between the parties, are based on the proposals made for Bihár by the Bihár Committee and the Rent Law Commission; but they are made generally applicable, and their details are taken, for the most part, from enactments in force in Upper India, where rent is very commonly paid in kind or in appraisement of the crops. They enact that, if either party neglects to attend at the proper time for making the division or appraisement, or if there is a dispute regarding the division or appraisement, the Collector may, on application made to him, issue a commission to such person as he thinks fit, directing him to divide or appraise the crop, and may further direct him to associate with himself any other persons as assessors for this purpose. If, in a division made in this way, either party receives less than his proper share, he may, within three months from the date of the division, sue the other party to recover the value of the additional portion of the crop due to him, and, if he does not so sue, the division will be deemed to have been rightly made. When the case is one of appraisement, the commissioner is required to submit his appraisement in writing to the Collector, who shall, after such hearing and enquiry as he thinks necessary, pass an order either confirming or varying it, and that order will be final.

It will be seen that these provisions proceed upon the principle, already referred to in connection with the subject of enhancement, of entrusting to the Revenue authorities the duty of inquiring into, and adjusting, matters, which they are presumably more competent to deal with than the Civil Courts. It is, it will be observed, only the mechanical act of division and the mere framing of the estimate of the crops that, in the cases now in question, are to be entrusted to the Collector and the persons appointed by him, all questions of right being reserved for the Civil Court.

83. Section 117 provides that, if the landlord of any land, of which the rent is payable by division or appraisement of the crop, or any other person, interferes in any way, without the tenant's consent, with the cutting or harvesting of a crop, except by an application to the Collector, under the provisions just referred to, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Penal Code. This is considered necessary in order to put a stop to the oppressive action of landlords in certain parts of the country, who are found to assume a power to prevent the cutting or harvesting of the crops, and to use it as an engine of extortion against their tenants.

84. Section 118, which applies only to Bihár, provides that all danabandi papers shall, within 15 days after the making of an appraisement, be filed in the Collector's office.

85. Section 119 provides that, notwithstanding any contract made after the 2nd March, 1883, the date on which it is proposed to introduce the Bill, a raiyat or under-raiyat shall not, in any case, be bound to pay a money-rent exceeding five-sixteenths of the estimated gross produce of his holding. The limit originally proposed was thirty-five per cent. It has now been lowered at the suggestion of the Lieutenant-Governor; but the figures must be regarded as merely provisional and subject to reconsideration.

86. Section 120 in effect enacts that contracts fixing rents shall, in temporarily-settled tracts hold good only until a fresh settlement is made. The reasons for this provision are similar to those stated above (paragraph 21) in connection with section 20.

87. Section 124 makes the rent of a transferable holding the first charge on that holding.

CHAPTER X.—Other provisions applicable to several classes of Tenants.

88. The question as to the right of a raiyat to make improvements, and to claim compensation therefor on ejectment will, if the proposal to make occupancy-rights freely saleable in execution of a decree is adopted, be of less importance in Bengal than in some other parts of British India. The great mass of the raiyats having a right of occupancy, and not being liable to be ejected except under peculiar circumstances of rare occurrence, and the question of compensation adjusting itself when an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, claims for compensation for improvements will be comparatively few. But the importance, from an economical point of view, of encouraging improvements is so great in this country, that special provision has been made for the matter to meet the case of ordinary raiyats, and such cases as may, from time to time, occur of occupancy-raiyats being ejected from their holdings.

The principle on which the sections of the Bill relating to this subject proceed is that that party to a tenancy whose interest in the land preponderates should have the preferential right to improve and take the full benefit of his improvements; but that, if the party having this preferential right is unable or unwilling to avail himself of it, it should be open to the other party to make an improvement and reap the benefit of it.

Section 127 accordingly confers upon an occupancy-raiyat the preferential right to improve, and provides (subject to one exception to be presently noticed) that, if he does not avail himself of this right and the landlord desires to have any improvement made, he may call upon the raiyat to make it, and that, if the raiyat does not within a reasonable time comply with the request, the landlord may make the improvement himself. Section 128 enacts what may be termed the inverse of these provisions for the case of the ordinary raiyat, that is to say, it gives the preferential right to the landlord, and allows the raiyat to improve only if the landlord, upon being requested by the raiyat to make an improvement, neglects to do so within a reasonable time.

89. There is however, as has been intimated, an exception made to these rules in the case of one sort of improvement, namely, a dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family. This, it is considered, is an improvement which every raiyat, an ordinary as well as an occupancy-raiyat, should be entitled to make; and it is further considered that it is not an improvement, which a landlord should be empowered to force on a raiyat against his will. As regards this improvement, accordingly, it is provided simply that any raiyat may make it; no right to make it, whether preferential or otherwise, being conferred on the landlord.

90. When a landlord makes an improvement under these sections, he will be entitled to reap the full benefit of it in the shape of an enhancement of the rent under the provisions of the Bill relating to that subject. When a raiyat makes an improvement under these sections, he will, if ejected, be entitled, under section 129 of the Bill, subject to certain exceptions which it is unnecessary to notice here, to receive compensation for it. An occupancy-raiyat will further, while he continues to hold, reap the full benefit of his improvements, inasmuch as his rent cannot, under Chapter VI, be enhanced on account of an improvement made by him. An ordinary raiyat under similar circumstances may possibly not be able, in all cases, to retain the full benefit of his improvements, but the check placed on the landlord by the provisions of Chapter VIII will, as a rule, amply protect him in the enjoyment of that benefit.

91. The only other provisions of the Bill, relating to improvements, which seem to call for notice here, are the last clause of section 129, which enacts that improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of the Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act (and therefore to give a claim to compensation), unless it is shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make them and was ready to make them himself, and section 132, which makes void all stipulations in contracts providing (a) that a landlord may prevent a raiyat from improving or eject him for improving, or (b) that a raiyat when ejected shall not be entitled to compensation for improvements.

92. In section 133, providing for the landlord's right to measure lands comprised within an estate or tenure the rents of which are payable to him, the existing law has been modified so as to give a landlord the right to measure all lands lying within the estate or tenure, whether rent-paying or not. As observed by the Government of Bengal, "a landlord has at present no right to measure lákhiráj, and a rent-free holder may, in virtue of a valid grant of ten bíghás, be holding double as much or more. The mere measuring by the landlord cannot harm him, as he could not be ousted from possession save through the Civil Court. But the landlord seems entitled to make a complete survey of his estate." (Letter from Government of Bengal, No. 849T, dated 27th July, 1881, page 25.)

93. The proviso to section 133 enacts that, when land has been measured under that section, it shall not again be measured for ten years without the written permission of the Collector. This seems but reasonable, a right to measure once in ten years being sufficient in all ordinary cases.

94. The only other provisions of this sub-division of the chapter, which deviate in any material respect from the existing law, are those of sections 137 and 138, relating to the standards of measurement. They adhere so closely to the corresponding provisions of the Bill prepared by the Rent Law Commission that the following extract from the Commission's Report (para. 140) will best explain them:—

"The length of the local standard pole, with which a measurement of land should be made, is a fertile subject of dispute and litigation. It is not uncommon for a landlord to make a measurement of his lands with a pole of his own selection, the actual length of which must be a subject of doubt upon the evidence, while the raiyats concerned aver not only that the standard pole of the pargana is different, but that during the measurement a third pole has occasionally been substituted for that which the landlord claims to be the standard. In order to remedy these difficulties as far as possible, we have enacted that all measurements made by order of the Civil Court or Collector shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bígha. It it be shown that the rights of the parties to the suit are regulated by any different local measure depending upon a pargana standard pole, the Government measure shall be converted into local measure for the purposes of the suit. In case of dispute as to the standard pole, the Collector shall, in any suit before himself, or in any suit before a Civil Court, on a reference made for this purpose by such Court, determine the proper length of such pole. We have followed the present law, as settled by the decisions, in enacting that an appeal shall lie from the Collector's decision to the District Judge, but that, if no such appeal be preferred, the decision of the Collector shall be final."

95. It is stated in Mr. Field's digest, section 12 (4), as the result of decided cases, that a raiyat's interest in the land determines when he ceases to cultivate the land and leaves the neighbourhood without arranging for the payment of the rent. Mr. Field observes that the cases leave the matter thus indefinite, and that, if the proposition is adopted by the legislature, it should be made more precise. Section 140 of the Bill, following this suggestion, provides that, when a tenant of a non-transferable holding leaves the holding uncultivated and the rent of it unpaid for a period of one year, he shall be deemed to have surrendered, except in cases in which, owing to an inundation or any other accident to the land beyond his control, it may have been impossible for him to cultivate.

96. Section 141, relating to the doctrine of merger, follows the corresponding provisions (sections 43 and 44) of the Bill prepared by the Rent Commissioners, who state in their Report that some such enactment is needed to settle the law in Bengal. It provides, subject to certain exceptions and qualifications which it is unnecessary to specify here, that, when, in the case of any tenancy, the interest of the landlord and that of the tenant become by transfer, succession or otherwise united in the same person, so as to be owned by him in the same right, the interest of the tenant shall, during the three months following, be presumed to be merged in that of the landlord, unless the person shows that he has not intended it to be so, and shall, after the expiration of the three months, be conclusively deemed to be so merged, unless, within the three months, the person has executed an instrument declaring his intention that a merger should not take place, and the instrument has been registered and published in a certain prescribed manner.

97. Sections 142 to 148, relating to the appointment of a manager on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure, are taken, with slight alterations in the drafting, from the Bill framed by the Rent Law Commission. Their history and the nature of the provisions they contain will be best seen by an extract from the Commission's report. After describing at some length (paragraph 134) the complications, litigation and even riots which arise when co-owners of an estate or tenure (or, as they are sometimes termed, coparceners) quarrel among themselves, and the grievous harassment, to which the tenants are exposed, in such cases, the report proceeds as follows:—

"135. The necessity of a remedy for this state of things was felt at an early period of British administration, and in 1812 it was enacted that, inasmuch as inconvenience to the public and injury to private rights had been experienced in certain cases from disputes subsisting among the proprietors of joint undivided estates, whenever sufficient cause shall be shown by the Revenue-authorities, or by any of the individuals holding an interest in such estates, for the interposition of the Courts of Judicature, it shall be competent to the Zila Judges to appoint a person duly qualified and under proper security to manage the estate; that is, to collect the rents and discharge the public revenue, and provide for the cultivation and future improvement of the estate (Regulation V of 1812, section 26). The Judge was also competent, upon the representation of the Revenue-authorities, or of any such person as aforesaid, to remove any manager so appointed (ib., section 27). A subsequent Regulation (V of 1827) enacted that, when the Zilla Court thought it just and proper under the provision of that Regulation to provide for the administration or management of landed property, it should issue a precept to the Collector, directing him to hold the estate in attachment and appoint a person for the due care and management thereof, under good and adequate security for the faithful discharge of the trust in a sum proportionate to the extent thereof. The reference in Regulation V of 1827 to Regulation V of 1812 was repealed by Act XVI of 1874, so that it is not now competent to a District Judge to send a precept to the Collector directing him to provide for the management of an estate belonging to a joint undivided family. The fragment of Regulation V of 1812 which is still in force is incomplete, and in consequence almost inoperative.

"136. Such being the present state of the law, a majority of us have thought that this fragment might well be repealed and a complete set of effective provisions substituted therefor. We have accordingly enacted that, when coparceners, who jointly own an estate, tenure or under-tenure, disagree as to the joint management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue, (a) inconvenience to the public, (b) injury to private rights, the District Judge may, upon the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in such estate, tenure or under-tenure, direct a notice to be served upon the coparceners, calling upon them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager. If the coparceners do not, within a month, show cause why they should not appoint a common manager, the District Judge may direct them to do so. If they fail to obey that direction, the District Judge may either appoint a manager, or direct that the estate, tenure or under-tenure be managed by the Court of Wards, if it is willing to undertake the charge. We have thought it advisable to give the coparceners an opportunity of appointing a manager of their own selecting, before the District Judge proceeds virtually to depose them. When the Court of Wards undertakes the charge, it will govern itself by the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, IX (B.C.) of 1879. It is discretionary with the Court of Wards to undertake the charge or not. A majority of us have thought it advisable to render this system of management possible, as there may be cases in which no other management will be available. Mr. O'Kinealy doubts if it is advisable to extend the exceptional jurisdiction of the Court of Wards and empower it to manage the estates of persons who happen to disagree amongst themselves. When the District Judge appoints a manager, he is empowered to settle his remuneration, and the manner of it, whether, that is to say, by a fixed salary or a percentage of the collections. He is also empowered to require reasonable security for the proper discharge of the duties of the office. The manager is authorized to exercise the same powers as the coparceners jointly might, but for his appointment, have exercised. He is required to keep regular accounts and to allow the coparceners to inspect and take copies of them. He may be removed upon the application of the Collector, or of any person interested in the estate, tenure or under-tenure. The District Judge may at any time direct that the management be restored to the coparceners, if he is satisfied that they will conduct it without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights."

98. The only other section in this chapter which calls for notice is section 149, which enacts that no tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

99. It has been stated, in the remarks above made on Chapter VI, that it is apprehended that, in many parts of the country, the framing of a table of rates will be impossible. It should be added that, in many instances, the mere framing of a table of rates will not suffice to settle the disputes between landlords and tenants. In either case the only satisfactory remedy may be a settlement of individual rents by a Revenue-officer, conducted somewhat in the same manner as in a Government estate at present; and it is with a view to providing such a remedy that Chapter XI has been framed.

100. There is, however, one cardinal difference between the provisions of this chapter and those of the existing settlement law which should be noted at the outset. Under the existing settlement law, when a Settlement-officer has, after the most careful and protracted inquiry, settled the rents of an estate, and his proceedings have been scrutinized and checked by the superior Revenue-authorities, every individual rent fixed by him is liable to be called in question in the Civil Courts, and that not merely on the ground of error in respect of some matter, such as the status of a tenant or the validity of an alleged lease, falling most appropriately within the cognizance of a Civil Court, but also on the ground of an error in regard to the quality of the soil, the estimated amount of the produce, or some other such matter with which the Revenue-authorities, conducting their inquiries on a great scale, are far more competent to deal than any Civil Court trying a suit relating to a single holding can possibly be; in other words, an important portion of the work, after being done by those authorities, who are most competent to perform it, is liable to be pulled to pieces by another set of authorities, who are far less competent to perform it. The enormous amount of unnecessary expense, trouble and vexation, which this system entails on all concerned can be estimated from the fact, stated by the Board of Revenue in referring to a recent settlement, that out of 2,391 decisions in suits brought to contest the Settlement-officer's rates, 2,202 were absolutely adverse to the plaintiffs. An attempt has been made to avoid this in Chapter XI of the Bill by distinguishing, among the various questions which may arise in a settlement of rents, those which the Revenue-authorities are most competent to determine, and those which a Civil Court is most competent to determine, making the decision of the Revenue-authorities final on the former, and providing that the latter may ultimately be brought for decision before the Civil Court.

101. The procedure of this chapter, besides being available for the purpose of Government settlements, may be made applicable by the Local Government—

(a) when a large proportion of the tenants or of the landlords desires that it should be applied, and

(b) when a resort to it is likely to settle or avert a serious dispute, existing or likely to arise, between landlords and tenants generally.

It is applicable to tenants of any class, but would probably be made use of chiefly for settling the rents of occupancy-tenants.

102. When the rents to be settled are rents, which are subject to alteration by order of a Court, they will be fixed according to the principles embodied in the Bill, and so that they shall not exceed the maximum prescribed by the Bill in cases of enhancement. When, on the contrary, the rents are not of this description, they will be merely ascertained and recorded as rents are under Regulation VII of 1822.

103. The Revenue-officer, having settled the rents, will prepare a jamabandi, showing the status of each tenant, the land held by him, the name of his landlord, whether the rent has been fixed or ascertained, and the amount of the rent fixed or ascertained. This jamabandí will be published, and, after an opportunity for urging objections against it has been allowed, will be submitted to the higher Revenue-authorities with the objections and a report setting forth the grounds, on which the Revenue-officer has proceeded. If ultimately sanctioned by the Local Government, it will be again published, and will then continue in force for 10 years.

104. While it remains in force it will be conclusive (except as will be presently explained) as to the rents payable by those tenants, whose rents are shown in it as fixed. As regards rents shown in it merely as ascertained, and as regards all other matters contained in it, it will be merely presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

105. It will be observed that, in thus empowering a Revenue-officer to fix rents so as to bind the parties, we necessarily empower him to decide certain questions (as, e. g., that of the status of a tenant) which more properly appertain to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts and ought not to be finally decided by any other authority. It is not, however, intended that the Revenue-officer should finally decide such questions. He may, if he thinks fit, when such a question arises, abstain altogether from deciding it, and, under section 155, refer it to a Civil Court, or leave it to be raised before a Civil Court in a suit instituted by any party interested.

In most cases, he would probably decide the question on such evidence as might be readily available; but, whenever he takes this course, his decision will be liable to be challenged in a Civil Court under section 160, which provides that nothing contained in it shall prevent the rent fixed being called in question on the ground—

(a) that the tenancy does not exist, or that the tenant is not liable to pay rent, or

(b) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the jamabandi to belong, or

(c) that the land comprised in the tenancy is different from, or more or less than, that shown in the jamabandí, or

(d) that a rent different from that shown in the jamabandi has been fixed by contract.

It is believed that the above list exhausts all the matters, in regard to which a Civil Court may be regarded as a better tribunal than the Revenue-authorities, and, if this is so, the determinations of the Revenue-authorities in regard to all other matters may safely be made final and conclusive.

106. It only remains to add that, by section 163, the Local Government is empowered to charge the expenses of all proceedings, other than Government settlements, under this chapter to the landlords and tenants concerned, in such shares as it thinks fit

CHAPTER XII.—Of the Preparation of a Record-of-rights by a Revenue-officer.

107. The provisions of Chapter XII are somewhat similar to those of Chapter XI, and have been introduced into the Bill with a similar object, but are more limited in their scope, inasmuch as the operations to be undertaken under them do not, like those under Chapter XI, embrace the fixing of rents, but are confined to the ascertaining and recording of existing rights and existing rates of rent. Moreover, as existing rights and existing rates of rent are matters the determination of which properly belongs to the Civil Courts, an entry in the record-of-rights prepared by a Revenue-officer under this chapter, is in every case merely to be presumed to be true until the contrary is proved.

108. The only other points calling for notice under this chapter are, first, that the Local Government may apply its provisions not only in the cases, in which it is empowered to apply those of Chapter XI, but also in any other case, in which the Governor General in Council may sanction their being applied, and secondly, that the provisions of this chapter being considered a sufficient substitute for those contained in Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869, sections 38-40, these latter are not reproduced in the present Bill.

CHAPTER XIII.—Of the Recovery of Rents from Raiyats and Under-raiyats by distraining the produce of the Holding.

109. This chapter may be said to be the result of a compromise. The Rent Commission, concurring with the Bihár Rent Committee, proposed to abolish the existing law of distraint as an offset of English law, of which the efficacy was impaired by the legislation of 1859, and which had been abused in Bihár and not always applied in a regular manner in other parts of the country. To this strong objections were urged, and the procedure provided by this chapter was then devised by the Government of Bengal, as being likely to secure to the landlords most of the advantages afforded by the existing law, without exposing their tenants to the evils now complained of.

110. The modified power of distraint, which it is now proposed to allow, can be used by any landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat for the recovery of an arrear of rent, which has not been due for more than a year. It extends, as a rule, to all the produce of the holding, including what may have been grown by, and be the property of, a sub-lessee of the tenant, and it may be exercised though the produce has been stored, provided it has not passed out of the possession of the cultivator. The landlord cannot himself interfere with the produce to be distrained, but must apply to a Civil Court to distrain it. The Court, after a brief examination of the case, will depute an officer to distrain and sell the produce, and nothing will stay the sale except the payment into court of the amount of the demand. Any sum paid into court will be retained for one month, with a view to the possibility of the owner of the distrained property claiming compensation as for a wrongful distraint, and on the expiration of that period it will be paid to the landlord.

111. Sections 185 and 186 are directed against illegal distraint and interference with crops. Section 185 provides, in effect, that any person who, otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the Bill, or some other enactment for the time being in force, distrains any produce of a tenant's holding, or interferes with the harvesting of a crop, shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Penal Code; and section 186 imposes a penalty which may extend to three months' imprisonment, or two hundred rupees fine, upon any person who benefits by, or is interested in, the commission of an offence under section 185 if, having reason to believe that the offence was likely to be committed, he has not used all lawful means in his power to prevent its commission.

112. Section 187 empowers the Local Government to suspend in any local area, for such time as it thinks proper, the sections which entitle a landlord to distrain.

CHAPTER XIV.—Special rules of procedure applicable to Suits between Landlord and Tenant.

113. Sections 191 to 198 are intended to embody all those modifications of the ordinary procedure proposed by the Rent Commission and the Government of Bengal, which seem likely to expedite, in any material way, the disposal of suits between landlords and tenants.

Sections 191 to 197 apply to—

(a) suits for recovery of rent;
(b) suits for penalties claimable under any provision of the Bill; and
(c) suits to recover possession of land.

They provide that, in such suits, the summons shall, as a rule, be issued for the final disposal of the case; that the summons may be served by a registered letter; that no written statement shall be filed without the leave of the Court; that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to interrogatories, discovery and affidavits shall not apply; that, whether an appeal lies or not, a simple memorandum of the substance of the evidence, such as is prescribed by the Code for unappealable cases, shall suffice; that, as a rule, execution may issue on the oral application of the decreeholder at the time the decree is passed; and that section 305 of the Code, which enables a judgment-debtor to obtain a suspension of an order made for the sale of his immoveable property, and sections 320 to 325C, which provide for the transfer of decrees to the Collector for execution, shall not apply.

114. A further simplification of the procedure is effected in suits for arrears of rent and for penalties (involving no question of title or of a right to enhance or vary rent) by taking away (section 198) the appeal in such cases from—

(a) a decree or order passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, where the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 100; and

(b) a decree or order passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government, where the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 50.

In so far as regards the class of cases marked (a), the Bill merely reproduces the existing law, with this difference, that it extends the rule to decrees and orders of Subordinate Judges, who, it is thought, may now safely be entrusted with final jurisdiction in cases of this class,

The extension of the provision to the class of cases marked (b) is based on a proposal of the Rent Law Commissioners supported by the Local Government. The Rent Commissioners would have fixed the limit of value in such cases at Rs. 10, but the Lieutenant-Governor, who must be regarded as the best judge of the qualifications of his officers, has recommended that it should be raised to Rs. 50, the limit fixed by the present Bill.

115. It will be observed that the final jurisdiction in this class of cases will be exercised only by specially selected officers, and that a power of revision is reserved to the District Judge by the proviso to the section.

116. Section 199 is completely new. It is intended for the benefit of a landlord in a suit for an arrear of rent, when, as sometimes happens, the defendant admits that the arrear is due, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to some rival claimant. In such a case, it seems only reasonable that the tenant should pay the amount of the rent into court; and the Bill accordingly provides that the Court shall refuse to take cognizance of his plea unless he does so.

117. It is hoped that, when the measure comes to be fully discussed, other expedients for simplifying the procedure in rent-suits may be discovered, but, with the exception of those above referred to, none have hitherto been suggested which the Government of India would be prepared to accept. As regards the possibility of devising any effectual procedure analogous to that on negotiable instruments under Chapter XXXIX of the Code of Civil Procedure, or any other form of summary or provisional remedy, the whole history of such remedies both in this country and elsewhere is against it.

A summary form of procedure can scarcely help a plaintiff unless his case is of the simplest description, admitting of being answered only in the simplest way, and he comes into court armed with documentary evidence of so reliable a character that the presumption against any defence being possible is extremely strong. In such cases the Court may very properly, and with great advantage to the plaintiff, be empowered to decline to hear the defendant, and to decide against him summarily and provisionally, unless he pays the amount of the claim into court or gives security for it. But what advantage could be hoped for from a procedure of this description in rent-suits in Bengal, which admit of the most varied and complicated defences, in which the evidence on both sides is usually of the most worthless character, and charges of forgery and perjury almost common forms in the pleadings? If the legislature consented to provide such a procedure for rent-suits, it would probably feel bound to surround it with so many safeguards that the plaintiff would gain nothing by adopting it; and, even if such safeguards were dispensed with in the Act, the Courts would naturally be so cautious about refusing leave to defend or requiring security from a penniless raiyat, that the so-called summary remedy would cease to be summary, and, like the summary suits of former days in some parts of India, become as lengthy and complicated as an ordinary suit, with the further disadvantage of not being final.

118. The truth would seem to be that facilities for recovering rents in Bengal should be sought for, not so much in novel forms of procedure as in a reliable record of tenancies and their incidents, and a simple mode of adjusting rents; in other words, by going to the root of the disputes which, though they may not always come to the surface, are believed to underlie a very large proportion of the contested rent-suits. If this view is correct, the provisions of the Bill regarding the preparation of tables of rates, settlement of rents and framing of records-of-rights, and those regarding receipts and accounts, may reasonably be expected to remove most of the difficulties of which the landlords now complain.

119. Section 200, following the Bill proposed by the Rent Law Commission, enacts that an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree, unless the landlord's interest in the land has become vested in that assignee.

120. Section 202, relating to relief against forfeitures, is based on section 14 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881. It enacts that a suit for ejectment of a tenant, on the ground of his having forfeited his interest by breach of a condition, or the like, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has given the tenant an opportunity of paying compensation and remedying the breach when it admits of remedy, and that, when a decree is passed in such a suit, it shall not be executed until the defendant is allowed a similar opportunity of repairing or atoning for his wrongful act.

121. The Rent Law Commissioners observe that "there are in the existing law no provisions regarding the away-going crop, and, as a natural consequence, when a tenant is ejected while the crop is on the ground, the right to this crop is a constant source of dispute and litigation." Sections 203 and 204 of the Bill have been framed to meet such cases. They provide, in effect, that it shall be in the option of the landlord to purchase the crop from the raiyat at a valuation, or to allow him to retain possession of the land at a reasonable rent till he gathers the crop. Similarly, when the raiyat has prepared the land for sowing before the date on which he is ejected, section 203 provides that he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the estimated value of the labour and capital expended by him in preparing the land, together with reasonable interest on the same. These sections are, however, guarded by a proviso that a raiyat shall have no claim under them when, after the commencement of the ejectment-proceedings, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

122. Sections 205 and 206 require the Court in all suits and proceedings for ejectment to inquire into and adjust all claims between the landlord and the tenant. This provision will, it is believed, be found useful as tending to prevent a multiplicity of suits.

123. The origin and object of section 207, which provides for the institution of suits to determine the status of a tenant or the incidents of a tenancy, will be best explained by an extract from the report of the Rent Commissioners. After referring to the provisions of the existing law regarding suits for pattás and kabuliyats, they thus continue :—

"We have just observed that very little use has been made of these provisions by those for whose benefit they were intended. This observation was more particularly concerned with their use as a means of reducing to writing the conditions regulating the relation of landlord and tenant. There is, however, another purpose for which they might have been used, that is, as a means to obtain an authoritative settlement of some essential question connected with the tenancy and in dispute between the parties thereto; the rate of rent, for example, or the quantity of land held by the tenant. The landlord may contend that the raiyat holds twenty bíghás of land, while the raiyat declares that he has but fifteen. Year after year the contention is renewed The landlord threatens a measurement, which the raiyat, afraid of a venal amín and a varying pole, desires to avoid. A bribe to the gomáshta, or compliance with some petty cess defers the final settlement of the question for a year: and the following year it arises again, perhaps deterring the raiyat from going to his landlord's kachahrí to pay his rent, lest he should be subjected to a demand, the justice of which he will not admit. Or, some fields in the raiyat's holding are by him maintained to be second class rice-land and assessable with the prevailing or usual rate for land of this class, whilst the landlord avers that they are first class rice-land and should pay a higher rent. At every rent-day the point is discussed; and in a country where any discussion is prone to beget a wrangle, seldom conducted with a seemly choice of expressions, an amount of irritation is kept up, which is not in harmony with the friendly relations which should exist between a landlord and his tenantry. It is very desirable that facility be afforded for the ready settlement of questions like these, which are constantly arising in this country, more specially in consequence of the absence of boundaries and fences, and the want of an exact survey upon an uniform standard. It might have been thought that the landlord in the first case could easily have the questions settled by tendering a pattá and demanding a kabuliyat for twenty bíghás; and the landlord, in the second case, by tendering a pattá and demanding a kabuliyat for the field, as first class rice-land: but if the land turned out to be nineteen and a half bíghás instead of twenty, or one of the fields was found to be of some middle class kind of land, the suit, according to the decision of the highest tribunal in India, must fail, and the parties be sent away, the real question in dispute unsettled, and their feelings roused and embittered by litigation.'

"Thus these provisions of the existing law have become ineffectual for the only purpose for which the people cared to use them, and for which they might have been beneficially used. While omitting what has been found useless in practice, we have endeavoured to supply the want thus indicated by experience. Section 151 of the draft Bill accordingly allows either landlord or tenant to sue for the determination of any such questions which may arise between them. A copy of the decree passed in the case will have all the effect of a pattá or kabuliyat upon the point which the parties themselves wish to have determined."

CHAPTER XV.—Sale of transferable Holdings in execution of Decrees for Arrears due on them.

124. The provisions of this chapter are made applicable to all transferable holdings, including such tenures as are transferable, occupancy-holdings, and bastu holdings under Chapter VII, and involve, in certain other respects, substantive changes in the existing law.

The most important of those changes will be best explained in the words of the Rent Commissioners, with whom it originated :—

"The object," they say, "of making sub-leases and incumbrances voidable upon the sale of a tenure for arrears of rent is, that the superior landlord's security for his rent may not be impaired. If the sub-leases and incumbrances of a tenure have not absorbed so much of the tenure-holder's profits as to render the interest left him insufficient to meet the rent which he pays to the proprietor of whom he holds his tenure; if the tenure, subject to these sub-leases and incumbrances, will sell for a sum sufficient to satisfy any decree that can be passed for arrears of the rent payable by the tenure-holder, it cannot be said that the proprietor-landlord's security for his rent has been impaired so far as to bring the case within the above object. The right of sub-letting and creating incumbrances belongs to every tenure-holder: such is the common law of the country. So long as the landlord is certain of the rent to which he is entitled, he cannot justly complain of the exercise of this right, or claim to interfere with it. When, however, the exercise of the right extends so far as to endanger the landlord's rent, to impair the security for such rent afforded by the sale of the tenure by public auction, the case is altered, and the landlord may reasonably demand that these sub-leases and incumbrances be avoided, which have rendered the remaining interest of the tenure-holder an insufficient security for the rent payable by him.

"In this view of the matter, we have enacted that a tenure, under-tenure or occupancy-holding, about to be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of its own rent, shall first be put up to auction subject to certain incumbrances, and, if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, shall be sold subject to such incumbrances. If the highest amount bid is not sufficient to liquidate the decree, the decree-holder, that is, the landlord, may then claim to have the tenure, &c., sold free of incumbrances. Such sale is not to be had immediately, but upon a subsequent sale-day not less than fifteen or more than thirty days afterwards; and a notification of such tenure being about to be offered for sale free of incumbrances must be posted upon some conspicuous place upon the land of the tenure. The effect of these provisions will be that persons who hold sub-leases and incumbrances will not be endamaged if the bidding on the first sale-day reaches an amount sufficient to satisfy the decree and the tenure is in consequence sold subject to incumbrances. If, on the other hand, the bidding on the first sale-day does not reach an amount sufficient to satisfy the decree, such persons will have time to protect themselves from injury by paying in the amount of the decree (which they can subsequently recover from the defaulter), and so preventing such a sale of the tenure as will avoid incumbrances."

125. Among the objections to the scheme thus propounded by the Commissioners was one to the effect that it was unsuited to the case of occupancy-holdings. This objection is admitted by Mr. Reynolds and by the Government of Bengal to be as a rule well-founded, inasmuch as an ordinary-occupancy-holding is not likely to be saddled with incumbrances which should be respected at a sale. It appears, however, that there are, in some parts of the country, occupancy-holdings of large extent, the land of which is sub-let on such terms that the interest of the lessee is of considerable value. Under these circumstances, the proper course appears to be that proposed by the Government of Bengal, namely, that occupancy-holdings should as a rule be sold at once with power to annul all incumbrances, but that the Local Government should have power to direct that the occupancy-holdings in any local area should be in the first instance put up subject to incumbrances as if they were tenures; and it is on these lines that the present Bill is drawn.

126. The general outline of the chapter will be clear from what has been said, but there are certain details of sufficient importance to call for further explanation. In the first place, it should be stated that the word "incumbrance" is used throughout in a special sense. When it is said that a holding will be sold "free of incumbrances," or as the Bill puts it, "with power to avoid incumbrances," it is not meant that it will be discharged free of everything that might in the wide sense of the word be termed an "incumbrance."

The following interests, which might be termed incumbrances, will not be affected by any sale under this chapter:—

(a) a tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) a tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) a tenure of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) a right of occupancy;

(e) a right conferred on an occupancy-tenant to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord has expressly and in writing given the tenant permission to create.

The last three of these are protected in similar sales under the existing law, and the first three have been added, because such interests, being protected under a sale for arrears of revenue, would seem to be à fortiori entitled to protection under a sale for rent.

127. Again, when the Commissioners propose that the holding shall be put up in the first instance subject to incumbrances, they do not mean that it should be sold subject to all incumbrances, but only to such incumbrances as have been created by a registered instrument of which a copy has been served on the landlord. This limitation they considered necessary to prevent sham incumbrances being fraudulently set up after the sale.

128. The Bill has been drawn in accordance with these views, and accordingly, if it becomes law, the result will be—

(a) that the interests referred to in paragraph 126 will be protected in the case of all sales;

(b) that, in the case of sales subject to encumbrances, the protection will extend also to incumbrances created by registered instruments of which a copy has been served on the landlord; and

(c) that, except as stated in (a) and (b), the holding will be sold with power to avoid all liens, sub-tenancies, easements and other rights or interests created upon it by the tenant in limitation of his own interest.

129. An incumbrance will not become void ipso facto on a sale under this chapter. It must be annulled by a notice served on the incumbrancer through the Collector within one year after the purchaser first has knowledge of the incumbrance. It may be added that it is proposed, by separate legislation, to apply a similar rule to the case of sales for arrears of revenue.

130. When an order for the sale of a holding is passed under this chapter, nothing will stop the sale, unless the amount due is paid into court or the decree-holder acknowledges that his claim has been satisfied.

131. When any person, having in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into court the amount requisite to prevent the sale, he will, with a view to the recovery of his money, be placed by section 218 in the position of a mortgagee of the holding with a first charge and a right to possession. If he is an inferior tenant of the holding, he will have a further remedy under section 219 which entitles him to deduct the amount from his rent.

132. The only other provision of this chapter which need be mentioned is section 220, which permits the decree-holder to bid at the sale without the permission of the Court, and precludes the judgment-debtor from bidding.

CHAPTER XVI.—Limitation.

133. The only provision of this chapter calling for notice is section 225, under which disability will not be recognised as affecting the running of limitation in suits for the recovery of rent. This is in accordance with the recommendation of the Rent Law Commissioners.

"We think," they say, "that a minor ought not to be competent on coming of age to sue a raiyat for rent, which had accumulated during the whole period of his minority; that this kind of debt, which a poor man usually discharges year by year out of the produce of the year, ought not to be allowed to accumulate; and that, if the manager of a minor's estate neglects his duty of realizing rents as they fall due, the minor's remedy ought to be in an action for damages against such manager."

Chapter II.—Survey of Inland Steam-vessels.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Survey, and the Examination and Grant of Certificates to Engineers, of Inland Steam-vessels, and to provide for certain other matters relating to those vessels.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels and the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those vessels;

And whereas it is also expedient to provide for the grant of certificates to the masters of inland steam-vessels, and for investigations into casualties affecting, and into charges against masters and engineers of, those vessels, and for the protection of passengers and goods carried thereon from danger by fire; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; and Extent.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Commencement.

2. (1) This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the official Gazette directs.

(2) But any notification, rule or appointment may be made under this Act at any time after the passing thereof, but shall not take effect until the Act comes into force.

(3) And nothing in this Act shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty, or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Repeal of enactments.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Acts mentioned in the first column of the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof.

(2) But all proceedings commenced, investigations held, and certificates granted, cancelled or suspended under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to have been respectively commenced, held, granted, cancelled or suspended under this Act or under the Indian Steamships Act, 1883, as the case may be.

Definitions.

4. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "vessel" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or of property:

(2) "steam-vessel" means every description of vessel propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam:

(3) "inland water" means any canal, river, navigable lake or water in British India:

(4) "inland steam-vessel" means a steam-vessel which ordinarily plies on inland water:

(5) "voyage" includes also the plying of a vessel at or about any place: [Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 1.]

(6) "owner" includes also an agent: and

(7) "master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a vessel.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

Inland steam-vessel not to make a voyage unless furnished with certificate under Act.

5. An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she is furnished under this Act with a certificate of survey then in force. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

Appointment of surveyors and places of survey.

6. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such places within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be places of survey. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 4. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 2. Bom Act IV of 1873, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 2.]

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Powers of surveyors.

7. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section six may, at any reasonable time, go on board any inland steam-vessel, and may inspect the steam-vessel and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof: [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 3. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 3.]

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steam-vessel, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steam-vessel shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steam-vessel, and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

8. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and, when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steam-vessel is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for service as an inland steam-vessel, grant to the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Form of certificate of survey.

9. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 10. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 10, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 10, as amended by Ben. Act III of 1871, s. 1.]

Fees for survey.

10. For every survey made under this Act, the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the vessel according to the rates in the third schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe; and,

[Cf. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 13, and Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 5.]

(b) when the survey is made in any place of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense (if any) of the journey of the surveyor to the place, as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of vessel.

11. The owner or master of every steam-vessel for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the vessel is in use, on some conspicuous part of the vessel where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Term of certificate.

12. A certificate of survey granted under this Act shall not be in force—

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government, to the owner or master of the steam-vessel to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended the certificate.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 13. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13.]

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

13. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe—

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or [17 & 18 Vic. c. 104, s. 315.]

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been granted upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

14. The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired or has been cancelled or suspended to be delivered up to such person as it directs.

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

15. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section thirteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 14. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 14. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 14.]

Power to order a second survey.

16. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section six to survey the steam-vessel.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steam-vessel, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 9. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 8. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 8.]

Power for Local Government to make rules as to surveys.

17. (1) The Local Government may make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the time and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

Inland Steam-vessels Bill.

Chapter III.—Masters and Engineers of Inland Steam-vessels.

[New, but Cf. definition of surveyors in Act XVI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 17. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 16.]

Power for Local Government to exempt certain vessels.

18. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels shall not apply in the case of any specified class of inland steam-vessels, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

CHAPTER III.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

[Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 3. See also Act XVI of 1871, s. 20, Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 18, Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 11, which, however, lays down a different rule.]

Inland steam-vessels not to make voyage without certificated master and engineer.

19. (1) An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she has as her master a person possessing a master's certificate, and as her first or only engineer a person possessing an engineer's certificate, duly granted under this chapter and then in force.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 21. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 20. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 13.]

Exception.

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to any steam-vessel which does not ply with passengers or goods, or as a steam-tug, for hire, and which the Local Government may, by notification, exempt from its operation.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 17. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 15. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 8. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 2.]

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

20. The Local Government may, by notification, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as masters or as engineers of inland steam-vessels, and make rules—

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining either of these certificates, and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

Grant of masters' certificates of competency.

21. (1) The Local Government shall grant, to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, a master's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as master of an inland steam-vessel.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 18. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 16. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 9.]

Grant of engineers' certificates of competency.

22. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

(a) who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, or

(b) who possesses an engineer's certificate under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Acts for the time being in force, or to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869,

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 23. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 2. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 15.] 32 & 33. Vic., c. 11.

an engineer's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as engineer of an inland steam-vessel.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

(3) Before granting a certificate under section twenty-one or this section, the Local Government, if it has reason to believe that the report of the examiners regarding any applicant has been unduly made, may require a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

Grant of engineers' certificates of service.

23. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 17. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

(a) who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first or second engineer in any foreign-going steam-vessel having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or as first or only engineer in any other steam-vessel, or

(b) who has obtained or shall obtain the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty,

an engineer's certificate of service under this Act:

Provided that a certificate of service shall not be granted to any person until he—

(c) has proved himself to have served or obtained such rank as aforesaid, and has given his name and a full and satisfactory account of the length and nature of his previous services, and

(d) has paid such fees as the Local Government may, by notification, direct.

(2) Every certificate of service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is granted, and shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

24. Every certificate granted under this chapter shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 24. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 22. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 16.]

Copy of certificate to be granted in certain cases.

25. Whenever a master or an engineer proves, to the satisfaction of the Local Government which granted his certificate, that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of it, a copy of the certificate to which, by the record kept as prescribed under section twenty-four, he appears to be entitled shall be granted to him, and shall have all the effect of the original.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 25. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 23. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 17.]

Inland Steam-vessels Bill.

Chapter IV.—Investigation into Casualties.

[Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6.]

Certificated masters to be deemed pilots under Indian Ports Act.

26. (1) Every master of an inland steam-vessel who possesses a master's certificate duly granted under this Act and then in force shall, in ports to which section 38 of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, has been extended, be deemed, for the purposes of that section, to be the pilot of the steam-vessel of which he is in charge.

XII of 1875.

[Cf. Bom. Act I of 1863, ss. 9 et seq.]

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of Bombay Act I of 1863, which require persons in charge of vessels passing through any of the channels or tidal channels at the mouths of the river Indus to pay fees for pilotage.

CHAPTER IV.

INVESTIGATIONS INTO CASUALTIES.

[See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6. Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 6.]

Report of casualties to be made to Local Government.

27. (1) Whenever—

(a) any inland steam-vessel has been wrecked, abandoned or materially damaged, or

(b) by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any inland steam-vessel, loss of life has ensued, or

(c) any inland steam-vessel has caused loss or material damage to any other vessel, the master shall give immediate notice of the wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss to the nearest Magistrate.

(2) The Magistrate receiving the notice shall, without delay, communicate it to the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 7, and Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Local Government to appoint special Court of Investigation.

28. (1) If in any such case a formal investigation into the facts referred to in section twenty-seven, clause (a), (b) or (c), appears to the Local Government to be requisite or expedient, the Local Government (whether the notice is given or not) may appoint a special Court, consisting of not less than two nor more than four persons, and direct the Court to make the investigation, and may fix the place for making the same.

(2) One of the members of the Court shall be a Magistrate acting in or near the place where the investigation is made; another shall be some person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and the other or others (if any) shall be conversant with either maritime or mercantile affairs or with the navigation of inland steam-vessels.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 8.]

Power for principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction to hold investigations into casualties when so directed.

29. Any principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction and the Court of any District Magistrate may, when so directed by the Local Government, make the investigation referred to in section twenty-eight.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 9, and Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Court of Investigation to inquire into charges against masters and engineers.

30. (1) Any Court making an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine may inquire into any charge of incompetency or misconduct arising, in the course of the investigation, against any master or engineer, as well as into any charge of a wrongful act or default on his part causing any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss referred to in section twenty-seven.

[Act XIII of 1875, s. 3.]

(2) In every case in which any such charge, whether of incompetency or misconduct, or of a wrongful act or default as aforesaid, arises against any master or engineer in the course of an investigation, the Court shall, before the commencement of the inquiry into the charge, cause to be furnished to him a copy of the report or statement of the case upon which the investigation has been directed.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 10, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Local Government to direct investigation into charges of incompetency or misconduct.

31. (1) If the Local Government has reason to believe that there are grounds for charging any master or engineer of an inland steam-vessel with incompetency or misconduct, otherwise than in the course of an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine, it may transmit a statement of the case to the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction, or the Court of the District Magistrate, at or nearest to the place at which it may be convenient for the parties and witnesses to attend, and may direct the Court to make an investigation into the charge.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 9 (2), & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

(2) Before commencing the investigation, the Court shall cause the master or engineer so charged to be furnished with a copy of the statement transmitted by the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, ss. 11 & 12, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Person accused to be heard.

32. For the purpose of an investigation under this chapter into any charge against a master or engineer, the Court may summon him to appear, and shall give him full opportunity of making a defence, either in person or otherwise.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 13, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Assessors.

33. (1) When any investigation involves, or appears likely to involve, any question as to the cancelling or suspension of the certificate of a master or engineer, the Court making the investigation under section twenty-nine or section thirty-one shall constitute as its assessors, for the purposes of the investigation, two persons having experience in the merchant service or in the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and in every other investigation the Court making it may, if it thinks fit, constitute as its assessor, for the purposes of the investigation, any person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels and willing to act as assessor.

(2) Every person appointed under this section shall attend during the investigation and deliver his opinion in writing, to be recorded on the proceedings. But the exercise of all powers conferred on the Court by this Act shall rest with the Court.

Chapter IV.—Investigations into Casualties. Chapter V.—Suspension and Cancellation of Masters' and Engineers' certificates.

Act V of 1883, s. 12 Ben. Act of 1879,

Power of Court as to evidence and regulating proceedings.

34. For the purpose of any investigation under this chapter, the Court making the investigation, so far as relates to compelling the attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents and the regulation of the proceedings, shall have—

(a) if the Court is a special Court—the same powers as are exerciseable by the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction for the place at which the investigation is made;

(b) if the Court is a principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction or the Court of the District Magistrate—the same powers as are exerciseable respectively by either Court in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction.

Act V of 1883, s. 15. Ben. Act of 1879.]

Power to arrest witnesses and cause entry and detention of vessels.

35. (1) If any Court making an investigation under this chapter thinks it necessary for obtaining evidence that any person should be arrested, it may issue a warrant for his arrest, and may, for the purpose of effecting the arrest, authorize any officer (subject, nevertheless, to any general or special instructions from the Local Government) to enter any vessel.

(2) Any officer so authorized may, for the purpose of enforcing the entry, call to his aid any officers of Police or Customs, or any other persons, and may seize and detain the vessel for such time as is reasonably necessary to effect the arrest; and every such officer or other person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. V of 1860.

(3) No person shall be detained by virtue of this section for more than forty-eight hours.

Act V of 1883, s. 15. Ben. Act of 1879,

Power to commit for trial and bind over witnesses.

36. (1) Whenever, in the course of any investigation, it appears that any person has committed, within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India, an offence punishable under any law in force in British India, the Court making the investigation may (subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court may, from time to time, prescribe) cause him to be arrested, or commit him or hold him to bail to take his trial before the proper Court; and may bind over any person to give evidence at the trial, and may, for the purposes of this section, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate of the first class or of a Presidency Magistrate.

(2) For the purposes of this section the Recorder of Rangoon shall, within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, be deemed to be the High Court.

Act V of 1883, s. 16(1). Ben. Act of 1879,

Depositions.

37. (1) Whenever, in the course of any such trial, the testimony of any witness is required in relation to the subject-matter, any deposition previously made by him in relation to the same subject-matter before any Court making an investigation under this chapter shall, if authenticated by the signature of the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate, be admissible in evidence on proof—

(a) that the witness cannot be found within the jurisdiction of the Court before which the trial is held; and

(b) that it was made in the presence of the person accused, and that he had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness.

(2) A certificate by the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate that the deposition was made in the presence of the accused and that he had that opportunity shall, unless the contrary be proved, be sufficient evidence that it was so made and that he had that opportunity.

Report by Court to Local Government.

38. The Court shall, in the case of every investigation under this chapter, transmit to the Local Government a full report of the conclusions at which it has arrived, together with the evidence. [See Act V of 1883, s. 17 (1) Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

39. (1) Whenever any explosion occurs on board any inland steam-vessel, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that an investigation into the cause of the explosion be made by such person or persons as it thinks fit. [See Act XVI of 1871, s. 15. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 8. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 6.]

(2) The person or persons so directed may enter into and upon the steam-vessel, with all necessary workmen and labourers, and remove any portion of the steam-vessel, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of the investigation, and shall report to the Local Government what in their opinion was the cause of the explosion.

(3) Every such person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

CHAPTER V.

SUSPENSION AND CANCELLATION OF MASTERS' AND ENGINEERS' CERTIFICATES.

Power for Local Government to suspend or cancel certificates in certain cases.

40. Any certificate granted under this Act to any master or engineer may be suspended or cancelled by the Local Government which granted it, or by any other Local Government, in the following cases, that is to say:— [See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 8, and Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 20.]

(a) if, on any investigation made under this Act, the Court reports that the wreck or abandonment of, or loss or damage to, any inland steam-vessel, or loss of life, has been caused by his wrongful act or default, or that he is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of drunkenness, tyranny or other misconduct; or

(b) if he is proved to have been convicted of any non-bailable offence:

Provided that, in any case in which an investigation has been made, into a charge against any master or engineer, a certificate shall not be suspended or cancelled under clause (a) of this section unless the Local Government is satisfied that the holder of the certificate has been furnished before the commencement of the investigation with the copy of the report or statement required by section thirty or section thirty-one, as the case may be.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 21.]

Obligation to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

41. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty shall deliver it to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 22.]

Report to other Local Governments.

42. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends, under section forty, a certificate is not the Local Government which granted the certificate, the Local Government so cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the proceedings, and the fact of cancellation or suspension, to the Local Government which granted the certificate.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 24.]

Power to revoke cancellation or suspension and to grant new certificate.

43. (1) Any Local Government may at any time revoke any order of cancellation or suspension which it may have made under section forty, or grant, without examination, to any person whose certificate it has so cancelled, a new certificate.

(2) A certificate so granted shall have the same effect as if it had been granted after examination.

CHAPTER VI.

PROTECTION OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS FROM DANGER BY FIRE.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 8, cl. (d).]

Power for Governor General in Council to declare dangerous goods.

44. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 16.]

Carriage of dangerous goods.

45. (1) A person shall not take with him on board an inland steam-vessel, and a person shall not deliver or tender for carriage on an inland steam-vessel, any dangerous goods without giving notice of their nature to the owner or master of the steam-vessel, or, in the case of goods delivered or tendered for carriage, without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the goods.

(2) The owner or master of an inland steam-vessel may refuse to carry upon an inland steam-vessel any luggage or parcel which he suspects to contain dangerous goods, and may require the luggage or parcel to be opened to ascertain the fact previously to carrying the same; and, in case any such luggage or parcel is received for the purpose of being carried in any inland steam-vessel, the owner or master of the vessel may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

[36 & 37 Vic., c. 85, s. 26.]

Power to throw overboard dangerous goods.

46. Where any dangerous goods have been sent or brought on board any inland steam-vessel in contravention of section forty-five, the owner or master of the steam-vessel may cause the goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained, and neither the owner nor the master shall, in respect of his having so thrown the goods overboard, be subject to any liability, civil or criminal, in any Court.

Power for Local Government to make rules for protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

47. (1) The Local Government may make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire. [New.]

(2) Rules under this section may provide for the following among other matters, that is to say:—

(a) the conditions on, and subject to, which dangerous goods shall be carried on board inland steam-vessels;

(b) the precautions to be taken to prevent explosions or fires on board inland steam-vessels; and

(c) the apparatus for the purpose of extinguishing fires, which is to be kept on board inland steam-vessels.

(3) Any rule under this section may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VII.

PENALTIES AND LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Penalty for steam-vessel making a voyage in contravention of section 5.

48. If any inland steam-vessel makes a voyage in contravention of section five, the owner and master of the steam-vessel, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees: [Act XV 1871, s. Bom. Act of 1864, Ben. A of 1862,

Provided that, if any steam-vessel is not in any place of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate in respect of any voyage which the steam-vessel may make from the place where she is when her certificate expires to the nearest place of survey. [Act XV 1871, s. Bom. A of 1864, Ben. Act 1862, s. amended Ben. Act 1868.]

Liability of master or officer, when a licensed pilot, to lose his license.

49. If the master or any other officer on board of an inland steam-vessel which makes a voyage in contravention of section five is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot taken away from him entirely, or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order. [Act XV 1871, s. Bom. A of 1864, Ben. Act of 1862

Penalty for neglect to affix certificate of survey.

50. The owner and master of any inland steam-vessel, or either of them, on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed, in manner provided by section eleven, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XV 1871, s Bom. A of 1864 Ben. A 1862, s.

Penalty for neglect or refusal to deliver up certificate as required under section 14.

51. If the owner or master of an inland steam-vessel, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under section [Act X 1871, s. Bom. A of 1864 Ben. A 1862, s fourteen, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

[Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (5), & Act I of 1859, s. 13. See also Act XVI of 1871, s. 32. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 19. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 12. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 4.]

Penalty for serving, or engaging a person to serve, as master or engineer without certificate.

52. (a) Whoever, having been engaged to serve as master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies, proceeds on any voyage in that steam-vessel as master or first or only engineer without being at the time entitled to and possessed of the certificate required by that section, and

(b) Whoever employs any person as a master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies without ascertaining that he is at the time entitled to, and possessed of, a master's or an engineer's certificate, as the case may be, under this Act, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 6. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6.]

Master failing to give notice as required by section 27.

53. If any master wilfully fails to give notice, as required by section twenty-seven, of any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 21.]

Master or engineer failing to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

54. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty, and who fails to deliver the certificate to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

[Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 30.]

Penalty for taking dangerous goods on board inland steam-vessels without notice.

55. Whoever, in contravention of section forty-five, takes with him on board any inland steam-vessel any dangerous goods, or delivers or tenders any such goods for the purpose of being carried on any inland steam-vessel, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

[Cf. Act I of 1869, s. 79.]

Penalty for misconduct endangering vessel or life or limb.

56. Any person employed or engaged in any capacity on board an inland steam-vessel—

(a) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, does any act tending to the immediate wreck, destruction or material damage of the vessel, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person belonging to or on board the vessel, or

(b) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving the vessel from immediate wreck, destruction or material damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board of the vessel from immediate danger to life or limb, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with both.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Distress of vessel.

57. Where the owner or master of a steam-vessel is convicted of an offence under this Act committed on board of, or in relation to, that steam-vessel, and sentenced to pay a fine, the Magistrate may, in addition to any other power he may have for the purpose of compelling payment of the fine, direct the amount thereof to be levied by distress and sale of the vessel and the tackle, apparel and furniture thereof, or so much thereof as is necessary.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Magistrates having jurisdiction.

58. A Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class, shall not try any offence under this Act, or the rules under it.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Place of trial.

59. Whoever commits an offence against this Act or the rules under it shall be triable for the offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, by notification, direct in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any other law for the time being in force.

Saving of prosecutions under other Acts.

60. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules under it, or from being liable under that other law to any other or higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules under it:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Fees recoverable as fines.

61. All fees payable under this Act may be recovered as fines under this Act.

Rules.

62. (1) All rules made under this Act by the Local Government shall be subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; and all powers conferred by this Act on the Local Government to make rules may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

[Home Department Resolution No. 49, dated 8th November, 1882.]

(2) Every rule made by a Local Government under this Act shall, before being sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in such manner, and for such time, as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct, with a notice of the intention of the Local Government to apply for sanction thereto.

Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.

(3) The Local Government shall receive and submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two, and the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, if he or it thinks fit, amend the rule with a view to meeting the objection or suggestion without again publishing the rule:

Provided that a failure of the Local Government to submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion made with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two shall not be deemed to invalidate any rule sanctioned by him under this Act.

(4) A rule sanctioned under this Act by the Governor General in Council shall not take effect until it has been published in the local official Gazette.

(5) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every rule when so sanctioned and published shall have the force of law.

Notifications.

63. (1) Except in the case of the notification under section two, sub-section one, all powers to issue notifications conferred by this Act on the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

(2) A notification issued by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government under this Act shall not take effect until it has been published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be.

(3) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every notification shall, when published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT has been found expedient to legislate in order to bring the law regarding the survey of sea-going steam-vessels into conformity with the law of England and to have one law on that subject applicable to the whole of British India. The present law regulating the survey of these vessels is contained in various local Acts, which also contain provisions relating to inland steam-vessels; and it was thought that it would be better to repeal the whole of these Acts and separately enact the parts relating to sea-going and inland steam-vessels than to repeal only so much as was necessary and leave the Acts in a mutilated and probably obscure form. Moreover, it was thought desirable that there should be one law regarding inland steamers relating to the whole of India. The present law is insufficient. Madras is unprovided for, and there is no law to govern steamers plying in the province of Assam. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It is drawn so that it may be brought into force along with the Indian Steamships Bill, and it repeals the seven local Acts, relating to steamships, which are now in force.

2. The Bill is divided into eight chapters. It deals with the survey of inland steam-vessels, the examination and grant of certificates to masters and engineers of those vessels, the investigation into casualties occurring to them, the suspension and cancellation of masters' and engineers' certificates, and the protection of the vessels from fire, and also prescribes the penalties for offences against the provisions of the Act, the jurisdiction of Magistrates and the place of trial.

3. In its main provisions the Bill follows the existing law so far as it goes. The points in which the law is changed and which require notice are as follows. The term for which the certificate of survey is to last is, by section 12 of the Bill, extended to one year, instead of six months as at present; but section 13 enables the Local Government, under certain circumstances, to cancel or suspend a certificate of survey. The power conferred by section 17 of the Bill of making rules to regulate a survey is somewhat larger than that given by the present law. The duties of each of the two surveyors are different, and the Bill therefore enables the Local Government to assign and regulate the duties of each. To meet local requirements, power is given in section 18 of the Bill to Local Governments to exempt any specified class of inland steam-vessels from all or any of the provisions relating to survey. In section 22 the Bill provides for the grant, without examination, of a certificate as engineer to a person who possesses a certificate granted under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act or a certificate which is by the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, equivalent thereto. It further provides in section 23 for the grant of certificates of service to engineers who have served for a certain time in certain steamships, or who have obtained the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty. The provisions of Chapters IV and V of the Bill, regarding investigations into casualties and the cancelling and suspending of the certificates of masters and engineers, are taken, with slight modifications, from the Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, which was recently passed.

4. The whole of Chapter VI is new. At present, there is no way of securing that due precautions are taken against fire and against the carriage of dangerous goods on passenger steamers. Chapter VI follows to a certain extent the provisions of the Indian Railway Act, 1879. It confers on the Governor General in Council power to declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of the Act, dangerous goods, and prohibits persons from taking those goods on board except under certain conditions. Following section 23 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1873, it empowers (section 46) the master or owner of a vessel to throw overboard dangerous goods which have been brought on board without notice or without being marked as required by the Act. It also (section 47) enables the Local Government to make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

5. In Chapter VII a section (56) has been inserted, providing a penalty for misconduct on the part of persons employed on board inland steam-vessels. This section is taken from the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, section 79, the penalty being modified so as to permit of an offence being punished by fine only.

6. Lastly, with regard to the rules which may be made under the Act, the Bill, section 62, secures that they shall be duly published for general information and criticism before they are sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

7. A statement is annexed showing how the provisions of the Acts which are repealed by the Bill are dealt with in this Bill and the Indian Steamships Bill.

The 5th March, 1883.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Survey of Steamships and the Grant of Certificates to Engineers of those Ships.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the survey of steamships and the grant of certificates to engineers of those ships; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Steamships Act, 1883;

Extent.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

(3) And it shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the official Gazette directs.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

(1) "steamship" means every description of vessel used in navigation and propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam: and

(2) "passenger" includes any person carried in a steamship other than the master and crew and the owner, his family and servants.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF STEAMSHIPS.

[17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 291 & 318; see also 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 16. See also Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, s. 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

Steamship not to carry passengers unless furnished with certificate under Act.

3. A steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any place out of British India, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey under this chapter then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed.

[Cf. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4, paragraph 2.]

Exception of certain steamships from provisions of section 3.

4. Nothing in section three shall apply to—

(a) any steamship furnished with a certificate of survey, granted by the Board of Trade or any British Colonial Government, which is then in force and applicable to the voyage on which that steamship has proceeded or is about to proceed, or the service on which she has been or is about to be employed, unless there is reason to believe that the steamship has, subsequently to the grant of the certificate, sustained injury or damage, or been found unseaworthy or otherwise inefficient; or

(b) any inland steam-vessel as defined in the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; or

(c) any steamship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Penalty for carrying passengers in contravention of section 3.

5. If any steamship carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, the owner and master of the steamship, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees: [Act XVI of 1871, s. 27. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 5.]

Provided that, if any steamship is not in any port of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate until she first begins to carry passengers after her next subsequent arrival at some port of survey. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

If master or officer of ship carrying passengers in contravention of section 3 is a licensed pilot, he is liable to loss his license.

6. If the master or any other officer of any steamship which carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot cancelled or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 28. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 6. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 6.]

Port-clearance not to be granted until certificate of survey produced.

7. No officer of Customs shall grant a port-clearance, nor shall any pilot be assigned to any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three, until after the production by the owner or master thereof of a certificate under this Act then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 7. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 5. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 318.]

Power to detain ship not furnished with certificate.

8. If any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three leaves or attempts to leave any port of survey without a certificate, any officer of Customs or any pilot on board the ship may detain her until she is duly furnished with the certificate.

Appointment of surveyors and ports of survey.

9. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such ports within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be ports of survey. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864 s. 2. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 12 Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 2. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 305.]

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Indian Steamships Bill.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 8. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 3. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 306.]

Powers of surveyors.

10. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section nine may, at any reasonable time go on board any steamship, and may inspect the steamship and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof:

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steamship, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steamship shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steamship and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 309-13.]

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

11. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steamship is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for the service on which it is intended to employ it, grant to the owner or master of the steamship surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Form of certificate of survey.

12. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the first schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 10. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 10, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 10, as amended by Ben. Act III of 1871, s 1. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 314. [Cf. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 13, & Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 5.]

Fees for survey.

13. For every survey made under this Act the owner or master of the steamship surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the ship according to the rates in the second schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may from time to time by notification prescribe, and

(b) when the survey is made in any port of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense, if any, of the journey of the surveyors to the port, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom Act II of 1864, s. 11.

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of ship.

14. (1) The owner or master of every steamship for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the ship is in use, on some conspicuous part of the ship where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof. Bom. Act V of 1862, s. 1. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 317.]

(2) The owner and master of every steamship (or either of them), on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed in manner provided by this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 30. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.

Term of certificates.

15. A certificate granted under this Act shall not be in force— [Act XVI of 1871, s 12. Bom. Act II of 1862, s. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 315.

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government to the owner, agent or master of the steamship to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended it.

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

16. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe— [Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13. Act XVI of 1871, s 13. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 316.]

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been issued upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

17. (1) The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired, or has been cancelled or suspended, to be delivered up to such person as it directs. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12 Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

(2) If the owner or master, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 31. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

18. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section sixteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

Indian Steamships Bill.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships. Chapter III.—Examination and Certificates of Engineers.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 14. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 14. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 14. Cf. the appeal given by 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 14.]

Power to order a second survey.

19. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steamship surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section nine to survey the steamship.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steamship, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[See 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 19.]

Survey of foreign steamships.

20. When a foreign steamship requires to be furnished with a certificate of survey under this Act, and the Local Government is satisfied, by the production of a certificate of survey attested by a British Consular Officer at the port of survey, that the ship has been officially surveyed at a foreign port, and that the requirements of this Act are proved by that survey to have been substantially complied with, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, dispense with any further survey of the ship in respect of the requirements so complied with, and give a certificate which shall have the same effect as a certificate given after survey under this Act:

Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of an official survey at any foreign port with respect to which Her Majesty has by order in Council directed that section 19 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, shall not apply.

[See 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 19.]

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 9. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 8. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 8. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 209-13.]

Local Government to make rules as to survey.

21. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the times and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

[New. But cf. definition of "Surveyors" in Act XVI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 17. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 16.]

Power for Local Government to exempt certain steamships.

22. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this chapter shall not apply in the case of any specified class of steamships, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

CHAPTER III.

EXAMINATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ENGINEERS.

Certificates to be of two grades.

23. Engineers' certificates shall be of two grades, namely, "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates." [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (1).]

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

24. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as engineers, and, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules— [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, ss. 6 & 7. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 17. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 15. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 8.]

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates"; and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

Grant of certificates of competency.

25. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications a certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as a first class engineer or as a second class engineer, as the case may be: [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 8. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 18. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 16. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 9.]

Provided that the Local Government may, in any case in which it has reason to believe that the report has been unduly made, require, before granting a certificate, a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Grant of certificates of service.

26. (1) The Local Government shall grant certificates of service as engineers, differing in form from certificates of competency, as follows, namely:— [Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 13, s. 9. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 17. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

(a) To every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in the service of Her Majesty—a "first class engineers' certificate" of service:

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A CASE having occurred in Bombay which showed that the Bombay law relating to the survey of steamships was not in harmony with the English law on the subject, it was thought desirable to amend the Bombay law. When, however, the question of legislation came to be considered, it appeared that there were no less than seven local Acts relating to steamships. Bombay, Bengal and Burma each had its special law regulating the survey of these ships, while there was no law on the subject in the Presidency of Madras. The multiplicity of laws relating to the survey of steamships, it was thought, could not but be inconvenient to shipowners whose ships traded between different Provinces. For instance, Act XVI of 1871, which is in force in Burma, requires every steam-vessel plying on any of the rivers or waters of British Burma, except steam-vessels plying between a port in British Burma and a port not in British India, to be surveyed twice a year. In the same way, the Bombay Act II of 1864, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, requires every British steam-vessel, not holding a Board of Trade, British Indian or Colonial certificate, carrying passengers between any port of the Presidency of Bombay and any other port, to be surveyed twice a year, and the Bengal Act V of 1862, as amended by Act I of 1868, also requires the survey twice in every year of all steam-vessels plying on any of the rivers or waters within the Province of Bengal, except steam-vessels which may ply between some port within that Province and some port not in British India. Under these laws, a steam-vessel which was surveyed in Bombay might, apparently, be required to undergo a fresh survey on arrival in Calcutta, and another survey on arrival at a port in Burma. As legislation is necessary, it is, therefore, clearly expedient to have one uniform law relating to the survey of steam-vessels applicable to the whole of British India.

2. Besides providing for the survey of steam-vessels, the local Acts provide also for the examination of, and the grant of certificates to, engineers, and for holding investigations into explosions occurring on board steam-vessels. In these matters uniformity in the law is desirable.

3. After consulting the Local Governments concerned, the Government of India has decided to legislate so as to provide one law relating to the survey of sea-going steamships, the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those ships, and the investigation into explosions occurring thereon. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It was, however, found at the same time necessary to legislate in like manner for steam-vessels plying on rivers and inland waters, inasmuch as the provisions of the local Acts related, to a certain extent, to those vessels as well as to sea-going vessels. With this view, a separate Bill—the Inland Steam-vessels Bill—has been prepared, so as to keep the law relating to merchant shipping—a law liable to be affected by legislation in England—entirely separate from the law regulating inland steam-vessels, which is a matter solely within the scope of Indian legislation.

4. The present Bill is divided into three chapters. The first chapter is purely formal. The second deals with the subject of the survey of steamships. It provides that a steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and that a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any foreign port, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey. It exempts steamships furnished with Board of Trade certificates or Colonial certificates, provides for the appointment of surveyors and ports of survey, prescribes the powers of surveyors and the conditions on which they are to grant certificates. It provides for the fees which are to be paid for certificates and the term for which they are to last, and it confers on the Local Government the power, under certain circumstances, of cancelling or suspending a certificate. It further enables the Local Government to make rules to regulate the time, place and manner in which surveys shall be made, and to assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making it. To meet local requirements, a section (22) is also added, enabling the Local Government to exempt any specified class of steamships from all or any of the provisions of the chapter.

5. The principal changes introduced in the law by the provisions contained the second chapter are as follows:—

Section 3 follows the English law (39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80, section 16), and only requires a survey in the case of steamships carrying more than twelve passengers.

The law as at present in force in Bengal and Burma is thus amended in an important point, and cargo steamers are exempted from survey.

Another change in the law is made by section 15 of the Bill, which provides that a certificate of survey shall not remain in force for more than twelve months. At present, the law requires a survey twice a year, but it is thought that the power which the Local Government has under section 16 of the Bill of cancelling or suspending a certificate renders a survey every six months unnecessary.

Section 20 of the Bill enacts the provisions (regarding the grant of certificates of survey to foreign ships) of section 19, 39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80. It is considered that these provisions will be of use in India in the case of foreign ships which have been officially surveyed at a foreign port.

6. The third chapter of the Bill deals with the examination of, and grant of certificates to, engineers. It also contains a provision as to inquiries into cases of explosion, and miscellaneous sections regulating the jurisdiction and place of trial in cases of offences under the Act, and applies to steamships going to sea from a place in the Bombay Presidency, the provisions as to boats for sea-going ships of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

7. Following the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, the chapter provides that there are to be two grades of engineers—first class engineers and second class engineers. The Local Government is empowered to appoint examiners, and to make rules as to the conduct of the examinations, the qualifications to be required from the applicants and the fees to be paid by them. Certificates will be granted to those who, by the result of the examination, show themselves to be possessed of the necessary qualifications.

8. This chapter also provides (section 26) for the grant of certificates of service as engineers. A first class certificate may be granted to a person who has served, before the passing of the Act, for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship carrying engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in Her Majesty's service.

A second class certificate may be granted to a person who has, before the passing of the Act, served as second engineer in such a steamship or as sole engineer in a smaller one, or who obtains the rank of first class assistant engineer in Her Majesty's service. It is doubtful whether it is necessary or expedient to provide for the grant of certificates of service. The attention of the Local Governments concerned will be drawn to the point.

9. It is further provided (section 29), that foreign-going steamships shall not proceed to sea without engineers possessing certain specified certificates. Similar provisions are made for home-trade steamships, the steamships which are inland steam-vessels within the meaning of the Inland Steam-vessels Act being excepted.

10. The provisions of section 31, as to investigations into explosions, require no comment; and the last four sections of the Bill merely re-enact the existing law as to jurisdiction, the place of trial, the recovery of fees and fines, and the application to steamships leaving a port in the Bombay Presidency of certain provisions of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, concerning boats for sea-going ships.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th February, 1883:—

No. 8 OF 1883.

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Amendment of section 22.

1. For the last clause of section 22, the following shall be substituted:—

"may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as he or it thinks fit, who, being

(a) members of the Covenanted Civil Service,

(b) members of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3,

(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces, or

(d) Cantonment Magistrates,

are invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, to be Justices of the Peace within and for the territories mentioned in the notification."

Amendment of section 25.

2. In section 25, after the words "British India" the following shall be inserted:—

"Sessions Judges and District Magistrates are Justices of the Peace within and for the whole of the territories administered by the Local Government under which they are serving".

Amendment of section 443.

3. In section 443, the words "and an European British subject" shall be omitted.

New section substituted for section 444.

4. For section 444 the following shall be substituted:—

Assistant Sessions Judges who may try European British subjects.

"444. An Assistant Sessions Judge shall not exercise jurisdiction over an European British subject, unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years, and has been specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government."

Repeal of section 450 and of the last sixteen words of section 459.

5. Section 450 and the last sixteen words of section 459 are hereby repealed.

Construction of Act with Code of Criminal Procedure.

6. (1) In this Act "section" means section of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

(2) All references to that Code made in enactments heretofore passed or hereafter to be passed shall be read as if made to that Code as amended by this Act.

Saving for existing appointments.

7. Nothing in this Act shall affect the validity of any appointment made before the passing of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SHORTLY after the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act X of 1882, was passed, the question was raised whether the provisions of that Code which limit the jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to judicial officers who are themselves European British subjects should not be modified. It was thought anomalous that, while Natives of India were admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace and to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns.

2. After consulting the Local Governments, the Government of India has arrived at the conclusion that the time has come for modifying the existing law and removing the present bar upon the investment of Native Magistrates in the interior with powers over European British subjects. The Government of India has accordingly decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinctions.

3. With this object the present Bill has been prepared. In section one it amends section 22 of the Code, which provides that only European British subjects can be appointed Justices of the Peace, and gives the Government power to appoint to that office such persons as it thinks fit belonging to the following classes:—

(a) Members of the Covenanted Civil Service;
(b) Members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules made under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3;
(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces; or
(d) Cantonment Magistrates,

and being persons invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class.

4. The Bill then in section two amends section 25 of the Code, and makes all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates ex officio Justices of the Peace.

5. Section three repeals so much of section 443 of the Code as limits jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to Magistrates who are themselves European British subjects.

6. Section four repeals the similar provision of section 444 of the Code with regard to Sessions Judges.

7. Lastly, section five repeals section 450 of the Code, which provides for the case where the Sessions Judge of the division within which the offence is ordinarily triable is not an European British subject. The same section of the Bill also repeals so much of section 459 of the Code as provides that that section shall not be deemed to confer on Magistrates and Sessions Judges outside the Presidency-towns, not being European British subjects, jurisdiction over European British subjects.

Oct. 2nd	312	12mo. ...	1st ...	2,000	Printed	2 4 0	Jadunáth Mukharji, L.M.S., 160, Bowbazar Street, Calcutta.	This is the second volume of the work of which the first volume was noticed in the catalogue for the second quarter of 1881 (see non-educational Bengali book No. 372). The diseases treated of in this volume are chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, chronic pneumonia, pleurisy, and diarrhœa. The causes, symptoms, diagnosis, and treatment of these diseases are fully and clearly explained in a style which is perhaps even more easy, idiomatic, and popular than the style of the first volume. The work is intended for family men and village practitioners.	912
Sept. 30th	253	8vo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	2 12 0	Mahesh Chandra Ghosh, Calcutta.	Describes some of the diseases of infancy, and their treatment after the homœopathic method.	913
" 19th	140	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 10 0	Hariprasád Chakrabarti, Calcutta.	Describes various kinds of fever and their treatment after the homœopathic method. The author says that fever being now a very common and devastating disease in the villages of Bengal, where good medical practitioners cannot be found, he has prepared this work in the hope that the villagers themselves would be able, with its help, to treat that disease on the cheap and simple method furnished by homœopathy.	914
Aug. 25th	64	8vo. ...	1st ...	501	ditto ...	0 12 0	Basanta Kumár Datta, Calcutta.	In this volume are described the diseases of the male and female generative organs, and of the skin.	915
" 30th	128	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	Guru Gobinda Sen, Calcutta.	This is "a treatise on hygiene, collected and translated from the original texts of Dhanwantari, a great sage and the first author are (1) the different Indian seasons and their influence on the health of the people, (2) the structure and for medicinal purposes, (5) enumeration and qualities of articles used as food, (6) qualities of liquid substances (10) house making, &c.	916

Oct. 4th	115	8vo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	1 0 0	Iswar Chandra Sen, Sánkráil, Mymensingh.	This work is written with the view of counteracting the prevailing tendency of educated Hindus to adopt sceptical or un-Hindu forms of belief. It describes the fundamental principles of Hinduism in its ritualistic and in its contemplative or spiritual aspect. The necessity of those two aspects or stages and the forms of worship demanded by them respectively are explained. The writer considers the Hindu religion to be the best of all religions and Hindu learning to be the source of all other learning, ancient or modern.	919

Sanskrit learning to all others, and were therefore able to retain their nationality. Under the British rule they are of foreign habits, manners, tastes, &c. But Hindus do not require new habits and manners; they simply want to Hindu society in Sanskrit books. It is, therefore, the duty of the English Government in India, as well as of all truly that which is occupied by English studies. But Indian education should not be purely intellectual; it should have male teachers in female schools are condemned as anomalous and improper. Zenana schools are said to have existed Hindu student very much to the discredit and disadvantage of the latter. The author thinks that the true love and respect for riches.

Nov. 5th	35	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	Krishnadás Ráya, Dacca.	A practical treatise in which the manner of vaccinating and treating vaccinated patients, and the comparative merits of vaccination and inoculation, are explained in the form of questions and answers. The opinion of respectable Bengali pundits is also quoted to shew that vaccination is not opposed to the principles of the Hindu religion.	1733
Aug. 30th	16	16mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 1 6	Baradákánta Sen, Kayárpur.	Songs expressive of feelings of love and veneration for God and of philosophic disregard for earthly things.	1734
Sept. 17th	82	16mo. ...	1st ...	400	ditto ...	0 4 0	Durgá Náth Ráya, Dacca.	Brahmo songs in which God is spoken of in the style and spirit of Babu Keshab Chandra Sen's new dispensation. The style is in many places of the figurative kind which characterises the school of Rámprasád Sen.	1735
Oct. 3rd	12	12mo. dy.	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 1 0	Dwáraká Náth Prámánik.	Songs of the class of those which are sung by Báuls. The style of these songs is grotesquely figurative, and the spirit which pervades them is one of utter contempt for worldly things and maddening love for God.	1736

Aug. 27th	9	12mo ...	2nd ...	1,000	Printed	0 1 0	Brahmo Samaj Mission Office, 6, College Square, Calcutta.	The sage Nárada is represented as relating to Vyása how religious faith first sprang up in his mind, how it grew in depth and intensity, the manner in which he realized for a moment the nature of the Deity, how he had to free himself by patient and prolonged discipline from gross desires and inclinations, and how after doing all that he was able to give up his gross body, assume a new and purer and subtler body, and fill himself full of the real and ecstatic vision of Hari. The author's object is apparently to indicate the process of spiritual culture.	1743
Sept. 8th	16	8vo. ...	1st ..	2,500	ditto ...	Nil.	Krishna Gopál Bhakta, 15, Gopi Krishna Pál's Lane, Calcutta.	This is the prospectus of a scheme framed by the author for republishing in a serial form the eighteen principal Puráns with a Bengali translation.	1744
Oct. 1st	48	8vo. ...	1st ...	500	ditto ...	Nil.	Bihárilál Majundár, Nebutalá, Calcutta.	This is a letter addressed to the Vaidya community of Bengal. It is written with the view of shewing that the recent conversion of Surendranáth Barát to Christianity by the Rev. K. S. Macdonald was not a case of fair and sincere conversion, and that Surendra Náth has not therefore committed anything for which he must perform Hindu expiatory rites, in order to obtain readmission into his community.	1745
Sept. 22nd	20	8vo. ...	1st ..	1,000	ditto ...	0 2 0	.....	The songs are composed and arranged as they would be in an opera.	1746
Sept. 2nd	91	8vo. ...	2nd ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	Shashibhushan Basu, Dacca.	The whole of the Tipperah caste question is reviewed and evidence is adduced to shew that the Tipperah raj family is Hindu and not non-Aryan.	1747
Sept. 30th	59	12mo. dy.	1st ...	500	ditto ...	0 2 0	Kailash Gobinda Gupta of Báshi, Tángáil.	The author says that he has in the poems contained in this volume described the thoughts and sentiments of a manager of a Hindu family, who has been deeply involved in debt for the sake of his co-parceners, and whose disinterested services to the family are now returned with their ill-feeling and ingratitude. The author seeks to teach his countrymen that where the income of a family is smaller than its expenditure, all its principal members should get themselves employed abroad, leaving the management of their domestic affairs in the hands of a person who is unconnected with them.	1748
Oct. 1st	36	12mo. dy.	1st ...	700	ditto ...	0 3 0	Ramánanda Gupta, Sayádgáon.	Four poems written by a schoolboy. The first poem contains a prayer to God, in the second are described the evil effects of intemperance, patriotic sentiments are expressed in the third, and in the fourth and last Bengalis are called upon not to cast a slur upon their ancient good name by indulging in the cruel practice of slaying sheep and goats before their gods and goddesses.	1749

Sept. 16th	42	12mo. ..	1st ...	1,000	Printed	0 8 0	Girish Chandra Ghosh, 13, Basupárá Lane, Calcutta.	Describes the story of a prince who is accused by his step-mother of having made improper advances to her, and is accordingly banished. He meets with various adventures, and ultimately arrives at the Maldive Islands. His father has in the meanwhile ascertained his innocence and the intriguing nature of his step-mother, goes out in quest of him, and on finding him presses him to return home. He feels glad at his father's discovery of his mistake, but refuses to return home, and goes his way after tearing off the garland which he wore round his neck, and which had become as it were tainted with the impurity of the accusation under which he has so long laboured.	1769

This little drama is directed against a class of Bengali village Babus who give themselves wise and patronising airs, but are essentially selfish and envious, and delight in fostering village factions, and ruining honest well-to-do neighbours by involving them in inordinate expenditure on the occasion of festivals and other religious ceremonies.	1770
Oct. 8th	25	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 4 0	Baisnab Charan Basák.	An old man, who has married for the third time, cannot account for his young wife's indifference towards him except by supposing that she has formed an improper intimacy with a young man whom he has supported and educated at his residence. His wife, however, confounds him by declaring that she loves the young fellow as her son. He reflects and comes to the conclusion that his wife is chaste, but he himself a little too old to be liked by her. The moral of the story is that persons who are to be united in matrimony ought to be allowed to see and know each other before marriage.	1771

Sept. 17th	216	8vo. ...	1st ..	1,000	ditto ...	1 12 0	Báneswar Ghosh and Mohummad Tahir, Calcutta.	A long and rambling story of love in which supernatural agencies play an important part and the element of incredibility is very strong. The hero Hurraz takes an ugly oil woman for a princess and marries her, and employs a real princess named Gul in her service. In the end, however, Gul's high parentage is discovered by the exercise of certain charms known only to herself and she becomes the hero's wife; whilst the oil woman, who has given herself out as a princess, betrays her mean origin by her vulgar tastes and proclivities. The moral of the story seems to be that the nature of a person's origin cannot be kept concealed and is generally revealed by his character and conduct.	69

Aug. 30th	56	8vo. ..	1st ...	600	Printed	0 6 0	Dwijendra Náth Tagore, 6, Dwáraká Náth Tagore's Street, Calcutta.	The summary account of Ibn Batuta's travels is continued. The writer of a critique on Michael M. S. Datta's Meghnádbadh Kábya is of opinion that that poem does not come up to the standard of an epic or mahákábya. A Bengali apprentice on a tea-garden in Cachar describes how coolies are treated by their masters. He is of opinion that they are not yet very kindly treated. Another writer explains the attitude of poets towards the social opinions and usages of their time. An interesting paper appears in this number, in which various lines of industry are pointed out and described as being exceedingly well fitted to afford independent occupation to the people of this country.	714
Oct. 10th	96	8vo. ...	1st ...	600	ditto	0 6 0	ditto ...	The writer of another critique on the Meghnádbadh Kábya says that there is not much true poetry or high development of character in that poem. But the author of the poem has undoubtedly done a great service to Bengali literature by his introduction and use of blank verse. The dates of the three Baisnab poets, Chandidás, Basanta Ráya, and Bidyápati are discussed in another paper. The interesting paper on independent industrial occupations for the people of this country is continued. An account of the political principles of Russian Nihilists is also given.	715

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The debate on the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government in Bengal was resumed.

The HON MR. CAITHNESS said: "In accordance with the wish expressed by you, Sir, when a motion for leave to introduce a Bill for the extension of Local Self-Government in these provinces was made in this Council, that members would be prepared, on the presentation of the Bill, to state their views as to the general principles advocated by Government in the introduction of this important measure, I venture with much diffidence to offer a few remarks upon it.

I can lay no claim to the trained ability and learning, the long familiarity with legislative measures, or the accustomed knowledge of native ways of thought, habits, and predilections, which characterise previous speakers, and it is therefore only on the broad and general principles of the measure as set forth in Government Resolutions, and in the speech of the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill, that I can pretend to form a judgment.

And at this stage the consideration of the measure resolves itself into three main points—(1st) What is the object which the Government have in view in the introduction of this Bill? (2nd) Is that object one which recommends itself to our understanding and sympathies? and (3rd) Is the object in view likely to be gained by the measure under consideration.

On the first point there is neither doubt nor obscurity. The Governor-General in Council declares: "It is not primarily with a view to improvement in administration that this measure is put forward. It is chiefly desirable as an instrument of political and popular education."

The object therefore is to educate the people of Bengal to a closer and livelier interest in their own local affairs, to awaken their dormant energies and intelligence, to induce them to study the first principles of village sanitation and municipal government, and to provide scope for their ambition and talent by extending to them a larger share in the administration of affairs.

With reference to the second point from which I am considering this measure, it appears to me no nobler programme could be set forth than this, which appeals both to our understanding and sympathies; and no higher ambition could be entertained by any Government than the endeavour to elevate and lift up the people under their rule, by exciting in them a desire to learn the true art of self-government, and providing for them a scheme of political and popular education.

The third point on which I venture to express an opinion is: Are the objects in view likely to be gained by the Bill now before the Council? And I am bound to say that, after a careful consideration of the matter, I do not think that the Bill, as it at present stands, is likely to achieve the desired result.

The position appears to be that the large majority of the people are entirely ignorant of the new and important duties which, under this measure, they would be required to initiate and carry out, and I fail to see how, if left to their own devices, they can be expected to master them.

They shewed no inherent aptitude for improvement in municipal administration (at all events up to anything like the modern standard) during the days of the punchayet system which, as referred to by my hon. friend who preceded me, extended so widely over the country, and so far back in the past; and there is little reason to suppose that, without trained supervision and guidance, they would be likely to make any greater progress now.

In the best interests of the people, it would surely be desirable to afford them every advantage at the beginning of their task to render the lessons to be learnt as easy as possible, and to secure the ultimate success of the measure, as far as practicable, by placing at their disposal the best directions and assistance the Government can give.

To compare great things with lesser, it would appear to me, from a practical point of view, that if any controller of works or manager of a large concern were to endeavour to educate his people in the business by giving them work to do which they could not accomplish, and leaving them to teach themselves as best they could, his success would be questionable, compared with the result to be achieved by placing the same persons under proper direction and guidance.

The Bill will doubtless receive careful consideration in Committee; it will, therefore, not be necessary for me to refer more particularly to its provisions. I may say, however, that it appears to me to lack something in simplicity. The Union Committee, under the control of the Local Board, hedged about with restrictions, and generally supervised and restrained by the district officers and the distant Central Board, will give our native fellow-subjects a lively idea of a circumlocution office, and effectually teach them an art they are not slow to learn—the art of "how not to do it."

There is one other point which I should wish to refer to. It has been pointed out to me that the elective system now sought to be extended is by no means a new institution in Bengal. The system has existed for some time, but the people generally have evinced no desire to avail themselves of its advantages. From section 16 of Act V (B. C.) of 1876, it will be seen from the last paragraph that on a petition of one-third of the rate-payers of any district the elective system might be introduced into that district. If many districts had availed themselves of this right, it might be thought the people were becoming interested in the idea of local administration; but, as far as I am aware, few or no petitions of this nature have reached the Government."

The Hon. Bhudeb Mukerji was understood to say he would like to say only a few words on the Bill before the Council. The subject had been very largely discussed, and from different points of view; consequently, he would confine himself to making a few remarks on certain principles of the Bill. It had been said that the Bill was a mistake, because the people of the country were not fit for the responsible work of self-government, and because the measure had originated in a mere sentiment of benevolence. He could not agree with this very broad assertion. He read out paragraph 142 from the report of the Famine Commission, and said that the measure contemplated was inspired as much by sound statesmanship as by the sentiment of benevolence. He looked upon the establishment of Unions and Local Boards as very profitable educating agencies, which would be useful in collecting statistics and supplying various local information. He did not think that any better machinery could have been devised for the purpose. But while he approved of the establishment of Unions and Local Boards, he, with a very wide circle of the intelligent native community and the native Press, regretted the absence altogether of any provision in the Bill for the formation of District Committees. He regretted that the germs of self-government should vanish from where they had first been sown as Road Cess Commitees, District School Committees, &c.

The Hon. Chunder Madhub Ghose said that he did not propose on that occasion to make any detailed observations upon the Bill which had been presented before the Council, for it was proposed to refer the Bill to a Select Committee, and he had no doubt that the Committee would examine the various provisions of the Bill very carefully. After the Select Committee had made their report, he would take the liberty of making such observations as should then appear necessary. He begged, however, leave to make one or two observations on one or two matters. The first was as regards the question raised, whether the system of Local Self-Government should be extended to this country. He was free to admit, after hearing the observations of the learned Advocate-General, that people in certain districts in Bengal were not sufficiently advanced to undertake the task of self-government, but he was not prepared to admit that the people in Bengal generally were so far back in education, progress, and culture that they could not be trusted with the duty of self-government. He believed that before the Government of India passed the Resolution which gave rise to the Bill before them, the subject had been carefully considered by the different Local Governments concerned in the matter. They had received various reports from district officers, and he believed he was not wrong when he said that the majority of these officers, who had experience of the knowledge and habits of the people, were of opinion that a good portion of the people were fitted for the boon. They who lived in the metropolis had not the same opportunities of knowing the habits, manners, and education of the people in the mofussil, and could not, therefore, speak with any degree of authority on the subject; but those who lived and worked in the mofussil were people whose opinions were entitled to the greatest consideration and respect; and the opinion of several district and sub-divisional officers who had been consulted on the subject was sufficiently indicative that there were various districts in Bengal sufficiently advanced in culture to be entrusted with self-government.

But there was another view which could be taken of the matter, and that was that self-government was not a new introduction in the country. They had in various parts of Bengal municipal boards, school committees, committees for the management of charitable institutions, and so forth; and what he understood to be the object of the Government was the blending together in one of these different local bodies. The people had for some time been trained in the science of self-government, and he thought the time had come when larger powers should be entrusted to them. He did not think that the scheme would be a failure, as had been predicted by the learned Advocate-General. There ought to be some time or other when there should be a beginning, and the question was whether the people of Bengal were sufficiently advanced to begin now. In answer to this he begged to say that public feeling was in favour of the Bill, and there ought not to be any objection to the scheme. But then if the measure was to be a success, its success would depend mainly, 1st, on the proper constitution of the Local Boards; 2nd, on the power to be entrusted to them; 3rd, on the proper appointment of a Chairman and Vice-Chairman; 4th, upon the funds which may be left to their disposal, and 5th, upon supervision. Now, it was undoubted that the Bill which had been introduced in Council had these considerations in view; but after studying the Bill with some attention and care, he must say there was one matter in regard to which he, and the educated portion of his countrymen, felt some anxiety; and that was the absence of any provision for the establishment of District Boards. He had heard with great care the arguments advanced to show why District Boards were not required, but he regretted that he could not come to the same conclusion as the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill. It appeared to him that Local Boards would be established, not in the principal towns of the districts, but in sub-divisions, where they would not find men of sufficient education and culture who should be able to undertake without much control the onerous duties which the Bill proposed to confer on them. He had no doubt that the Central Board would be able to supervise the work of local bodies carefully; but the fear was that by reason of the Central Board being located in the metropolis, the people in the interior of the country would not come forward very readily to lay their grievances and complaints before them; but if District Boards were established, they would be in a far better position to deal more intelligently with local affairs which were passing under their eyes, and to give instant remedy, than it would be possible for the Central Board to do. Then there was another aspect of the question, and that was that if they had no District Boards they would be practically excluding a large body of educated people, who would be found in the principal towns of the districts, from taking a share in the work of self-government. True it was that there would be Local Boards in the metropolitan sub-divisions, and the educated people residing there would be asked to be members of those Boards, but the field for the operation of their skill and knowledge would be so small as not to attract them. If they did not have District Boards, they could not have the co-operation and sympathy of the very class of people, the training up of whom for the important work of self-government was the special scope and object of the Bill. He hoped that the Select Committee would consider whether it would not be wise to introduce a section in the Bill providing for the establishment of District Committees. Then he observed that the Bill was to extend to all the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal which were not included within the limits of the town of Calcutta, or within the districts of Singbhoom, the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Chittagong Hill Tracts, or any place or town to which the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act had been extended. There were other districts which, as he had said, were not yet fit for self-government; and he hoped, as he was sure they would, the Select Committee would give this matter their best consideration.

The HON. MR. DAMPIER said:—"To say that a desire of self-government in the sense of localised management of local affairs is a proper aspiration of a people, the natural outcome of education in the largest sense of the word, is to utter a truism. To say that it is the duty of a Government to give effect to the wishes of its people in this respect, as far as may be compatible with other considerations of good government, is, as an abstract proposition, another truism. Whether any exceptional reasons exist for limiting the full play of these abstract principles in India is not a question which I am called on to discuss in this place. Sir Ashley Eden sounded a note of warning as to dislodging the district officer from the position he now occupies, and this has, no doubt, received the fullest consideration of those who are responsible for maintaining what he called the general frame-work of Government; but the Supreme Government of this country has deliberately accepted the conclusion that no such reasons exist other than those arising from the degree of competency or incompetency of the people for the management of their own local affairs. Any further discussion of this question here would be out of place. It is not only to the governed that the management of their local affairs is an object. It has been said that the burden of administration on the shoulders of the governing body is becoming more and more onerous as civilization and material prosperity progress. The alternatives before us are either to supply to the people an administration which avowedly falls short of the requirements of the country, or to call on the people themselves to relieve us of a portion of the burden which is becoming too heavy for us to bear.

The only reasonable course open to the Government, as has been said by the Government of India, is "to induce the people themselves to undertake, as far as may be, the management of their own affairs, and to develop, or create, if need be, a capacity for self-help in respect of all matters that have not, for Imperial reasons, to be retained in the hands of the representatives of Government."

Such being the object up to which we should work, the important question is by what means it may best be attained in these provinces.

I have no hesitation in following the Government of India, Sir Ashley Eden, and your Honor in rejecting such propositions, as that "the people of this country are themselves entirely indifferent to the principle of self-government; that they take but little interest in public matters; that they prefer to have such affairs managed for them by Government officers; that the apathy and indifference which exists on their part will prove an insuperable obstacle to any attempt to interest them in Local Self-Government; and that this is a sufficient reason for taking no step forward now. As a general description of the popular feeling, this might have been said thirty years ago; but since then the schoolmaster has been abroad. Not only Mr. Croft and his departmental subordinates and the public press, but also the Political schoolmaster, such as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal with his legislative measures in his Council, under which the old Ferry Fund Committees have expanded into District Road Committees; and the old Chowkidari Unions into Municipalities; and also with his executive measures which have covered the country—or more accurately—dotted the country with School Committees, Charitable Medical Committees, and so forth, and have familiarised the people with the idea of self-management.

When I say that there is no such general apathy and indifference overspreading the country, I must not be understood to mean that the bulk of the people, even in the most advanced districts, take a genuine interest in the matter. I mean only that many, perhaps most parts of the province, contain a class of men who take a real interest in these matters. There is great danger of the value of the agitation on the subject being overrated. It is an instructive fact brought out in the reports of the Commissioners and Collectors consulted that, however much interest the bulk of the people take in the matter, it does not reach the pitch which induces them to take the trouble to sign the petition for the elective franchise which the Government has suggested.

On the other hand, such a petition has been received from Banka, a very backward sub-division, abutting on a semi-barbarous tract; a petition of this kind is quite worthless except to refer to in a speech as a proof of interest taken, but it is no such proof; it is only a warning against putting faith in such petitions as genuine indications of the popular feeling of the bulk of the people. The interest and agitation are really confined to comparatively small classes. Still it seems to me that the Government of India has well said that, as such education as I have mentioned advances, "there is rapidly growing up all over the country an intelligent class of men," whom it is not only bad policy, but sheer waste of power, to fail to utilise.

It cannot of course be denied that there are parts of these provinces which can still only be described as apathetic and indifferent to these matters; and were this a fair description of the state of the province generally, I should join the Advocate-General in protesting against such legislation as is proposed; but I believe that different parts of the province have arrived at different stages of preparation to receive such a measure; advanced qualification shades off into utter incapacity. As I read the despatches, the Governor-General in Council has imposed no obligation on the Government of Bengal to go further than can safely be done in transferring the virtual responsibilities of self-government to non-official bodies; and the obvious means of meeting the requirements is by a general scheme so broadly laid down that the application of it may be capable of as much graduation as the qualifications of the different bodies to which it shall be applied are graduated. It was said in paragraph 10 of the Resolution of the Government of India, of the 18th May last, that the Local Governments will also maintain and extend throughout the country a network of Local Boards; but this was only to be done "where intelligent non-official agency could be found." The Government of India seemed to have contemplated legislation which shall give the Local Government the widest powers for going as far as can safely be done; but after giving an unmistakeable expression of their own forward views, to have desired that a wide discretion be left to the Local Government in the application of the principles to their respective charges.

The result is that the responsibility of not going further than could be properly done under the circumstances of each case is shifted to the shoulders of the Local Government; with the Local Government it must rest to prevent any such mistakes as over-estimates of so-called expressions of popular feeling, or of that independence and moral courage on the part of those who would probably constitute the Local Boards. With the Local Government it must rest to give full weight to such disqualifying considerations in each case, as local class jealousies, difficulties arising from the relative proportions of Hindoos and Mahomedans, and so on And I think that the Local Government would not be able to avoid the responsibility for a mistake made in this direction, by pointing to the expression of general opinions by a superior authority which had not the same opportunities of arriving at a knowledge of such local details.

In this view I shall support the motion to refer the Bill to a Committee; but must express my hope that the Committee will see their way to making, and the Council to adopting, some material alterations from the Bill as it now stands.

The adoption as a general rule of the smaller area rather than the district as the unit of Local Self-Government seems a wise measure; and as regards the provisions of the Bill in respect of the election of the members of Union Committees and Local Boards, I am well satisfied, because, as regards Unions, section 10, and as regards Local Boards, sections 16 and 19, do in fact leave complete discretion to the controlling authority in each case. While considering the reservation of such a discretion to be essential, I am quite in favour of gradually extending the elective system. No doubt in some places to which it will be extended under the influence of Brummagen popular petitions, and so forth, it will be the merest sham; but it does not seem to me a very mischievous sham. On the one hand it is a means of diffusing the political education and interest which we desire to encourage; on the other hand it is not attended with such a danger of mischief as counterbalances this good; and under these conditions I suppose that not even the Advocate-General would object to making use of legislation as an instrument of popular political education.

But as regards the mode in which the Bill deals with the question of Chairmen to Boards, I hope to see its provisions very materially altered in Committee.

I desire here to add mine to the voices which have already been raised in acknowledgment of the earnest thought, the thoroughness, and the ability on the part of its framer which the Bill as laid before the Council evinces. Knowing the author of the piece of work as we do, there is nothing in this to surprise us; and I recognise this measure as affording him another step upwards in that ladder of public estimation on which he already holds a place so high and so well deserved.

Having saluted the hon. gentleman with my foil, I should like to know what has induced him to ask this Council to fetter the discretion which the Supreme Government has, as I think, so wisely desired to leave in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal—I mean as regards the Chairmen of Local Boards.

I will read what the Governor-General in Council has said on the subject.

In the Resolution of 18th May, at paragraph 18, after saying that the Governor-General in Council did not see his way to accepting the principle that the district officer shall be ex-officio Chairman in the case of Municipal Committees (thus showing that even in the case of municipalities the question was one deserving consideration), it is said: "Further consideration has led the Governor-General in Council to the belief that on the whole it is better to lay down no such general rule in the case of any class of Local Boards."

The following are the views of the Governor-General in Council on the subject:—

"The Governor-General in Council therefore would wish to see non-official persons acting, wherever practicable, as Chairmen of the Local Boards. There may, however, be places where it would be impossible to get any suitable non-official Chairman, and there may be districts where the chief executive officer must for the present retain these duties in his own hands. But His Excellency in Council trusts that the Local Governments will have recourse sparingly to the appointment of executive officers as Chairmen of Local Boards; and he is of opinion that it should be a general rule that, when such an officer is Chairman of any Local Board, he shall not in that capacity have a vote in its proceedings. This arrangement will, to some extent, tend to strengthen the independence of the non-official members, and keep the official Chairman, where there must be such, apart from the possible contentions of opposing parties."

and then ten days later, addressing himself specially to the Government of Bengal, the Secretary to the Government of India wrote:—

"It will not, moreover, be overlooked by the Government of Bengal that the suggestions made by the Government of India on the subject of election and non-official Chairmen have more direct reference to Town or Municipal Boards than to the District and Rural Boards."

Why, Sir, this last passage is a distinct caution to the Government of Bengal against any idea that the Governor-General in Council wishes to go too far in this direction.

In the Government of Bengal's letter of 5th July 1882, I find that the Lieutenant-Governor still recognizes this question of official or non-official Chairmen as one to be decided as regards individual localities.

These being the views of the Supreme and Local Governments as expressed in the papers which have been laid before this Council, I hope, Sir, that I am justified in assuming that the following uncompromising section of the Bill presented to us is the outcome of the cogitations of the Hon. Mover of the Bill himself, and not the embodiment of any deliberately adopted opinion of the head of the Local Government.

"Every Local Board shall at a meeting elect its Chairman and Vice-Chairman." No exception made, no discretion left. The line is sharply drawn. If the inhabitants of any locality can be deemed capable of discharging the full functions of Local Boards under the Bill, unassisted from the first by a professional guide and co-operation, then that locality is to be admitted to the full functions, independence, and powers of Local Self-Government; but for any locality of which it cannot, by any stretch of the official conscience, be said that the inhabitants are fit to be safely trusted with such functions and powers, the penalty is absolute exclusion from participation in the benefits of this Bill.

For them no "sedulous fostering of the small beginnings of independent political life;" for them no "tentative and patent procedure in the introduction of the new policy;" for them no "progressive period of leading-strings till they can walk without support." "Aut Cæsar aut nullus." For those, the full blaze of municipal glory; for these a continuation of Cimmerian darkness and political nonentity.

"There is no reason why most of the Local Boards should not elect their own Chairmen" is the enunciation of the views of the Government of Bengal speaking through Mr. Secretary Macaulay on the 5th of July last. "Each Board will be allowed to elect its Chairman, subject to confirmation by Government," is the short but pregnant announcement of the policy of this Bill in the statement of objects and reasons laid before the Council on the 20th February. Perhaps the Hon. Mover will explain what has led to this very marked change of policy. I do not think that he can point to the reports of the local officers consulted as bridging over the chasm between the two positions.

I would fain hope that the explanation is to be found in the fact that, while he has been absorbed in this great subject, my hon. friend has naturally enough warmed to it, and that his earnestness in it has to some extent clouded the clearness of his view; that he has been carried away by the influences which are recognized in the proverb "There is nothing like leather."

I hope, Sir, that this may be the true explanation, and that your Honor's mind is as yet not made up in this direction.

However that may be, Sir, I ask you, and I ask the Members of the Select Committee, to hesitate before you adopt a step which I must call so ruinous to the working of the proposed measure, which is so calculated on the one hand to increase the number of failures and to intensify the inevitable dangers of mal-administration which we admit must necessarily be accepted to some extent for the sake of giving the desired training and political education; so mischievous on the other, as leading to the exclusion of the less advanced communities from any such training; so calculated to warp the judgment of the Government and its representatives, who will naturally stretch their consciences to the utmost before they condemn any given community to exclusion from all participation in the benefits of this measure on the ground of being found wanting in fitness; and therefore so likely to bring discredit on this great measure by multiplying instances of failures. Even if it be admitted that the inhabitants of some or many or most localities may in spite of the absence of a "Demos" be in such a state of advancement that they may without undue danger to those whom they will represent be trusted to exercise the powers and functions of the Bill without the assistance of an official Chairman, can it be contended that there will be no debateable ground between such communities and the most backward and half savage communities who are not even fit to begin their education in these matters? Why refuse to those who occupy this debateable ground the assistance of a professional expert to guide them on their way?

It seems to me that there will be found communities containing members who have all the natural intelligence and who would very soon acquire the natural interest which is required for such self-management, but who are absolutely ignorant of the first elements of such business; absolutely ignorant at any rate of those branches of public business of which the management is being now for the first time handed over to local management. I think that such men, instead of fretting at the overshadowing influence of the official Chairman, would genuinely desire his help, his guidance, and his support. I think that at the stage of advancement of which I am speaking, the titles of Members, and Vice-Chairmen and Rai Bahadoors, the summons to attend the meetings for deliberation and all such paraphernalia, would be real attractions and sources of gratification, and not (as at a more advanced stage) provocatives of dissatisfaction at the little real power which is attached to them. May not the Government official legitimately make use of such influences to draw the people into the education which is so desirable? Why not act in this matter as you would if you wished to teach a trade to a number of men, however generally intelligent and anxious to learn, especially a trade which is attended with some danger to themselves, and with important effects to others? For such a purpose, is it not the obvious course to give the learners the help of a professional foreman until one of themselves is eligible for the post?

Is it not the case that, with an official Chairman subject to official responsibilities and control, certain local Committees might be employed in much more than could, with a due regard to the public and local interests, be left in their hands without such a responsible and professional Chairman? If this be admitted, I venture to say that I have established my case.

I have directed my arguments only to the case of the less advanced communities, because my object is only to insist on the importance of the Legislature not withholding from the Executive Government the exercise of a discretion which the Governor-General in Council considered, which your Honor considered at any rate in July last, to be essential to the success of this wide measure. It is easy, it is pleasant, to move forward with "advanced liberality" in such matters; but I believe that this is a case in which it may be said with peculiar truth that the most effective advance is that which leaves no regret for any step which has been taken; a step forward will be easy at any time; but for any false step hastily taken there remains nothing but regret. There is practically no possibility of correcting a mistake by retrogression to a so-called "less liberal policy."

Eleven months ago Sir Ashley Eden said that it was an indispensable condition that the Magistrate should be Chairman of the Local Boards.

A month later the Governor-General in Council recognized the possible necessity of official Chairmen in some places. Two months later your Honor recognized also that "there may be sub-divisions where it would be preferable to maintain the local executive officer as Chairman of the Board in order to avoid a certainty of failure." Within six months of that the Hon. Mover of the Bill would have us absolutely exclude the Executive Government from the exercise of its discretion in appointing an official Chairman, but his Bill leaves it open to the members of any Local Board to elect the Magistrate of the district or any other official as their Chairman.

But a rolling stone cannot be so easily stopped; within another fortnight the Hon. Member from Shahabad is asking us actually to put it out of the power of some of the Local Boards to elect an official as their Chairman.

This complete revolution of opinion within eleven months!—But the descent to some places has been proverbially easy from the days of the Latin poet.

As regards the question of official Chairman for Local Boards of advanced districts, I must make one or two remarks, although they are not essential to my contention that a free discretion should be left to the Government.

In the first place, I must say that the portion of the utterances of the Government of India, which least commends itself to my judgment, is that which is contained in the last part of paragraph 18 of the Resolution of 18th May of last year. I think that a great deal too much has been made of the argument that the presence of the Magistrate of the district as Chairman of Committees is an obstacle to effective training of non-official members, and would prevent non-official members from taking any real interest in the business. No doubt there are individual Magistrates who allow their views to be narrowed by the surroundings of the moment, and who, without taking much pains to study the questions involved, would probably describe themselves as not being believers in all these now-fangled notions. The influence of such men has no doubt been baneful to the progress and popularity of ideas of Local Self-Government in the district. But credit must be taken per contra for the good done by another stamp of men, the real thinkers, who take broader and more statesmanlike views. I have in my mind men who have been in real sympathy with the people of their districts in these matters; and of whom all connected with them, European and Native, would bear genuine testimony that the only effect of the exercise of their direct power and influence as Chairmen of the Committees has been to foster the interest taken in public affairs by the non-officials with whom they were associated, and to raise their position by a sense of the value put upon their services, and of the confidence imposed in them.

However I must now, in fairness, call the attention of Hon. Members to one of the arguments against allowing the active intervention of the chief executive officer of the district, which the Hon. Mover has, in his capacity of Secretary to Government, set before the Commissioners. He wrote, in connection with the objections to allowing such intervention—

"In Calcutta, the Chairman is Commissioner of Police, but he has no other executive authority. Two-thirds of the Commissioners are elected, and the practical interest which, as a body, they now display in the administration of the affairs of the town is beginning to have excellent results."

That, then, is the model up to which we are to work. To arouse a practical interest in the affairs of the Local Government Circles is one of our avowed objects, and it is patent to all that this object has been thoroughly attained in Calcutta.

As for the rest, we have the assurance of so high an authority as the Secretary to the Government that this practical interest is beginning in Calcutta at any rate to have results which are "excellent."

I will revert for a moment to the reference which I have made above to an opinion expressed by the Hon. Hurbans Sahai. I have the advantage of knowing his views more fully than they were expressed in his speech, because we discussed the same question in the Select Committee on the Municipalities Bill. The Hon. Member is of opinion that the members of advanced Local Committees should not be allowed the option of electing the Magistrate to be their Chairman, because he assures us that to leave such a discretion to them will at once have the effect of destroying all independence of the local bodies. It will be enough for the Magistrate, he says, to let it be known that he wishes to be elected Chairman; it will be enough for any one whom it may suit to set about a rumour that the Magistrate wishes to be elected Chairman. The certain result will be his election: no one will dare to vote for any other candidate.

I ask you, Sir, I ask the Members of this Council in all earnestness, are we playing at a game, or are we dealing seriously with matters affecting the interests, the welfare, the life of human beings? As long as any body of men, however advanced they may be, are admitted to be so wanting in moral courage that they dare not vote for any other person than the Magistrate whom they do not wish to have as their Chairman, will any person in this Council, or out of it, seriously argue that that body is fit to be entrusted with the independent control of matters affecting the interests and welfare of the inhabitants of the local government area which they are supposed to represent? Are not other influences, still less desirable than that of the Magistrate, likely to be brought to bear upon the Members of the Boards, before which their independence and power of resistance may fail? For instance, in some local government areas the influence of a local magnate will be all-pervading and all-powerful. Questions are likely to arise in which the interests of such a magnate as an owner of property are in conflict with the sanitary or other interests of the humbler inhabitants. Could such a body, as the Hon. Member (Hurbans Sahai) supposes, be trusted to act independently, and to be proper guardians of the communal interests in such a case? Would it not rather be highly desirable that the Magistrate's influence should be there to counteract such other influences. I hope that the Hon. Member's estimate as to the number of local bodies, at any rate of advanced local bodies, to whom his apprehensions will be applicable, is unduly high.

Whether it be so or not, I hope that the Select Committee and the Council will repudiate the position proposed to them by the Hon. Member, that the members of any Local Board can be so weak that they cannot be trusted with power to elect the Magistrate as their Chairman, and yet so independent and so deserving of public confidence that they can be trusted with large commercial interests and powers.

I turn now to the question of control to be exercised over the Local Boards. After considering all that the Hon. Mover has said in support of the scheme of no authoritative control being exercised except by the Central Board, I regret that I cannot bring myself to think that so distant a controlling power could ever use authority sufficiently well-informed as to local circumstances, sufficiently prompt in action, and sufficiently effective, to afford a reasonable protection against the mistakes of inexperience and of inefficiency, which are fully anticipated. A guarantee of such protection against avoidable mistakes the humbler inhabitants of these rural communes have a right to demand from the Government of the country before they are handed over as subjects of these experiments in administration by the intellectual or influential leaders of their community. No doubt they are so handed over for their own ultimate good, but for the present their interests are avowedly to some extent sacrificed. Those who suffer will not be those who make the mistakes.

The degree of supervision required will obviously depend largely on the course which may be adopted as regards official and non-official Chairmen; but the country is too large for the exercise from one distant centre of the sustained close supervision, and the occasional prompt action of intervention, which it seems to me will be essential to give the scheme as it now stands a fair chance of success to minimize the evils which are accepted as unavoidable, while they are more than counterbalanced by other advantages. One considerable objection to which the proposed scheme seems to me to be open is that it imposes on the local officers the burden of responsibility without giving them corresponding power. They are to keep a close watch on the proceedings of these inexperienced Local Boards; they are to be Argus-eyed, ready to give their advice for what is right and to remonstrate against what is wrong, but they must not act. Except under very exceptional circumstances, they can only report the Local Boards to their distant superiors. Now it is evident that, when this great project is floated, it will be almost a political object to avoid finding fault with the Local Boards or attributing failure to them. The consequence is obvious to all officials. Whether the local representative of Government has wounded the susceptibilities of the Local Board by obtruding his advice too freely, or whether his own sensibility has shrunk from taking up a position of open opposition to them, when the failure comes under review, some one from above will be "constrained to say that if Mr. Magistrate scapegoat had exercised his legitimate influence more judiciously, these unsatisfactory results might have been avoided" It is so easy to write in this strain from a Calcutta bureau, when one is safely removed from mofussil anxieties and difficulties, and when one's sympathies with mofussil officers has grown cold.

It is no satisfaction to me, Sir, to make these remarks. I know too well the difficulties of construction and the cheapness and ease of mere destructive criticism; but notwithstanding the difficulties which would attend such an arrangement, I must express my conviction that the immediate control should not be removed further at any rate than the head-quarters of the Commissioners of Divisions.

Then whatever is done in Calcutta should be done by the Government itself. If the answer be that it is impossible to throw the additional burden on a Government of which the whole responsibility rests on the shoulders of a Lieutenant-Governor who stands alone and who is already so overweighted as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, I should be inclined to suggest another way out of this frequently recurring difficulty, than by creating subordinate central authorities to discharge functions which avowedly would be better discharged by the Government itself; but this again is approaching a subject which is out of place here."

The HON. MR. MACAULAY said:—"I think, Sir, that no one who has listened to the debate which is drawing to a close can fail to congratulate the Council and the Select Committee on the postponement which has led to this full and instructive discussion. To myself personally, the debate has been particularly gratifying, and I must acknowledge the many appreciative remarks which have been made regarding my share in this measure. I particularly value the compliment paid to me by the respected Father of the Bengal Civil Service, and my sense of that compliment is not diminished by the fact that my Hon. friend has made several inaccuracies in other respects in the course of his speech. I naturally cling to the hope that in the estimate of my humble self he may have exercised something of that wisdom and precision for which he is so distinguished. At the same time I cannot accept these flattering testimonies without saying that I have been credited with a very unduly large share in whatever credit may attach to the conception and execution of this Bill.

I do not propose to make any attempt to answer in detail the various criticisms which have been offered on the several provisions of the Bill. To do so would be to protract the debate to an unreasonable length, for I should have to repeat the greater part of two orations which I have already inflicted upon the Council. As I have trespassed very largely upon the indulgence of the Council in connection with this subject, it is right I should spare them any discussion upon details which can be considered in Select Committee. There is, however, one class of criticism to which I must endeavour to reply. I refer to criticism which condemns the policy of Local Self-Government upon general grounds, while deliberately ignoring the provisions of the Bill which is before the Council. Such criticism is, to my mind, unfair in the course of a debate upon a particular measure. Now when the Hon. Advocate-General began his address by saying that "the present measure" was, in his opinion, a mistake, I was prepared for some valuable criticism on the Bill, for advice and counsel regarding its provisions, or its short comings, which no one can be better qualified to offer than the Hon. gentleman. But what followed? Not a word regarding the provisions of the Bill, not a reference to a single one of its provisions. It turned out that what the Hon. gentleman designates as "the present measure" was not the Bill before the Council, nor anything like it, but an expression of the general views of the Government of India upon the very broadest features of a policy to be observed for the whole of Her Majesty's dominions in India. It is true that the Hon. gentleman himself admitted that his observations, being directed to questions of principle, might have been more opportunately made at an earlier stage. But I do not regret that he should have taken this opportunity of urging his views on the general question of Local Self-Government. His views will always be received with respect in this Council. But I regret, and I consider I am entitled to complain, that he should have formed and expressed his views regarding self-government in Bengal upon a general expression of opinion regarding the whole of India, without seeing whether that expression of opinion was intended to have, or must have, or could have, special application to Bengal, and that he should ignore the particular measure which had been placed in his hands, when that measure had been framed with a view to suit the particular circumstances of Bengal; when that measure was the only measure before the Council; and when, in framing that measure, an attempt had been made, to the best of our ability, to guard against the very dangers which he apprehends, and to maintain the very efficiency which he applauds. The Hon. gentleman has more than once referred to municipalities. Any remarks and criticisms which he may have to make regarding the Municipal Bill will, I doubt not, be sufficiently answered by my Hon. friend, Mr. Reynolds, at the proper time But the present Bill has nothing to do with municipalities. The Hon. gentleman proceeded to say that it is proposed "to transfer some of the most important powers, duties and obligations of Government to a class of people who are not fitted to exercise them." But he does not specify those powers and duties and responsibilities. If he considers that it is intended that the Government should divest itself absolutely of any of its duties or responsibilities, he is mistaken. But what are these duties, responsibilities and powers which it is proposed to transfer "to a class of people who are not fitted to exercise them"? Does he refer to roads? Local bodies already have the control over roads. Does he refer to schools? Local bodies have already large powers in respect of schools, and have had larger powers; and I appeal to the Hon. Member opposite (Babu Bhudeb Mukerji), whose experience in this respect is not surpassed even in the distinguished service to which he belongs, to say whether it is not a fact that throughout the country the villagers do take a most keen and lively interest in their primary schools. Does he refer to dispensaries? These are already in charge of special committees. Does he refer to the maintenance of village drains and tanks in a state consistent with the interests of the public health? If he does, it will be well to remind him that this is not a power which is now to be surrendered, but a power which does not exist, and that this is not a duty which may be performed with less efficiency than hitherto, but a duty which has hitherto not been performed at all, and which can only be performed by the agency to which we propose to assign it. Does he refer to census taking; to famine relief? If so, it may be well to remind him that the late census was taken, to a large extent, through unpaid agency, and that it is not probable that that agency will be less efficient, because it is organized. He will also probably admit that Government will be able to administer relief measures with greater efficiency if, in addition to its own staff, it has a net work of local bodies bound to assist it. Upon what, then, does the Hon. gentleman base the indictment that the scheme is "speculative" and, "under present circumstances, sure to be a failure."? Is it upon the system of Union Committees? That system simply seeks to extend and to give legal status to a system under which many of our best and most experienced officers have provided for the execution of village works through the most important villagers. Is it upon the system of Local Boards? The Local Boards will simply possess the powers of District Committees extended They will have more manageable areas to deal with. They will have duties and responsibilities to perform which are now either neglected, or scattered over a variety of bodies, or performed with difficulty and in haste by hardworked officers of Government. They will be amenable to local responsibility, provided with a local executive, actuated by local interest and guided by local knowledge, which are now generally wanting. Is it upon the system of control? I apprehend that this must be the point where my Hon. and learned friend sees a blot, for the imaginary measure which he attacks is evidently some measure in which there would be no provision, or at least an insufficient provision, for control. His apprehensions on this point appear to be shared by my Hon. friend, Mr. Caithness, who has spoken of the Boards being "left to their own devices." If, however, these gentlemen will turn to Part VI of the Bill, they will find that provision has been made for a very complete and thorough system of control. It is quite true that we look to this measure as a valuable instrument of political education, and that we do not look for perfect efficiency at once and in every case. It is quite true that we recognize that work may, at first, be neglected, or be badly done. After all, the interests affected will be those of the people themselves. But we provide for a rectification of this, and we guard against its constant repetition. But what institution or system is there that does not admit of the execution, and the faulty execution, of work in the process of education? No one is in a better position than the Advocate-General to say whether mistakes are not committed, and hardships caused, by inexperienced judicial officers. Would he allow these officers to try no cases at all? Or would he not rather provide for the correction of their errors? This latter is precisely the system we propose to follow, with the important addition that, if those responsible make mistakes, they will make mistakes, not regarding other peoples' business, but regarding their own business. In any case we shall provide for the rectification of those mistakes, just as the Hon. gentleman has often assisted an appellate court in rectifying the mistakes of some subordinate court. But, as my Hon. friend, Babu Chunder Madhub Ghose, has pointed out, the Hon gentleman's objections would apply to the beginning of Local Self-Government as well as to any extension of it. In every other department, apparently, he would allow experience to be gradually acquired. It is only in the matter of Local Self-Government that he insists on experience being intuitive. I can assure the Hon. gentleman that we have no more idea of going into a backward district and looking for a ready-made elective Board with full powers, than the Hon and learned gentleman has of going into the Bar Library to select the ready-made Colonel of his imaginary regiment or the ready-made Engineer of his imaginary bridge. What we propose is to give powers gradually as we see that they can be properly exercised, and to bring out gradually, but to the fullest extent, the practical knowledge and interest of the people in the management of their own affairs. The scheme claims to be eminently a practical one, and, as such, sound as an educational one. It provides for gradual extension, for expansion as efficiency is attained, and for thorough and careful, though not exacting, supervision. As I have said before, I do not regret that the Hon. gentleman should have taken this opportunity of expressing his views on the general policy of Local Self-Government. What I regret is, that he should have formed and expressed his views without reference to the measure before the Council. I can only look forward to the pleasure of discussing the Bill with him in Select Committee. I proposed to take that opportunity of inducing him to examine the Bill, and of obtaining the assistance of his great ability, experience, and learning in correcting its defects. And I hope, and believe, that when the Bill is again presented to the Council, I shall have the pleasure of seeing him stand forward as its most powerful supporter."

HIS HONOR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said: "I can scarcely allow this opportunity to pass without some remarks of my own with especial reference to the speeches which have been addressed to the Council in the course of the debate. I am glad we have arrived at a stage in our legislative proceedings which gives some hope of a practical solution of the measure with which we have to deal. And though I very much regret that the hope I once entertained that we might be able to pass the Bill during this session cannot be realised, I think all are agreed that the time which has been spent on it, and the further time that will be required for its fullest consideration in all its details, is not lost in deferring the final action on a measure which affects so widely this large province of Bengal. But there is another advantage in the delay. Since the first promulgation of the scheme suggested by the Government of India, the question has undergone very long and detailed criticism both at the hands of the official and non-official classes. It is still undergoing that process of sifting in the speeches we have heard in the course of this debate, and I am glad to know that the process will be continued by its reference to a Select Committee, who would have to consider the Bill, section by section, before presenting it to the Council for the purpose of its being passed into law. Now, regarding the delay which has taken place, it is to my mind one of its great advantages that I think we come to the consideration of the question in a much more sober and a more rational spirit as to the requirements of the case than we had when the measure was first brought to our notice. The time which has elapsed has destroyed a great many illusions and has led to the abandonment of a great many political aspirations. There used to be some talk in the first enthusiasm that there was going to be a general kind of district management made over to local bodies, and I have heard it said that the Magistrates were to be excluded entirely from any connection with district affairs; and even some aspiring souls anticipated that provincial independence in local administration would be conceded shortly. I think all these far-reaching ideas have now subsided into very much more moderate dimensions. It has been rightly observed by some one that the keynote to the policy of the Bengal Government in this matter is localisation; that is, that we hope to enlist in the cause of social and administrative reform with which we have to deal local knowledge and local interest for the local management of every part of each district. And my own conviction is that this gives us not only a better hope of advantage in the relief of overburdened district officers in the discharge of their duties, but also greater probability of success in the education of the people, in the administration of their own small affairs as regards their village schools, their village roads, their pounds and ferries, and similar institutions. Then as to the question of any Central Committee directing as a District Committee the whole business of district works. It is on this point of the establishment of District Committees that I know we are at issue with a great many people who have a right to be heard on the question. I do not question that there is something to be admitted in favour of District Committees; they already exist, and have been in existence for some time, though, I think, it begins to be admitted that generally they are failures. But an opinion prevails in many minds that, with enlarged powers and greater independence from the control of the Magistrate, District Committees, constituted on a more popular basis, supervising and directing the entire affairs of the district, would establish Local Self-Government in the best form in which we could establish it. Now it may be interesting, and certainly it is instructive, if we look back at this question and see the course it has run, at least as regards the official correspondence on the subject. It is a little more than a year ago that the first note was struck by the Government of India, of which I then had the honour to be a member, which gave an impulse to the interest which has since prevailed regarding the introduction of the system of Local Self-Government in India. It originated, as you are aware, in a wider extension of the decentralisation scheme; and in communicating their views the Government of India expressed the opinion that, in the interests of the practical development of the extension of the scheme of Lord Mayo's Government, the Provincial Governments might well, in their turn, make over to local bodies a good portion of the work of local administration, and that these bodies might be partly composed of non-official members, subject only to such control as may be reserved to it by the Legislature. That shows the kind of idea which first existed. The first intimation of the general system to be adopted was in the direction of the establishment of District Committees under the direct control of the Magistrate of the district and of the Sub-Divisional Officers. In the letter of the 10th October 1881, which was the first intimation of the thing, it was said by the Government of India with reference to District Committees:—

"With reference to District Committees, I am desired to state that His Excellency in Council is disposed primâ facie to consider the most desirable and effective policy to be that of concentrating all the local administration, other than that embraced by municipalities, in the hands of one committee for each district, having ancillary subordinate sub-committees for each tehsil or sub-division (as the case may be). Of the former, the Magistrate and Collector would be President; of the latter the Assistant or Deputy in charge of the sub-division would be Chairman, and in each case the local body should comprise persons not in the service of Government, and elected or nominated, as may seem best, in a proportion not less than from one-half to two-thirds. In districts where more than one committee now exists for different objects, the possibility of their amalgamation should be considered; where no such committees have yet been formed, their constitution is evidently desirable."

So you see the first suggestion of the Government of India was that there should be a District Committee and Branch Committees, to be presided over directly by the Magistrate of the district or the Sub-Divisional Officer. Sir Ashley Eden, who was then Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, consulted the officials throughout the province on these proposals. The outcome of his inquiries was communicated to the Government of India in his letter of 8th April 1882, just three weeks before he made over charge of the administration to myself. He said:—

"The committees constituted under the Cess Act should be carefully reviewed and strengthened, inactive members being eliminated, and members added who will consent to take a genuine interest in the administration of the district affairs.

* * * * *

"If any practical result is to be obtained from the extension of Local Self-Government, it is essential that the unit of administration should be the Local or Sub-divisional Board, and not the District Board. The District Board should have the general control of the scheme of the district work; it should have the allotment of funds, and it should direct the policy of the district as a whole. But the details of Local Self-Government can only be performed by working local bodies with limited areas of jurisdiction. Where these cannot be formed, as much use as possible must be made of District Committees."

Here you see accepted the theory of District Boards, positively presided over by the District Magistrate, and Sub-Divisional Boards presided over by the Sub-Divisional Officer. Then came, to show the growth of the idea of Local Self-Government, the Resolution of the Government of India of 18th May 1882, which is a very large development of the original plan; and it not only shows the extensive growth of the idea, but how the Government of India themselves eventually abandoned the notion of a District Board as the right form of constitution for Local Self-Government. It is only necessary to read a short paragraph of the Resolution to establish this:—

"The Government of India desires then that, while maintaining and extending, as far as practicable, the plan of Municipal Government in the cities and towns of each province, the Local Governments will also maintain and extend, throughout the country, in every district where intelligent non-official agency can be found, a net-work of Local Boards to be charged with definite duties and entrusted with definite funds. The Governor-General in Council considers it very important that the area of jurisdiction allotted to each Board should in no case be too large. If the plan is to succeed at all, it will be necessary to secure among the members both local interest and local knowledge. Experience proves that District Committees are, as a rule, very badly attended by members not actually residing in the vicinity of the head-quarters' station. Those who do attend have frequently no intimate acquaintance with the wants of outlying parts of the district. The consequence is, either that undue attention is given to the requirements of the immediate neighbourhood of the central station, or that the business falls entirely into the hands of the district officer, this committee contenting itself with formally endorsing his proposals. Modifying, therefore, to some extent the suggestions made in paragraph 8 of the Circular letters of the 10th October last, the Governor-General in Council desires that the smallest administrative unit—the sub-division, the taluka, or the tahsil—shall ordinarily form the maximum area to be placed under a Local Board."

And again, in the supplementary letter addressed directly to the Government of Bengal, in reply to Sir Ashley Eden, it was said:

"It does not seem to be necessary to maintain the overruling power of the District Board in any of the purposes mentioned in your letter * * * . It would seem that the Sub-Divisional Boards might very well be left free of the control of a District Board, arranging all matters of common interest by sending delegates to a District Council."

Now you see that the Government of India had, as an intimation of its views rather than an order, said that District Boards should not form part of the constitution of a Local Self-Government scheme. Of course I am aware that if the Local Government had very seriously pressed a view contrary to that which the Viceroy had suggested—if the Local Government had asserted its own wish to establish District Boards for the direction of district affairs,—the Viceroy, in the readiness with which he has always been prepared to accept the views of Local Governments as regards the form which the scheme should take as long as the principle of the scheme was accepted, I have little doubt would have been quite willing to accede to our wishes. It unfortunately happened that I myself quite concurred with the theory that the proper working of the scheme was not to be found in the establishment of District Committees managing district affairs, but that there was much more chance of giving a good administrative education to the people, and less risk of failure, if we worked up from the bottom to the top. I have received a letter by a recent mail from England from a gentleman of high authority, and if I were to mention his name you would recognise that he is one who has a right to speak on a question connected with India with very great authority. He told me that he had seen the telegraph summary in the Times giving the general outlines of the scheme as proposed in Mr. Macaulay's speech, and this is what he wrote about it:—

"I am much pleased with the telegraphic summary sent home of your proposed plan of Local Self-Government. So far as I can judge, it seems just what was wanted. I was afraid from what I first heard that it too much pointed to putting power into the hands of a limited class of educated natives, and telling them to try their prentice hands on large plans. Whereas I believe the right course is to begin at the lowest grade of communal institutions, and to work up to higher things by granting the smaller ones for certain purposes under representative institutions. I very much doubt whether the natives can rightly govern Calcutta, but I believe they may govern their own villages at once"

Now I am not going to say anything about the Calcutta Municipality, because, in the first place, the system of municipal administration in Calcutta is at present on its trial; but I do most clearly say that I emphatically protest against the establishment of any system for the general administration of our districts, which would correspond at all to that obtaining in Calcutta. My objections are made on several grounds. Clearly it would be opposed to the principle on which our Bill has been framed, which is to begin from the lower and rise to the higher. Then if you look at the general run of our sudder stations, who are the men you call the educated men? They are composed of members of the Bar and gentlemen who are connected with the educational work of the station; in some of your large cities there are local merchants, and in other cases there are some leading tradesmen who take an interest in the town and in its surroundings. But the pleaders, to take them first, are not always men of the district. They are gentlemen who come from Calcutta and other places to earn a living by their profession; they have no family or other connections with the district, and they have no more personal interest in the place than they would have in any other in which they were only temporarily resident. Similarly, gentlemen who are in the Education Department. They are for the most part sent there by the Government. They have no personal concerns in the district, and they may be in one district to-day and in another to-morrow. For local interests beyond those which come under their immediate notice, or any wide knowledge of local wants, I believe they have little or none. Merchants in the town or tradesmen have no experience or acquaintance with anything beyond their place of business, and certainly not with the conduct of such affairs as our Local Boards will have to deal with. Now to compose District Committees of such materials would be to court failure. On account of the difficulties of communication, those who are really concerned and have a real interest in the district would very rarely be able to attend and give expression to their views in District Committees, and a committee composed of such elements would neither be a help to the Magistrate, nor of any advantage to the people. I am afraid they would be a talking and a talkative body, and would not do any good work, and that matters would lapse very much into that kind of confusion which comes from entrusting powers to persons who, even if educated, have no interest in the duties which they have to carry out, and no means of carrying them out; and I think that all the objections which the Hon. the Advocate-General has taken to the general scheme would have strong force if we contemplated anything in the direction of the management of district affairs by District Committees merely constituted at head-quarters. If such a thing was resolved upon, I should go back to the position that the Magistrate must be at the head of affairs, because I do not believe that a committee constituted chiefly of people at the sudder station, and connected with no permanent and personal interests in the district, can ever really conduct to any satisfactory issue work of the nature involved in the administration of the district. There would also be the tendency that committees so established would talk a great deal about many other things than those which we consigned to them, and it would get to be a kind of an institution where they would criticize and discuss everything which belonged to their district, calling into question the action of Magistrates, and claiming to be a kind of representative body with a right to investigate how all the affairs of the district were to be administered. Now all this is far from my thoughts, and nothing which any gentlemen could say would induce me to accept such a theory of Local Self-Government. There is another objection as regards the constitution of the District Committee. We have, under our present plan, divided the district into Union Committees and Local Boards, and at the sudder stations we should have to find first a Municipal Committee to administer the affairs of the town; and a great many of those educated gentlemen who had been referred to would clearly be the best men to undertake the work within municipal limits. But, then, you would require at the same place a committee to manage the business of the Local Board at the sudder sub-division, and this second committee at head-quarters would necessarily be composed of many of the same gentlemen who are connected with the Municipal Committee. Now you wish to have the District Committee in the same place. I don't know who you are to get to form a third committee, because I give up the idea of distant zemindars coming into the sudder station to take part in work which would require continuous attention. Take, for instance, the Nuddea district, and see how it would be possible for district affairs to be managed from Kishnaghur by committees comprising residents in Kushtea, Santipore or Bongong. That is all I wish to say on the subject of District Committees. The basis we wish to work upon has a much less ambitious aim. We would give over the petty affairs of villages and unions to minor and local bodies, who have local knowledge and local interests, and we propose that they should be supervised by the Local Boards to which they will be subordinate.

Then it has been recognized that some kind of control is necessary, and you come to the question of a Central Board. The idea is not an original one. It comes from English Procedure and Acts. But, admitting the necessity of some form of control, if you do not approve the Central Board idea, you find that you must either have the local personal interference of some one on the spot, or you must have Government interference from a distance. My reason, briefly, why I adopted the principle of a Central Board, was that the work which it will entail upon the Government in dealing with some 66 to 68 millions of people, in gradually establishing Local Boards, several of them with large areas, in laying down bye-laws, rules, and directions, and in disposing of an immense mass of minute details, would at least require a large addition to our Secretariat arrangements to relieve the Government of a great burden; and that some intermediate agency was necessary to help us. I felt at the same time that in the strong plea that had been put forward by the people for freedom from constant and direct interference, it was right to give it a fair trial, and the best way for the Government to do that was to be as little connected with it as possible. We are quite agreed that the Magistrate should be invested with certain powers to see that things do not go wrong, that completed works should not be allowed to go into disrepair; that works newly undertaken were not carried out badly; and that the Magistrate should have the right and the authority to suppress whatever was dangerous to the peace, safety, or health of the community. My belief is that in most cases the influence of the Magistrate over the Local Boards would be such as to lead committees to pay attention to his representations. There must be some power to make them do what was right, and to make them undo what was wrong. If it is not to be the Magistrate on the spot, I confess I should like to see the Government relieved from the duty of interference; and it is in this view that I have proposed the constitution of a Central Board, which, though acting in communication with the Government, would consist of independent men who would be able to settle differences of that kind which may come up between the Magistrate and the Local Boards. Whether the proposal will be sanctioned or not, I cannot tell, but as far as I am concerned, it seems to be the best solution. As regards the objection taken to the magnitude of the work as beyond the power of any Board sitting in Calcutta, I think it would be a quite reasonable objection if it was expected that the whole scheme of Local Self-Government was to be introduced and established through Local Boards within a month after the introduction of the Act. But that, I think, is not likely to take place. Progress in the organization of Local Unions and Local Boards will be very gradual. While I have always maintained that we can introduce and adopt a system of Municipal Government in towns and cities on a wider basis within a year of the passing of the Municipalities Bill, I have as consistently urged that I do not believe that the introduction of Local Self-Government in the interior of districts can be fairly established throughout these provinces in less than ten or twelve years. It must be a matter of slow growth; it must be a matter of very experimental introduction. There are districts where we may introduce it at once, and there are others which we must leave alone for the present. To give the new system any chance of success, I believe that it must gradually grow up as in the case of municipalities, from very small beginnings to larger proportions. To show exactly the view I take, I will read to you a portion of a letter which I wrote to the Government of India in July last, and said :—

"When we approach the discussion of the constitution of Local Boards, the difficulties of the problem are manifestly greater; and these difficulties arise primarily from the fact that, in this direction at least, the experiment of Local Self-Government, based upon election, is entirely an innovation, foreign alike to the genius and instincts of the people and to the system of rule which has obtained since the British power was established in India. The Government on this side of India has no past experience to fall back upon for its guidance, nor probably could it find in any of the independent Native States in the country precedents of a kind to help it in such a novel undertaking. The Lieutenant-Governor is anxious, nevertheless, to give to the views expressed by His Excellency the Viceroy in Council the fullest and the fairest trial; and, though he has no fears as to the results of the measure, and no doubts as to its ultimate succe s, he is bound from his position to give the warning that, if any solid and permanent results are to be achieved, it can only be by a tentative and patient procedure in the introduction of the new policy. We are dealing with untried men in an untried system."

Well, I may be wrong; but I do not think any one who knows the country can suppose that the time I have mentioned is too short for the establishment of Self-Government, on a basis such as that which is contemplated, throughout the country. But with these safeguards, I have no hesitation in trying to give practical effect to a scheme which is intended for the good of the people, and in the knowledge which we possess from our intercourse with them of their capabilities and fitness for the work. I certainly deprecate the political timidity which the learned Advocate-General's speech expresses. I believe that there are in many places a class of people who are really and earnestly interested in the promotion of the welfare of their own villages and their own affairs, and if they managed their own small affairs well, larger powers may gradually be given to them. On these outlines I have no apprehension of the results of the legislation now under discussion.

My Hon. friend Mr. Macaulay has just reminded me that the Hon. Mr. Dampier had made an appeal to the Government regarding the advisability of allowing all Local Boards to elect their own Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen. That, I may say, has been done advisedly. There were before the Government one of three courses: first, that the Magistrate should be absolutely excluded from being appointed or elected; secondly, that the Government should nominate an official, which would entirely do away with the independence which His Excellency the Viceroy desired to see established; or, thirdly, that the right of election should be conceded. I confess I was actuated a good deal by the response which has been received to inquiries made on the subject whilst I was on tour, and that was the almost universal representation made to me that what they wanted was the power of election; but how that will work it is impossible to say. The people are not unanimous, even in the most advanced districts like Burdwan, to accept the exclusion of the Magistrate; and it is certainly wise to have trained men in places where there would be Local Boards; but still it would be difficult for the Government to say, "You must have a Government official." Of the three courses I think it wisest to leave it free, subject to the confirmation of the Government, except in such places where it is clearly shown that there are no persons fit to be placed at the head of local affairs. My belief is that generally they will elect a Government official to be the Chairman, by reason of the distrust of their own powers to deal with a system of Local Self-Government, and in that view I have left the Bill in the terms in which it stands. If the Select Committee has reason to qualify that freedom of action, I shall be quite willing to defer to the opinion of the majority of the Council."

The motion to refer the Bill to a Select Committee was then carried, and the following members were appointed on the Committee. The Hon. the Advocate-General, the Hon. Mr. Reynolds, the Hon. Mr. Allen. Col. the Hon. S T. Trevor, the Hon. Bhudeb Mookerjee, the Hon. Mahomed Yusuf, the Hon. Hurbuns Sahai, and the Mover.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday the 17th March.

To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsements Nos. 1338 and 1339, dated the 24th February 1883, with enclosures, regarding certain endowments offered by Baboo Mohini Mohan Ray.

2. In June 1881 the Lieutenant-Governor accepted the offer made by Baboo Mohini Mohan Ray to invest a sum of Rs. 1,000 in 4 per cent. Government securities for the purpose of awarding an annual prize of Rs. 40 to an adhyapaka (teacher) of Smriti or Hindu Law, whose pupil should stand first in that subject among the successful competitors at the examination for Sanskrit titles. The prize was designated the "Kshetramani Debya Prize." It is now proposed that the value of this prize should be increased to Rs. 60 by the investment of a further sum of Rs. 500, and that the prize should be designated the "Kshetramani Debya Stipend."

3. Baboo Mohini Mohan Ray also offers to make over to Government the following promissory notes with a view to found certain additional prizes:—

(1.)—One note for Rs. 3,000, the interest of which, amounting to Rs. 120 per annum, is to be appropriated for the award of two annual stipends of Rs. 60 each to adhyapakas of Darshana and Sahitya (Hindu Philosophy and Literature) whose pupils are most successful in passing the Sanskrit titles examination in those subjects. The stipends will be designated the "Rajkrishna Ray Stipends" in memory of the donor's late father.

(2).—One note for Rs. 4,000, the interest of which, amounting to Rs. 160 per annum, is to be appropriated towards the payment of two annual prizes of Rs. 80 each, one for the Krishnaghur College and the other for the Rajshahye College. The prize for each college will be awarded to the student who most successfully passes the B.A. examination in the first division. If no student be placed in the first division in any year, the prize is to be awarded at the discretion of the Director of Public Instruction to a graduate of the college who passes the M.A. with honors in any subject, or the value is to be capitalized and added to the fund of the endowment. The recipient of the prize is to be allowed the option of receiving the value in books selected by himself, or in a gold medal inscribed with his name.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts with much pleasure all these offers, and desires that his cordial thanks may be conveyed to Baboo Mohini Mohan Ray for his public spirit and liberality.

Memo. by G. BELLETT, ESQ., Officiating Director of Public Instruction.

COPY forwarded to the Secretary, Government of Bengal, General Department, in reference to his letter No. 351, dated the 25th June 1881, with the request that Baboo Mohini Mohan Ray's offer may be accepted, and an acknowledgment of Government conveyed to him for this act of public spirit and liberality, and the correspondence published in the Gazette.

Dated Bhowanipore, the 21st February 1883.

From—BABOO MOHINI MOHAN RAY,

To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I BEG to send herewith a 4 per cent. Government promissory note of Rs. 3,000 for the purpose of founding two stipends for Professors (adhyapaka vritis) of the annual value of Rs. 60 each in connection with the examination for Sanskrit titles held in accordance with the resolution of Government dated the 30th June 1878, and to express an humble wish that they be called in memory of my deceased father "The Rajkrishna Ray stipend."

No. 127537 of 1842-43.

I beg to send also another Government promissory note of Rs. 500 for the purpose of increasing the annual value of the prize designated "The Kshetramani Debya Prize," and founded by me in June 1881, from Rs. 40 to Rs. 60. To assimilate names, I beg to request that the designation be slightly altered, and it be called "The Kshetramani Debya Stipend."

No. 127539 of 1842-43.

This last-mentioned stipend will, for each year, be ordinarily awarded to an adhyapaka of Smriti (Professor of Hindu law) whose pupil may succeed in obtaining title or degree in that branch of Sanskrit learning. In like manner one of the two Rajkrishna Ray stipends will for each year be ordinarily awarded to an adhyapaka of Darshana (Professor of Hindu philosophy), and the other to an adhyapaka of Sahitya (Professor of Sanskrit literature) whose pupil may graduate in those two subjects respectively. If there be two or more professors eligible for stipend in any of the three above-named subjects, the selection from among them of the stipendiary for the year shall rest with the Director of Public Instruction. If conversely there be no eligible professors in one or other of the three abovenamed subjects, the Director of Public Instruction may at his discretion award the stipend for the year to the professor of a successful pupil in any other branch of Sanskrit learning, or cause the amount to be capitalized and added to the fund of the endowment.

I request the favour of your recommending the Government to accept my offer, and to receive the Government promissory notes in trust for the purpose of awarding the annual interest thereof as adhyapaka vritis or stipends to professors in the manner and under the rules aforesaid.

From—BABOO MOHINI MOHAN RAY,
To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I BEG to send herewith a 4 per cent. Government Promissory note of Rs. 4,000 for the purpose of founding two annual prizes of Rs. 80— each one for the Krishnaghur College, and the other for the Rajshahye College. I was educated in both those institutions, having been taught the elementary course in the Rajshahye school, which has since grown into a College, and the higher course in the Krishnaghur College.

No. 127536 of 1842-43.

The endowment for each College is intended to be entirely independent of the other, and to be subject to the following rules:—The prize shall for each year be awarded to the student of the college who shall stand highest at the examination for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and shall likewise pass in the first division. If there be no student of the B. A. class eligible under the above rule, the Director of Public Instruction may at his discretion award the prize for the year to a graduate of the College who shall successfully pass the Honor examination in any subject for the degree of Master of Arts, or may cause the amount to be capitalized and added to the fund of the endowment. The recipient of the prize will have the option of receiving the value thereof in books selected by himself, or in a gold medal inscribed with his name.

I request the favour of your recommending the Government to accept my offer, and to receive the Government promissory note in trust for the purpose of awarding the annual interest thereof as prizes in the manner and under the rules aforesaid.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A VETERINARY SCHOOL FOR BENGAL.

Circular No. 6, dated Calcutta, the 19th March 1883.

From—COLMAN MACAULAY, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Dept.,

To—All Commissioners.

THE Lieutenant-Governor has had before him the question of establishing a veterinary school for Bengal for the purpose of imparting instruction in veterinary science with special reference to the treatment of horned cattle, and of training a class of natives for service among the people, whether as Government officers or as private practitioners. In the month of January last a special committee, under the presidency of Surgeon-Major K. McLeod, was appointed to consider the whole question. Their report has now been received, and in forwarding a copy for your information I am directed to request that the Lieutenant-Governor may be favoured with an expression of your opinion on the proposals put forward, together with any recommendations that you may have to offer. In particular, it is requested that you will be good enough to enquire and report, for the information of Government, what probability there is of passed students of the school obtaining employment under landholders or public bodies in your division.

No. 646, dated Calcutta, the 19th March 1883.

From—COLMAN MACAULAY, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Dept.,

To—The President of the Committee appointed to consider the question of establishing a Veterinary School for Bengal.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th February 1883, forwarding the report of the Committee appointed to consider the question of establishing a veterinary school for Bengal.

2. In reply, I am directed to convey the thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor to the Committee for the excellent report they have submitted, and for the sound and practical suggestions which it embodies.

Dated Calcutta, the 8th February 1883.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

Municipal Department—Medical—dated Calcutta, 22nd January 1883.

IN compliance with the instructions conveyed to us in the Resolution marginally cited, we have the honour to submit the following report on the subject of "the establishment of a school for the special object of imparting instruction in veterinary science among the people, whether as Government officers or as private practitioners."

2. In considering this subject, we have had the advantage of perusing the scheme drawn up by Mr. Hallen in 1872 for establishing a veterinary college in Calcutta for the Bengal Presidency, which scheme obtained the sanction of the Government of India,* but was not carried out on account of Mr. Hallen's services being required elsewhere. We have also perused the report of the Committee which led to the formation of a veterinary school at Lahore, and have endeavoured to assimilate the arrangements proposed for the Bengal school to those sanctioned for the Punjab school as closely as the different circumstances of the two provinces allow. We have likewise held prominently in view the indications conveyed in paragraph 4 of the Resolution above cited, pointing out the special questions regarding which deliberation and opinion are required by Government.

* Financial Department Resolution No. 6498, dated 14th October 1872

Punjab Government letter No 109, dated 19th June 1882, and enclosures.

3. The circumstances that agricultural stock in the province of Bengal is almost exclusively composed of cattle (neat kine), and that the main object of the school is to furnish an agency competent to aid in the prevention of the embarrassment and loss caused to the agricultural classes by disease (mostly of an epizootic kind) among cattle, have rendered it necessary that our proposals should be based on the assumption that instruction regarding the hygiene and diseases of the cow should constitute the principal or sole business of the school. In every veterinary school in the world the horse constitutes the chief subject of study and teaching, and other domestic animals are considered of secondary importance. In this school the cow must constitute the main or sole subject of attention, and the horse and other domestic animals will obtain scant notice. What is wanted, we apprehend, is a native of average intelligence and fair general education, whose special education in the proposed school will enable him—

(a) to recognise and discriminate the diseases of cattle accurately;
(b) to submit intelligent reports regarding outbreaks of cattle-disease, and suggest measures necessary for preventing their spread;
(c) to direct and carry out the proper treatment of diseased cattle;
(d) to diffuse a knowledge of the best means of keeping cattle in health, and treating them when ill.

4 But, while fully appreciating and realizing the objects and scope of our deliberations, we would record our emphatic conviction that a veterinary education is incomplete which does not include a knowledge of the horse and other domestic animals, and that an expansion of the school in this direction should be recognized as a highly desirable, if not necessary, event of the future. For this purpose increased and more expensive accommodation, appliances, and teaching power would be needed. The more limited scale on which we have recommended the organization of the institution is not, we would add, incompatible with a development of this kind.

5. We are entirely in accord with His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in thinking that the new school should constitute a separate institution, and not a branch of the Sealdah Medical School. The scope of instruction and sphere of practice alike point to separation. Medical and veterinary education and practice have no doubt much in common, but their specialities are so pronounced as to render combination inexpedient. Each branch of the healing profession is quite enough for one man, and the experience and custom of western nations have pronounced unmistakeably for specialization, which is more in harmony with the instincts and habits of eastern than of western peoples.

6. Site.—In considering the question of the best site for the school, we have held the following points in view. The locality should be—

(a) at some distance from where cattle or other stock are stabled, to avoid infection of them;
(b) not too close to human habitations or in a crowded locality, in case the hospital and dissecting room might be a nuisance;
(c) of easy access from town for the convenience of non-resident lecturers;
(d) within reasonable distance of a locality where the students might obtain lodgings and provisions;
(e) conveniently situated for access of sick cattle from the town and suburbs, and for removal of offal, dung, &c.
(f) Proximity to a sewer and access to pipe water would be very substantial additional advantages.

The eastern suburbs of Calcutta—Tengra, Entally, Beniapooker, and Ballygunge—would, we consider, best meet these requirements. We inspected various places in these suburbs, and found that suitable buildings and sufficient ground could be obtained at a purchase cost of, say, Rs. 25,000, or monthly rental of, say, Rs. 150. We considered that eight to ten beeghas of land are requisite for an institution in which sheds for the segregation and treatment of infectious complaints would require to be erected at some distance from the General Hospital. If a good two-storied house with the usual out-houses were available on a compound of this size, the upper story might be made available for the Superintendent's residence, and the lower for a lecture room, pharmacy, office, and museum, the out-houses being utilized as servants' quarters. We could specify several properties affording these advantages, and notes have been kept of them; but it will probably suffice for the purpose of this report to indicate the kind of accommodation that is required and could be procured.

7. There is a village (Hareeparah) immediately to the south of the Sealdah School, covering some 4¾ beeghas of land, which would form an admirable site for the school. It offers the following advantages:—

(a) Sufficient distance from human habitations and places where cattle are kept

(b) Easy access from town and from the municipal gowkanahs, whence sick cattle would probably be brought to the hospital; easy access also for sick cattle belonging to goallahs, garriwans, and others.

(c) Proximity to the Sealdah School, whence models, preparations, &c., might be taken on loan, and to which students might resort for instruction on some subjects.

(d) Close proximity to the main sewer and the municipal railway, offering peculiar facilities for removing filth of sorts.

(e) Within easy reach of pipe water.

(f) The Sealdah school and hospital would be freed of the nuisance of a filthy bustee in their immediate neighbourhood.

This property might be had, we understand, at a cost of Rs. 100 per cottah. The price of 4¾ beeghas would be Rs. 9,500. More land might be required for an infections diseases' hospital, but this could easily be had in the neighbourhood. The only drawback is that all the buildings required would have to be erected. The Superintendent might easily procure a good house in the neighbourhood. We submit a plan of this site, for which we are indebted to Mr. R. C. Sterndale, Vice-Chairman of the Suburban Municipality.

8. Buildings.—The buildings that would be requisite for the purposes of the school are these—

(a) A hospital.—We consider that to give sufficient clinical instruction, accommodation for 100 head of cattle would be necessary. A shed of an inexpensive kind would answer well enough for cattle. Each stall or loose box ought to have a superficial area of 12×12 feet. A kulcha floor would suffice. Mr. Greenhill's experience indicates that a suitable building could be erected at a cost of Rs. 60 per stall or box. The whole building would thus cost Rs. 6,000. A hospital suitable for the accommodation of horses would cost about four times as much.

(b) A hospital for infectious diseases—large enough to accommodate 20 patients. This would cost at the same rate Rs. 1,200. A pucca floor would be advisable for this hospital, which would add to the cost of it.

(c) A dissecting room.—A cheap shed with rough tables might be run up at small cost, but it would be better, from a sanitary point of view, to provide a place similar to the new post mortem house attached to the Sealdah School, with raised plinth, cemented floor, good drains, perforated zinc walls, strong tables covered with lead, cisterns and pipes, &c., where the students could work with comfort and safety to health, and which could not become a nuisance to the neighbourhood. Four tables for dissecting would suffice, and another specially contrived for post mortem examinations. We understand that the Sealdah building cost Rs. 4,649. A room of half the size would be sufficient for the veterinary school, and this could probably be provided for about Rs. 3,000.

(d) Lecture-room.

(e) Pharmacy.

(f) Office.

(g) Residence for Superintendent.

If a two-storied house were purchased or leased, as indicated in paragraph 6, these requirements would be met, and the cost of suitable furnishings and fittings only would be required. If land only were acquired, as suggested in paragraph 7, a new building would be necessary to include either (d), (e) and (f), if the Superintendent should not be required to live on the spot; or (g) as well if this were considered desirable. The cost of these buildings would not be less than Rs. 20,000. In addition it would be requisite to provide—

(h) a residence for the Deputy Superintendent;

(i) quarters for students on duty;

(j) godowns for servants;

(k) a godown for storing straw, hay, and grain with an iron tank for the latter, and a boiler for preparing mashes, &c.

The remark above made would apply to these requirements as well. New erections would cost some Rs. 10,000 in addition.

9. Furnishings and fittings.—The fittings, furnishings and appliances necessary for the institution need not be on a very costly scale.

(a) If the lecture-room should not be built de novo, it would be necessary to provide benches, desks, demonstrating table, chair, blackboard, &c. This would perhaps cost some Rs. 1,000.

(b) The fitting of the pharmacy with desks, tables, shelves, drawers, almirahs, sink, &c., would cost about Rs. 700.

(c) If the dissecting room were not originally provided with tables, benches, &c., the cost of providing them would probably amount to Rs. 250.

(d) A set of dissecting instruments for, say, 60 students would cost Rs. 200.

(e) Medicines and appliances to stock the pharmacy at starting would cost about Rs. 250.

(f) A set of surgical instruments suitable for the treatment of cattle might be provided for Rs. 150.

(g) Models, books, diagrams, &c., would have to be gradually collected. A native artist educated in the Calcutta School of Art could enlarge pictures and plates for teaching purposes, and prepare illustrations from fresh specimens as is now done in the Medical College. A set of drawings illustrative of the morbid anatomy of rinderpest was prepared under the superintendence of Mr. Hallen when he served on the Cattle Plague Commission. These could doubtless be obtained from the Home Department. It would be necessary to prepare text-books in the vernacular. This might be done in time under the superintendence of the professor and teachers. For all these purposes it would suffice to assign a grant of Rs 1,000 at starting.

(h) A table, chairs and almirah would be required for the office room. This would cost, say, Rs. 100.

10. Subjects of instruction.—Before entering on the question of staff and establishment, it is necessary to specify the subjects of instruction and the course of study. The following are the essential branches of veterinary education having any pretension to be scientific, systematic and complete.

(a) Anatomy and physiology (including demonstrations and dissection).

(b) Materia Medica (including practical pharmacy and as much chemistry and botany as would be necessary for a proper understanding of the nature and composition of drugs).

(c) Pathology (including the hygiene of cattle, cattle-poisoning and the nature and treatment of medical and surgical diseases).

(d) Clinical and practical instruction (including housing, feeding, shoeing, &c., &c.

Instruction in these subjects would be confined to the cow in the first instance, with perhaps a few demonstrations of the anatomy of the horse; but if more detailed instruction regarding the latter should become desirable, the same scheme of subjects would apply.

11. Course of instruction.—Instruction will have to be conveyed in the Bengali language. This introduces a considerable difficulty in arranging for the staff, but that cannot be avoided. The session would last, as in the Sealdah School, from 15th June to 15th April, but clinical and practical instruction would be given all the year round. Half of the students might get leave during the vacation in two batches in turn.

The course of instruction would be as follows :—

A—1st Session—(a) Anatomy and dissection.
(b) Materia Medica and compounding.
(c) Hospital attendance.

B—2nd Session—(a) Anatomy and dissection.
(b) Materia Medica and compounding.
(c) Pathology.
(d) Hospital attendance.

C—3rd Session—(a) Surgical anatomy and operations.

(b) Compounding.
(c) Pathology.
(d) Hospital attendance (shoeing and drenching, &c.)

We consider that a sound and thorough training could not be given in less than three sessions.

11. Teaching staff.—For the purpose of efficient instruction and conducting the management of the institution, we consider the following establishment requisite:—

A.—One Superintendent and Professor.—He should be a qualified veterinary surgeon, of good ability and attainments, with a knowledge of the country and language. An army veterinary surgeon of some standing would for many reasons be preferable to a man specially brought out from England. The duties would be—

(a) to superintend and control the whole institution;
(b) to lecture on pathology;
(c) to give clinical instruction;
(d) to correspond with Government regarding all matters connected with the school;
(e) to advise Government on veterinary questions;

An officer of some standing, and who had served in India for four or five years, would be desirable, but not so senior as to preclude the probability of his remaining in the appointment for 10 to 15 years. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to obtain a man with a sufficient knowledge of Bengali, but the retention of his appointment might be made conditional on his acquiring this. He would receive the pay of his army grade and Rs. 300 staff pay in addition. The pay of a 1st class veterinary surgeon over 5 years' service is Rs. 602-12-5. This might be taken as an average. He should reside on or near the school, get free quarters, and be restricted from private practice, devoting the whole of his time to the institution. In order to retain the services of an army officer, it would be necessary that he should obtain, during his employment in the school, any additional pay or higher rank to which his service entitled him.

B.—An Assistant to the Superintendent.—The duties should be—(a) to have subordinate charge of the hospital;

(b) to demonstrate in anatomy and assist in the dissecting room;
(c) to have charge of the pharmacy and superintend the compounding.

He ought to be a smart, well educated man, with some previous knowledge of medicine. A specially selected Assistant Surgeon or an Assistant Apothecary of some standing, who had gone through the course of study required of the Subordinate Medical Department in the Medical College, would suit. A good knowledge of Bengali would be indispensable. Quarters would be provided on the premises, and he would be required to devote his whole time to his duties.

A salary of from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250, rising by yearly increments of Rs. 10, would be requisite.

C.—Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology.—A selected licentiate of the vernacular school would be well suited for this duty; a knowledge of English would be desirable in order to enable him to prepare text-books. He would—

(a) lecture on anatomy and physiology;
(b) superintend the dissecting room;
(c) under the direction of the Superintendent prepare text-books;
(d) supervise the preparation of skeletons, dissections, diagrams, &c., &c.

He ought to spend 5 or 6 hours daily at the school during the session. He would get the grade pay of a Civil Hospital Assistant and Rs. 50 staff pay. Quarters need not be provided.

D.—Lecturer on Materia Medica.—A Vernacular Licentiate or Civil Hospital Assistant might also be selected for this duty on the same terms. He would—

(a) lecture on Materia Medica and Elementary Chemistry and Botany;
(b) superintend generally the practical instruction in compounding;
(c) prepare text-books on Materia Medica and compounding;
(d) if necessary take subordinate charge of a certain number of sick cattle.

As the Superintendent would not be required during the first session to lecture on pathology, he could devote himself to acquiring the language, organizing the classes of Anatomy and Materia Medica and the hospital, seeing that the lecturers fitted themselves for their work, arranging about demonstrations, specimens, diagrams, &c., &c.

12. Establishment.—The following establishment would be necessary for carrying out the business of the institution :—

(a) A hospital overseer at Rs. 40 per mensem.

(b) Coolies at the rate of 1 to every 10 head of cattle, say, 10 at Rs. 8 = Rs. 80. Students would also assist in the hospital work.

(c) A compounder. A student might be selected, who would get Rs. 5 in addition to his stipend.

(d) A writer at Rs. 25.

(e) Sweepers for the dissecting room, hospital, and grounds, say, four at Rs. 7.

(f) Three malis, one of whom would act as durwan, at Rs. 10, 8, 7.

(g) A bheesti at Rs. 7.

(h) A bearer at Rs. 8 and farash at Rs. 7 for the lecture-room, office, &c.

(i) Four punkhawallahs in the hot weather, 15th June to 15th October, at Rs. 4.

13. Students.—The school should be open to students of every nationality, caste, and religion. We consider it desirable that students should be obtained from all parts of the province, and that after instruction they should be sent to those districts with whose circumstances they are best acquainted. For this purpose Commissioners and District Officers might be asked to select and send a certain number of young men likely to take an interest in the subject and profit by the instruction and training imparted in the school. Zemindars and planters and others interested in agriculture and stock might also be invited to select and send students.

14 Preliminary Examination —Students should be certified as regards character, general smartness and physical fitness by the authority or person sending them. Ability to read and write in Bengali and a good knowledge of arithmetic is indispensable. It would be best if the same standards of preliminary education as are required for the vernacular schools could be exacted. These are as follow :—

(a) The Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University.

(b) A certificate signed by the Registrar of having appeared for this examination and not having failed in more than two subjects.

(c) The Middle English or Minor Scholarship Examination.

(d) The Middle Vernacular Examinations.

(a) and (b) could perhaps hardly be expected. The examinations for (c) and (d) being held in the districts, and success being attested by Inspectors of Schools, would be more suited to the circumstances.

		Marks.
I	Bengali language ...	100
II	History and Geography of Bengal	100
III.	Arithmetic	150
IV.	Euclid, Book I	50
V.	Elements of Natural Philosophy and Physical Science.	100
VI.	Sanitary Primer ..	100
	Total ...	600

It might be advisable, at starting, to be content with a still lower standard, and the Upper Primary Scholarship Examination might be added. The subjects of examination included in these tests are as shown in the margin, and would suffice. The age limit (13) for this examination is too low, but this might perhaps be extended to 15 as in the Middle Vernacular Scholarship Examination as a special case.

15. Students would have to find their own quarters, except those on duty in the hospital, pharmacy, &c., for whom a lodging would be provided. These would have to find their own rations.

16. Examinations.—We recommend that an examination should be held at the close of each session by the Superintendent and teachers to test progress. Students not acquitting themselves satisfactorily should be discharged.

17. Final Examination.—A final examination should be held at the end of the third session, and should be conducted by persons not connected with the school. A Board might be appointed composed of a Professor of the Medical College, a Veterinary Surgeon, and the Superintendent. The examination would be oral and practical, and a parchment certificate should be given, signed in the name of the Board by the Superintendent, of having been examined and passed.

18. Number of students.—This is a difficult question, as we have no data to judge of the probable demand for private practice. The Committee which considered the arrangements for the Lahore School recommended a strength of 60 students, and this we consider a good working number. The experience of the Sealdah School indicates that, of the number originally admitted into the school, about 50 per cent. pass the final examination and become licentiates. The rest are removed by death, resignation, expulsion, &c. An annual accession of 20 students would at this rate give an annual yield of 10 qualified men. It would take some time to provide each of the 44 districts of Bengal with a man at this rate, and casualties occurring among passed men would have to be thought of and provided for. The estimate would therefore appear to be reasonable at starting, even if the contingency of private practice is for the present left out of account.

19. Stipends.—Stipends and an assurance of employment by Government must be in the first instance provided, until in fact experience has established the assurance that a livelihood can be gained by private practice. The same stipends as are given to the students of the vernacular school, viz. Rs. 5 per mensem, are recommended; less cannot be offered. A maximum of 60 stipends may be laid down for the school; vacancies being filled up by examination. Half the number of freeships may be established at starting to meet the case of zemindars and others sending youths. It is premature to lay down any scale of entrance or other fees, and whether the stipends should be paid from provincial revenues or local funds is a matter for the consideration of Government. It is more than doubtful whether any fees could be obtained at starting for the keep and treatment of sick cattle; but perhaps in time a small charge might be imposed on this account. It would probably be sufficient to start the school with 30 students, and go on entertaining 20 annually, or as many more as might be necessary to maintain the strength of 60 students.

20. Name and pay of passed students.—Passed students might be called Veterinary Assistants, and the following scale of pay would probably suffice:—

	Without English qualification.	With English qualification.
Under 7 years	15	20
Over 7 and under 14 years	20	30
Over 14 years	30	40

The rates have been arranged in accordance with the scale of pay of Civil Hospital Assistants, making a reduction of Rs. 5 all round. The establishment should be entitled to pension under the rules applicable to the Uncovenanted Civil Service.

21. Government of the school.—The Superintendent of the school should correspond direct with the Secretary to Government in the Medical Department. It would be desirable, however, to appoint a certain number of visitors, who should inspect the school occasionally and enter their remarks in a book kept for that purpose, a copy of these, with explanatory remarks by the Superintendent, being forwarded promptly to Government. We would suggest the following:—

Visitors.

(a) The Inspecting Veterinary Surgeon of the Lower Circle.
(b) The Principal of the Medical College.
(c) The Superintendent of the Sealdah Medical School.

Veterinary assistants would be under the orders and control of the Magistrates of districts.

22. Cost.—It is not easy to give an exact estimate of the cost of the school, more particularly of the initial cost, which would depend on—

Initial outlay.

(a) whether premises and ground were bought or leased; and
(b) whether, in the former case, ground only were bought and premises erected, or ground and premises were bought, and only some additional buildings were raised.

These cases may thus be stated :—

(a) Ground bought and all buildings erected.
(b) Ground and premises bought and some additional buildings raised.
(c) House and grounds rented and some additional buildings provided.

The cost of the additional buildings would be nearly the same in the two last cases :—

	Rs.
In case (a) the ground would cost, say	10,000
The buildings, say	30,000
Fittings and furnishings, say	4,000
Total ..	44,000
In case (b) the house and grounds would cost, say	25,000
Additional buildings	12,000
Furnishings and fittings	4,000
Total ..	41,000

In case (c) the annual rental would be Rs. 150 to Rs. 200, and the additional buildings and fittings and furnishings Rs 16,000 as in the last case. The capital outlay for establishing the school would not fall far short of half a lakh of rupees.

23. Establishment.—The cost of establishment can be more precisely stated. The following scale is in accordance with the preceding recommendations :—

		Monthly. Rs.	Annual. Rs.
	Teaching Staff.
1	Superintendent and Professor, say	900
1	Assistant Superintendent	225
1	Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology ...	80
1	„ on Materia Medica ...	80
	Total ...	1,285	15,420
	Working Establishment.
1	Hospital overseer	40
10	Coolies at Rs. 8	80
1	Compounder	5
1	Writer	25
4	Sweepers at Rs. 7	28
3	Malis at Rs. 10, 8, and 7	25
1	Bheesti at Rs. 7	7
1	Bearer at Rs. 8 and farash at Rs. 7	15
4	Punkahwallahs at Rs. 4	16
	Stipends	241	2,892
60	Students at Rs. 5	300	3,600
	Total ...		21,912
	Deduct 8 16s for punkahwallahs		128
	Total ...	...	21,784
	Add for rent (case c) ...	150	1,800
	Total ...	...	23,584
	Add for keep of 100 cattle at Rs. 6 per mensem ...	...	7,200
	Add contingencies at Rs. 20 per mensem ...	...	240
	Total ...	...	31,024

The annual cost of the Lahore School has, we observe, been estimated at Rs. 18,924 (exclusive of keep of horses and cattle), and looking to the fact that the arrangements we have proposed are in some respects more complete, the figure which we have specified does not appear extravagant.

24. Conclusion.—In submitting the scheme which we would now commend to the favourable consideration of Government, we have been guided by a desire to organize the institution as economically as is consistent with efficiency, and at the same time by estimating every requirement liberally to avoid committing Government to entering upon an enterprise which would prove more costly than it appeared to be at starting.

DOCKS AT DIAMOND HARBOUR.

No 110.

Dated the 20th March 1883.

THE following is published for general information :—

No. 116M, dated Fort William, the 14th March 1883.

From—COLONEL W. S. TREVOR, R.E., Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I AM desired to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 615MPI of the 23rd ultimo, with enclosures, on the subject of constructing docks at Diamond Harbour, and to state that the Government of India entirely concur with His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor as to the necessity for further enquiry regarding the extensions of accommodation possible at Calcutta itself, before embarking on any scheme for providing docks at a distance.

2. Without attempting to prejudge the question at its present stage, His Excellency the Governor-General in Council cannot but feel that there is some force in the objection of the mercantile community to being compelled to carry on one portion of their business at a place some forty miles distant from their head-quarters, and in the argument that it is improvident to commit for ever the trade of the large portion of India commanded by Calcutta to the risks and inconveniences of one portion of the Hooghly river in order to escape those of the other. If it were found possible to construct docks in the vicinity of Calcutta itself, this dilemma would be avoided, and while, indeed, the risks and delays of the Hooghly would remain as at present, the possibility would remain open of avoiding them, at any future time when the trade could bear the charge, by means of a canal connecting the docks with the Mutlah river.

3. I am therefore desired to suggest that the enquiry by the Port Commissioners should embrace the feasibility and cost of a wet dock of reasonable size, but capable of enlargement hereafter, and the expediency of the Commissioners themselves carrying out the project by means of capital to be raised by them for the purpose. Due consideration will, no doubt, be bestowed by them upon the various projects which are enumerated in the 9th and 10th paragraphs of the Diamond Harbour Committee's Report, and especially on those for docks at Akra, which have lately been reproduced, in a somewhat different form, by the Port Officer of Calcutta, Lieutenant Stiffe.

4. In connection with this subject, I am to state that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council approves of the recommendation of the Government of Bengal, in paragraph 13 of Mr. Levinge's letter No. 969R of the 23rd ultimo, that for the present at least the question of the central goods station in Calcutta should remain in abeyance. In dealing with goods traffic, it appears essential that all unnecessary handling should be avoided, and that all carting and boating intermediate between railway wagons and shipping should be eliminated as far as possible. If docks at Calcutta should be found feasible, the most convenient situation for a depôt for all goods, except those intended for local consumption, will obviously be one in immediate connection with the docks.

5. In conclusion, I am to suggest that, in view of the great importance of making early provision for the rapidly growing trade, the Commissioners may be requested to submit their report at the earliest practicable date.

No. 896MPI.

COPY forwarded to the Secretary to the Port Commissioners for information and guidance, in continuation of this office letter No. 616MPI, dated the 23rd ultimo, and with the intimation that the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the report called for will be submitted with as little delay as possible.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, d dew, d drizzling rain, fog.

ORDERS BY THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

NOTIFICATION.

The 26th March 1883.—The following instructions are notified for the guidance of officers corresponding directly with the Government of Bengal during the time His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor is at Darjeeling:—

As a general rule, all communications should be sent, as usual, to the Secretariat at Calcutta; but communications which are urgent, and which can be made complete in themselves so as not to require reference to papers at the Presidency, may be sent direct to the Secretary of the department concerned with the Lieutenant-Governor at Darjeeling.

F. B. PEACOCK,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 0000A.

GENERAL.—The 22nd March 1883.—Mr. C. R. Marindin, Officiating Joint Magistrate and Deputy Collector, Monghyr, is allowed furlough for twenty months under section 49, chapter V of the Civil Leave Code, with effect from the 26th instant.

This cancels the order of the 6th idem, granting Mr. Marindin leave for three months under section 71 of the Code.

Mr. F. R. S. Collier, Officiating Joint Magistrate and Deputy Collector, Serampore, Hooghly, is appointed temporarily to act as Magistrate and Deputy Collector of Howrah.

Mr. N. Warde-Jones, Temporary Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, Hooghly, is appointed temporarily to have charge of the Serampore sub-division of that district during the absence on deputation of Mr. F. R. S. Collier, or until further orders.

The 23rd March 1883.—Baboo Obhoy Chunder Das, Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, 24-Pergunnahs, returned to duty on the forenoon of the 19th March 1883.

NOTIFICATION.

The 21st March 1883.—The following revised rules for the regulation of the departmental examinations of junior members of the Covenanted Civil Service, the Subordinate Executive Service, the Non-Regulation Commission, Police, &c., are hereby published for general information:—

1. All Assistant Magistrates, Assistant Commissioners, Deputy Magistrates and Collectors, Assistant Superintendents of Police, and others (to whom these rules may be applicable), who may have been more than six months on duty, shall, and those who have been less than six months on duty, may, at their option, be subjected to half-yearly departmental examinations, and shall be required to pass according to the standard, or the standards, of examination which may be applicable to them respectively in each subject according to the rules hereinafter set forth.

2. To direct and control these half-yearly departmental examinations, there shall be a Central Examination Committee appointed by Government. It shall consist of a President and of as many members (of whom one shall be Secretary) as the Government may think proper to appoint from time to time.

3. The examinations may be held, in the Regulation Provinces, at any station which is the head-quarters of a Divisional Commissioner, or where there is a District Judge; and for the Non-Regulation Provinces at the following stations, and at any other stations where the Commissioner may, in communication with the Central Examination Committee, think it necessary to hold Committees for examination:—

For Chota Nagpore, at Ranchee.
For Cooch Behar, at Darjeeling or Julpigoree.
For the Sonthal Pergunnahs, at Bhagulpore.
For the Chittagong Hill Tracts, at Chittagong.

4. Each Divisional Commissioner shall notify, at least one month before the date of examination, at what stations in his division examinations are to be held, and shall report the names of intending examinees, specifying at which centre of examination each is to attend. If a Divisional Commissioner has only a very few examinees, and if the means of locomotion are easy, he will probably have only one or two centres of examination in his division.

5. The Central Examination Committee may, on sufficient cause being shewn, permit the appearance of an officer for examination at a station other than that at which, under ordinary circumstances, he would be required to present himself.

6. At the several stations at which examinations are to be held, Local Committees shall be formed, who shall conduct the examinations under the instructions of the Central Committee.

7. The Local Committee at each station, which is the head-quarters of a Commissioner, shall consist of the Commissioner, the Collector (or Deputy Commissioner), and a native civil officer to be selected by the Commissioner. In the absence of the Commissioner or Collector, the Judge (or Judicial Commissioner) shall take his place on the Committee. At the other stations the Committee shall consist of the Judge, the Collector, and a native officer to be selected by the Judge. At the stations in the Non-Regulation Provinces which are not the head quarters of the Commissioner, and at which there is no Judicial Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner shall form a Committee, with one or two other officers to be selected by him.

8. The Government will, in communication with the Central Committee, fix the days for the half-yearly examination, which shall be the same for every district. The first half-yearly examination will usually be held in the month of April, May, or June, and the second in the month of October, November, or December.

9. It shall be the duty of the Central Committee to prepare, previous to each examination, sets of questions to be put to the examinees, to forward a sufficient number of copies of each of such sets to the President of each Local Committee in a sealed packet, to determine the order in which the examination in each paper and subject shall be held, and to arrange all other details for the conduct of the examinations. The Central Committee from time to time shall lay down such rules as may appear to them best for the guidance of the Local Committees, in order to ensure a fair and uniform method of ascertaining the proficiency of the examinee in each subject.

10. The Local Committee shall not open the sealed packet of papers until the time of examination; they shall superintend the written examinations of the examinees only so far as may be necessary to ensure the conduct of them with proper strictness; they shall not examine the written answers, but shall forward them to the Central Committee with a report, which shall be furnished by the District Officer and Commissioner under whom the examinee has been employed, respecting his official character, qualifications, and the work done by him during the preceding six months, as well as a statement specifying the marks which they assign to candidates for conversational proficiency in the vernacular, in which branch their decision shall be final.

11. The Central Committee, after perusing the reports and the examination papers, shall report to Government the names of such officers as in their opinion have passed, noticing specially, in the order of their merit, those who may have passed with distinction. They shall also report the names of those officers who have succeeded in some of the subjects only, as well as of those who have failed altogether.

12. There shall be two standards of examination in Law and Languages, the Lower and the Higher Standards. With the exception specified below, officers are required to pass in Law and in the language of the district by both the Higher and the Lower Standards, and in a second language by the Higher Standard only.

13. In Appendix IV will be found the rules prescribing the tests in the vernacular which European officers of the several departments are required to satisfy.

For native officers, when required to pass in any vernacular, the same rules and tests shall apply as in the case of European officers. But if the officer does not know English, he will translate into his own vernacular, and not into English, and it will be unnecessary for him to transliterate the paper set for that purpose.

14. The only language in which officers generally shall be required to pass by the Lower Standard shall be the vernacular of the district in which they may be serving, and the principal object of the examination shall be to test the proficiency for practical purposes of the examinee in such language.

15. The object of the Lower Standard of examination in Law shall be to test the examinee's practical acquaintance with the Criminal Codes, and his general knowledge of certain of the more important local laws, regulations, and rules. One paper shall be prepared specially for this examination, which shall be confined to the Criminal Codes, and for which the use of the Codes, but no manuals, guides, or books, with indexes, shall be allowed. The questions must not be such as can be answered by copying a passage from a book; they must be such as shall thoroughly test the capacity of the examinees to understand the bearing of facts, and to ascertain the law and apply it. Another paper shall be prepared, consisting of questions on the local laws, regulations, and rules enumerated in Appendix I. These must be answered without the aid of books. This paper is designed equally for the candidates for examination by the Lower and Higher Standards, but the number of pass marks shall be less in the case of examinees by the Lower than in that of those by the Higher Standard of examination.

16. In the examination by the Higher Standard, it is necessary for the examinee to pass under the rules referred to above in two vernacular languages, ordinarily Bengali and Urdu. The questions of law and practice will be selected from the whole field of the duties of a Magistrate and Collector. All examinees will be required to pass in two papers. The nature of the one, in answering the questions in which the use of books will not be allowed, has already been explained in paragraph 15. The other paper, for which the use of books will be allowed, will contain questions on the local laws, regulations, and rules, set forth in Appendix II. The examinees may have all the Acts, Regulations, and Circulars, but no manuals, guides, or indexes. The questions should be confined as much as possible to cases commonly arising in the ordinary routine of the office of a Magistrate and Collector, or of a District Superintendent of Police. Certain facts of probable occurrence in real practice should be stated, and the examinee required to find and apply the law applicable to the facts.

17. A Covenanted Civil Servant must pass the examination in local laws, regulations, and rules and in both languages by the Higher Standard. He will be required to pass by the Lower Standard in one subject only, and that the vernacular of the district in which he is serving.

18. Officers who, after passing in the higher grade the preliminary examination for admission into the Subordinate Executive Service held in 1873 or subsequently, have received appointments in that service, will be subject to no further examination except the Higher Standard departmental examination, and the opium laws examination for those candidates who are appointed to the Opium Department without having taken the opium papers. Candidates who passed at the Subordinate Executive Service examination which was held in 1872 are exempted from examination by the lower standard in the vernacular only. They will be required to pass in law by that standard.

19. Where a candidate. other than a covenanted civilian, allowed by Government for any special reason to present himself for examination by the higher standard in law or languages before passing the lower, fails to pass the higher standard in either subject, the Central Examination Committee shall have full authority to decide whether he has done sufficiently well to pass by the lower standard.

An uncovenanted officer who has passed the departmental examination by the lower standard in any subject is at liberty to present himself for examination in that particular subject by the higher standard before passing in the remaining compulsory subject by the lower standard.

20. An officer who succeeds in passing by either standard (a) in Law or (b) in either of the languages, shall not again be required to present himself for examination by the same standard in the subject in which he was successful, but only in those in which he failed.

21. The marks to the assigned to each branch of the law examination, the proportion required for passing by the different standards, and the time allowed for each paper, are set forth in Appendix III. The same information as regards the examination in languages will be found in Appendix IV. Uniformity must be rigidly enforced in the time allowed for each subject, whether in law or language.

22. A civil officer who has passed according to the lower standard of examination, and who has exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the third class for six months, shall usually be vested with the powers of a Magistrate of the second class, described in sections 32, 33, 35 and 36 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882), provided he is certified by the Commissioner to be fully competent to exercise them. Assistant Magistrates and Assistant Commissioners will also then be vested with the powers of a Deputy Collector.

23. An officer, however, who shall have passed by the lower standard in the Criminal Codes and in the language of his district, may be vested with the powers of a Magistrate of the second class on the Commissioner's recommendation to that effect, provided he has had not less than six months' experience in his magisterial duties.

24. An officer who has passed according to the higher standard shall be eligible to be vested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, but not until he shall have exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the second class for at least six months.

25. An officer who has passed in law and in the language of his district according to the higher standard, may also be vested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, subject to the condition of his having exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the second class for six months; but he shall not be entitled to any promotion or increase of pay until he has passed fully by the second standard. He shall exercise the powers of a Magistrate of the first class so long only as he is employed in a district where the language in which he has passed is the vernacular.

26. Assistant Magistrates and Assistant Commissioners on first appointment draw only Rs. 400 a month. On passing the Lower Standard of examination, and being invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the Second Class, they shall be allowed an increase of Rs. 50 a month, provided they have exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the Third Class for six months at least; and on passing fully the Higher Standard, and being invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the First Class, they will receive a second increase of Rs. 50, provided they have also exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the Second Class for not less than six months.

27. Officers attending these examinations will be allowed travelling allowance subject to the rules laid down by the Government of India in the Financial Department, in Notification No. 4425 of the 12th December 1872.

28. No application from any junior officer, liable to examination, for privilege leave or leave on private affairs, will be entertained if the following half-yearly examination falls due before the expiry of the leave applied for, unless the application specifies that the applicant will attend the examination.

29. If such leave is applied for, and the application from such an officer is submitted to Government, it should be stated that he is liable to pass an examination, and that the next examination will be held within the period of the leave applied for. This will enable the Lieutenant-Governor to decide whether, for the reasons stated, the leave should be granted; and if so, on what conditions

30. It is the duty of district officers to look to the practical training of the young officers placed under them from their first entering into official life till they acquire a practical experience of their work and qualify themselves for the exercise of higher powers by passing the prescribed examinations. District officers are expected to take active interest in the well-being of the young men placed under them, by exercising due supervision over their studies, by holding periodical examinations to test their qualifications and official knowledge, and by any other means which may seem to them to be expedient for the purpose.

Special Rules.

1. For Police Officers, the papers set in Law for both the Lower and the Higher Standards shall be prepared separately from those for other officers. For the Lower Standard questions shall be set in the Penal Code, the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act V of 1861, the Village Chowkidari Act VI (B.C.) of 1870, Act I (B.C.) of 1871, and the D and N Circular Orders of the Police Department. The use of books will be allowed in answering these questions For the Higher Standard the questions will be taken from the same Acts, and from all the Circulars of the Police Department, from the Excise, Salt, and Opium Laws, from Act V (B.C.) of 1876 (so far as it relates to Police), and from the Evidence Act I of 1872. In this examination the use of books will not be allowed.

2. Police Officers transferred to the Executive Service, or who desire such transfer, will be required to satisfy the same tests as those prescribed above for officers of the Subordinate Executive Service, subject to the exception noted below.

3. When such an officer has already passed by either standard in a language, the pass will be accepted as sufficient to that degree.

4. Any officer so transferred, who has passed in Law by the Lower Standard (as hitherto required for the Police), will be required to pass for the Lower Standard in the general papers of local laws, &c. He will be exempted from examination in the Criminal Codes prescribed for the Lower Standard if he so desire; but if he elects to pass, such pass will be taken into account in his favour.

5. Such officers who have passed by the Higher Police Standard in Law will still be required to pass in both law papers prescribed in paragraph 16 above, the term "law" including Revenue and General law.

6. Officers of the Opium Department will be examined, after admission to the department, in the subjects mentioned in Government orders No. 1157G of 28th October 1872.

APPENDIX IV.

Revised Rules for the examination of Civil Officers in the Lower Provinces of Bengal in the Vernaculars.

Officers to whom the rules apply.

THE following rules for the examination of civil officers in the Lowe Provinces of Bengal apply to all European officers of the classes specified in them, and to such others as the local Government may from time to time direct. They do not affect the rules for the encouragement of the study of the languages of frontier tribes, a copy of which is given in Appendix V.

2. Three grades of examination are recognized:—

(I)—The Higher Standard of examination for civil officers, held under the direction and control of the Central Examination Committee.

(II)—The Higher Standard of examination prescribed for military officers by G. G. O. No. 734, dated 9th September 1864, and G. G. O. No. 294, dated 24th March 1866; and the Lower Standard of examination for civil officers held under the direction and control of the Central Examination Committee.

(III)—The Lower Standard of examination prescribed for military officers in Hindustani by the G. G. O. above quoted.

Officers of the Survey, Forest, Education, and Public Works Departments.

3. Officers of the Public Works, Education, Survey, and Forest Departments are examined under special rules. In their case either of the standards specified in grade II will be accepted as sufficient, should they exceptionally have to be examined along with the officers attached to the general administration.

Officers required to pass in one language only.
1. Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors.
2. Salaried Sub-Registrars.
3. Canal Superintendents.

4. The officers named in the margin are required to pass the examination specified in grade I above in the vernacular of the district in which they may be serving. Assistants in the Opium Department, who have not passed the Native Civil Service Examination in Hindustani, are required to pass in that language only by the Lower Standard of departmental examination specified in grade II above.

5. Deputy Collectors who, under the preceding rule, have passed in one language only, will not ordinarily be transferred to a district with a different vernacular. If they are so transferred, and if otherwise qualified, they will be considered as eligible for promotion without passing in the vernacular of the districts to which they are transferred for a period of 12 months following their transfer. After the expiry of that period they will not be eligible for promotion unless they pass in the second language.

Special rules for medical officers.

6. Medical officers in civil employ, whether covenanted or uncovenanted, will be required to pass in the language of the district by one or other of the standards specified in grade II. Army medical officers, who have passed the Military Lower Standard of examination specified in grade III in Hindustani will not be subject to further examination in that language.

7. Medical officers in civil employ, who have passed in one language under the above rules, if posted to a district where another language is the vernacular, will be required also to pass in it, but only by a conversational test designed to prove their ability to converse with the people and be understood by them.

Officers required to pass in two languages.
1. Covenanted Civilians.
2. Assistant Commissioners.
3. Assistant Superintendents of Police.

8. The officers named in the margin are required to pass by the standard specified in grade I above in two languages, which may be Bengali and Hindustani, or Oorya and Hindustani.

Exemption in the case of military officers.

9. Military officers who have passed in Hindustani by the Military Higher Standard of examination specified in grade II are not liable to further examination in that language.

Order in which the languages must be taken up.

10. Officers generally are required, in the first instance, to pass in the language of the district in which they are serving by the Lower Standard specified in grade II above, before attempting a second language, in which passing by the Higher Standard only will be required. Covenanted civilians are, however, allowed to pass by either standard, and in either language in any order.

Officers exempt from the Lower Standard of Examination.

11. Uncovenanted officers who have passed in any vernacular at the Native Civil Service Examination are not required to pass in it again by the Lower Standard of departmental examinations, but may go up for the Higher Standard in cases where they become liable to this examination.

12. An officer liable to pass in two languages, when he has passed in the laguage of the district by the Lower Standard as required in Rule 10 above, may present himself for examination by the Higher Standard in that language, and in the second language, which will be Hindustani in the case of those who first qualify in Bengali or Oorya, and in the case of those who first pass in Hindustani, Bengali, or, if they be posted in Orissa, Oorya.

Cases in which a third language is compulsory.

13. Covenanted civilians who, on the 4th May 1874, were of less than 12 years' standing, and have passed in Hindustani and Bengali, will, on transfer to Orissa, as a condtition of promotion to the substantive grade of Magistrate, be required to pass in Oorya as a third language. Similarly, those who have passed in Hindustani and Oorya only, will, on transfer to Bengal, be required to pass in Bengali as a third language. On passing in a third language under this rule, covenanted civilians become entitled to a reward of Rs. 500.

Cases in which a third language is optional.

14. Police officers and uncovenanted Deputy Collectors are not required to pass in a third language under the preceding rule; but if they elect to do so, they will be eligible for a reward of Rs. 180.

15. The examination specified in grade I above and the Lower Standard of examination specified in grade II above will be held under the rules for the conduct of the departmental examination of civil officers, and under the direction and control of the Central Examination Committee in Calcutta.

16. The Military Higher and Lower Standards of examination specified in grades II and III above will be conducted in the case of military officers by the Board of Examiners in Calcutta under the rules applicable to these examinations generally. In the case of uncovenanted medical officers, and optionally in the case of covenanted medical officers, these examinations will be held under the direction and control of the Central Examination Committee, and along with the departmental examinations.

The following are the tests prescribed for the several grades of examinations :—

Grade I.—The Higher Standard of Departmental Examination.

A.—Reading current handwriting in the vernacular.

Two documents of the more difficult description of office papers selected and lithographed by the Central Examination Committee shall be transliterated into the Roman character.

B.—A written translation from the vernacular into English.

The same documents shall also be translated into English correctly.

C.—A written translation from English into the vernacular.

An English judgment or other official document of a somewhat difficult nature, selected by the Central Examination Committee, shall be translated into the vernacular without assistance, and in a generally correct manner.

D.—Dictation from English into the vernacular.

An English report or other official paper of some difficulty shall be translated into the vernacular and dictated off-hand fluently and intelligibly, and the translation written down by a clerk exactly as dictated.

E.—Conversation in the vernacular

The examinee shall be tested in conversation with several natives in such a manner as to satisfy the local Committee of his power of making himself understood by them, and of explaining himself with clearness and sufficient propriety in the vernacular in an argument or topic of some difficulty, such as may occur in official business.

The maximum and the pass marks assigned to each branch of the examination, and the time allowed for the papers, are subjoined :—

Subjects of examination.	Maximum marks.	Passing marks.	Time.
Transliteration ... } One paper ...	20	10	One and a half hours.
Translation from vernacular ... ... } One paper ...	20	10
Translation from English	20	10	Two hours.
Dictation from English	20	10	Half an hour.
Conversation	20	10	Ten minutes.

Grade II (a).—The Lower Standard of Departmental Examination.

For this examination the tests shall be the same as the above, but the papers shall be less difficult. The proportion of marks to be obtained in order to pass, and the time allowed for the papers, shall be the same as for the Higher Standard above described.

Grade II (b).—The Military Higher Standard of Examination.

The Military Higher Standard examination is intended to ascertain the ability of candidates—1st, to read and construe passages in books of ordinary difficulty in Urdu and Hindi ; 2nd, to make accurate and idiomatic written translations from English and Hindustani in both the Persian and Deva Nagri characters ; 3rd, to read and translate petitions, native letters, &c., in Urdu and Hindi ; 4th, to converse with educated or uneducated natives of India in Hindustani.

The following are the tests prescribed :—

First.—Reading fluently, and construing with readiness and accuracy, not less than an ordinary octavo page of the undermentioned works :—

(1) The Bágh-o-Bahár.
(2) Selections from the prose of the Prém Ságar.

Second.—Translating accurately, and with correctness of idiom and grammar, not less than half an ordinary octavo page of plain English into language similar to that of the Bágh-o-Bahár, and an equal amount into language similar to that of the Prém Ságar. The translation must be reduced to writing, in the former case in the Persian character; in the latter in the Deva Nagri character.

Third.—Reading fairly, and translating readily and correctly, Hindustani manuscripts written in both the Persian and Deva Nagri characters. These manuscripts may be selected from the proceedings of a case in court, from reports or petitions addressed to civil or military authorities, from letters passing between natives of India in the ordinary course of business, or from private correspondence. They should not be written with the clearness of a printed book, nor yet in a very cramped or crabbed hand, but in such a manner as fairly and honestly to represent the written characters as practically employed in the presidency or province in which the examination is held.

Fourth.—Conversing in Hindustani with the examiners or with natives of India with fluency, and with such correctness of pronunciation, grammar, and idiom, as to be at once intelligible.

In other languages the tests imposed are similar, but the books are different. Those used are—

In Bengali ... (1) Nobonari. (2) Rajdut.

In Oorya ... (1) Hitopadisa. (2) Batris Singhasun.

Grade III (a).—Military Lower Standard of Examination.

At this examination shall be tested the ability of candidates to read and translate passages from easy Hindustani books written in the Persian and Deva Nagri characters; and to speak on, and interpret, common or professional subjects in Hindustani so as to understand, and to be understood by, any ordinary uneducated native of India.

They are required, first, to read fairly, and construe with accuracy, not less than half an octavo page of the undermentioned works:—

(1) "Hindustani selections"* in the Persian character.

(2) "Hindustani selections"* in the Deva Nagri character.

Second, to converse in Hindustani with the examiners, or with natives of India, on subjects likely to occur in the performance of regimental or professional duty, in the transactions of ordinary business, or in the course of every-day life

"If this test be applied through the medium of a native of India, he should speak the plain Hindustani of the presidency or province in which the examination is held, free from peculiarities of idiom and dialect, and not a patois, and though, as regards the performance of professional duties, it must to a certain extent be technical in its nature; if, in other respects, the candidate prove his ability to comprehend readily all that is said to him, and to make himself fairly intelligible, more should not be required."

The colloquial examination of each candidate will be carefully recorded in writing by the Committee of Examiners, and a copy of this record will be forwarded with the Committee's report to the Adjutant-General of the Army. It is in this portion of the examination that discretion and judgment on the part of the examiners is most required; and in conducting it, Committees should strictly follow the instruction laid down in the extract from the orders of the 9th September 1864 above quoted. Questions intended simply to puzzle a candidate should be particularly avoided. The questions need not exceed 15, but should not be less than 10 in number.

APPENDIX V.

Rules for the encouragement of the study of the languages of Frontier Tribes mentioned in paragraph 1 of Appendix IV.

THE following are the rules sanctioned for granting rewards to civil officers in Bengal for proficiency in the languages of frontier tribes.

2. A reward of Rs. 1,000 (one thousand) will be granted to any Covenanted Civilian, Deputy or Assistant Commissioner, Deputy Collector, District or Assistant Superintendent of Police, Civil Surgeon,

* Until these selections have been prepared, candidates will be examined in the first-half of the Bágh-o-Bahár and the first half of the Bytal Pachcesee.

or Civil Medical Officer, whether European or native, who shall pass by the prescribed standard an examination in any one language in any of the groups of languages noted in the margin, provided that the language is spoken within the district where the officer is at the time employed, or by tribes conterminous to it with whom he has official relations. A second reward will in no case be given to an officer for proficiency in a second language of the same group. The grant of a reward is in every case subject to the condition that it will not be allowed to a native candidate for passing an examination in any language with which, from his birth or education, he is naturally familiar, or which is closely allied to his vernacular language.

Group I.—Kol or Munda, Sonthali.
" II.—Oraon, Rajmohal Paharia.
" III.—Khond of Orissa.
" IV.—Thibetian, Lepcha, Bhootia.
" V.—Kuki or Lushai.
" VI.—Garo.

3. The examination shall be conducted by a local Committee to be specially appointed by Government on each occasion.

4. The tests which a candidate for the above reward must undergo are as follow:—

(a.) He must be able to converse freely with the people of the tribe in whose vernacular he may wish to qualify to understand, and to make himself understood by them.

(b.) He must write down in the English, or the Bengali or Hindi character, sentences spoken in the tribal language by one of the tribe, or a conversation held between two of them, and must explain it correctly in English.

(c.) He must without assistance translate from English or his mother-tongue into the tribal language (writing it in either the English, or Bengali, or Hindi character) sentences not of a more difficult nature than those described in clause (b). The translation must be substantially correct and intelligible when read to a native in whose language it might be written.

5. These rules will not affect those prescribing the rewards to which Junior Civilians who succeed in passing High Proficiency and Honours examinations in certain specified languages will be entitled.

APPENDIX VI.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

No. 3101, the 5th October 1864.

THE Governor-General in Council having had under consideration the rules for the examination of military officers seeking admission to the Staff Corps in the Civil and Political Departments, which were published in the notification of Government, No. 242, dated 25th May last, has determined, subject to the sanction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, on the substitution of the following rules:—

In continuation of the general regulations for the admission of officers to the Staff Corps, notified by the Military Department in G. O. No. 531 of 1864, dated the 27th June, the following rules relating to the future employment of military officers in the Civil and Political Departments of the Government are published for general information:—

I.—A candidate for appointment to the Civil or Political Department, with the view of qualifying for the Staff Corps, must furnish the certificates mentioned in paragraph 5 of G. O. No. 531, of which the forms were given in Appendix A of the same general order, and are now republished at the end of the present notification.

II.—He must have been previously attached, for a period of not less than one year, to a native regiment;* but such period may form part of the three years' duty with a regiment required by the general regulations for admission to the Staff Corps. He will be required to produce a certificate from his superior officer, testifying to his efficiency and good conduct, and especially to the conciliatory demeanour towards the native soldiery and other people of the country with whom he has been brought in contact..

* Any officer who has been employed for a year in one of the departments named on the margin will be exempted from the condition prescribed by Rule II, of one year's service with a native regiment, provided, however, that he shall produce, from the officer under whom he may have served in any such department, a certificate (to be countersigned by the head of the department) to the same effect as that required from a superior officer in case of service with a native regiment.

Survey. | Commissariat.
Public Works. | Stud.
Police.

III.—The period of one year—reckoned as explained in the following rule, from the date of the first half-yearly examination held subsequent to appointment—is fixed as the limit within which an officer, admitted on probation to employment in the Civil or Political Department, will be required to qualify himself to undergo the examinations hereinafter mentioned, in passing which he will have a claim to have his services retained; and he will then, under the orders of the Military Department, be appointed to the Staff Corps.

IV.—Examinations will be held half-yearly in October and April of each year. A candidate may appear at the first examination held after the expiry of the first six months of his probation, and if he fail to pass, must again appear at the next examination six months later. A candidate failing to pass at the first examination, held after the expiration of his year of probation, will be removed from employment in the Civil or Political Department, and consequently will not be appointed to the Staff Corps.

V.—Subject to such general directions as shall from time to time be given by the Government of India, the examinations will be conducted by a Committee acting under the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor, or Chief Commissioner, or Political Agent or Resident, as the case may be.

VI.—The examination will embrace, in the case of officers employed in general civil duties, the subjects of Indian History, Political Economy, and Jurisprudence. The works on the two last-named subjects in which candidates will be examined are Mills' Political Economy, Austin's Principles of Jurisprudence, Volume I, and Main's Ancient Law. Notice of any change in the books for examinaion will be given at least one year before it takes effect.

VII.—Every officer in civil employment will, in addition to the above examination, and notwithstanding his appointment to the Staff Corps, be required to undergo the local and departmental examinations, prescribed for covenanted civil servants in the province in which he is serving.

VIII.—The examination in the case of officers employed in the Political Department will embrace the subjects above-mentioned, and the candidate will in addition be examined in Wheaton's Work on the Principles of International Law. He will also be examined in the collection of Indian Treaties and Engagements, now being published under the direction of the Foreign Office.

IX.—No officer will be admitted on probation to civil or political employment who has not passed the examination in Hindustani required by the general regulations for the admission of officers to the Staff Corps.

X.—Cantonment Magistrates will be classed with officers in civil employment. Separate rules will be promulgated hereafter as regards Police Officers; but Police Officers, if transferred to civil employment, will be required to pass the examination prescribed for officers in civil employment.

XI.—As a general rule, military officers will be appointed to the Political Department from among those who are already in civil employment; and every officer so transferred will be required to pass, within one year from the date of his transfer, the additional examination in International Law and Indian Treaties prescribed for the Political Department, failing which he will forfeit his appointment.

XII.—These rules are intended to be prospective in their effect. They will not apply to any officers now holding permanent appointments in civil or political employment. Such officers will be entitled to join the Staff Corps in virtue of their appointments. Officers, however, who do not hold permanent appointments will be subject to these rules. But the case of any officer who has been formerly in civil or political employment, and who, having quitted such employment, may hereafter be reappointed to it, will be specially dealt with as the circumstances of the case may require.

APPENDIX A.

Certificate of Commanding Officer.

CERTIFIED that Lieutenant of the Regiment , a candidate for the Staff Corps, completed three years' duty with a regiment on the , two years of which (or the whole period of which, as the case may be) were spent in India.

Lieutenant has passed the examination in the Native languages which qualifies for Staff employment; and has attained such a knowledge of his drill duty as an officer of infantry (or cavalry) in all its branches as to qualify him for the command of a company (or troop) in all situations. He also possesses a fair knowledge of the Articles of War and the Queen's Regulations, as well as of the Military Regulations of the (Bengal, Madras, or Bombay) Presidency, besides having gained some general acquaintance with the organization and nature of the duties of all branches of the Army serving in (Bengal, Madras, or Bombay).

I further certify that during the period Lieutenant has served with this regiment he has been attentive to his duty, and that his conduct has been in all repects unexceptionable.

Station and date. Comdg. Regiment.

Surgeon's Certificate.

I certify that, to the best of my belief, Lieutenant is in good bodily health, and apparently well capable of undergoing the vicissitudes of service in India.

NOTIFICATION.

The 27th March 1883.—The following rules regarding salt, on which duty has not been paid, conveyed under bond from Chittagong to Naraingunge, having been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, are published for general information.

A. P. MACDONNELL,
Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

Rules for the removal of non-duty-paid salt under bond to Naraingunge from boardship or from bond at Chittagong.

AN application in writing, specifying the name, tonnage, and master's name of the vessel intended to convey salt under bond for Naraingunge, must be made to the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, 24 hours previous to the time at which it is intended to commence loading.

2. Non-duty-paid salt may be conveyed under bond from Chittagong to Naraingunge by such vessels only as are approved by the Collector of Customs, Chittagong. Each vessel must carry a special pass in the annexed form under the signature of the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, covering the consignment of salt shipped by it.

3. The salt when placed on board such vessels must be stamped all over and conveyed under sealed hatches. Both the seals on the hatches and the stamps on the salt as reported on clearance by the Collector of Customs at Chittagong shall be separately examined and reported on by the salt darogah to the Collector of Customs, Naraingunge, on receipt of whose orders on the darogah's reports the seals may be broken and the salt weighed.

4. Salt on which duty has not been paid can only be removed from Chittagong under a bond to be executed by the bonder prior to the departure of the vessel or vessels conveying such salt. The bond shall be in the form appended to these rules, and shall state that the salt will arrive at Naraingunge within twenty-one days from the granting of the port clearance during the north-east monsoon (i. e., from the 16th September to the 30th April) or within fifteen days from the date of the granting of port clearance during the south-west monsoon, (i. e., from the 1st May to the 15th September). Port clearance shall not be granted till after the due execution of the bond and after the quantities entered in the tally books have been found to agree with those entered in the manifest (or cargo books) of such vessel or vessels. Single bonds may be accepted for any quantity of salt not exceeding 20,000 maunds, and shall cover all the vessels being loaded with the quantity of salt for which the bond in each case is given; and such vessels must, in each case, be named in the bond. The number and date of the bond is to be noted in the pass which accompanies each vessel, and in the copies of the pass retained by the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, and forwarded to the Collector of Customs, Naraingunge, respectively.

5. The vessel on arrival at Naraingunge shall be anchored as close as possible to the ghât leading to the warehouse in which the salt is to be stored, or at the nearest moorings to such ghât.

6. The weighment of the salt shall be made in the presence of the salt darogah, and a Customs peon shall invariably remain with the salt until the weighment shall have been completed. Weighment of the salt shall be made, as a general rule, on board the importing vessel. It will, however, be competent to the Board, on sufficient cause being shown, to permit the salt of any bonder to be weighed after removal to the shore, under such suitable precautions, to be taken at the sole expense of the bonder, as may be prescribed by the Collector of Customs, Naraingunge, and approved by the Board.

7. The salt shall be stored in a licensed warehouse immediately the weighment shall have been made. The door of the warehouse shall have two locks; the key of one lock (which must be a Chubb's lock) shall remain with the darogah, and the key of the other with the bonder's agent.

8. The bonder will be required to defray the cost of the preventive officers and all charges attendant on the weighing of the salt, both at Chittagong and Naraingunge, such weighments being conducted as laid down in the Board's rules for weighing salt intended for bond at Chittagong.

9. Both Customs officers and the exporter's agent will be required to certify at the end of each day's weighments the correctness of the tally book for that day's work.

10. The working hours with regard to delivery and weighment of salt shall be from 6 A.M. to 3 P.M., or such others hours as may be fixed from time to time by the Collector of Customs with the approval of the Commissioner.

11. If from any cause the weighments cannot be completed in one day, extra peons as may be considered necessary by the Collector of Customs shall be appointed to guard the salt, the cost being borne by the bonder.

12. When the discharge of salt from shipboard at Chittagong for conveyance under bond to Naraingunge is interrupted, or not completed, such quantity as has been actually delivered at the time of interruption shall be covered by a Customs boat-note. The salt so delivered must also be completely stamped over, and the hatches and all access to the hold must be sealed by Customs seals, to be examined by the night Customs Inspector, who must record his report of each such inspection.

13. The owner of the salt shall be required to pay full duty on any difference between the quantity of salt weighed over the ship's side or out of bond at Chittagong and the quantity weighed out of the brig or steamer at Naraingunge, less an allowance of one per cent. for wastage during the passage, if such wastage actually occurs.

14. On arrival at Naraingunge the salt shall be immediately bonded under proper supervision, the duty on the warehousing bill-of-entry being calculated on the whole quantity delivered on weighment from the vessel or vessels covered by the bond. As salt is cleared from bond, the quantity as entered in the clearance bill-of-entry will be noted on the warehousing bill-of-entry and duty paid accordingly. When the last quantity of salt under each bond is cleared, the bonder shall make good the deficiency, if any, between the amount of duty originally entered in the warehousing bill-of-entry and the total amounts of duty paid, less an allowance, on account of wastage, if such wastage has actually occurred, which shall not exceed 2½ per cent. on the whole quantity warehoused.

15. In addition to the above rules, the rules contained in sections VIII to X of the Salt Manual shall apply generally to all salt conveyed under bond from Chittagong and warehoused at Naraingunge.

16. It is to be understood also that before permission can be given to transport salt to Naraingunge under bond, the bonder will be required to construct a suitable warehouse at Naraingunge, to be approved and licensed by the Collector, together with suitable accommodation for the warehouse establishment, also to be approved by the Collector. He will also be required to enter into an engagement with the Collector to defray the cost to Government of the establishment noted in the margin, which will be appointed by the Collector for the guard and supervision of the warehouse.

	Rs.
1 Darogah on	50
2 Peons, at Rs. 6 each	12
Cost per mensem ...	62

The rules contained in paragraphs 5, 11, and 13 of section II of the Salt Manual shall apply generally to the appointment and payment of this establishment, and to the construction and repair of the warehouse and establishment accommodation.

Municipality of Madras.

DEBENTURE LOAN.

THE Municipal Commissioners for the City of Madras are prepared, with the sanction of the Governor of Madras in Council, conveyed in order No. 363, dated 15th February 1883, under section 208 of the City of Madras Municipal Act of 1878, to receive tenders for a Debenture Loan of (Rs. 3,00,000) three lakhs of rupees on the security of the rates and taxes levied under the said Act. The said loan will be expended in carrying out the drainage project of Black Town.

2. Debentures will be issued for the said amount bearing interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly on the 15th May and the 15th November of each year, and having a currency of thirty years.

3. The form of Debenture Bonds will be that given below. Each Debenture will be issued for the sum of Rs. 500 or some multiple of Rs. 500.

4. Tenders for the whole or any part of the above-named sum of (Rs. 3,00,000) three lakhs of rupees will be received by the President of the Municipal Commission up to noon on the 16th April.

5. Each tender should be in the form hereto annexed and enclosed in a sealed cover, superscribed "Tender for Municipal Loan of 1883," and sent to the Municipal Office addressed to "The President, Municipal Commission, Madras."

6. The tenders will be opened by the President at the Municipal Office on the 16th April 1883 at noon, a minimum rate, below which no tenders will be accepted, having first been fixed by the President.

7. Parties tendering must pay direct to the President, or into the Bank of Madras to the credit of the Municipal Fund, a sum equal to 2 per cent. of the amount tendered. If the deposit be paid into the Bank of Madras, the Bank's receipt must be forwarded with the tender.

8. If the tender be accepted, the deposit will be taken in part payment, but it will be forfeited, if, after the acceptance of the tender, the allotment is not fully paid up on or before the 15th May 1883.

9. Debentures will be issued as soon as possible after receipt of the amount of allotment.

10. The deposit on tenders which may not be accepted will returned on application.

11. In the case of two or more tenders at the same rate (not being below the minimum), a pro rata allotment will, if necessary, be made.

12. The rate stated in a tender must not contain any fraction of an anna; if a rate containing a fraction of an anna is inserted in any tender, such fraction will be struck out, and the tender treated as if the rate did not contain such fraction of an anna.

13. In order to avoid mistakes a separate tender must be made at each rate tendered, and a separate deposit must accompany each tender

14. The annual income from the rates and taxes which will form the security for the Loan amounts to Rs. 6,80,000. Loans which have already been raised on the same security are as follows:—

	Annually. Rs.
Water Works Loan of 1869, Rs. 14,30,000, interest at 4 per cent., payable to Government.	57,200	Repayable in 30 years by a Sinking Fund at 2 per cent.
Market Loan of 1879, Rs. 20,000, interest at 6 per cent., payable to Debenture-holders.	1,200	Do. do.
Water Works Loan of 1882, Rs. 2,00,000, interest at 5 per cent., payable to Debenture-holders.	10,000	Do. do.
Drainage Loan of 1882, Rs. 1,50,000, interest at 5 per cent., payable to Debenture-holders.	7,500	Do. do.
	75,900

A. T. ARUNDEL, President.

Municipal Office, Madras, 12th March 1883.

FORM OF TENDER.

I hereby tender for Rs._____ of the loan advertised in the notification of the President of the Madras Municipality, dated 12th March and published in the Fort St. George Gazette, dated 13th March, and agree to pay the same subject to the conditions notified, at the rate of Rs. for every Rs. 100 allotted to me.

I enclose [a cheque, currency notes, or a deposit receipt of the Bank of Madras for] Rs. , being 2 per cent. on the amount of my tender, and engage, if my offer be accepted, to pay to the account of the Municipal Fund in the Bank of Madras the sum allotted to me on or before the 15th May 1883.

The Indian Law Reports.

Published under Authority of the Governor-General in Council.

THE Reports appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Parts of each series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set.

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

PART IV.

Bill of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Preliminary Report of the Select Committee together with the Bill as amended by them is by order of the President, hereby published for general information :—

WE, the members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to Municipalities in Bengal was referred, have the honour to present this preliminary report. We have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and we have modified the original draft of the Bill in many important particulars. The opinions, however, which have reached us are comparatively few, and several of these are directed more to matters of detail than to the fundamental principles of the measure. We consider, therefore, that there has been at present no sufficient expression of public criticism on the Bill to authorize us in submitting any final proposals. We are of opinion that the Bill, as now provisionally amended, should be republished, and we desire to ask that leave may be granted us to sit again and to present a further report when opinions on this revised measure have been received.

Note by G. C. Kilby, Esq., Deputy Legal Remembrancer, dated 21st December 1882.
From the Chairman of the Darjeeling Municipality, dated 29th December 1882.
From W. Birkmyre, Esq., dated 13th January 1883, with a memorial from Messrs. Mackinnon, Mackenzie and Company, and others.
Demi-official letter from the Magistrate of Howrah, dated 14th January 1883.
From S. Tremearne, Esq., dated 15th January 1883.
From the Deputy Commissioner, Darjeeling, dated 17th January 1883.
From the Secretary to the Calcutta Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, dated 19th January 1883.
From the Honorary Secretary, Zoological Gardens, dated 22nd January 1883.
From the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department, No. 195, dated 22nd January 1883.
From E. V. Westmacott, Esq., dated 24th January 1883.
Demi-official letter from the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department, dated 29th January 1883, forwarding papers regarding the levy of fees on processions in municipalities.
From the Honorary Secretary, Behar Landholders' Association, dated 11th February 1883.
From the Chairman, South Suburban Municipality, dated 20th February 1883.
Demi-official letter from the Magistrate of Howrah, dated 20th February 1883.
Demi-official letter from the Magistrate, 24-Pergunnahs, with Note by the Vice-Chairman, Suburban Municipality, dated 21st February 1883.

The most important sections of the Bill are those which relate to the constitution of municipalities, and in these we have made material changes. The Bill, as originally drafted, left the Government an entire discretion to determine in what municipalities the elective system should be introduced, and what municipalities should have the power of electing their own Chairmen. The wording of the Bill would even have left it in the power of Government to introduce the elective system into a municipality, and, subsequently, to withdraw it, and to direct the adoption of the system of nomination.

Such provisions appear to us to be incompatible with the declared intention of Government, that the elective system shall be introduced into all considerable municipalities. We therefore propose that certain municipalities shall be specified in a schedule appended to the Bill, and that, in these exceptional cases, the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Local Government; but that, in all other cases, the system of election shall be followed. It will be in the discretion of Government at any time to remove any municipality from the schedule, but not to enter any fresh names in it. When any new municipality is created, the order constituting it will declare whether it shall be entered in the schedule or not. We have adopted a similar plan with regard to the power of municipalities to elect their own Chairmen.

Section 3 of the Bill is open to an objection somewhat similar to the above. It provides that "unless and until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, every place which, under the provisions of Bengal Act V of 1876 has been constituted a municipality, shall, from the time when this Act shall come into force, be deemed to be constituted a municipality under the provisions of this Act." This would practically leave it in the power of the Government to disfranchise any municipality at its pleasure. We do not imagine that the Government intends or desires to reserve to itself any such power. On the other hand, we think there are objections to simply enacting that every municipality under the present law shall, ipso facto, become a municipality under the Bill. Cases have been suggested to us of some small and backward municipalities of the second class which it would be more suitable to leave under the authorities contemplated by the Local Self-Government Act than to bring under the provisions of this Bill. We think that, before the new Act comes into force, the Local Government should publish a list of the municipalities to which it shall apply; and that such municipalities as are not of sufficient importance to be entered in the list should merge in the jurisdiction of the Union Committees within whose unions they are locally situated.

In section 9 we have, for reasons similar to those which have induced us to modify section 3, struck out the words which authorised the Government, of its own motion, to withdraw any town or village from the operation of the Act. Such a power should not, we think, be exercised except on the recommendation of the Municipal Commissioners themselves.

Section 15, as it stands at present, leaves it to the Local Government to lay down rules for elections, and to determine the qualifications of voters and candidates. It has been urged in some quarters that these qualifications ought to be specified by law, as in the Calcutta Municipal Act. We have considered this point, and have come to the conclusion that the circumstances of various municipalities differ so widely as to make it impossible to lay down one general standard for all. At present in Burdwan every rate-payer has a vote, and the elective system works successfully. In Serampore there is a property qualification, and the system works badly. But the principle of giving a vote to every rate-payer would be quite unworkable in Patna, where there are nearly 30,000 rate-payers. We are of opinion that the law should be so worded as to leave a certain degree of freedom in the matter of making rules, but that this freedom should be exercised within such limits as to ensure that no substantial rate-payer shall be excluded from the municipal franchise. We have accordingly provided that separate rules may be made for each municipality, but that, if a property qualification is imposed in any case, it shall not be higher than is implied in the payment of rates to the amount of two annas a month. We have also declared that certain educated members of a rate-payer's family, if resident in the municipality, shall be qualified to exercise the franchise, though they may not themselves be rate-payers We think that every person entitled to vote at a municipal election should also be qualified to offer himself as a candidate.

The next important sections are those which relate to the election of a Chairman or Vice-Chairman. The Chairman, as we have already explained, will be chosen by election in all municipalities except those specified in a schedule appended to the Bill, and in these the Chairman will be appointed by Government. We are of opinion that the election of a Chairman should be subject to the confirmation of the Local Government; but we have also considered whether the choice of the electors should be further restricted or circumscribed in any way. It has been suggested that the Commissioners should elect the Chairman out of their own number, and also that the Magistrate or Sub-divisional Officer should be declared disqualified for election as Chairman. We are not prepared to adopt either of these recommendations. The Magistrate or Sub-divisional Officer will not ordinarily be a Municipal Commissioner, and if the Commissioners are precluded from electing him as Chairman, they will perhaps be deprived of the services of the man best qualified for the duty, and, possibly, in some cases, of the only man competent to undertake it. It has been objected that the Magistrate will abuse his official influence to secure his own election; but we are satisfied that over a great part of the country this danger is altogether imaginary, and if in some districts it is real we should prefer to leave it to be dealt with by executive order of the Government rather than by placing the Magistrate everywhere under a legal disability for election. We have accordingly left the election of a Chairman entirely free, subject only to the approval of the Local Government, and the Commissioners will be at liberty to choose either one of their own number, or an outsider. The election of a Vice-Chairman need not, we think, require the confirmation of Government; but we consider that the Vice-Chairman should be elected by the Commissioners from among their own body.

Besides some verbal alterations, we have made the following further changes in this part of the Bill. We have provided that the number of Commissioners shall not be less than nine or more than thirty, and that the Chairman or Vice-Chairman may be removed by a resolution of the Commissioners at a meeting, such resolution being passed by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the whole body of Commissioners. In several places in this Part, and indeed in many sections throughout the whole Bill, we have inserted the words "Central Board" where the words "Local Government" were used in the original draft. It has been our object to bring the Bill, in this respect, into conformity, as far as possible, with the Local Self-Government Bill. We desire to add that we have considered the questions whether female rate-payers should be permitted to vote, and whether the Commissioners should be allowed fees for their attendance at meetings, and we are of opinion that both these questions should be answered in the negative.

In Part III we have included among the purposes to which the Municipal Fund may be applied the maintenance of a fire-brigade. We understand that the Patna Municipality desire to apply their municipal fund to this object, and we think they should be authorized to do so. We have considered whether the annual estimates of municipal income and expenditure should merely be forwarded to the Central Board for information or should be subject to revision by that body. We are of opinion that the Central Board should have power to revise the estimates, but not so as to increase the total proposed expenditure. We have provided that a proportion of the salaries of members of the Central Board, as well as of the establishment employed under the Board, may be charged against the Municipal Fund.

Under Part IV we have considered whether the amount assessed when a rate is levied on the annual value of holdings should be subject to any maximum in the manner provided when a tax is levied upon persons. We have made some enquiries on this point, and have ascertained that while any such limitation would be operative in only a very few municipalities, it would in those municipalities have a very injurious effect. At the same time our attention has been called to cases in which the annual value of holdings has been determined in what seems a very arbitrary manner, and we are of opinion that some rule should be laid down for the guidance of municipal authorities in making valuations. We have therefore inserted words to provide, 1st, that the value of machinery shall not be included (a provision which also finds place in the Calcutta Municipal Act); 2ndly, that where the cost of erecting the buildings can be ascertained or estimated, the valuation shall not exceed 7½ per cent. on such cost, together with a reasonable amount on account of ground-rent. We have also considered whether persons dissatisfied with an assessment should be allowed to appeal to a civil court or to the Central Board. We see much practical difficulty in allowing any such appeal as of right, but it will, of course, be open to any one to memorialize the Central Board, and the Board, under their general power of control, will be able to redress any established grievance.

In section 120 we have struck out the exemption of animals under eleven hands in height. It has been represented to us that the effect of this exemption is that ponies under eleven hands are commonly employed in order to avoid taxation in drawing heavy carriages, and that much cruelty to animals is the result. We have considered whether the exemption should not be retained as regards ponies employed for children's use; but we think that if a man is able to keep a pony for his child he is also able to pay the tax for it.

Both Part V and Part VI of the Bill contain a number of sections relating to conservancy, sanitation, and the like, which it seems to us to be of somewhat doubtful expediency to retain in the law. Mr Kilby, in his note referred to at the head of this report, has suggested that the greater part of these sections should be struck out of the Bill, and should be reproduced in bye-laws suited to the circumstances of each municipality. We should on the whole be disposed to concur in this view; but we feel it difficult to deal with the question in the absence of an expression of opinion by the local municipal authorities. We have therefore provisionally retained the sections; and we desire to invite a definite expression of opinion upon the point whether any of these sections would be more conveniently inserted as bye-laws, than in the body of the Act.

In the sections relating to encroachments on roads, we have, on further consideration, restored the references to the Acts of 1864 and 1868, as they stood in the Municipal Act, V (B.C.) of 1876.

Under the head of "Sanitary measures with regard to blocks of huts," we have replaced, with some verbal modifications, three sections which were omitted in the first draft of the Bill. The powers given by these sections are exceptional, and we are not aware that they have ever actually been put in force; but we are inclined to think it desirable that they should be retained in the law.

In accordance with a suggestion made by the Army Sanitary Commission, we have introduced in Part VI a section enabling the municipality to build public stables for cattle.

On the question whether the Municipal Commissioners should be authorized to grant licenses for street processions and to levy fees for such licenses, there appears to be some difference of opin on. We understand that in more than one municipality such fees are actually levied at present, though it is at least doubtful whether they are sanctioned by the existing law. The Behar Landholders' Association recommend that the practice should be legalised. But it appears to us that this is a question rather of police than of municipal administration. Hitherto the duties of head of the municipal police and of Chairman of the Municipality have ordinarily been united in the same person; but municipalities have now been relieved of police charges, and the head of the police will not usually in future be the Municipal Chairman, or even a member of the municipality at all. We are therefore inclined to think that the regulation of processions, &c., should be left entirely to the police, as is done in Calcutta by Act IV (B. C.) of 1866. The payment of fees for such licenses is presumably required in view of the extra expense and trouble involved in keeping order in the streets on these occasions; and as this expense and trouble will not fall on the municipality, but on the police, we question whether such fees are a legitimate source of municipal income. We have accordingly struck out sections 282-83 of the former draft of the Bill. The question, however, is one upon which we should be glad to obtain a fuller expression of opinion from Magistrates and municipal authorities in the mofussil.

Parts VII and VIII of the Bill, which refer respectively to the provision of a water-supply and to lighting with gas, have been left substantially the same as in the first draft of the Bill. In the absence of any suggestions for the amendment of these sections, we have retained them as they originally stood; but we desire specially to commend this part of the Bill to the consideration of all municipalities in which these provisions are likely to be put in force.

In Part XII we have inserted sections to declare that in matters for which no other special provision is made by law, the Commissioners of all municipalities shall exercise their functions subject to the control and supervision of the Central Board; and that if any difference or dispute arises between the Central Board and the Commissioners, the Board may refer the matter to the Local Government, the decision of which shall be final.

Section 318 of Act V (B C.) of 1876 was omitted from the former draft of the Bill, not because there was any intention of abandoning this necessary power of control in the last resort, but because, until the Local Self-Government Bill had been framed, it was not easy to determine how the section ought to be worded. Sections have now been inserted in Part XII in substantial conformity with the provisions of sections 164-65 of the Local Self-Government Bill.

On the subject of bye-laws, the provisions of the existing Act, which were reproduced (with an inconsiderable alteration) in the Bill as originally drafted, have been found in practice to be inconvenient. The section first specifies certain matters in respect of which bye-laws may be made, and then gives power to make bye-laws generally for the purposes of the Act. This has led (as Mr. Kilby has pointed out in his Note) to some uncertainty as to whether this general power extends to cases which do not fall under any one of the specified classes; and different legal advisers of Government have held different views upon this point. We think that a general power to make bye-laws should be given, and that it is needless to particularize in the Bill, the subjects to which such bye-laws may apply. We are also of opinion that better provision should be made for the publication of proposed bye-laws within the municipality previous to their being submitted to the confirming authority for sanction. We have therefore re-drafted the sections in substantial accordance with the wording of the Local Self-Government Bill.

We have made various other changes in the wording of the Bill. Some of these are simply of a verbal character, and involve nothing more than an improved arrangement, or a condensation of language. But others are of more importance. Among these, we desire to call special attention to the modification we have introduced in the definition of a holding. The present definition (if indeed it deserves to be called a definition at all) has practically the effect of giving the Commissioners an arbitrary power to divide what is really a single holding into as many separate holdings as they think fit, and thus to evade the provision of the law which limits the amount of personal tax which can be imposed in respect of holdings. Cases have been brought to our notice in which this power has been improperly exercised; and we have accordingly defined a holding as land held under one title or agreement, and included within one boundary and occupied by one person or family. We are not altogether satisfied that it is necessary to define a holding at all: we think that if it were left undefined, no one would feel any doubt or hesitation as to what really constitutes a holding, and whether a particular plot of ground was a separate holding or not, or more than one holding; but if it is thought that a definition is required, we consider that it should be framed in some such words as we have now adopted.

We recommend that the Bill, as now revised by us, should be republished, and that opinions on it should be invited from Commissioners of Divisions and Chairmen of Municipalities. Till these opinions have been received and considered, we think that no further steps should be taken with the Bill. It does not appear to us that there is any serious objection to the delay which this will involve in passing the measure into law; as the present Bill and the Local Self-Government Bill are really complementary parts of the same system, and it would probably be convenient that they should come into operation together.

My signature to the report is subject to the following remarks:

This amendment of the existing law being undertaken at the instance of the Executive Government in order to enable it to carry out its avowed desire to develop Municipal Government, I see no good reason for this Council withdrawing from the Executive Government the discretionary power, and with it the responsibility of proceeding cautiously and gradually towards its object

I object to withhold from the Lieutenant-Governor the power of appointing a fit person to be Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners in cases in which he may consider such a course to be proper.

I object also to withdrawing from the Lieutenant-Governor the power of proceeding tentatively in the matter of allowing the inhabitants of municipalities to elect their own Commissioners.

The objections which I have expressed elsewhere as to the insufficiency of a control exercised by a distant Central Board do not apply with the same force to municipalities as to the Rural Boards.

March, 19*th* 1883.

A Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to Municipalities

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Municipalities within the territories subject to the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal: It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called the "Bengal Municipal Act, 1883;" and it shall come into force on such date as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct, not being more than three months after the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette, with the assent of the Governor-General.

Short title and commencement.

But any notification, order or rule, and any appointment to an office, may be made, or election held, under this Act at any time after it shall have received the assent of the Governor-General, but shall not take effect until the Act comes into force.

2. On the commencement of this Act the enactments specified in the sixth schedule shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof;

Enactments repealed.

But this repeal shall not revive any office, authority, or thing abolished by any such enactment, or affect the validity of anything done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability accrued, before the commencement of this Act.

And all rules and bye-laws prescribed; assessments, valuations, measurements, divisions, and appointments made; powers conferred, and notifications published under any such enactment; and all other rules (if any) now in force and relating to the matters hereinafter dealt with, shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) be deemed to have been respectively prescribed, made, conferred, and published hereunder.

And all references to any such enactment shall (so far as may be practicable) be deemed to be made to this Act.

And all proceedings now pending, which may have been commenced under any such enactment, shall be deemed to be commenced under this Act.

In respect of all the matters aforesaid the Commissioners under this Act shall be substituted for the Commissioners elected or appointed under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876.

3. Every place which has been constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, and has not been withdrawn from the operation of the said Act before this Act comes into force, shall, from the time when this Act shall come into force, be deemed to be constituted a Municipality under the provisions of this Act.

Existing Municipalities.

4. All property, moveable and immoveable, and all interest of any kind whatsoever, derived under any of the enactments specified in the sixth schedule, or otherwise, and vested in or held in trust for the late Commissioners under the said Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, shall become vested in the Commissioners and their successors; and all rights of whatsoever description used, enjoyed or possessed by the late Commissioners under any such enactment shall become vested in the Commissioners for the purposes of this Act.

All property of late Commissioners vested in Commissioners under this Act.

5. Notwithstanding anything contained in section three, this Act shall not take effect in any cantonment without the consent of the Governor-General in Council previously obtained, nor shall the Local Government extend this Act, or any part thereof, to any cantonment without such consent.

Act not to be extended to cantonments without consent of Governor-General.

PART I.

OF THE CREATION OF MUNICIPALITIES.

Existing Commissioners and existing rates and taxes temporarily continued.

7. In every place which, in accordance with the provisions of section three, becomes a Municipality under this Act, every person who has been appointed or elected to be a Commissioner for such place under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, and who is holding office as such Commissioner at the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to be a Commissioner duly appointed for such Municipality until such time as the election or appointment of Commissioners in respect of such Municipalities shall take effect under the provisions of this Act. And in every such place in which a rate on the annual value of holdings, or a tax upon persons, or a tax upon carriages and animals, or a fee upon the registration of carts, or tolls on roads, or on ferries, or a fee under Bengal Act VI of 1878, may have been levied by the Municipal Commissioners before the commencement of this Act, it shall be deemed that the said rate, tax, fee or tolls have been duly imposed under this Act, and such rate, tax, fee or tolls shall continue to be levied accordingly until the Commissioners at a meeting, with the sanction of the Central Board, shall otherwise direct.

Local Government may extend Act.

8. Except as is hereinafter otherwise expressly provided, this Act may be extended by the Local Government by notification published in the Calcutta Gazette, and in the manner prescribed by section three hundred and forty-seven, to any town or village not being within the limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court at Fort William in Bengal, from such date as may be specified in such notification; and save as is hereinafter otherwise provided, this Act shall take effect in such town or village on the date so specified, and the said town or village, within the limits mentioned in such notification, shall be deemed to be created a Municipality for the purposes of this Act:

Provided that at least six weeks before publishing any notification as aforesaid, the Local Government shall cause to be published in the town or village concerned a notice of its intention to declare the said town or village to be a Municipality, unless good reason to the contrary be shewn within one month.

Any objections which may be made to the proposed measure shall be duly considered by the Local Government before it causes to be issued the notification declaring the town or village to be a Municipality under this Act.

Every notification declaring a town or village to be a Municipality shall specify whether the name of such Municipality shall or shall not be inserted in the first or second schedule of this Act, and shall further specify, subject to the provisions of section thirteen, the number of the Commissioners of such Municipality.

Variation of limits and power to withdraw from operation of Act.

9. The Local Government may, on the recommendation of the Commissioners at a meeting, by a like notification, at any time vary the limits of any Municipality or sub-divide any Municipality into two or more Municipalities, or withdraw any town or village from the operation of this Act.

Conditions on which Municipality may be created.

10. This Act shall not be extended to any town or village, unless the Local Government shall have been satisfied that three-fourths of the adult male population of such town or village are chiefly employed in pursuits other than agricultural; and that such town or village contains a number of inhabitants not being less than three thousand, and an average number of not less than one thousand inhabitants to the square mile of the area of such town or village.

Local Government may unite places to a Municipality.

11. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, declare that any place in which three-fourths of the adult male population are chiefly employed in pursuits other than agricultural, shall be united with any town or village as aforesaid for the purposes of forming a Municipality, provided that no such place shall be so united unless some part of such place be situated within the distance of one mile from some part of such town or village.

Every such declaration shall specify the boundaries of every place so to be united.

Every town or village with which any such place is united, and all places so declared to be united with any such town or village, shall be deemed, for purposes of taxation, and for all other purposes, to form part of one and the same Municipality.

Land between Municipality and place united to form part of Municipality.

12. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, whenever the Local Government shall declare any place or places as aforesaid to be united with any town or village for the purpose of forming one Municipality, the Local Government may similarly declare that any land by which any such place is separated from the town or village with which it is united, and any land by which any such place is separated from any other such place which is united with the said town or village, shall be deemed to form part of the Municipality for all purposes other than those of taxation.

And such declaration shall specify the exterior boundaries of the entire Municipality as constituted under this and the last preceding section.

PART II.

OF THE MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES.

Of the Constitution of the Municipality.

Number of Commissioners.

13. The number of Commissioners of a Municipality constituted before the passing of this Act shall be such number as may be specified by a notification of the Central Board, to be issued immediately after the passing of this Act, and to be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

The number of Commissioners of each Municipality created under the provisions of section eight of this Act shall be such number as is specified in the notification of the creation of such municipality:

Provided that the number of Commissioners of a Municipality shall in no case be more than thirty or less than nine:

Provided, further, that no act of the Commissioners, or of their officers, shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only that the number of the Commissioners did not, at the time of the performance of such act, amount to the number specified in the notifications aforesaid.

Constitution of body of Commissioners.

14. Two-thirds of the number of the Commissioners of each Municipality, fixed by such notification, shall be elected as hereinafter provided by male persons, resident within the limits of such Municipality, who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years.

The remaining one-third of such Commissioners shall be appointed by the Local Government immediately after the result of the election hereinbefore mentioned shall have been notified to the Local Government, and such appointment shall take effect from the date on which such election takes place:

Provided that the number of persons holding salaried offices under the Government, and appointed as Municipal Commissioners, shall not bear a larger proportion than one-fourth to the total number of Commissioners elected and appointed under the provisions of this Part:

Provided also that in cases where the whole number of Commissioners is not evenly divisible by three or by four, the one-third or one-fourth shall be ascertained by taking the number next below the whole number, which is evenly divisible by three or by four, as the number to be divided.

Rules to be laid down for election.

15. For the purposes of the aforesaid election of Commissioners, the Central Board, with respect to each Municipality, shall lay down such rules, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, as it shall think fit, in respect of the division where necessary, of each Municipality into wards, and the number of Commissioners to be elected for each of such wards, the qualifications required to entitle any person to vote for a candidate for such election, and in respect of the mode of election. And the Central Board may at any time cancel any rule made by it under this section:

Provided that every male person who is at the time of such election, and has been for a period of not less than twelve months immediately preceding such election, resident within the limits of a municipality, and who

(1) has, during the year immediately preceding such election, paid, in respect of any of the rates imposed by this Act, an aggregate amount of not less than one rupee eight annas; or

(2) is a graduate or licentiate of any university, or holds a certificate as a pleader or a mookhtear, or holds any office or employment carrying a salary of not less than fifty rupees per mensem, and is a member of a joint undivided Hindu family, one of the members of which has, during the year immediately preceding such election, paid in respect of any of the rates imposed by this Act an aggregate amount of not less than one rupee eight annas, shall be entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners of such Municipality:

Provided further that every person who shall be entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners of a Municipality shall be deemed to be qualified for election as a Commissioner of such Municipality.

On failure of election, Commissioners to be appointed by Government.

16. If the persons entitled to elect Commissioners for any Municipality fail within the time prescribed by the last preceding section to elect the whole number of Commissioners allotted for election to such Municipality, the Local Government shall appoint one or more Commissioners to complete the number so allotted as aforesaid.

Government may exclude Municipality from elective system.

17. Every Municipality mentioned in the first schedule of this Act shall be excluded from the operation of the three last preceding sections: and, in any Municipality so excluded, the whole number of the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Local Government, subject, however, to the proviso contained in the third clause of section fourteen.

It shall be lawful for the Local Government at any time to remove the name of any Municipality from the said schedule.

Ad-interim Vice-Chairman and Commissioners.

18. The Local Government may appoint any persons to be ad-interim Vice-Chairman and Commissioners pending the date on which the election of Commissioners shall take effect under the provisions of this Part.

Resignation of Commissioner.

19. The Local Government may from time to time accept the resignation of any Commissioner appointed or elected under this Act.

Removal of Commissioner.

20. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, on the recommendation of the Commissioners, remove any Commissioner appointed or elected under this Act, if such Commissioner shall have been guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct.

Commissioner who neglects to attend meetings, or is convicted of non-bailable offence, to cease to be Commissioner.

21. Any Commissioner who, without having obtained permission from the Commissioners, at a meeting, shall have omitted to attend six consecutive meetings of the Commissioners, and any Commissioner who shall have been convicted of a non-bailable offence, shall cease to be a Commissioner.

Tenure of office of Commissioners.

22. Every Commissioner shall vacate his office at the end of three years from the first day of the year next following the date of his appointment or election as such Commissioner.

When Commissioner may be re-appointed or re-elected.

23. Any person who has resigned the office of Commissioner, under section nineteen, or who has ceased to be a Commissioner in consequence of his failure to attend meetings, as provided in section twenty-one, may be at any time re-appointed or re-elected a Commissioner; but no person removed by the Local Government from his office under section twenty, or who has ceased to be a Commissioner in consequence of being convicted of a non-bailable offence, may be elected or re-elected a Commissioner without the sanction of the Local Government.

Appointment of Chairman.

24. The Local Government shall appoint the Chairman of every Municipality mentioned in the second schedule of this Act.

Every Municipality, the name of which is not included in the said schedule, shall, at a meeting, elect its Chairman.

The Local Government may at any time remove the name of any Municipality from the said schedule

His status and tenure of office.

25. Notwithstanding anything in section thirteen contained, every Chairman appointed or elected under the last preceding section, if not already a Commissioner of the Municipality of which he shall have been appointed or elected Chairman, shall, from the date of his appointment or election, during the term of his office, enjoy all the rights and privileges of a Commissioner of the Municipality to which such appointment or election relates, but shall not be reckoned in calculating the proportions of one-third and one-fourth under the provisions of section fourteen. The Chairman shall hold office for three years from the beginning of the year next following his appointment or election.

Every Chairman shall be eligible for re-appointment or re-election, and may at any time be removed from the office of Chairman by a resolution of the Commissioners at a meeting in favour of which not less than two-thirds of the Commissioners have given their votes.

All resolutions passed by the Commissioners under this and the section immediately preceding shall be subject to the approval of the Local Government.

Election of Vice-Chairman.

26. The Commissioners at a meeting shall elect one of their own number to be Vice-Chairman. He shall hold office for three years from the beginning of the year next following his election, and shall be eligible for re-election on the expiration of his term of office.

The Vice-Chairman may at any time be removed from the office of Vice-Chairman by a resolution of the Commissioners at a meeting in favour of which not less than two-thirds of the Commissioners shall have given their votes.

Appointment or election of Commissioner, Chairman or Vice-Chairman for unexpired term of office.

27. If any Commissioner, Chairman, or Vice-Chairman shall be unable to complete his full term of office, the vacancy caused by his resignation, or removal or death shall be filled by the appointment or election, as the case may be, of another person, and the person so appointed or elected shall fill such vacancy for the unexpired remainder of the term for which such Commissioner, Chairman or Vice-Chairman would otherwise have continued in office.

Allowances of Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

28. The Chairman and Vice-Chairman of any Municipality may, should the Commissioners think fit, receive such allowances out of the Municipal Fund as shall from time to time be fixed at a meeting by the Commissioners.

Every resolution passed by the Commissioners under this section shall be subject to the approval of the Central Board.

Commissioners incorporated.

29. The Commissioners shall, in the name of their Chairman, by the description of "The Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners of ," be a body corporate, and have perpetual succession, and a common seal, and in such name shall sue and be sued.

Such common seal shall have the name of the Municipality engraved thereon in legible characters in the English language, and also in the vernacular of the district.

Of the property of the Commissioners.

Public roads, &c., vested in the Commissioners.

30. All roads, bridges, tanks, ghats, wells, channels, and drains in any Municipality (not being private property, and not being maintained by Government or at the public expense), now existing, or which shall hereafter be made, and the pavements, stones, and other materials thereof, and all erections, materials, implements, and other things provided therefor, shall vest in and belong to the Commissioners.

But the Central Board may, from time to time, by notification, exclude any road, bridge, or drain from the operation of this Act, and may cancel such notification wholly or in part; provided that, if the cost of the construction of the work shall have been paid from the Municipal Fund, such work shall not be excluded from the operation of this Act without the consent of the Commissioners.

31. The Commissioners at a meeting may agree with the person in whom the property in any road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain is vested to take over the property therein, and after such agreement may declare, by notice in writing put up thereon or near thereto, that such road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain has been transferred to the Commissioners;

Commissioners may, with consent of owners, take over and repair roads, &c.

Thereupon the property therein shall vest in the Commissioners, and such road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain shall thenceforth be repaired and maintained out of the Municipal Fund.

32. Every hospital, dispensary, school, rest-house, ghat, and market, not being private property, or the property of a religious institution or society, and all medicines, furniture, and other articles appurtenant thereto, not being such property which at and after the commencement of this Act shall be found within any Municipality may, by order of the Central Board, duly published on the spot, be vested in the Commissioners of such Municipality, and thereupon all endowments or funds belonging thereto shall be transferred to, and vested in, such Commissioners as trustees for the purposes to which such endowments and funds were lawfully applicable at the time of such transfer:

Existing hospitals, schools, rest-houses, &c., may be vested in the Commissioners.

Provided that no such order shall be published until one month after notice of the intention to transfer such property shall have been published in the Calcutta Gazette, and within the Municipality in the vernacular language of the district.

33. If the Commissioners at a meeting shall, after publication of a notice, as is mentioned in the last preceding section, object to the transfer to themselves of any hospital, dispensary, school, rest-house, ghat or market, on the ground that their funds cannot bear the charge, then such transfer shall not be made save under such conditions as the Commissioners at a meeting may agree to accept.

Transfer to be conditional in certain cases.

34. The Commissioners at a meeting may purchase or take on lease any land for the purposes of this Act, and may sell, let, or otherwise dispose of any land not required for such purposes.

Power to purchase, lease, and sell lands.

35. The Local Government, on the application of the Commissioners that any land be acquired for the purposes of this Act, may, on being satisfied that the Commissioners are in a position to pay for such land either at once or in such instalments as the Local Government may think proper, notify under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, or any similar Act for the time being in force for the acquisition of land for public purposes, that such land is required for a public purpose, and may cause such land to be acquired under the provisions of such Act; and on payment by the Commissioners of the compensation awarded under such Act, the land shall vest in them for the purposes of this Act.

Land may be taken up under Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

36. The Commissioners shall be bound to pay to the Government the cost of any land which may be acquired for them on their application under the provisions of the last preceding section.

Commissioners to pay cost of such land.

37. The Commissioners may enter into and perform any contract necessary for the purposes of this Act.

Mode of executing contracts.

Every contract made on behalf of the Commissioners of a Municipality in respect of any sum exceeding five hundred rupees, or which shall involve a value exceeding five hundred rupees, shall be sanctioned by the Commissioners at a meeting, and shall be in writing, and signed by at least two of the Commissioners, one of whom shall be the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, and shall be sealed with the common seal of the Commissioners.

Unless so executed, such contract shall not be binding on the Commissioners.

Of the Mode of transacting the Business of the Municipality.

38. The Commissioners shall meet for the transaction of business (if there be any business to be transacted) at their office, or at some other convenient place, at least once in every month, and as often as a meeting shall be called by the Chairman, or, in his absence, by the Vice-Chairman.

Commissioners to meet ordinarily once a month,

If there shall be no business to be laid before the Commissioners at any monthly meeting, the Chairman shall, instead of calling the meeting, give notice of the fact to each Commissioner three days before the date which is appointed for the monthly meeting.

39. The Chairman, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chairman, shall call a special meeting on a requisition signed by not less than three of the Commissioners.

and at other times on special requisition.

40. The Chairman, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chairman shall preside at every meeting, and, in the absence of both the Chairman and Vice-Chairman, the Commissioners shall choose some one of their number to preside.

Who to preside at meetings of the Commissioners

41. All questions which may come before the Commissioners at a meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes.

Questions to be decided by majority.

In case of equality of votes, the President shall have a second or casting vote.

Casting voto.

42. No business shall be transacted at any meeting of the Commissioners unless such meeting has been called by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, nor unless a quorum shall be present.

Quorum.

A quorum shall be, in any Municipality in which the Commissioners are more than fifteen, five;

in any other Municipality a number being not less than one-third of the entire number of Commissioners.

If, at the time appointed for a meeting, or within one hour thereafter, a quorum is not present, the meeting shall stand adjourned to some future day to be appointed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, and three days' notice of such adjourned meeting shall be given. The members present at such adjourned meeting shall form a quorum, whatever their number may be.

Minutes of proceedings.

43. Minutes of the proceedings of all meetings of the Commissioners shall be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the President of the meeting, and such book shall be open to the inspection of the tax payers. A copy of such minutes shall be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

Powers of Chairman.

44. The Chairman shall, for the transaction of the business connected with this Act, or for the purpose of making any order authorized thereby, exercise all the powers vested by this Act in the Commissioners:

Provided that the Chairman shall not act in opposition to, or in contravention of, any order of the Commissioners at a meeting, or exercise any power which is directed to be exercised by the Commissioners at a meeting.

Chairman may delegate his duties to Vice-Chairman.

45. The Chairman may, by a written order, delegate to the Vice-Chairman all or any of the duties or powers of a Chairman as defined in this Act, subject to such restrictions as may seem fit to him, and may at any time by a written order withdraw or modify the same:

Provided that nothing done by the Vice-Chairman, which might have been done under the authority of a written order from the Chairman, shall be invalid for want of or defect of such written order, if it be done with the express or implied consent of the Chairman previously or subsequently obtained.

Appointment of subordinate officers.

46. The Commissioners at a meeting shall from time to time decide whether a paid Secretary, Engineer or Health Officer is required or not, and what number of subordinate officers, servants, and collectors of taxes or tolls may be necessary for the Municipality, and shall from time to time fix the salaries to be paid to such persons respectively out of the Municipal Fund, and the allowances to be granted to such persons during absence on leave.

Subject to the scale of establishment decided upon by the Commissioners under this section, the Chairman shall have power to appoint such persons as he may think fit, and from time to time to remove such persons and appoint others in their places:

Provided that no appointment, of which the salary is two hundred rupees per mensem or upwards, shall be created or abolished without the sanction of the Central Board, and that no person shall be appointed to an office, the salary of which is one hundred rupees per mensem or upwards, without the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting subject to the approval of the Central Board, and provided also that no officer, whose salary is more than twenty rupees per mensem, shall be dismissed without the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting.

Security from officers or servants.

47. The Commissioners may take such security as they may think proper from any officer or servant in their employ.

Of Ward Committees.

Power to appoint Ward Committees.

48. The Commissioners at a meeting may divide any Municipality into wards, and thereupon appoint, or cause to be elected, for each ward, not less than three proper persons, whether such persons be or be not Commissioners for the time being, to be members of the Ward Committee, and the Commissioners at a meeting may define the limits of the ward for which any Ward Committee may be appointed or elected.

Commissioners may lay down rules for election.

49. The Commissioners at a meeting may lay down rules, not being inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, in respect of the qualifications required to entitle any person who is not a Commissioner to stand as a candidate for such election, and to entitle any person to vote for any candidate, and in respect of the mode of election; and the Commissioners may at any time cancel any rule made by them under this section for such election.

Election of Chairman and Vice-Chairman of Ward Committee.

50. Each Ward Committee may, for each year if it sees fit, elect its own Chairman and Vice-Chairman (if necessary) from among its own number; provided that if one or more Commissioners are members of the Ward Committee, the Chairman of the Ward Committee shall be a Commissioner.

Commissioners may delegate powers to Ward Committee.

51. The Commissioners at a meeting may delegate to a Ward Committee such of the powers of Commissioners under this Act as to them may seem fit; and such Ward Committee, within the limits of its ward, as defined by the Commissioners at a meeting, may exercise all or any of such powers, and shall be liable to all the obligations imposed by this Act on Commissioners in respect of such powers.

All acts done, orders issued, and assessments made, by Ward Committees, shall be subject to the control and revision of the Commissioners at a meeting, who may at any time withdraw all or any of such powers.

Certain sections applicable to transaction of business by Ward Committees.

52. The provisions of sections thirty-eight to forty-five (both inclusive) shall, as far as possible, be applicable to the transaction of business by Ward Committees, and the Commissioners shall sanction the establishments of Ward Committees in accordance with the provisions of section forty-six.

Removal, resignation, and appointment of members.

53. All questions regarding the removal, resignation, and appointment of members of Ward Committees shall be settled by the Commissioners at a meeting.

Liability of Commissioners and Ward Committees.

Personal liability of Commissioner or member of Ward Committees.

54. No Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee shall be personally liable for any contract made, or expense incurred, by or on behalf of the Commissioners.

Every Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee shall be personally liable for any wilful misapplication of money entrusted to the Commissioners to which he shall knowingly have been a party, and he shall be liable to be sued for the same.

Penalty on Commissioners and others interested in contract.

55. No Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract made with the Commissioners, or shall receive any pecuniary gratification for any services rendered to them; and if any Commissioner shall be so interested, or shall receive such gratification, he shall thereby become disqualified to continue in office as a Commissioner, and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees:

Provided that no person shall, by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered company, be deemed interested in any contract entered into between such company and the Commissioners.

But no such shareholder or member shall act as a Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee in a matter relating to any contract entered into between such company and the Commissioners.

Commissioners disqualified from voting on certain questions.

56. No Commissioner or member of a Ward Committee shall vote on any question which regards exclusively the assessment of himself, or the valuation of his property, or his liability to any tax.

PART III.

OF THE MUNICIPAL FUND.

What shall constitute the Municipal Fund.

57. All sums received by the Commissioners, and all fines paid or levied in any Municipality under this Act, and all other sums which, under the sanction of Government, may be transferred to the Commissioners, shall constitute a fund which shall be called the Municipal Fund, and shall, together with all property of every nature or kind whatsoever, which may become vested in the Commissioners, be under their control, and shall be held by them in trust for the purposes of this Act.

Payment on account of interest on loans and establishment.

58. The Commissioners shall set apart and apply annually out of the Municipal Fund,— firstly, such sum as may be required for the payment of the interest which may fall due on any loan contracted by the Commissioners;

secondly, such sum as they are by this Act required to provide for payment of their own establishment;

thirdly, such sum as the Local Government may direct towards payment of the cost of the Central Board and its establishment, towards the cost of audit, and towards the cost of establishments in any office of account or in any treasury:

Provided that the total amount which any Municipality may be required to pay on this account shall not in any year exceed two per centum on the amount of the Municipal Fund for such year.

Purposes to which Fund may be applied.

59. After the said sums have been set apart under the last preceding section, the Commissioners at a meeting shall, as far as the Municipal Fund permits, from time to time cause roads, bridges, tanks, ghats, wells, channels, drains, and privies, being the property of the Commissioners, to be maintained and repaired, and the Municipality to be cleansed; and may, subject to such rules and restrictions as the Central Board may from time to time prescribe, apply the Municipal Fund to any of the following purposes within the Municipality, that is to say—

(1) the construction and improvement of roads, bridges, squares, gardens, tanks, ghats, wells, channels, drains and privies;

(2) the supply of water, and the lighting and watering of roads;

(3) the erection and maintenance of offices, and other buildings required for municipal purposes;

(4) other works of public utility calculated to promote the health, comfort or convenience of the inhabitants;

(5) the construction and repair of school-houses, and the establishment and maintenance of schools either wholly or by means of grants-in-aid;

(6) the establishment and maintenance of hospitals and dispensaries;

(7) the promotion of vaccination;

(8) the maintenance of a fire-brigade;

(9) and generally to carrying out the purposes of this Act:

Provided that no portion of the Municipal Fund shall be applied to the establishment and maintenance of any school, hospital or dispensary, or to the promotion of vaccination, unless such application be sanctioned by the consent of a majority of the Commissioners present at a meeting specially convened for considering such application, or held after special notice has been given that such application will be considered at such meeting.

The Commissioners may do all things, not being inconsistent with this Act, which may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

Contribution to other Municipalities.

60. With the consent of two-thirds of the Commissioners obtained in writing, and with the sanction of the Central Board, the Commissioners may contribute a portion of the Municipal Fund towards the expenses incurred in any other Municipality, or elsewhere, for any of the purposes mentioned in the last preceding section, or towards the salary of any officer under another authority whose services are employed by them, and also towards the expenses of making, maintaining, and repairing any work for the improvement of a river or harbour (by whomsoever such work may be done).

But no contribution shall be made under this section to any work unless the same is calculated to benefit the inhabitants of the contributing Municipality.

Account books to be kept open and quarterly statement published.

61. The account books of the Municipality shall be open to the inspection of any tax-payer at the office of the Commissioners on a day to be fixed in each month.

An account shewing the receipts and expenditure during the quarter, arranged under the proper heads and duly balanced, shall be prepared immediately after the close of each quarter, and shall, with the account books, be open to the inspection of any tax-payer.

A similar account shall be prepared for each year as soon as possible after its close, and shall be open to inspection as aforesaid.

Annual estimates to be prepared.

62. The Commissioners, at a meeting held at least two months before the close of the year, shall prepare in detail estimates shewing the probable receipts and expenditure during the ensuing year and the objects in respect of which it is proposed to incur such expenditure.

Estimates to be published.

63. Copies of the estimates and translations thereof in the vernacular of the district shall be lodged in the Municipal office or offices, and a copy shall also be forwarded to the Magistrate.

During fourteen days after the estimates shall have been so lodged in the said offices, of which due notice shall be locally published, the estimates and translations in the vernacular of the district shall be open to inspection at all reasonable times by any tax-payer of such Municipality who may desire to inspect the same.

Any written suggestion which may be deposited in the office of the Commissioners shall be recorded and laid before them for consideration at the next meeting.

Estimate to be transmitted to Central Board.

64. After the expiration of the said fourteen days, and after such revision as may appear requisite, the estimates shall be transmitted for the sanction of the Central Board.

Power of Central Board as to estimates.

65. The Central Board may either sanction the estimate as it stands, or sanction it after making such alterations therein as may seem to it fit, or may cause it to be returned to the Commissioners for such modifications as it may think necessary; and when such modifications have been made the estimate shall be re-submitted for ratification to the Central Board. Provided that the Central Board shall not raise the total of the proposed expenditure above the sum shewn by the estimate to be at the disposal of the Commissioners.

Estimate of expenditure may be revised.

66. The Commissioners at a meeting may from time to time revise any estimate of expenditure with the view of providing for any modifications which they may deem it advisable to make in the appropriation of the amount at their disposal, and such revised estimate shall be published and forwarded for sanction to the Central Board in the manner prescribed by section sixty-four; and the Central Board may deal with such revised estimate in the manner provided by the last preceding section.

Disbursement of expenditure sanctioned in estimate.

67. After the estimates of the Municipality for the year shall have been sanctioned as above, the Commissioners at a meeting may, from time to time, by a general or a special resolution, authorize the expenditure of any sum provided in such estimates, or any part of such sum, for the purpose to which it has been assigned in such estimate.

Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the Central Board may lay down such rules as it may think fit limiting or regulating the powers of any Municipality in respect to the expenditure of money for purposes which are provided for in the budget estimates of the year.

Power of Central Board if work estimated to cost more than Rs. 5,000.

68. If any work is estimated to cost above five thousand rupees, the Central Board may require the plans and estimates of such work to be submitted for its approval, or for the approval of any officer of Government, or of the Board, before such work is commenced; and may require statements of the progress and completion of such work, with accounts of the expenditure on the same, to be submitted from time to time, in such form as it may prescribe, for its approval, or for the approval of such officer.

Disbursement of excess expenditure.

69. It shall not be lawful for the Commissioners to authorize the expenditure on any object during the year of a sum in excess of that which has been sanctioned in the estimate of the year, or in a revised estimate, for such object; but if it be found necessary in the course of the year, the Commissioners may recommend to the Central Board that the allotments which have been made to the different heads of the estimate shall be modified by transfer of any amount from one head to another, and the Central Board may sanction such transfers of allotment.

An annual report of proceedings, &c., to be submitted.

70. The Commissioners shall, at such time and in such form as the Central Board shall direct, furnish annually a report of their proceedings and statements of the works executed by them, and of all sums received and expended by them.

The report and any orders which may be passed thereon by Government or by the Central Board shall be open to the inspection of the tax-payers at the office of the Commissioners, with the account books and the quarterly and the annual accounts.

Audit of accounts.

71. The municipal accounts shall be audited each year in such manner as the Central Board shall direct.

Custody of the Municipal Fund.

72. Unless the Central Board shall otherwise direct, all sums received on account of the Municipal Fund shall be paid into a Government treasury, or into any bank or branch bank used as a Government treasury in or near to the Municipality, and shall be credited to an account to be called the account of the Municipality to which they belong:

Provided that the Commissioners may invest any moneys not required for immediate use either in Government securities, or in any other form of security which may be approved of by the Central Board.

Orders for payment of money.

73. Unless the Central Board shall expressly extend (as it is hereby empowered to do, on the recommendation of the Commissioners) the limit of the powers of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman in this behalf, all orders for the payment of money from the Municipal Fund, if for a sum not above five hundred rupees, shall be signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman; and all orders for larger sums by both of the said officers, or by one of the said officers and another Commissioner.

No such orders shall be issued otherwise than for the payment of money of which the expenditure has been authorized by the Commissioners at a meeting, as provided in section sixty-seven.

PART IV.

OF MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

Alternative tax upon persons or holdings.

74. The Commissioners may, from time to time, at a meeting convened expressly for the purpose, of which due notice shall have been given, and with the sanction of the Central Board, impose within the limits of the Municipality one or other, but not both, of the following taxes :—

(a) a tax upon persons occupying holdings within the Municipality according to their circumstances and property within the Municipality :

provided that the total sum to be raised by such tax in any year shall not exceed the sum which would be produced by an average rate of two rupees and four annas per annum for each holding, and that the amount assessed in respect of the occupation of any one holding shall not be more than eighty-four rupees per annum ; or provided that such rate shall not exceed seven and a half per centum on the annual value of such holdings, except within the Municipality of Dacca, in which it shall not exceed ten per centum on such annual value ; and provided also that no rate shall be imposed on any holding of which the annual value is less than six rupees.

(b) a rate on the annual value of all holdings situated within the Municipality :

Additional taxes.

75. The Commissioners may, from time to time, at a meeting convened as aforesaid, and with the sanction of the Central Board, order that the following tax, fee, tolls, and rates, or any of them, be levied within the limits of the Municipality in addition to either of the taxes mentioned in the last preceding section :—

(a) a tax on carriages, horses, and other animals named in the third schedule;

(b) a fee on the registration of carts ;

(c) tolls on ferries and (subject to the provisions of sections one hundred and forty-seven and one hundred and forty-eight) tolls upon bridges and metalled roads ;

(d) a water-rate not exceeding six per centum on the annual value of holdings when the houses and lands are situated in streets supplied with filtered water, and not exceeding five per centum when the houses and lands are situated in streets not so supplied ;

(e) a lighting rate not exceeding three per centum on such annual value ;

(f) a fee for the cleansing of latrines :

provided that the taxes mentioned in clauses (d), (e), and (f) shall not be levied in any Municipality unless the provisions of Part VII in respect of clause (d), or of Part VIII in respect of clause (e), or of Part IX in respect of clause (f), shall have been extended to such Municipality in the manner hereinafter provided.

Of the Tax on Persons.

Assessment list to be prepared.

76. When it has been determined that a tax shall be imposed on persons occupying holdings within the Municipality, according to their circumstances and property, the Commissioners, after making such enquiries as may be necessary, shall cause to be prepared an assessment list which shall contain the following particulars, and any others which the Commissioners may think proper to include :—

(a) name of the street or road in which the holding is situated ;

(b) number of the holding on the register ;

(c) name of the person occupying the holding, whether such person be assessed or exempted from assessment ;

(d) description of the holding, and of the property within the Municipality, with profession or business of the person assessed ;

(e) amount of annual assessment ;

(f) amount of quarterly instalment

(g) if the occupier of the holding is exempted from assessment, a note to that effect.

The tax upon persons shall be payable in quarterly instalments by persons occupying holdings.

Such tax shall not be assessed or levied on any person in respect of the occupation of arable lands or of any building which is used exclusively as a place of public worship.

Duration of assessment.

77. Save as is herein otherwise provided, every assessment of the tax upon persons shall take effect from the beginning of the year next following that in which the notice required by section one hundred and one is published, and shall be valid for three years and until the beginning of the year next after the date on which a new assessment or valuation may be published, or until the assessment and valuation be revised and amended :

Provided that when this Act is extended to any place, the first assessment may take effect from the beginning of the quarter next following that in which the said notice shall be published.

Assessment of public buildings.

78. In any Municipality in which the tax on persons is imposed, no tax shall be assessed on any person in respect of his occupation of any holding which is the property of Government and used for the purposes of a public building, but a rate of seven and a half per centum shall be assessed on the annual value of every such holding, to be ascertained in the manner prescribed by section ninety, and such rate shall be payable by the Government Procedure if aggregate amount of rates assessed on any person exceeds Rs. 84 per annum.

79. Whenever any tax shall have been assessed on any person, in respect of his occupation of two or more holdings, and the aggregate of the amount so assessed upon him shall exceed eighty-four rupees per annum, such person may, within fifteen days of the publication of the notice required by section one hundred and one, apply to the Commissioners to cancel such assessment, and to substitute for the total amount of tax so assessed upon him, in respect of the said holdings, a rate to be calculated at seven and a half per centum on the annual value of such holdings; and the Commissioners shall thereupon substitute such rate; and for the purpose of calculating the amount of such rate, shall determine the annual value of the said holdings in the manner prescribed by section ninety.

Every rate imposed under this section shall be payable by the occupier of the holdings so rated.

Power of exemption.

80. The Commissioners may exempt from assessment any person who may by them be deemed too poor to pay the tax; but the name of the occupier of every holding shall be included in the assessment list, whether he be assessed or exempted from assessment.

Power to apply for reduction of assessment in altered circumstances.

81. If any person mentioned in the assessment list shall at any time after the publication thereof have ceased to occupy any holding, in respect of the occupation of which he has been assessed, or if the means and property in respect of which he has been so assessed shall have been reduced, the Commissioners may on his application exempt him from his assessment, or may revise the same, and such exemption or revision shall take effect from such date as the Commissioners may direct.

Power to alter assessment.

82. The Commissioners may, at any time after the publication of the notice required by section one hundred and one, assess any person who was without authority omitted from the assessment list, or whose liability to assessment has accrued thereafter, and may enhance any assessment which appears to them to be inadequate, and to have been so made owing to mistake or fraud.

Any assessment or enhancement made under this section shall take effect from the beginning of the quarter next following that in which such assessment or enhancement is made.

Procedure on change of occupation.

83 The Commissioners may at any time substitute for any name mentioned in the assessment list the name of any new occupier of a holding, and may assess the tax on such person, and such person shall be liable to pay such assessment from the date on which his occupation of the holding commenced.

Assessment on vacant holdings when to cease.

84. If any holding shall become vacant in the course of the year, the assessment on account of the occupation of such holding shall cease to have effect from the first day of the quarter next following that in which it became vacant.

Of the Rate on the value of Holdings.

Commissioners to determine the valuation of holdings.

85. When it has been determined that a rate shall be imposed on the annual value of holdings, the Commissioners, after making such enquiries as may be necessary, shall determine the valuation of all holdings within the Municipality as hereinafter provided.

Duration of assessment.

86. Save as is herein otherwise provided, such valuation shall be valid for three years from the date on which it first takes effect in the Municipality, and until the beginning of the year next after the date on which a new valuation may be made, or until the valuation be revised and amended.

Buildings exempted from tax.

87. The rate on the value of holdings shall not be assessed or levied on any holding which is used exclusively as a place of public worship, or which is duly registered as a public burial or burning ground under section two hundred and forty-eight.

What returns may be required for ascertaining annual value.

88. The Commissioners, in order to prepare the valuation list, may, whenever they think fit, by notice, require the owners or occupiers of all holdings to furnish them with returns of the rent or annual value thereof, and the Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, at any time between sunrise and sunset, may enter, inspect, and measure any such holding after having given forty-eight hours' previous notice of their intention to the occupier thereof.

Penalty for default in furnishing return.

89. Whoever refuses or fails to furnish any such return for the space of one week from the day on which he shall have been required to do so, or knowingly makes a false or incorrect return, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and to a further daily fine not exceeding five rupees for each day during which he shall omit to furnish a true and correct return; and whoever hinders, obstructs, or prevents any Commissioner or any person appointed by the Commissioners as aforesaid, from entering or inspecting or measuring any such holding, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees.

Annual value of holding how to be ascertained.

90. The gross annual rent at which any holding may be reasonably expected to let, shall be deemed to be the annual value thereof, and such value shall accordingly be determined by the Commissioners, and entered in the valuation list:

Provided that, if there be on a holding any building or buildings, the actual cost of erection of which can be ascertained or estimated, the annual value of such holding shall in no case be deemed to exceed an amount which would be equal to seven and a half per centum on such cost, in addition to a reasonable ground rent for the land comprised in the holding:

Provided further that, in estimating the annual value of a holding under this section, the value of any machinery that may be on such holding shall not be taken into consideration.

Determination of rate of tax on holdings.

91. Subject to the provisions of section seventy-four, the Commissioners, at a meeting to be held before the close of the year next preceding the year to which the rate will apply, shall determine the percentage on the valuation of holdings at which the rate shall be levied, and the percentage so fixed shall remain in force until the order of the Commissioners determining such percentage shall be rescinded, and until the Commissioners at a meeting shall determine some other percentage on the valuation of holdings at which the rate will be levied from the beginning of the next year:

Provided that when this Act is first extended to any place, the first rate may be levied from the beginning of the quarter next after that in which the percentage has been fixed by the Commissioners at a meeting.

Preparation of valuation and rating list.

92. As soon as possible after the percentage at which the rate is to be levied on the next year shall have been determined under the last preceding section, the Commissioners shall cause to be prepared a valuation and rating list, which shall contain the following particulars, and any others which the Commissioners may think proper to include :—

(a) name of the street or road in which the holding is situated ;
(b) number of the holding on the register ;
(c) description of the holding ;
(d) annual value of the holding ;
(e) name of owner ;
(f) amount of rate payable for the year ;
(g) amount of quarterly instalment ;
(h) if the holding is exempted from assessment, a note to that effect.

The rate upon holdings shall be payable in quarterly instalments by the owner of the holding.

Power to assess upon a house consolidated tax for house and land on which it stands.

93. If any house belongs to one owner, and the land on which it stands and the adjacent land which is usually occupied therewith, belongs to another, the Commissioners may value such house and land together and may impose thereon one consolidated rate.

The total amount of the rates shall be payable by the owner of the house, who shall thereafter be entitled to deduct from the rent which he pays for the land such proportion of the rate so paid by him as is equal to the proportion which such rent bears to the annual value of the holding.

If the owner of the house and the owner of the land do not agree in respect of the proportion of the rate so deducted by the owner of the house, the Commissioners shall, on the application of either party, make an award declaring the amount payable by each, and such award shall be final.

Tax due from non-resident owner may be recovered from occupier and deducted by him from his rent.

94. If the sum due from the owner of any holding remains unpaid after the notice of demand has been duly served, and such owner be not resident within the Municipality, or the place of abode of such owner be unknown, the same may be recovered from the occupier for the time being of such holding, who may deduct, from the next and following payments of his rent, the amount which may be so paid by or recovered from him :

Provided that no arrear of rate, which has remained due from the owner of any holding for more than one year, shall be so recovered from the occupier thereof.

Power of Commissioners in cases of excessive hardship.

95. Whenever, from the circumstances of the case, the levy of the rate on any holding in the Municipality would be productive of excessive hardship to the person liable to pay the same, the Commissioners at a meeting may reduce the amount payable on account of such holding, or may remit the same.

Application for reduction of assessment.

96. If the value of any holding shall be diminished from any cause beyond the control of the owner thereof, the owner thereof may apply for reduction of the valuation of the same.

Power to revise valuation and assessment.

97. The Commissioners may, at any time after the publication of the notice required by section one hundred and one, value and rate any holding which was without authority omitted from the valuation and rating list, or which has become liable to valuation and rating after the publication thereof, and may enhance the valuation and rating of any holding which may appear to have been insufficiently valued or rated through mistake, oversight, or fraud ; and may re-value and re-assess any holding the value of which has been increased by additions or alterations to any building thereon.

Any rate imposed or enhancement made under this section shall take effect from the beginning of the quarter next following that in which the rate shall be imposed or enhancement made.

Power to revise assessment list.

98. The Commissioners may at any time substitute for any name mentioned in the valuation and rating list the name of any person to whom any holding mentioned therein shall have been transferred.

Such person shall be liable to pay the rate payable on such holding from the first day of the quarter next after the date of the transfer.

Remission or refund on account of vacant holdings.

99. When any holding has been vacant for sixty or more consecutive days during any year, the Commissioners shall remit, and, if the rate has been paid, shall refund, one-half of so much of the rate of that year as may be proportionate to the number of days the said holding has remained unoccupied ;

Provided that the owner of such holding, or his agent, has given to the Commissioners notice in writing of the vacancy thereof.

The amount of tax to be remitted or refunded shall be calculated from the date of the delivery of such notice.

Penalty.

100. Whoever, being the owner of any holding for which a remission or refund of the rate has been made under the last preceding section, fails to give notice of the re-occupation of such holding within ten days of such re-occupation, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount of rate payable quarterly on such holding.

Of general provisions relating to the tax on persons and the rate on holdings and to the recovery of the same.

Publication of notice of assessments.

101. When the assessment list of the tax upon persons, or the valuation and rating list of the rate on the annual value of holdings, shall have been prepared or revised, the Chairman shall sign the same, and shall cause it to be deposited in the office of the Commissioners, and shall cause the notice in form (A) or the notice in form (B) of the third schedule (as the case may be) to be published in the manner prescribed by section three hundred and forty-seven.

Application for review.

102 Any person who is dissatisfied with the amount assessed upon him, or with the valuation or rating of any holding, or who disputes his occupation of any holding, or his liability to be assessed, or rated, may apply to the Commissioners to review the amount of assessment, valuation, or rating, or to exempt him from the assessment or rate.

Procedure upon review.

103. Every application presented under the last preceding section shall be heard and determined by not less than three Commissioners, who shall be appointed on that behalf by the Chairman. The Commissioners so appointed, after making such inquiries as they may deem necessary, may pass such order as they shall think fit in respect of such application.

The decision of such Commissioners, or of a majority thereof, in such cases shall be final, unless the same shall be set aside by the Central Board.

Limitation of time for application of review.

104. Unless good cause shall be shewn to the satisfaction of such Commissioners for extending the time allowed, and save as is otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no such application shall be received after the expiration of one month from the date of publication of the notice required by section one hundred and one relating to the list containing the assessment, valuation, or rating in respect of which the application is made, or after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of service of the first notice of demand for payment at the rate in respect of which the application is made, whichever period shall last expire.

Assessment to be questioned only under Act.

105. No objection shall be taken to any assessment or rating, nor shall the liability of any person to be assessed or rated be questioned in any other manner or by any other authority than in this Act is provided.

Office hours for payment of taxes.

106. By notification to be posted up in their office, the Commissioners shall declare at what hours of each day (not being a Sunday or other recognized holiday) the office shall be open for the receipt of money and the transaction of business.

Tax payable in advance.

107. The amount due by any person on account of the tax on persons, or the rate on holdings, shall be deemed to be the amount entered in the lists the notice relating to which is published under section one hundred and one, unless the amount entered in such lists is subsequently altered by the Commissioners as provided in this Act, in which case the amount to which the assessment or rating is so altered shall be deemed to be the amount due.

Every instalment of such tax or rate shall be deemed to be due on the first day of the quarter in respect of which such instalment is payable.

Receipts to be given.

108. For all sums paid on account of any tax or rate under this Act a receipt stating the amount and the tax or rate on account of which it is paid shall be given, signed by the tax-collector, or by some other officer authorized by the Commissioners to grant such receipts.

Bill and notice of demand to be presented.

109. At any time within six months after any sum has become due on account of any tax or rate the Commissioners shall cause to be presented to the person liable to the payment thereof a bill for the said sum, which shall contain a statement of the period and of the tax or rate on account of which the charge is made.

If the amount mentioned in such bill be not paid on presentation thereof, a notice of demand in the form marked (A) in the fourth schedule, with copy of the bill appended thereto, shall be served on the person liable to pay the same, and such notice of demand may be served at any subsequent time:

Provided that no charge shall be made in respect of the service of such notice.

Such notice shall be signed by the Chairman or an officer authorized in that behalf, and shall be served by a person authorized to receive payment.

If not paid in fifteen days, process of distress may issue.

110. If any person, after service upon him of such bill and notice, shall not, within fifteen days of the service of such notice, or from the date of any order made on an application for review under section one hundred and three, pay the sum due, either to the Commissioners at their office, or to some person authorized by them to receive the money, or shew to the Commissioners sufficient cause for not paying the same, the amount of the arrear due, with costs on the scale shewn in the table of fees marked (B) in the fourth schedule, may at any time within three months after the date of service of the said notice, or of the order made on an application for review as aforesaid, be levied by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter, except ploughs, plough-cattle, tools, or implements of agriculture or trade, wherever found, or of any such moveable property, subject to the same exceptions, which may be found within the holding in respect of which such defaulter is liable to such tax or rate.

If the said property or any part thereof belong to any person other than the defaulter, the defaulter shall be liable to indemnify the owner thereof for any damage he may sustain by reason of such distress, or by reason of any payment he may make to avoid such distress or any sale under the same.

Distress how to be made.

111. Every warrant of distress and sale under the last preceding section shall be issued by the Commissioners, and shall be in the form marked (C) in the fourth schedule.

Distress shall be made by actual seizure of moveable property, and the officer charged with the execution of the warrant shall be responsible for the due custody thereof.

Such officer shall make an inventory of all moveable property seized under the warrant, and shall give not less than ten days' previous notice of the sale, and of the time and place thereof, by beat of drum, in the Municipality or Ward in which the property is situated, and by serving on the defaulter a notice in the form marked (D) in the fourth schedule:

Provided that if the property is of a perishable nature, it may be sold at once with the consent of the defaulter, or without such consent at any time after the expiry of six hours from the seizure.

Officer may break open door.

112. The officer charged with the execution of the warrant may, under the special order of the Commissioners, between sunrise and sunset, break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, in order to make the distress, if he has reasonable ground for believing that such house contains any moveable property belonging to the defaulter, and if, after notification of his authority and purpose and demand of admittance duly made, he cannot otherwise obtain admittance:

Provided that he shall not enter or break open the door of any room appropriated for the zánaná, or residence of women, which, by the usage of the country is considered private, except after three hours' notice and opportunity given for the retirement of the women.

Sale how to be conducted.

113. If the sum due be not paid with costs before the time fixed for the sale, or the warrant be not discharged or suspended by the Commissioners, the moveable property seized shall be sold by auction, at the time and place specified, in the most public manner possible, and the proceeds shall be applied in discharge of the arrears and costs; and the surplus, if any, shall be returned on demand to the person in possession of the moveable property at the time of the seizure; or if unclaimed for a period of twelve months, shall be transferred to the Municipal Fund.

Return of sales.

The tax-collector or other officer authorized in that behalf shall make a return of all such sales to the Commissioners in the form marked (E) in the fourth schedule.

Certain persons prohibited from purchasing at sales.

114. All officers and servants of the Commissioners, and all chaukidars, constables, and other officers of Police, are prohibited from purchasing any property at any such sale.

Commissioners to keep account of distresses and sales.

115. The Commissioners shall cause a regular account to be kept of all distresses levied and sales made for the recovery of taxes under this Act.

Sale of property beyond limits of Municipality.

116. If no sufficient goods or chattels belonging to a defaulter, or being upon the premises in respect of which he is assessed or rated, can be found within the Municipality, the Magistrate may, on the application of the Commissioners, issue his warrant to any officer of his Court for the distress and sale of any personal property or effects belonging to the defaulter within any other part of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, or for the distress and sale of any personal property belonging to the defaulter within the jurisdiction of any other Magistrate whatsoever, and such other Magistrate shall endorse the warrant so issued, and cause it to be executed, and the amount, if levied, to be remitted to the Magistrate issuing the warrant, who shall remit the same to the Commissioners.

Distress or sale not unlawful for want of form.

117. No distress or sale made under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser on account of any error, defect, or want of form in the bill, notice, summons, warrant of distress, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto.

Commissioners may bring suit instead of distraining or on failure of distress.

118. Instead of proceeding by distress and sale, or in case of failure to realize thereby the whole or any part of any tax, the Commissioners may sue the person liable to pay the same in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Irrecoverable taxes.

119. The Commissioners may order to be struck off the books the amount of any tax or rate which may appear to them to be irrecoverable.

Of the Tax on Carriages, Horses, and other Animals.

Tax on carriages, horses, and other animals.

120. When it has been determined that a tax on carriages, horses, and other animals specified in the fifth schedule shall be imposed, the Commissioners at a meeting shall make an order that every carriage, horse, and every other animal of the kind specified in the said schedule which is kept or habitually used within, or which is let for hire within or without the Municipality, and habitually used within it, shall pay the tax, and shall cause such orders to be published in the manner prescribed by section three hundred and fourty-seven.

Such order shall be published at least one month before the beginning of the half-year in which such tax shall first take effect; and shall specify at what rates, not exceeding the rates given in the said schedule, such tax shall be levied.

But such tax shall not be imposed on—

(a) horses or ponies belonging to officers doing regimental duty, at the rate of one animal for each officer;

(b) animals exempt from any Municipal tax under section 25 of the Indian Volunteers' Act, 1869;

(c) carriages or animals belonging to Government, or to the Municipality, or for keeping which for the execution of their duty an allowance is made by the Government or by the Commissioners to any of their officers;

(d) animals used by, or exclusively for the purposes of, any regiment;

(e) horses or ponies used by police officers, at the rate of not more than one for each officer;

(f) carriages, the wheels of which do not exceed twenty-four inches in diameter;

(g) carriages or animals kept for sale by any bonâ fide dealer in such carriages or animals, and not used for any other purpose.

Tax so fixed to continue in force until altered.

121. Any order of the Commissioners imposing a tax under the last preceding section shall continue in force until rescinded, and the tax shall be levied at the rates specified in the order published as aforesaid, unless and until the Commissioners at a meeting, held not less than fifteen days before the end of the year, make and publish an order specifying any different rates at which the tax shall be payable for the ensuing year.

Licenses how to be obtained.

122. In any Municipality in which a tax has been imposed under the last preceding section, the owner of every carriage, horse, and other animal specified in the said schedule shall, within the first month of each half-year, forward to the Commissioners a statement in writing, signed by him, containing a description of the carriages, horses, and other animals liable to the tax, for which he is bound to take out a license.

Such owner shall, at the same time, pay to the Commissioners such sum as shall be payable by him for the current half-year for the carriages, horses, and other animals specified in such statement, according to the rates specified in any order for the time being in force under the two salt preceding sections.

Proportionate tax on carriages, &c., acquired during half-year.

123. If any person acquires possession, at any time after the commencement of any half-year, of any carriage, horse, or other animal specified in the schedule, in respect of which no license has been given for such half-year, he shall forward a statement as above required within one month of the date on which he may have acquired possession thereof, and shall pay such amount of the tax as shall bear the same proportion to the whole tax for the half-year as the unexpired portion of the half-year bears to the half-year; and such amount shall be calculated from the date on which such person may have acquired possession as aforesaid.

On payment of tax Commissioners to give a license.

124. On receiving the amount of the tax due as aforesaid, the Commissioners, or some person authorised by them in that behalf, shall give to the person paying the same a license for the several carriages, horses, and other animals for the period in respect of which the amount is received.

Such license shall be for the current half-year and no longer.

Carriage, &c., liable to the tax although the owner be absent.

125. Whenever the owner of any carriage, horse, or other animal liable to pay the said tax is not resident within the limits of the Municipality to the Commissioners of which the tax is due, the person in whose immediate possession the carriage, horse, or other animal is for the time being kept shall take out a license for the same.

Penalty.

126. Whoever keeps, or is in possession of, any carriage, horse, or other animal, without the license required by the three last preceding sections, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable.

Commissioners may compound with livery stable-keepers.

127. The Commissioners, at their discretion, may compound, for any period not exceeding one year, with livery stable-keepers and other persons keeping carriages or animals for hire, for a certain sum to be paid for the carriages or animals so kept by such person, in lieu of the tax at the rates specified in any order made by the Commissioners under sections one hundred and twenty and one hundred and twenty-one.

List of persons licensed to be prepared.

128. The Commissioners shall, from time to time, cause to be prepared and entered in a book, to be kept by them, and to be open to the inspection of any person interested therein, a list of the persons to whom, during the then current half-year, a license has been given, and of the carriages, horses, and other animals in respect of which they have paid the tax

Power to inspect stable, &c., and to summon persons liable to the payment of the tax.

129. The Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may, at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter and inspect any stable or coach-house, or any place wherein they may have reason to believe that there is any carriage, horse, or other animal liable to the tax, for which a license has not been duly taken out.

And the Commissioners may summon any person whom they have reason to believe to be liable to the payment of any such tax, or any servant of such person, and may examine such person or servant as to the number and description of the carriages, horses, and other animals in respect of which such person is liable to be taxed.

Refund of tax in certain cases.

130. On proof being given to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that a carriage, horse, or other animal for which a license has been taken out for any half-year has ceased to be kept or to be used within the Municipality during the course of such half-year, the Commissioners shall order a refund of so much of the tax for the half-year as shall bear the same proportion to the whole tax for the half-year as the period during which such carriage, horse, or other animal has not been kept or used in the Municipality bears to the half-year; but no such refund shall be allowed unless notice be given to the Commissioners within one month of the time when such use of such carriage, horse, or other animal ceased, and the Commissioners shall pass no order for refund until after the close of the half-year in respect of which the refund is claimed.

Of the Registration of Carts.

Registration and number of carts.

131. The Commissioners at a meeting may make and publish an order that every cart, which is kept or habitually used within, or which is let for hire within or without the Municipality and habitually used within it, shall be registered by the Commissioners with the name and residence of the owner, and shall bear the number of registration in such manner as the said Commissioners shall direct:

Provided always, that such order shall be published at least one month before the beginning of the half-year in which such order for registration shall be enforced.

This section shall not apply to carts—

(a) which are the property of the Government or of the Municipality;

(b) which are kept without the limits of the Municipality, and are only temporarily and casually used within such limits;

(c) which are kept in Howrah or within the Suburbs of Calcutta.

132. The registration of carts under the last preceding section shall be made, and the numbers assigned yearly or half-yearly, upon such days as the Commissioners shall notify, and such fee as they shall from time to time fix and notify, not exceeding four rupees if the registration has effect for a year, and not exceeding two rupees if the registration has effect for half a year, shall be paid for each registration.

Fee for registration.

133. Any person becoming possessed of any cart which has not been registered for the then current period of registration, shall register the same within one month of the date on which he may have become possessed thereof, and the Commissioners shall grant registration in any such case on payment of such amount of the fees as shall bear the same proportion to the whole fee for the current period of registration as the unexpired portion of the current period of registration bears to the whole of such period; and such fee shall be calculated from the date on which such person may have become possessed as aforesaid.

Proportionate payment of fee.

134. When the ownership of any registered cart is transferred within any period of registration, it shall be registered anew within one month of the transfer in the name of the person to whom it has been transferred, and a fee not exceeding four annas shall be paid for every such last-mentioned registration.

Transfer of ownership.

135. Whoever keeps, or is in possession of, a cart not duly registered as required by the three last preceding sections, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount payable be him in respect of such registration, exclusive of the amount so payable; and whoever, being thy owner or driver of any cart, shall fail to affix thereto the registration number as required by section one hundred and thirty-one, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees.

Penalty.

136. If any person owns or keeps any cart hereinbefore required to be registered without having caused the same to be registered, the Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may seize and detain such cart (provided the same be not employed at the time of seizure in the conveyance of any passengers or goods), together with the animals drawing the same, and all police officers are required, on the application of the Commissioners, or of any servant of the Commissioners duly authorized in that behalf, to assist in the said seizure.

Seizure and sale of unregistered cart.

After such seizure the Commissioners shall forthwith issue a notice in writing that after the expiration of ten days they will sell such vehicle and animals by auction at such place as they may state in the notice; and if any registration fee, together with the cost arising from such seizure and custody, remains unpaid for ten days after the issue of such notice, the Commissioners may sell the property seized for payment of the said fee, and of all expenses occasioned by such non-payment, seizure, custody, and sale.

Any balance that may remain out of the proceeds of the sale shall be returned, on demand, if made within twelve months, to the owner of the property, and if unclaimed after such period, shall be credited to the Municipal Fund:

Provided that if, at any time before the sale is concluded, the person whose cart has been seized shall tender to the Commissioners, or to the person authorized by them to sell the cart, the amount of all the expenses incurred, and the registration fee payable by him, the Commissioners shall forthwith release the cart so seized.

Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the surplus of the sale proceeds of a cart seized under this section may be devoted to the payment of any fine imposed under the last preceding section; and any cart which has been seized under this section may be sold for the realization of any such fine.

Of Tolls on Ferries.

137. The Local Government may, with the consent of the Commissioners, make over to the Commissioners any existing public ferry within or adjacent to the limits of the Municipality, to be administered by such Municipality until the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

Existing public ferries.

Every ferry, while so administered, shall be deemed to be a Municipal ferry, and the profits derivable therefrom, or such part of the profits as shall be agreed upon between the Local Government and the Commissioners, shall be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

138. The Commissioners may also, with the sanction of the Local Government, declare that any other ferry within or adjacent to the limits of the Municipality is a Municipal ferry, and the profits derivable therefrom shall thenceforward be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund:

Other ferries may be declared to be Municipal.

Provided that due compensation shall be made by the Municipality to any person for the loss which he may have sustained in consequence of such ferry being declared to be a Municipal ferry.

The amount of compensation due in such cases shall be ascertained and awarded by the Magistrate under the provisions of section four of Bengal Act I of 1866 (to amend certain provisions of Regulation VI of 1819), or any similar law for the time being in force.

139. Every Municipal ferry shall be maintained by the Commissioners, and they shall do all things necessary to provide for the safety and convenience of travellers, and the safety of property to be conveyed on such ferry.

Duties of Commissioners in regard to such ferries.

140. When it has been determined to impose tolls on Municipal ferries, the Commissioners at a meeting shall make and publish an order specifying the ferries, and, with the sanction of the Central Board, the rates at which such tolls shall be levied.

Rate of tolls to be established and published.

Such rates may from time to time be varied with the like sanction.

141. No person shall be liable to pay any toll for crossing any river or stream at or near a Municipal ferry unless he avails himself of the means provided by the Commissioners for crossing such river or stream.

When persons crossing river not liable to toll.

142. Every lease of a ferry given by the Commissioners as hereinafter provided shall be liable to be cancelled at once, if it shall appear to the Commissioners at a meeting that the lessee has failed to make due provision for the convenience or safety of the public within fifteen days after being required to do so by a notice in writing from the Commissioners.

Cancellation of ferry lease, &c.

On the cancelment of a lease, the Commissioners may take possession of all boats and other appliances which have been used by the lessee in the working of the ferry; and may either retain the same permanently on payment of a fair price to the proprietor, or may retain them for such time as may be necessary, not exceeding three months, until they can make arrangements for such other boats and appliances as may be necessary, in which case the Commissioners shall pay a fair price to the owners for the use of the said boats and appliances:

Provided that within a week of taking such possession the Commissioners shall be bound to give notice to the said lessee of their intention to retain the said boats and appliances permanently, or for a period to be specified in the notice.

143. Any collector or lessee of tolls, or his agent, may refuse to convey any person or goods across a Municipal ferry until the proper toll has been paid, and may require any person who refuses to pay the toll to leave the boat and to remove his goods from it.

Toll must be prepaid.

Any person who refuses to leave a Municipal ferry-boat or to remove his goods therefrom when required to do so under this section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees.

Penalty.

144. No person shall keep a ferry-boat for the purpose of plying for hire within a distance of two miles above or below any Municipal ferry without the previous sanction, of the Commissioners, if he plies within the limits of the Municipality, of the Magistrate of the district, if without such limits, or of the Magistrate of the district and the Commissioners if one of the two banks between which he plies is within, and the other bank is without, such limits.

Keeping of unauthorised ferry.

This section shall not apply to any private ferry which may be in existence at the commencement of this Act.

145. Whoever keeps a ferry-boat contrary to the provisions of the last preceding section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding ten rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been required by a notice in writing to desist from such offence.

Penalty.

Of Tolls on Bridges and Roads.

146. The Local Government may, with the consent of the Commissioners, make over to the Commissioners any existing toll-bar within the limits of the Municipality, to be administered by the Municipality until the Local Government shall otherwise direct; every toll-bar while so administered shall be deemed to be a Municipal toll-bar, and the profits derivable from it, or such part thereof as shall be agreed upon between the Local Government and the Commissioners, shall be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

Existing toll-bars.

147. The Commissioners at a meeting, with the sanction of the Central Board, may establish a toll-bar and levy tolls on any bridge or metalled road which they may have constructed after the commencement of this Act, or at any place within the Municipality adjacent to such bridge or metalled road at which tolls may conveniently be levied on vehicles and animals passing over such bridge or road; and the profits derived therefrom shall be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund:

Commissioners may establish toll-bar.

Provided that no such toll-bar shall be established, or tolls levied, otherwise than for the purpose of recovering the expenses incurred in constructing such bridge or road, and in maintaining such bridge or road in repair for the five years next after the construction thereof, together with interest on such expenses as hereinafter provided.

148. Whenever a toll-bar shall have been established, and tolls shall be levied, as provided in the last preceding section, the Commissioners shall at the end of each year publish, by causing it to be posted up at their office, an abstract account shewing—

Commissioners to publish expenses, &c., of toll-bars.

(1) the amount of expenses incurred in the construction of such bridge or road, and in the maintenance of the same;

(2) the amount of interest which has accrued due thereon, at the annual rate of six per centum; and

(3) the amount which has been received from the profits of the said toll-bars since its establishment; and as soon as such expenses and interest shall have been recovered as aforesaid, such toll-bars shall be removed, and tolls shall no longer be levied on such bridge or road.

149. When it has been determined that tolls shall be levied on any such bridge or road, the Commissioners at a meeting shall make and publish an order, with the sanction of the Central Board, specifying the rates at which such tolls shall be levied.

Rates of tolls to be established and published.

Such rates may from time to time be varied with the like sanction.

150. Any collector or lessee of tolls may refuse to allow any person to pass through any Municipal toll-bar until the proper toll has been paid.

Power of collector or lessee in case of refusal to pay toll.

151. Whoever, having driven any vehicle or animal (not exempted from toll) through a toll-gate, refuses to pay the toll, or, with intent to evade payment of the toll, fraudulently avoids passing through such toll gate, shall be liable to a fine note xceeding fifty rupees.

Penalty for refusing to pay or avoiding payment of toll.

152. If the toll due on any vehicle or animal is not paid on demand, the person authorized to collect the same may seize such vehicle or animal, or any part of its burden, of sufficient value to defray the toll, and shall give immediate notice of such seizure to the Commissioners.

In case of non-payment of toll, vehicle, &c., may be seized and sold.

After such seizure the Commissioners shall forthwith issue a notice in writing that, after the expiration of ten days, they will sell the property seized by auction at such place as they may state in the notice; and if any toll, together with the cost arising from such seizure and custody, remain undischarged for ten days after the issue of such notice, the Commissioners may sell the property, seized, for discharge of the toll, and of all expenses occasioned by such non-payment, seizure, custody, and sale.

Any balance that may remain out of the proceeds of the sale shall be returned, on demand, if made within twelve months, to the owner of the property, and, if unclaimed after such period, shall be credited to the Municipal Fund:

Provided that if, at any time before the sale has been concluded, the person whose property has been seized shall tender to the Commissioners, or to the officer appointed by them to sell the property, the amount of all the expenses incurred and of the toll payable by him, the Commissioners shall forthwith release the property seized.

Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the surplus of the sale proceeds of any property seized under this section may be devoted to the payment of any fine imposed under the last preceding section; and any property which has been seized under this section may be sold for the realization of any such fine.

Of general provisions relating to Tolls on Ferries and Roads.

153. The Commissioners may grant a lease of any Municipal ferry or toll-bar for any period not exceeding three years.

Lease of ferry or toll-bar.

154. A table of tolls legibly written in the vernacular of the district shall be hung up

Table of tolls to be hung up.

in some conspicuous position at each end of every Municipal ferry, and in some conspicuous position near every Municipal toll-bar, so as to be easily read by all persons required to pay the toll.

155. Whoever, being a toll-collector or lessee of a Municipal ferry or toll-bar, neglects to hang up a table of tolls as required by the last preceding section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding ten rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been required by a notice in writing to desist from such offence.

Penalty.

156. The Commissioners, or the lessee of any Municipal ferry or toll-bar, may compound with any person for a certain sum to be paid by such person for himself, or for any vehicles or animals kept by him, in lieu of the ordinary toll payable.

Composition in respect of toll.

157. No tolls shall be paid for the passage of troops on the march, or of animals or vehicles employed in the transport of such troops, Exemptions.

or of military or Government stores, or the persons in charge of them, or of military or police officers, or of any public or Municipal officer on duty, or of any person in their custody, or of any property belonging to them or in their custody, or of any vehicle or animal employed by such persons for the transport of such property, or of conservancy carts or other vehicles, or animals belonging to the Commissioners, or of the persons in charge of them, or of any animals, whether belonging to Government or otherwise, which are attached to a regiment or a Military Department, and which pass through a toll-bar, provided that tolls shall be leviable for conveying such animals over a ferry; and the Commissioners or their lessees shall not be bound to allow any person or thing not specified above to cross a ferry or to pass a toll-gate without payment of the prescribed toll.

But the Commissioners at a meeting may exempt any other class of persons or things from payment of the said toll; and in granting a lease of any ferry or toll-bar may stipulate that any Municipal servants and property and any other persons or things shall be allowed to pass without payment of the toll.

158. In all cases of resistance to the person authorized to collect tolls, police officers shall assist when required, and for that purpose shall have the same powers as they have in the exercise of their ordinary police duties.

Police officers to assist.

159. Whoever, being authorized under this Act to collect tolls, demands or takes any higher tolls than the tolls authorized under this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and in default of payment to one month's imprisonment.

Penalty for taking unauthorized tolls.

160. If the Local Government has declared that the provisions of the Canals' Act, 1864, or any other similar law for the time being in force, are applicable to any navigable channel which passes through the limits of a Municipality, it may, with the consent of the Commissioners, appoint the Commissioners to collect tolls, as provided in section eight of the said Act, until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, and the profits derivable therefrom, or such part thereof as shall be agreed upon between the Local Government and the Commissioners, shall be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

Commissioners may be appointed to collect tolls in a navigable channel.

In such case the Commissioners shall exercise all the powers vested by such Act in the Collector.

161. The Local Government may at any time order that the Commissioners, or any person authorized by them, shall cease to levy any tolls under the last preceding section, and may at any time withdraw such order.

Local Government may order Commissioners to cease levying tolls.

PART V.

MUNICIPAL REGULATIONS WHICH SHALL BE GENERALLY IN FORCE IN ALL MUNICIPALITIES.

General.

162. The provisions of this Part shall be in force in every Municipality, unless and until the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

Operation of this Part.

163. The Local Government may at any time make an order directing that all or any of the said provisions shall not be in force in any Municipality, or in any part thereof; and the provisions mentioned in such order shall cease to be in force in such Municipality, or part thereof, from the date specified in such order.

Local Government may order provisions of this Part to be not in force in a Municipality.

The Local Government may at any time cancel or modify any order made under this section.

164. Whenever it is provided in this Part or in Part VI that the Commissioners or the Commissioners at a meeting may require the owners or the occupiers, or may require the owners and the occupiers, of any land to execute any work or to do anything within a specified time, such requisition shall be made, as far as possible, by a notice to be served as provided in sections three hundred and forty-nine and three hundred and fifty, on every owner or occupier who is required to execute such work or to do such thing; but, if there be any doubt as to the persons who are owners or occupiers, such requisition may be made by a notification to be posted up, on, or near, the spot at which the work is required to be executed or the thing done, requiring the owners or the occupiers, or requiring the owners and occupiers to execute such work or to do such thing within a specified time; and in such notification it shall not be necessary to name the owners or occupiers.

Procedure, when owners or occupiers required to execute works by Commissioners.

Every requisition as aforesaid shall give notice to the persons to whom it is addressed that, if they fail to comply with the requisition, or to prefer an objection against such requisition as provided in the next succeeding section, the Commissioners will enter upon the land and cause the required work to be executed, or the required thing to be done, and that in such case the expenses incurred thereby will be recovered from the persons who are required in such requisition to execute such work or do such thing.

165. Any person who is required by a requisition as aforesaid to execute any work or to do anything, may, instead of executing the work or doing the thing required, prefer an objection in writing to the Commissioners against such requisition within five days of the service of the notice or posting up of the notification containing the requisition; or, if the time within which he is required to comply with the requisition be less than five days, then within such less time.

Person required to execute any work may prefer objection to the Commissioners.

Except as provided in the next succeeding section, such objection shall be heard and disposed of by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

166. If the objection shall allege that the cost of executing the work or of doing the thing required will exceed three hundred rupees, such objection shall be heard and disposed of by the Commissioners at a meeting, unless the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall certify that such cost will not exceed three hundred rupees, in which case the objection shall be heard and disposed of by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman:

Procedure if person objecting alleges that work will cost more than Rs. 300.

Provided that in any case in which the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall have certified his opinion as aforesaid, and the objection shall in consequence thereof have been heard and disposed of by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, the person making the objection may, if the requisition made upon him is not withdrawn on the hearing of his objection, pay in the said sum of three hundred rupees to the Commissioners as the cost of executing the work or the thing required; whereupon such person shall be relieved of all further liability and obligation, in respect of executing the work or doing the thing required, and in respect of paying the expenses thereof; and the Commissioners themselves shall execute such work, or do such thing, and shall exercise all powers necessary therefor.

167. The Chairman or Vice-Chairman, or the Commissioners at a meeting, as the case may be, shall, after hearing the objection and making any inquiry which they may deem necessary, record an order withdrawing, modifying, or making absolute the requisition against which the objection is preferred, and if such order does not withdraw the requisition, it shall specify the time within which the requisition shall be carried out, which shall not be less than the shortest time which might have been mentioned under this Act in the original requisition.

Chairman, &c., may make order after hearing objection.

168. If the person making such objection be present at the office of the Commissioners, the said order shall be explained to him orally; and if such order cannot be so explained, notice of such order shall be served as provided in section three hundred and forty-nine on the person making the objection; and such explanation of, or service of, the notice of the said order shall be deemed a requisition duly made under this Act to execute the work or do the thing required.

Order to be explained orally.

169. If the person or persons required to execute the work or to do the thing fail, within the time specified in any requisition as aforesaid, to begin to execute such work or to do such thing, and thereafter diligently to continue the same to the satisfaction of the Commissioners until it is completed, the Commissioners or any person authorized by them in that behalf may, after giving forty-eight hours' notice of their intention by a notification to be posted up on or near the spot, enter upon the land and perform all necessary acts for the execution of the work or doing of the thing required; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners or by the occupiers, if such requisition was addressed to the owners or to the occupiers respectively, and by the owners and the occupiers, if such requisition was addressed to the owners and the occupiers.

Power of Commissioners on failure of person to execute work.

170. Whenever any expenses incurred by the Commissioners are to be paid by the owners of any land as provided in the last preceding section, the Commissioners may, if there be more than one owner, apportion the said expenses among such owners in such manner as to the Commissioners may seem fit.

Commissioners may apportion expenses among owners.

And whenever any such expenses are to be paid by the occupiers of any land, as provided in the last preceding section, the Commissioners may, if there be more than one occupier, apportion the said expenses among such occupiers in such manner as to the Commissioners may seem fit.

Apportionment among owners and occupiers.

171. Whenever any expenses incurred by the Commissioners are to be paid by the owners and occupiers of any land, as provided in section one hundred and sixty-nine, the Commissioners may apportion the said expenses among the said owners and occupiers in such manner as to the Commissioners may seem fit.

Recovery of expenses incurred or fee chargeable.

172. Any expenses incurred, or fee chargeable, by the Commissioners under this Part or Part VI, may be recovered from the person liable to pay the same as an arrear of tax under sections one hundred and nine to one hundred and eighteen (both inclusive).

The demand for such expenses or fee shall be made by notice at any time within three months from the date on which the amount thereof shall have been ascertained.

Occupier may recover cost of works executed at his expense from owner.

173. Whenever any works or any alterations and improvements of which the Commissioners are authorized by this Part or Part VI to require the execution, are executed by the occupier on the requisition of the Commissioners, or are executed by the Commissioners, and the cost thereof is recovered from the occupier, the cost thereof may, if the Commissioners shall certify that such cost ought to be borne by the owner, be deducted by such occupier from the next and following payments of his rent due or becoming due to such owner, or may be recovered by him in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Liability to pay expenses or fees may be contested in Civil Court.

174. Any owner or occupier of land may contest his liability to pay any expenses or fees under this Part or Part VI, or may contest the amount which he has been called upon to pay, in a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction;

Provided that the fact of such action having been instituted shall be no bar to the recovery of the said amount in the manner provided by section one hundred and seventy-two.

Damages and compensation how to be determined.

175. Where any damages or compensation are by this Act directed to be paid by the Commissioners, the amount, and if necessary, the apportionment of the same, in case of dispute, shall be ascertained and determined by a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction.

Method of proceeding before the Court.

176. In any such case which is to be determined by such Court, such Court may on the application of either party, summon the other party to appear at a time and place to be named in such summons.

Upon the appearance of the parties, or, in the absence of any of them, upon proof of due service of the summons, such Court may hear and determine such question, and, for that purpose may examine such parties or any of them, and their witnesses, on oath or affirmation, and the cost of every such inquiry shall be in the discretion of such Court, which shall determine the amount thereof.

Recovery of damages by distress.

177. If the amount of damages or compensation ascertained in the manner above described be not paid by the party liable to pay the same within seven days after demand, such amount may be recovered under a warrant of such Court by distress and sale of the moveable property of such party; and the surplus arising from the sale thereof, after satisfying such amount and the costs of the distress and sale, shall be returned on demand to the party whose property shall have been distrained.

Of Sewage, Offensive Matter, Rubbish, Privies, and Drains.

Establishments for removal of sewage, offensive matter and rubbish.

178. The Commissioners shall provide all establishments, cattle, carts, and implements required for the removal of sewage, offensive matter, and rubbish.

Hours and mode of removal of offensive matter.

179. The Commissioners at a meeting may, from time to time, by an order published as prescribed in section three hundred and forty-seven, appoint the hours within which it shall be lawful to remove offensive matter and the manner in which the same shall be removed, and may provide places convenient for the deposit thereof, and may require the occupiers of houses to cause the same to be deposited daily, or at other stated intervals, in such places, and may remove the same at the expense of the occupier from any house if the occupier thereof fails to do so in accordance with this Act.

Mehters must give one month's notice if they leave the service of the Commissioners.

180. Whenever such order shall have been published, no mehter, or other servant of the Commissioners employed to remove or deal with sewage offensive matter or rubbish, shall withdraw from his duties without the permission of the Commissioners, unless he has given notice in writing not less than one month previously of his intention so to withdraw.

Any mehter, or other such person who, after the said publication, withdraws from his duties without giving such notice as aforesaid, shall be liable to rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, and shall forfeit all salary which may be due to him.

Commissioners may appoint hours for placing rubbish on public road.

181. The Commissioners at a meeting may, from time to time, by an order published as prescribed in section three hundred and forty-seven, appoint the hours within which only every occupier of any house or land may place rubbish on the public road adjacent to his house or land in order that such rubbish may be removed by the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may charge such fees as they may think fit in respect of the removal of such rubbish, with the consent of the occupier of any house or land, from such house or land, or in respect of the removal from such public road of any rubbish which has accumulated in the exercise of a trade or business.

Drains, privies, &c., under control of Commissioners.

182. All drains, privies and cess-pools shall be subject to the inspection and control of the Commissioners.

183. The Commissioners, or any officer authorized by them in that behalf, may inspect all privies, drains, and cess-pools at any time between sunrise and sunset, after six hours' notice in writing to the occupier of any premises in which such privies, drains, or cess-pools are situated, and may, if necessary, cause the ground to be opened where they or he may think fit for the purpose of preventing or removing any nuisance arising from such privies, drains, or cesspools; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner or occupier of such premises.

Inspection of drains, privies, and cess-pools.

184. Whenever the Commissioners are satisfied that the existence of such privy, drain, or cess-pool is attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, they may direct the use of such disinfectants or deodorants as they shall specify in such privy, drain, or cess-pool in such quantities, or for such time as they shall think fit. The Commissioners shall, if necessary, themselves supply such disinfectants or deodorants for such use at cost price, and the expense thereby incurred shall be considered as an arrear of tax, and be recoverable as such from the owner of such privy, drain, or cess-pool; or the Commissioners may, if they think fit, order that such expense shall be paid from the Municipal Fund.

Commissioners may direct the use of disinfectants or deodorants for such drains, privies, &c., as are in a noxious state.

185. The Commissioners may provide and maintain, in sufficient numbers and in proper situations, common privies and urinals for the separate use of each sex, and shall cause the same to be kept in proper order and to be properly cleansed.

Common privies.

186. The Commissioners may license such necessaries for public accommodation as they from time to time may think proper.

Licensing of public necessaries.

187. Whenever any land being private property, or within any private enclosure, appears to the Commissioners, by reason of thick or noxious vegetation or jungle, or inequalities of surface, to afford facilities for the commission of a nuisance, or by want of drainage to be in a state injurious to health, or offensive to the neighbourhood, the Commissioners may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers of such land, within fifteen days, to clear and remove such vegetation or level such surface or drain such land:

Provided that if, for the purpose of effecting any drainage under this section, it shall be necessary to acquire any land not being the property of the person who is required to drain his land, or to pay compensation to any other person, the Commissioners shall provide such land and pay such compensation.

Power to require owners to clear noxious vegetation and to improve bad drainage.

188. All sewage, rubbish, and offensive matter collected by the Commissioners from roads, privies, sewers, cess-pools, and other places, shall be the property of the Commissioners, who shall have power to sell or otherwise dispose of the same; and the money arising from the sale thereof shall be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

All rubbish collected to be the property of Municipal Commissioners.

189. All existing public sewers, drains, and other conservancy works, shall be under the direction and control of the Commissioners, who shall have power to construct any further works of that nature which they may consider necessary.

Sewers, drains, &c., under control of the Commissioners.

Of Bathing and Washing Places and Tanks.

190. All streams, channels, water-courses, tanks, reservoirs, springs, and wells, not being private property, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be under the direction and control of the Commissioners.

All public streams, &c., to be under direction and control of the Commissioners.

191. The Commissioners may, by order published at such places as they may think fit, set apart convenient tanks, or parts of rivers, streams, or channels, not being private property, for the supply of water for drinking and for culinary purposes, and may prohibit therein all bathing, washing of clothes and animals, or other acts calculated to pollute the water set apart for the purposes aforesaid; and may similarly set apart a sufficient number of the same for the purposes of bathing; and a sufficient number for washing animals and clothes, or for any other purpose connected with the health, cleanliness, or comfort of the inhabitants.

The Commissioners may similarly take such order as they think fit with the private portion of any stream or channel used as a part of the public water-supply.

Bathing places, &c.

192. The Commissioners may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers, of any land, within eight days, or such longer period as the Commissioners may fix, to cleanse any water-course, private tank, or pool therein, and to drain off and remove any waste or stagnant water which may appear to be injurious to health or offensive to the neighbourhood:

Provided that if, for the purpose of effecting any drainage under this section, it shall be necessary to acquire any land not being the property of the person who is required to drain his land or to pay compensation to any other person, the Commissioners shall provide such land and pay such compensation.

Power to require unwholesome tanks on private premises to be cleansed or drained.

Of Obstructions and Encroachments of Roads.

193. The Commissioners may close temporarily any road or part of a road for the purpose of repairing such road, or for the purpose of constructing any sewer, drain, culvert, or bridge, or for any other public purpose:

Provided that the Commissioners so closing any road shall be bound to provide reasonable means of access for persons occupying holdings adjacent to such road.

Whenever, owing to such repairs or constructions, or from any other cause, any road or part of a road, shall be in a state which is dangerous to passengers, the Commissioners shall cause sufficient barriers or fences to be erected for the security of life and property, and shall cause such barriers or fences to be sufficiently lighted from sunset to sunrise.

Power to close a road or part of a road for repairs, or other public purpose.

Removal of future obstructions or encroachments in road.

194. The Commissioners may issue a notice requiring any person to remove any wall which he may have built, or any fence, rail, post, or other obstruction or encroachment, which he may have erected in, or on any road or open drain, sewer, or aqueduct, after the date on which the District Municipal Improvement Act, 1864, or the District Towns Act, 1868, or the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, as the case may be, took effect in the Municipality; or in case neither of the said Acts was in force in the Municipality before the commencement of this Act, then after the date on which this Act may have been extended thereto; and if such person shall fail to comply with such requisition within eight days of the receipt of the same, the Magistrate may, on the application of the Commissioners, order that such obstruction or encroachment be removed; and thereupon the Commissioners may remove any such obstruction or encroachment; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person who erected the same.

No person shall be entitled to compensation in respect of the removal of any wall, fence, rail, post, or other obstruction under this section.

Procedure when person who erected obstruction cannot be found.

195. If the person who built or erected the said wall, fence, rail, post, or other obstruction or encroachment is not known, or cannot be found, the Commissioners may cause a notice to be posted up in the neighbourhood of the said wall, fence, rail, post, or other obstruction or encroachment, requiring any person interested in the same to remove it, and it shall not be necessary to name any person in such requisition; and if the said wall, fence, rail, post, or other obstruction or encroachment be not removed in compliance with the requisition contained in such notice within eight days of the posting up of the same, the Magistrate may, on the application of the Commissioners, order that such obstruction or encroachment be removed; and thereupon the Commissioners may remove any such obstruction or encroachment, and may recover the cost of such removal by sale of the materials so removed.

Any surplus of such sale proceeds shall, on demand, be restored to the owners of such materials, and, if unclaimed, shall, after the lapse of one year, be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

Projections from houses erected in future to be removed.

196. The Commissioners may give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of any house requiring him to remove or alter any projection, encroachment, or obstruction erected or placed against or in front of such house which may have been so erected or placed after the date on which the District Municipal Improvement Act, 1864, or the District Towns Act, 1868, or the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, as the case may be, took effect in the Municipality, or in case neither of the said Acts was in force in the Municipality before the commencement of this Act, then after the date on which this Act may have been extended thereto, if the same overhangs the road, or juts into, or in any way projects or encroaches upon, or is an obstruction to the safe and convenient passage along any road; or obstructs or projects or encroaches into or upon any aqueduct, drain, or sewer in such road;

and if such owner or occupier shall fail to comply with such requisition within eight days of the receipt of the same, the Magistrate may, on the application of the Commissioners, order that such projection, encroachment, or obstruction be removed or altered, and thereupon the Commissioners may remove or alter such projection, encroachment or obstruction, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner or occupier so making default.

No person shall be entitled to compensation in respect of the removal of any projection, obstruction, or encroachment under this section.

Effect of order made under sections 201, 203, 204.

197. Every order made by the Magistrate under section one hundred and ninety-four, section one hundred and ninety five, or section one hundred and ninety-six shall be deemed to be an order made by him in the discharge of his judicial duty, and the Commissioners shall be deemed to be persons bound to execute such orders of a Magistrate within the meaning of Act XVIII of 1850 (for the protection of Judicial Officers).

Houses projecting beyond line of road or drain when taken down to be set back.

198. Whenever any house, part of which projects beyond the regular line of a road, or drain, or beyond the front of the house on either side thereof, shall be burnt down or otherwise destroyed, or shall be taken down in order to be rebuilt or repaired, the Commissioners may require the same to be set back to, or beyond, the line of the road, or drain, or the line of the adjoining house, and may pay reasonable compensation to the owner of such house if any damage shall be thereby sustained.

Fallen house, &c., obstructing road or drain, to be removed by owner.

199. Whenever any private house, wall, or other erection, or any tree, shall fall down and obstruct any public drain or encumber any public highway, the Commissioners may remove such obstruction or incumbrance at the expense of the owner of the same, or may require him to remove the same within such time as to the Commissioners shall seem fit.

Power to trim hedges and trees bordering roads.

200. The Commissioners may require the owner or occupier of any land within three days to trim or prune the hedges bordering on any road, and to cut and trim any trees overhanging any road and obstructing the same or causing damage thereto.

Of General Conservancy and Improvement.

Wells, tanks, &c., to be secured.

201. If any well, tank, or other excavation, whether on public or private ground, be, for want of sufficient repairs or protection, dangerous to passengers, the Commissioners shall forthwith, if it appears to them to be necessary, cause a temporary hoard or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers, and may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers, of the land on which such tank, well or other excavation is situated, forthwith properly to secure or protect such well, tank or other excavation.

Houses, &c., in a ruinous or dangerous state.

202. If any house, wall, structure, or anything affixed thereto, be deemed by the Commissioners to be in a ruinous state, or in any way dangerous, they shall forthwith, if it appears to them to be necessary, cause a proper hoard or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers, and may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers, of the land to which such house, wall or structure is affixed, forthwith to cause such repairs to be made to such house, wall or structure as they may consider necessary for the public safety, or to remove such house, wall, structure or thing affixed thereto.

Power to enter upon possession of houses so repaired.

203. If the Commissioners shall have caused any repairs to be made to any house or other structure, and if such house or other structure be unoccupied, the Commissioners may enter upon possession of the same, and may retain possession thereof until the sum expended by them on the repairs be paid to them.

Sale of materials of houses, &c., pulled down.

204. The materials of anything which shall have been pulled down or removed under the provisions of section two hundred and two may be sold by the Commissioners, and the proceeds of such sale may be applied, so far as the same will extend, to the payment of the expenses incurred.

Any surplus of such sale proceeds shall, on demand, be restored to the owner of such materials, and, if unclaimed, shall, after the lapse of three years, be carried to the credit of the Municipal Fund.

Stray dogs to be killed at certain appointed periods.

205. The Commissioners may, by published order, appoint from time to time certain periods within which any dogs without collars, or other marks distinguishing them as private property, found straying in the roads or beyond the enclosures of the houses of the owners of such dogs, may be destroyed; and such dogs may be destroyed in accordance with such order.

Commissioners may offer rewards for destruction of noxious animals.

206. The Commissioners at a meeting may offer rewards for the destruction of noxious animals within the limits of a Municipality.

Names of roads and numbers of houses.

207. The Commissioners at a meeting may cause a name to be given to any road and to be affixed in such place as they may think fit, and may also cause a number to be affixed to every house; and in like manner may from time to time cause such names and numbers to be altered.

Penalties.

Offences under sections 181 and 207.

208. Any person who, in any Municipality—

(1) places, or allows his servants to place, rubbish on a public road at other than the times appointed by the Commissioners under the provisions of section one hundred and eighty-one; or

(2) destroys, pulls down, defaces, or alters any name or number put up by the Commissioners under the authority of section two hundred and two, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty rupees.

Occupier not removing filth, &c.

209. Any person who, in any Municipality—

(1) being the occupier of a house in or near a public road, keeps, or allows to be kept, for more than twenty-four hours, otherwise than in some proper receptacle, any dirt, dung, bones, ashes, night-soil or filth, or any noxious or offensive matter, in or upon such house, or in any outhouse, yard or ground attached to and occupied with such house, or suffers such receptacle to be in a filthy or noxious state, or neglects to employ proper means to cleanse the same; or,

Offence under section 186

(2) keeps any public necessary without a license from the Commissioners under section one hundred and eighty-six; or having a license for a public necessary, suffers such necessary to be in a filthy or noxious state, or neglects to employ proper means for cleansing the same; or,

Not keeping private drain, &c., in proper order.

(3) being the owner or occupier of any private drain, privy or cess-pool, neglects or refuses, after warning from the Commissioners, to keep the same in a proper state; or,

Offence under section 191.

(4) disobeys an order passed by the Commissioners under the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-one; or,

Erecting obstruction.

(5) encroaches upon any road, drain, sewer, aqueduct, or water-course by making any excavation, or by erecting any wall, fence, rail, post, or other obstruction, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees.

Disobeying requisition under sections 194, 196 or 200.

210. Whoever, being an owner or occupier of any house or land within a Municipality, fails to comply with a requisition issued by the Commissioners under the provisions of sections one hundred and ninety-four, one hundred and ninety-six, or two hundred, shall be liable, for every such default, to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further penalty, not exceeding ten rupees, for every day during which the default is continued after the expiration of eight days from the date of service on him of such requisition.

Disobeying requisition under sections 187, 192, 201, or 202.

211. Whoever, being an owner or occupier of any house or land within a Municipality, fails to comply with any requisition issued by the Commissioners under the provisions of sections one hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and ninety-two, two hundred and one, or two hundred and two, shall be liable, for every such default, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees, and to a further penalty, not exceeding twenty rupees, for every day during which the default is continued after the expiration of eight days from the date of service on him of such requisition.

PART VI.

Of Special Regulations.

Operation of Parts VI, VII, VIII, IX or X.

212. No provision contained in this Part, or in Parts VII, VIII, IX or X, shall apply to any Municipality, unless and until it has been expressly extended thereto by the Local Government in the manner provided by the next succeeding section.

Local Government may order the provisions of those Parts to be in force.

213. The Commissioners may apply, in pursuance of a resolution passed at a meeting specially convened to consider the question, to the Local Government, to extend to the municipality all or any of the provisions of this Part, or of Parts VII, VIII, IX or X; or to exclude from the operation of the said provisions, or any of them, any place within the Municipality.

And the Local Government may thereupon order that such provisions shall be in force in the said Municipality.

Publication of order.

214. Every such order shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and the Commissioners shall, within fifteen days of such publication, cause a copy of the same, with a translation thereof into the vernacular of the district, to be posted up at their office, with a notice of the date on which such order shall take effect, and shall cause the same to be published as prescribed in section three hundred and forty-seven.

And the said provisions shall come into force in the Municipality from the date so fixed:

Provided that the date so fixed shall not be less than fifteen days after the publication under the said section, or more than three months after the publication of the order of the Local Government as aforesaid in the Calcutta Gazette.

Local Government may cancel or modify order.

215. The Local Government, on a similar application made by the Commissioners, may at any time cancel or modify an order made under section two hundred and thirteen and such cancellation or modification shall be published, and shall take effect in the manner prescribed by the last preceding section.

Of Privies, Drains, and Excavations

Commissioners may require owner or occupier to repair drain, &c.

216. The Commissioners may require the owners or occupiers, or the owners and occupiers, of any land, within fifteen days, to repair and make efficient any drain, privy or cess-pool, or to close any cess-pool which is situated on such land.

Privies must be properly enclosed.

217. Every person constructing a privy shall have such privy shut out by a sufficient roof and wall or fence from the view of persons passing by or residing in the neighbourhood: and the Commissioners may require any owner or occupier of land on which a privy stands to cause the same to be shut out from view as aforesaid within fifteen days.

Unauthorized drains leading into public sewers may be demolished.

218. If any person, without the written consent of the Commissioners first obtained, makes or causes to be made, or alters or causes to be altered, any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Commissioners, the Commissioners may cause such branch drain to be demolished, altered, re-made, or otherwise dealt with as they shall think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person making or altering such branch drain.

Commissioners may require owner to drain land.

219. If any land, being within one hundred feet of a sewer, drain or other outlet into which such and may, in the opinion of the Commissioners, be drained, is not drained to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, the Commissioners may require the owner, within one month, to drain the said land into such sewer, drain or outlet.

Group or block of houses, &c., may be drained by a combined operation.

220. If it appear to the Commissioners that a group or block of houses may be drained or improved more economically or advantageously in combination than separately, and a sewer, drain or other outlet already exists within one hundred feet of any part of such group or block of houses, the Commissioners may cause such group or block of houses to be drained and improved by a combined operation; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be recovered from the owners of such houses in such proportions as shall to the Commissioners seem fit.

Commissioners may alter any drain, &c., made contrary to their orders.

221. If any branch drain, privy or cess-pool be constructed contrary to the directions and regulations of the Commissioners, or contrary to the provisions of this Act, or if any person, without the consent of the Commissioners, constructs, re-builds or unstops any branch drain, privy or cess-pool which has been ordered by them to be demolished or stopped up, or not to be made, the Commissioners may cause such amendment or alteration to be made in any such drain, privy or cess-pool as they think fit, or may cause the same to be removed;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person by whom such drain, privy or cess-pool was improperly constructed, re-built or unstopped.

No latrine to be constructed within fifty feet of a tank.

222. No person shall, without the written permission of the Commissioners, construct or keep any latrine, urinal, cess-pool, house-drain or other receptacle for sewage, or other offensive matter, within fifty feet of any public tank, or a tank which the inhabitants of any locality use.

The Commissioners may require any owner and occupier upon whose land any latrine, urinal, cess-pool, house-drain or other receptacle so situated exists, or may hereafter be constructed, to remove the same within eight days.

Construction of privy.

223. No person shall, without the written permission of the Commissioners, construct a privy with a door or trap-door opening on to any road or drain. The Commissioners may require any owner or occupier upon whose land any such privy exists to remove the same within eight days.

224. The Commissioners at a meeting may by a general order prohibit the making of excavations for the purpose of taking earth therefrom, or for the purpose of storing rubbish or offensive matter therein, and the digging of cess-pools, tanks or pits without special permission previously obtained from them.

Power to prohibit excavations.

If any such excavation, cess-pool, tank or pit is made after the issue and publication of such order without such special permission, the Commissioners may require the owners and occupiers of the land on which such excavation, cess-pool, tank or pit is made, within eight days, to fill up such excavation.

Of Obstructions and Encroachments on Roads.

225. The Commissioners at a meeting may determine on the removal or alteration, as they shall think fit, of any projection, encroachment or obstruction which may have been erected or placed against, or in front of, any house or any road within the limits of the municipality before the date on which the District Municipal Act, 1864, or the District Towns, Act, 1868, or the Bengal Municipal Act, 1876, as the case may be, came into force in the Municipality, or in case neither of the said Acts was in force in the Municipality before the commencement of this Act, then before the date on which this Act may have been extended thereto.

Removal of existing projection from houses.

Notice in writing shall be given to the owner or occupier of such house requiring him to remove or alter the said projection, encroachment or obstruction, or to shew cause before the Commissioners why he should not be required so to do; and if such owner or occupier shall fail to comply with such requisition within thirty days of the receipt of the same, or if after such owner or occupier shall have shewn cause against being required to remove or alter the said projection, encroachment or obstruction the Commissioners shall make an absolute order directing such removal or alteration, and if such owner or occupier shall fail to comply with such order within fifteen days of the date of the same, the Magistrate may, on the application of the Commissioners, order such projection, encroachment or obstruction to be removed or altered; and thereupon the Commissioners may remove or alter such projection, encroachment or obstruction.

The Commissioners shall make reasonable compensation to every person who suffers damage by any removal or alteration under this section.

In determining the amount of compensation, the value of the land shall not be taken into consideration.

226. Every order made by the Magistrate under the last preceding section shall be deemed to be an order made by him in the discharge of his judicial duty, and the Commissioners shall be deemed to be persons bound to execute such orders of a Magistrate within the meaning of Act XVIII of 1850 (for the protection of Judicial Officers).

Effect of order made under the last preceding section.

227. The Commissioners may grant permission to any person to deposit any moveable property on any road, or to make an excavation in any road, or to enclose the whole or any part of any road, and may charge such fees as they may fix for such permission:

Leave to deposit materials on, or to excavate or close a road.

Provided that such person undertakes to make due provision for the passage of the public and to erect sufficient fences to protect the public from injury, danger or annoyance, and to light such fences from sunset to sunrise sufficiently for such purpose.

228. Every person intending to build or take down any house, or to alter or repair the outward part of any house, shall, if any public road will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, before beginning the same, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up in order to separate the house where such works are being carried on from the road, and shall keep such hoard or fence standing and in good condition, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night:

Hoards to be set up during repairs.

Provided that no person shall put up a hoard or fence without the written permission of the Commissioners, and shall not keep up the said hoard or fence for a time longer than allowed in the said written permission.

Of Building Regulations.

229. The Commissioners at a meeting may direct that, within certain limits, to be fixed by them, the external roofs and walls of huts or other buildings which are about to be erected, or the roofs or walls of which are about to be renewed or repaired, shall not be made of grass, leaves, mats, or other inflammable materials.

Roofs and external walls not to be made of inflammable materials.

230. Before beginning, within the limits of any Municipality, to build or re-build any house, the person intending to build or re-build such house shall give to the Commissioners notice thereof in writing, with a general description of the building proposed to be erected. The Commissioners may, if they think fit, require the person giving such notice to submit to them a plan, shewing the levels and width at which the foundation and lowest floor of such house are proposed to be laid, by reference to some level ascertained under the direction of the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may direct that such house shall not be commenced without their sanction.

Notice of new buildings to be given to the Commissioners.

231. Within fourteen days after receiving such plan as is mentioned in the last preceding section, the Commissioners shall signify their approval of the proposed levels and width of foundation, or if they disapprove thereof, they shall fix other levels and width of foundation in lieu thereof within the same time.

Commissioners to signify disapproval within fourteen days.

232 If such building as is mentioned in section two hundred and thirty be begun or made without sending such notice, and, (if a plan is required), such plan, as are mentioned in the said section, or at any levels different from Houses built without notice, or contrary to provisions of this Act, may be altered by the Commissioners.

those fixed by the Commissioners, within the said fourteen days, or in any other respect contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Commissioners may require the owner or occupier to cause such building to be altered or demolished, as the case may require.

If Commissioners fail to signify approval, &c., within fourteen days, parties may proceed without.

233. If the Commissioners fail to signify in writing their approval or disapproval of the levels and width of foundation shewn on such plan as is mentioned in the last preceding section, and to fix other levels and width of foundation within fourteen days after receiving such plan as aforesaid, the person giving such notice may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, proceed to build or re-build the house therein referred to, according to the levels and width of foundation shewn on such plan:

Provided that such building or re-building be otherwise in accordance with this Act.

The word "house" in this and the three last preceding sections does not include a hut.

Erection of new huts to be under the control of the Commissioners.

234. It shall not be lawful for any person to erect a hut, or any range or block of huts or sheds, or to add any hut or shed to any range or block already existing, or to enlarge any existing hut, without previous notice to the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may require such huts or sheds to be built so that they may stand in regular lines, with a free passage or way in front of and between each line, of such width as they may think proper for ventilation and to facilitate scavengering, and with such number of privies, and with such means of drainage, as to them may seem necessary, and at such a level as will admit of such drainage, and with a plinth at least two feet above the level of the nearest street.

Power to direct removal of huts built without notice.

235. If any such huts or sheds be built without giving such notice to the Commissioners, or otherwise than as required by the Commissioners, the Commissioners may require the owners of the land on which such huts and sheds are built, and the occupiers of such huts and sheds, to take down and remove the same within one month, or to effect such alterations as they may deem necessary.

Of Sanitary Measures with regard to Blocks of Huts.

Power of Commissioners as to inspection of huts.

236. Whenever the Commissioners at a meeting are satisfied, from inspection, or by report of competent persons, that any existing block of huts within the Municipality is, by reason of the manner in which the huts are constructed or crowded together, or of the want of drainage and the impracticability of scavengering, attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants or the neighbourhood, they may cause the locality to be inspected by two Medical Officers, who shall make a report in writing on the sanitary condition of the said block of huts, and shall specify, if necessary, in the said report, the huts which should be removed, the roads, drains, and sewers which should be constructed, and the low lands which should be filled up, with a view to the removal of the said risk of disease.

On receipt of report Commissioners may cause notice to be served.

237. On receipt of the said report the Commissioners at a meeting may require the owners or occupiers of the huts, or at the option of the Commissioners, the owner of the land on which such huts are built, to carry out and execute, within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the Commissioners for such purpose, all or any of the works specified in the aforesaid report or any portion thereof respectively, and if such owner, owners, or occupiers shall fail to comply with such requisition, the Commissioners themselves may execute all or any of such works.

Expenses may be recovered by instalments or remitted in case of poverty.

238. The Commissioners at a meeting may order that any expenses payable in respect of any work done by them in consequence of the failure of the owners or occupiers to execute such work when required to do so under the last preceding section, shall be recovered by instalments from the person liable to pay the same; or if it should appear to them that the said person is unable by reason of poverty to pay the same, may order the same, or any portion thereof, to be paid out of the Municipal Fund.

Sale of huts.

239. If any of the said huts be pulled down, the Commissioner shall cause the materials of each hut to be sold separately, if such sale can be effected, and the proceeds shall be paid to the owner of the hut, or, if the owner be unknown, or the title disputed, shall be held in deposit by the Commissioners, until the person interested therein shall obtain the order of a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction for the payment of the same.

If Commissioners fail to act, Central Board may take steps.

240. In case the Commissioners should omit to take any action under sections two hundred and thirty-six and two hundred and thirty-seven, or, in the opinion of the Central Board, should fail to give proper effect to the provisions thereof, the Central Board may cause any block of huts to be inspected by one of its Inspectors, who shall make a report in writing to the Central Board on the sanitary condition of the locality, and in the event of his reporting that the sanitary condition of the locality is such as to be attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants or the neighbourhood, shall specify the huts which should be removed, the roads, drains, and sewers which should be constructed, and the low lands which should be filled up, with a view to the removal of the said risk of disease.

On receipt of report Central Board may order Commissioners to serve notice on owners.

241. On receipt of the said report, the Central Board may order the Commissioners to require the owners or occupiers of the huts, or the owner of the land on which such huts are built, to carry out and execute, within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the Central Board for such purpose, all or any of the works specified in the said report, or any portion thereof respectively, and a requisition made by the Commissioners in accordance with such order shall be deemed to be a requisition made under section two hundred and thirty-seven.

If Commissioners make default in carrying out order, Central Board may carry it out.

242. If the Commissioners make default in carrying out the said order of the Central Board, the Central Board may appoint some officer to perform the same, and such officer may exercise such powers as the Commissioners or the Commissioners at a meeting might have exercised in respect of the execution of the required works, and in respect of the recovery of the expenses incurred thereby, and shall be liable to all or any of the obligations imposed upon the Commissioners by section two hundred and thirty-nine, and the expenses incurred by such officer in the execution of the said works shall, subject to the provisions of section two hundred and thirty-eight, be paid by the owners or occupiers of the huts, or the owner of the land, as the Central Board may direct.

Of the Regulation of the Sale of Food, Drink, and Drugs.

Markets, slaughter houses, &c., to be properly drained.

243. Every owner, or occupier, or farmer, of any place for the sale of meat, poultry, fish, or vegetables, or of any slaughter-house, within the limits of a municipality, shall cause such drains to be made therein as shall be considered sufficient by the Commissioners, and (if required so to do by the Commissioners) shall cause all the floors and drains to be paved with stone or burnt brick, and shall also cause a supply of water to be provided, sufficient for keeping such place or slaughter-house in a clean and wholesome state.

Sale of unwholesome food or drink.

244. Any Magistrate, on the application of the Commissioners or any of their officers, setting forth that there is just cause to believe that any article which has been rendered, or has become noxious or unfit for use as food or drink for man, is in the possession of any person for the purpose of being sold or offered, or exposed for sale, within the limits of a municipality, as food or drink for man, may grant a warrant to enter upon the premises of such person, and to search for and seize such article; and if it appear to the said Magistrate that the same is noxious or unfit for such use, he shall order it to be forfeited and disposed of in such way as to him shall seem proper.

Power to Commissioners to enter and inspect markets, shops, &c., and to seize unwholesome articles exposed for sale.

245. The Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at all reasonable times, enter into and inspect any market, buildings, shop, stall, or place used for the sale of meat, poultry, fish, vegetables, corn, bread, flour, wine, spirits, butter, ghee, or other food or drink, or as a slaughter-house, and may examine any of the aforesaid articles of food or drink which may be therein; and in case any of the aforesaid articles of food or drink appear to be intended for the food or drink of man, and to be unfit for such food or drink, may seize the same;

and if it appear to a Magistrate that any of the aforesaid articles of food or drink is unfit for the food or drink of man, he shall order the same to be destroyed, or to be so disposed of as to prevent its being exposed for sale or used for such food.

Registry of shops for sale of European drugs.

246. No shop or place shall be kept for the retail sale of drugs recognized by the British Pharmacopœia, not being also articles of ordinary domestic consumption, unless the same shall have been registered in the Office of the Commissioners. Any keeper of such shop or place failing to register the same within two months after this section shall come into force, or within two months from the date of the establishment of such place, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees. The Commissioners shall, upon registration, grant the keeper of such shop or place a license which he shall be bound to display in some conspicuous part of his premises.

Certificated dispensers.

(2). No person shall compound, mix, prepare, dispense, or sell any drug in any such registered shop or place unless he be duly certified as a fit person to be entrusted with such duties under rules to be hereafter made for that purpose by the Local Government:

Provided that the provisions contained in clause (2) of this section shall not come into operation until after the expiration of a period of six months from the publication of a notification to that effect in the Calcutta Gazette by the Local Government.

Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to apply to the sale of drugs used by practitioners of indigenous medicines, whether these are recognized by the British Pharmacœpia or not, when such drugs are not sold in a shop or place where medicines recognized by such Pharmacœpia are dispensed upon prescription.

Inspection of drugs.

247. The Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may, at all reasonable times, enter into and inspect any place kept for the sale of drugs, or in which drugs are sold, and if they have reason to suspect that any drug in the said place is adulterated, or by reason of age or the effect of climate has become inert or unwholesome, or has otherwise become deteriorated in such a manner as to lessen its efficacy, to change its operation, or to render it noxious, may remove the same on giving a receipt therefor, specifying the nature and quantity of the drug removed, and its approximate value; and if it appear to a Magistrate that the said drug removed as aforesaid is adulterated or has become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, he may order the same to be destroyed, or to be so disposed of as to him may seem fit.

Compensation if drug be not adulterated.

If it shall appear to the said Magistrate that the drug so removed is not adulterated or has not become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, the person from whose shop or place it has been taken shall be entitled to have it restored to him, and it shall be in the discretion of the said Magistrate to award him such compensation as he may think proper, not exceeding the actual loss which has been sustained.

If the drug removed as aforesaid is not brought before a Magistrate, it shall be restored to the person from whose shop or place it was taken, and such person shall be entitled to compensation for any actual loss which he may have sustained by the removal of the said drug.

Of Burial and Burning-Grounds.

Registration of existing burial and burning-grounds.

248. Within three months from the date on which this and the six next succeeding sections may come into force as provided in section two hundred and fourteen, every place which is used as a burial or burning-ground for corpses shall be registered as such by the owner thereof in the Office of the Commissioners, but no fee shall be charged for such registry.

No burial or burning-place henceforth to be formed without leave of Government or of Commissioners.

249. No burial or burning-ground, whether public or private, shall be made or formed, or, having lapsed into disuse, shall be again used as such, otherwise than with the permission of the Commissioners, or under the authority of the Central Board.

Commissioners may order certain burial or burning-grounds to be closed.

250. If it shall appear to the Commissioners at a meeting that any public or private burial or burning-ground is dangerous to health or offensive to the tax-payers, or to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, and also that a suitable place for interment or burning, as the case may be, exists within a convenient distance, and is open and available to the inhabitants of the Municipality, the Commissioners shall give public notice of their intention to close such burial or burning-ground, and shall consider any objections which may be preferred within fifteen days of the publication of such notice; after considering such objections they may, by notification to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the ground, appoint a time, not being less than two months, for the closing of such burial or burning-ground.

If any building is attached to, and used in connection with, a burning-ground closed under this section, the Commissioners shall, if the owner of such building make an application to them in that behalf, take over the same on payment of a fair price therefor.

Prohibition to bury or burn in unregistered ground.

251. After the expiration of the three months, as mentioned in section two hundred and forty-eight, no corpse shall be buried or burnt otherwise than in a place which is borne on the register of the Commissioners as an open burial or burning-ground; but the Commissioners may grant special permission for a corpse to be buried or burnt elsewhere.

Power to burn or bury corpse after a certain time an expense of estate of deceased.

252. If the corpse of any deceased person shall, for a period of not less than twenty-four hours, remain unburnt or unburied, the Commissioners shall cause such corpse to be burnt, buried, or otherwise disposed of, and the expense incurred for and incidental to the burning, burial, or disposal of such corpse shall be recoverable as a debt due from the estate (if any) of such deceased person. In every such case the corpse shall be disposed of, so far as may be possible, in a manner consistent with the religious tenets of the deceased.

Commissioners may provide places to be used as burial or burning-grounds.

253. The Commissioners at a meeting may, from time to time, out of the Municipal Fund, with the sanction of the Central Board, provide fitting places to be used as burial or burning grounds, and may impose a fee not exceeding two rupees upon every corpse buried or burnt within such burial or burning grounds.

Commissioners may provide for burial of paupers free of charge.

254. The Commissioners at a meeting may, from time to time, out of the Municipal Fund, provide for the burial and burning of paupers free of charge, within the limits of the Municipality.

Of certain Offensive and Dangerous Trades or Occupations.

Certain offensive and dangerous trades not to be established within limits to be fixed by the Commissioners without license.

255. Within such local limits as may be fixed by the Commissioners at a meeting, no place shall be used without a license from the Commissioners, which shall be renewable annually, for any of the following purposes, namely—melting tallow;

boiling offal or blood;

skinning or disembowelling animals;

as a soap-house, oil-boiling house, dyeing-house;

as a tannery, slaughter-house, or kiln for making bricks, pottery, tiles, or lime;

as a manufactory or place of business from which offensive or unwholesome smells may arise;

as a yard or depôt for trade in hay, straw, wood, thatching-grass, jute, or other dangerously inflammable material;

as a store-house for kerosine, petroleum, naphtha, or any inflammable oil or spirit;

as a shop for the sale of meat; or as a serai.

Such license shall not be withheld unless the Commissioners have reason to believe that the business which it is intended to establish or maintain would be offensive or dangerous to persons residing in or frequenting the immediate neighbourhood.

The Commissioners may levy a fee in respect of such license and may impose such conditions upon the license as they may think necessary.

Commissioners may, in certain cases, order the use of slaughter-houses and the carrying on of dangerous and offensive trades, to be discontinued.

256. If it be shewn to the satisfaction of the Commissioners at a meeting that any place licensed under section two hundred and fifty-five, is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, they may, notwithstanding anything contained in the said section, give notice to the occupier to discontinue the use of such place within one month after the date of such notice.

Milkman, &c., not to keep animals or cattle without license.

257. Within such limits as the Commissioners at a meeting may determine, no milkman, cartman, livery stable-keeper or keeper of hackney carriages shall keep any horses, ponies, or cattle, exceeding in number ten heads, for the purposes of trade, or of business, except in a place licensed by the Commissioners.

Such license shall be taken out half-yearly, in the first and seventh month in every year.

It shall be in the discretion of the Commissioners in meeting to grant any such license subject to such conditions as they may think fit.

258. The Commissioners may provide public stables for the accommodation of horses and cattle, and may direct that, within such limits as they shall at a meeting determine, no person shall keep horses or cattle exceeding in number ten heads, for the purposes of trade or business, except in such public stables.

Commissioners may provide public stables.

The Commissioners may charge such reasonable fees as they shall think fit for the use of such public stables.

259. Within such limits as the Commissioners may direct, no person shall keep any pig-stye not being shut out from a road by a sufficient wall or fence, and in no place within such limits shall more than ten pigs or more than twenty sheep or goats be kept without the written permission of the Commissioners.

Conditions for keeping pig-stye.

The Commissioners may charge an annual fee not exceeding two rupees for such permission, and may impose such conditions in respect of such permission as they may think necessary.

Penalties.

260. Any person constructing a privy within a Municipality, and failing to have it shut out from view, as in section two hundred and seventeen required, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Failing to shut out privy from view.

261. Whoever erects a hut, or any range or block of huts or sheds, or adds to any hut or shed, or to any range or block already existing, contrary to the provisions of section two hundred and thirty-four, and whoever fails to remove such hut, block of huts, or shed, when required by the Commissioners as to do so, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every such offence and to a further fine, not exceeding five rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Erecting huts without notice.

262. If any owner, occupier or farmer of any place for the sale of meat, poultry, fish or vegetables, or of any slaughter-house, within the limits of a Municipality, after notice in writing given to him by the Commissioners that such place or slaughter-house is defective in any of the particulars specified in section two hundred and forty-three, and requiring him to remedy the defect specified within not less than thirty days, makes default therein, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which such default is continued after the expiration of the period mentioned in such notice.

Disobeying requisition under section 243.

263. If any person, in order to provide for the passage of water, or for any other purpose, shall, without the consent of the Commissioners, dig or cut up any public road or thoroughfare, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees, and shall in addition be bound to pay the expenses incurred in filling up any excavation made by him or on his behalf in any such public road or thoroughfare.

Cutting up road for passage of water.

264. Whoever, within a Municipality,—

(1) without the permission of the Commissioners, throws, or puts, or permits his servants to throw or put, any sewage or offensive matter on to any road, or who throws or puts, or permits his servants to throw or put, any earth, rubbish, sewage or offensive matter into any sewer or drain belonging to the Commissioners, or into any drain communicating therewith; or,

Throwing rubbish into sewers.

(2) causes or allows the water of any sink, sewer or cesspool, or any other offensive matter belonging to him or being on his land, to run, drain, or be thrown or put upon any road, or causes or allows any offensive matter to run, drain, or be thrown into a surface drain near any road; or,

Allowing water of any sewer, &c., to run on any road.

(3) constructs a latrine, urinal, cesspool, house-drain, or privy, in contravention of the provisions of sections two hundred and twenty-two or two hundred and twenty-three; or,

Constructing latrine, &c., in contravention of sections 222 and 223.

(4) without the written permission of the Commissioners, digs or makes, or causes or suffers to be dug or made, any excavation, cesspool, tank, or pit, in contravention of the provisions of section two hundred and twenty-four, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees.

Making excavations.

265. Whoever, within a Municipality, fails to comply with a requisition issued by the Commissioners under the provisions of sections two hundred and seventeen, two hundred and twenty-two, or two hundred and twenty-three, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding five rupees, for every day during which he shall continue to make such default after service on him of such requisition.

Disobeying requisition under sections 217, 222, and 223.

266. Whoever, within a Municipality,—

(1) without the written consent of the Commissioners previously obtained, makes or causes to be made, or alters or causes to be altered, any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Commissioners by this Act; or,

Altering, &c., drains leading to public sewers.

(2) constructs any branch drain, privy or cesspool contrary to the directions and regulations of the Commissioners or contrary to the provisions of this Act; or, without the consent of the Commissioners, constructs, rebuilds or unstops any drain, privy or cesspool which has been ordered by them to be demolished or stopped up or not to be made;

Making drains contrary to the orders of the Commissioners.

shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

267. Whoever, in a Municipality,—

(1) begins to build, or to take down, or alter or repair, any house contrary to the provisions of section two hundred and twenty-eight, or without license, erects or sets up any board, scaffolding or fence whatsoever, or

Offence under section 228.

who, being licensed, fails to put up such fence or hoard, or to continue the same standing, or to maintain the same in good condition, or who does not, while such hoard or fence is standing, keep the same sufficiently lighted during the night, or who does not remove the same within eight days, when directed by the Commissioners; or,

Offence under section 255.

(2) without a license uses any place for any of the purposes specified in section two hundred and fifty-five; or,

Offence under section 257.

(3) being the holder of a license under section two hundred and fifty-seven, breaks the condition of such license; or,

Offence under section 259.

(4) keeps any pig-stye, pigs, sheep or goats contrary to the provisions of section two hundred and fifty-nine;

shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding ten rupees, for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

268. Whoever, within a Municipality,—

Keeping horses, &c., without license.

(1) being a milkman, cartman, livery stable-keeper or keeper of hackney carriages, keeps any horses, ponies or cattle without such license as is prescribed in section two hundred and fifty-seven; or,

Offence under section 258.

(2) after the issue of an order under section two hundred and fifty-eight, keeps horses or cattle, exceeding in number ten heads, for the purposes of trade or business, except in such public stables as in the said section specified;

shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding twenty rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Burying or burning corpse in unregistered grounds.

269. Whoever, within a Municipality, after the expiration of the period mentioned in section two hundred and fifty-one, knowingly buries or burns, or causes, procures or suffers to be buried or burned, any corpse in or on any ground not registered as a burial or burning ground, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees

Offence under section 246.

270. Whoever, within a Municipality, uses any such place as is mentioned in section two hundred and forty-six, without the same being registered, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding twenty rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Uncertificated persons dispensing drugs.

271. Whoever, within a Municipality, not being the holder of such certificate as is mentioned in section two hundred and forty-six, clause (2), shall compound, mix, prepare or sell any drugs in any registered shop or place, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for each offence, and any owner, occupier or keeper of any such shop or place, who shall employ any such uncertified person to perform any one or more of such duties, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and shall be further liable, at the discretion of such Magistrate, to forfeit his license:

Provided that this section shall not come into operation until after the expiration of a period of six months from the publication of a notification to that effect in the Calcutta Gazette by the Local Government.

Disobeying notice under section 256.

272. Whoever, within a Municipality, after the expiration of the time specified in a notice issued by the Commissioners under the provisions of section two hundred and fifty-six, uses or permits to be used, the place specified in such notice in such a manner as to be a nuisance to the neighbourhood, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding forty rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Suspension or revocation of license, &c.

273. Any Magistrate before whom any person is convicted of an offence contrary to the provisions of this Act relating to the use of any place for a purpose for which a license is required, or of the non-observance of any of the bye-laws relating thereto made under this Act, in addition to the fine which may be imposed on such person under this Act, may suspend, for any period not exceeding two months, any such license, and the Commissioners, upon the conviction of any person for a second or other subsequent like offence, may cancel his license.

PART VII.

Of a Water-supply.

The Commissioners to provide water-supply.

274. In any Municipality to which the provisions of this Part shall be extended, the Commissioners shall provide a supply of water within the limits of the Municipality; and for this purpose it shall be lawful for them to cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such tanks, reservoirs or other works to be made and constructed, as shall be necessary for the supply of filtered water in the chief public streets; and they may also erect in all such streets sufficient and convenient stand-pipes or pumps for the use of the inhabitants of the Municipality for domestic purposes.

What are not domestic purposes.

275. A supply of water for domestic purposes shall not include a supply of water for animals or for washing carriages, where such animals or carriages are kept for sale or hire, or a supply for any trade, manufacture, or business, or for watering gardens or roads, or for any ornamental or mechanical purpose.

Pressure at which water must be kept.

276. The Commissioners at a meeting shall determine what pressure of water shall be maintained in their service pipes and mains, and during what hours such pressure shall be continued: and any rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Commissioners may direct, and shall not be altered except with the sanction of the Commissioners at a meeting.

Supply for business.

277. The Commissioners may supply water through a meter for purposes other than domestic purposes, and may, subject to such charges and rates as may have been fixed by the Commissioners at a meeting, lay down, or allow to be laid down, the necessary pipes and works of such dimensions and character as may be approved by them.

Householder entitled to certain supply of water for domestic use.

278. The Commissioners at a meeting may determine what quantity of filtered water shall be supplied to the occupier of every house, free of further charge, for every rupee paid to the Commissioners as water-rate on account of such house.

If the Commissioners have reason to believe that the occupier of any house consumes more filtered water than he is entitled to as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for them to provide a water meter at their own expense, and to attach the same to the water-pipes of the said house: and any water which may be used over and above the quantity to which the occupier is entitled as aforesaid, shall be paid for by him at such rate as the Commissioners at a meeting may determine.

Commissioners may provide filtered or unfiltered water for latrines.

279. It shall be at the option of the Commissioners to provide filtered or unfiltered water for all latrines and water-closets, and it shall be lawful for them to require that all latrines and water-closets supplied with water, filtered or unfiltered, shall be provided with a cistern of such size and description as the Commissioners shall direct, and all such cisterns shall be put up at the cost of the owner of the house or land so supplied with water.

Communication-pipes, &c., to be made of required dimensions, and at expense of householder.

280. Every person paying the water-rate hereinbefore mentioned shall be entitled to lay down communication-pipes from the service pipes of the Commissioners for bringing into his house or land a reasonable supply of water for domestic use:

Provided that the Commissioners shall be at liberty to cut off the supply of water to any house or land during the time the said house or land is unoccupied.

Such communication-pipes and the pipes and works within the house connected therewith, shall be of such character, dimensions, and materials as the Commissioners shall fix and approve; and shall be made and constructed at the expense of the person requiring the same.

Communication-pipes, &c., must be made to satisfaction of officers of the Commissioners.

281. The communication-pipes and all fittings thereon leading water from the service pipes of the Commissioners into any house or land, and the pipes, works, and fittings inside the house or land, must in all cases be executed subject to the inspection and satisfaction of the Commissioners.

Such communication pipes, works, and fittings may be made by the servants and workmen of the Commissioners upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the Commissioners and the person requiring the supply, or subject to such charges as may be fixed by the Commissioners; and the Commissioners may require the amount necessary for the execution of such works to be paid or deposited before such works are executed:

and such charges and expenses shall be recoverable in the same manner as the water rate.

Power to enter premises.

282. Any officer authorized in that behalf by the Commissioners may, between the hours of seven in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, enter into or on any house or land supplied with water as aforesaid in order to examine all pipes, works, and fittings connected with the supply of water, and to ascertain whether there be any waste or misuse of such water:

and if such officer at any such time be refused admittance into such house or land for the purposes aforesaid, or be prevented from making such examination, the Commissioners may forthwith cut off the supply of water from such house or land:

Provided that nothing hereinbefore contained shall authorize an entry into any room appropriated for the zenana or residence of women, which, by the custom of the country, is considered private, unless a notice in writing of not less than four hours be given.

When pipes are out of repair, Commissioners may turn off water.

283. In the event of any pipes, works or fittings connected with the supply of water to any house or land being at any time found on examination by any officer of the Commissioners authorized in that behalf to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause waste of water, the Commissioners may cause the water to be turned off from such house or land, after giving notice in writing of not less than twenty-four hours, and may recover from the occupier of such house or land the expense incurred for turning off the water.

Water may be cut off on neglect to pay the rate.

284. If any person supplied with water shall neglect to pay the water-rate hereinbefore mentioned at the times of payment thereof, or the charge made for the said water, when supplied for other than domestic purposes, the Commissioners may turn off the water from the house or land in respect of which such rate or charge is payable, and may recover the expense of turning off the water from such person:

Provided that the stopping or cutting off the supply of water shall not relieve any person from any penalties or liabilities which he may have incurred.

Occupier in whose house water is wasted liable to penalty.

285. The occupier of any house or land in which water supplied by the Commissioners under this Part is, from negligence or other circumstances under the control of the said occupier, wasted, or in whose house or land the pipes, works or fittings for the supply of water shall be found to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause waste of water, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Person causing waste of water liable to penalty.

286. Any person otherwise causing waste of water supplied by the Commissioners shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees.

Commissioners at their discretion may allow person outside the town to take water.

287. It shall be within the discretion of the Commissioners to allow any person not residing within the limits of the Municipality to take or be supplied with water for domestic use on such terms as the Commissioners in meeting may from time to time prescribe;

Penalty.

and any person taking or causing to be taken for use, outside the limits of the Municipality, water supplied by the Commissioners, without the permission of the Commissioners, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

Before connection an officer of the Commissioners to cause all works and pipes to be inspected.

288. Before a connection for the supply of water from the service pipes of the Commissioners to any house or land is sanctioned, the Commissioners may cause all the works, pipes, and fittings within the said house or land to be inspected by an officer appointed by them in that behalf; and the cost of such inspection shall be payable in advance by the person applying for such connection at such rates as the Commissioners in meeting shall from time to time direct;

and until such officer shall have certified to the Commissioners that the works, pipes, and fittings have been executed and put up in a satisfactory manner, a connection with the Commissioners' service pipes shall not be permitted.

Connection with service pipes to be executed only by an officer of the Commissioners.

289. The connection with the service pipes of the Commissioners, as also the laying of supply pipes under any public road or thoroughfare, shall be executed by an officer of the Commissioners authorized in that behalf and by no other person; and the expense of making such connection shall be payable in advance by the person applying for the same at such rates as the Commissioners in meeting shall from time to time direct.

Obstructing or diverting water.

290. Any person who shall unlawfully flush, draw-off, divert or take water from any water-works belonging to, or under the control of, the Commissioners, or for any water or streams by which such water-works are supplied, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Estimate and specification of works to be sent.

291. No works for introducing a supply of water to any house shall be commenced by the owner without sending a specification and estimate of the cost thereof to the occupier nor by the occupier without sending such specification and estimate to the owner.

Owner to keeps works in repair.

292. Except in the case of a special agreement to the contrary, the owner of any house or land shall bear the expense of keeping all works connected with the supply of water to such house or land in substantial repair:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the liabilities of parties under leases executed previous to the extension of this part to the Municipality in which the said house or land is situated.

Tanks, &c., vested in the Commissioners.

293. All public tanks, reservoirs, cisterns, wells, aqueducts, conduits, tunnels, pipes, pumps, and other water-works, whether made, laid or erected at the cost of the Commissioners or otherwise, and all bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials, and things connected therewith, or appertaining thereto, and also any adjacent land (not being private property) appertaining to any public tank, shall become vested in the Commissioners.

Application of rates and moneys received from the supply of water.

294. The water-rate and all moneys collected, received or recovered for, or in respect of the supply of water or the execution of works, and all fines connected therewith, or in any respect relating to the water-supply, shall be applied by the Commissioners in defraying the expense of making extending or maintaining the water-works, in paying the interest of money borrowed for the water-works; and in the liquidation of debts incurred in connection therewith, or for some other purpose connected with the supply of water.

PART VIII.

Of Lighting with Gas.

Municipal Commissioners may submit to the local Government a plan for lighting.

295. In any Municipality in which this Part shall have been introduced in the manner provided in section two hundred and fourteen it shall be lawful for the Commissioners from time to time to submit to the Local Government, for its sanction, a plan for lighting with gas any portion of any area situate within the municipal limits, whether so lighted already or not, such portion of the said area having been previously defined by the Commissioners at a meeting held for that purpose. The Local Government shall cause the plan to be published for one month in the Calcutta Gazette, and the Commissioners shall publish it in the vernacular within the limits of the Municipality; and after such publication, and after consideration of any objections which may be raised to it, or alterations suggested in it, the Local Government may, if satisfied that the lighting proposed in the plan is proper and sufficient, sanction such plan, or may refuse its sanction thereto, or may return it to the Commissioners for alteration in certain particulars to be specified by it, and when altered may sanction it as altered. The Local Government shall cause its sanction to any plan to be notified in the Calcutta Gazette, and shall at the same time cause the plan sanctioned to be published in the said Gazette.

Lighting-rate not exceeding three per centum may, after sanction of plan, be imposed on holdings.

296. After notification by the Local Government in the last preceding section mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners to impose an annual rate not exceeding three per centum of their annual value upon all holdings situated within such portion of the said area for the purpose of defraying the whole expense of lighting:

Proviso as to portions already lighted.

Provided that, as regards any portion of the said area already lighted with gas, for the future lighting of which a plan shall have been sanctioned by the Local Government under the provision of the last preceding section, if it shall appear that the estimated proceeds of the said rate at three per centum will not be sufficient to defray the whole expense of such lighting, it shall be lawful for the Municipal Commissioners to impose a rate sufficient to defray the whole expense of lighting such portion.

297. The rate imposed under the last preceding section upon holdings shall be paid by the occupiers thereof by quarterly instalments in advance; but no rate shall be leviable until the lamps in the portion of the area to be lighted shall have been lighted; nor shall any rate be leviable for any quarter or portion of a quarter antecedent to such lighting. Arable lands and lands used for pasturage, and buildings used exclusively as places of public worship, or applied solely to charitable purposes, shall not be liable to the rate.

Rate payable by occupiers quarterly in advance.

Arable lands, &c., exempted from rate.

298. The annual value of the said holdings shall be the value fixed by the Municipal Commissioners year by year under the provisions of this Act. And all the provisions in this Act contained, relating to the assessment and collection of the rate on houses, buildings, and lands, shall, except so far as they are modified by the provisions of this part, be applicable to the assessment and collection of the lighting rate.

Annual valuation how to be made.

Assessment and collection.

299. If no rate upon holdings shall have been imposed under section ninety-one, but a tax upon persons shall have been imposed under section seventy-six, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners in lieu of the annual lighting-rate referred to in section two hundred and ninety-six to impose a lighting-rate upon all persons assessed to the tax under section seventy-six. Such tax shall not exceed one-half of the amount payable under section seventy-six, and all the provisions relating to the assessment and collection of the tax payable on persons shall be applicable to such lighting-tax.

Commissioners may impose lighting-rate upon all persons assessed to the tax under section seventy-six.

300. If any holding shall be occupied by more than one tenant holding severally, or shall be of less annual value than one hundred rupees, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners to recover the rate from the owner of such holding.

Power to assess owners in certain cases.

301. Whenever any rate shall be recovered from any owner of any holding under the provisions of the last preceding section, it shall be lawful for such owner, if there shall be but one occupying tenant of such entire holding, to recover from such tenant the entire amount of the rate which shall have been so paid by such owner; and if there shall be one occupying tenant of a part of such holding or more than one occupying tenant of such holding, then to recover from such tenant or each of such tenants such sum as shall bear to the entire amount of rate which may have been so recovered from such owner, the same proportion as the value of the portion of such holding in the occupation of such tenant bears to the entire value of such holding, subject, however, to the provisions of section three hundred and two.

Owner to recover from the occupier rates paid by owner.

302. Every owner who, under the provisions of the last preceding section, may be entitled to recover any sum from any occupying tenant of any holding or of any portion thereof, shall have for the recovery of such sum all such and the same remedies, powers, rights, and authorities as if such sum were rent payable to such owner by such tenant in respect of so much of such holding as may be in the occupation of such tenant.

Owner may recover rate so paid as rent.

303. Every occupier shall be liable to the lighting-rate for the time of his occupation. When any person shall have been an occupier for a part only of any quarter, he shall be liable only for so much of the rate for that quarter as may be proportionate to the number of days during which he shall have been an occupier. If he shall have paid the rate in advance, the amount paid in excess of the sum due under this section shall be refunded.

Occupier liable to the rate for time of occupation only.

Excess paid in advance to be refunded.

No such rate shall be chargeable to any person on account of any unoccupied holding for the time during which it may remain unoccupied:

No rate to be charged during vacancy.

Provided always that when any person ceases to be the occupier of any holding upon which the rate has been assessed, he shall give the Commissioners notice to that effect within seven days from the date of the cessation of his occupancy. If the occupier fail to give such notice within such period, he shall be liable to the rate assessed on such holding for the whole quarter, although he may have occupied for a part only of such quarter; and in cases to which the provisions of section two hundred and ninety-eight apply, the rate assessed on such holding for the whole quarter shall be recoverable from the owner, if such owner has failed to give notice that such holding is unoccupied, within seven days from the date on which it ceased to be occupied.

Notice of cession of occupancy to be given within seven days.

304. When the name of the owner or occupier of any holding is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him in any notice served, or proceeding held under this Act, as the owner or the occupier of the holding on which the rate is assessed, and without further description.

Unknown owner or occupier how to be designated.

305. If the Commissioners deem it necessary for the purposes of this Part to raise, sink or otherwise alter the situation of any gas-pipe or other gas-work laid in any portion of the said area, they may from time to time, by notice in writing, require the person to whom any such pipe or work belongs, or under whose control it may be, to cause forthwith, or as soon as conveniently may be, any such pipe or work to be raised, sunk or otherwise altered in position, in such manner as the Commissioners may direct:

Situation of gas-pipe or other gas-work to be altered at the expense of the Commissioners.

Provided that such alteration be not such as permanently to injure such pipe or work, or to prevent the gas from flowing as freely and conveniently as before; and the expenses attending such raising, sinking, or altering, and full compensation for the damage done thereby, shall be paid by the Commissioners out of the Municipal Fund as well to the person to whom such pipe or work belongs as to all other persons.

306. If the person to whom any such pipe or work belongs, or under whose control it may be, do not proceed forthwith, or as soon as conveniently may be, after the receipt of such notice, to cause the same to be raised, sunk or altered in such manner as the Commissioners require, the Commissioners may themselves cause such pipe or work to be raised, sunk or altered as they may think fit:

If owner, &c., neglect to make alterations, the Commissioners may cause the same to be made.

Provided that such works be not permanently injured thereby, or the gas prevented from flowing as freely and conveniently as before.

307. The provisions of this Part shall apply, so far as may be possible, to any scheme which may be adopted by the Commissioners of any Municipality for lighting the Municipality under any system involving the laying of pipes or wires or other similar apparatus.

Provisions applicable to other systems of lighting.

PART IX.

Of the Construction and Cleansing of Latrines.

308. In any Municipality to which the provisions of this Part shall have been extended in the manner prescribed by section two hundred and fourteen, the Commissioners may issue a notice declaring that, from a date to be specified in such notice, they will maintain an establishment for the cleansing of public and private latrines within the limits of the Municipality, or any part thereof; and the Commissioners shall make suitable provision accordingly.

Notice to be issued by the Commissioners.

309. When such provision has been made, the Commissioners may levy fees, to be fixed on such scale, with reference to the annual value of holdings within the limits of the Municipality, or such part thereof as aforesaid, as the Commissioners at a meeting may from time to time direct;

Commissioners may levy fees.

but the fee shall not exceed three rupees per annum where the valuation of the holding amounts to, or is less than, twenty-five rupees; and the fee on any one holding shall not exceed four hundred and eighty rupees:

Provided that if, on the commencement of this Act, the owners or occupiers of any holding are already under engagement to pay to the Commissioners an annual sum exceeding four hundred and eighty rupees for the cleansing of their premises, such sum, or such other sum as may from time to time be agreed upon between them and the Commissioners, may be levied from them in accordance with the provisions of this Part.

310. The said fee shall be payable by the occupier for the time being of the holding, or by the owner thereof under section three hundred and eleven, in quarterly instalments, and shall be recoverable in the manner prescribed for the recovery of the rate on the value of holdings in this Act.

Recovery of fees.

Every instalment of the said fee shall be deemed to be due on the first day of the quarter in respect of which such instalment is payable.

The proceeds of the said fees shall be applied to the maintenance of the said establishment, and to the providing of public latrines, and generally to carrying out the provisions of this Part.

A list of the said fees, and of the persons liable to pay the same, shall be published once in every year as prescribed in section three hundred and forty-seven.

311. If any holding is occupied in severalty by more than one person, the Commissioners may levy the said fee from the owner of such holding, who may recover from each occupier such sum as shall bear to the entire amount of the fee so levied the same proportion as the value of the part of the holding in the occupation of such person bears to the entire value of such holding.

In certain cases fee may be levied from owner, who may recover from occupier.

312. Every owner who, under the provisions of the last preceding section, is entitled to recover any sum from the occupier of any part of a holding, shall have for the recovery of the said sum all such and the same remedies, powers, rights, and authorities as if such sum were rent payable to him by the occupier in respect of such portion of the holding as may be in his occupation.

Owner may recover fees from occupier as rent.

313. The Commissioners, at their discretion, may compound, for any period not exceeding one year, with any occupier or owner as aforesaid of any railway premises or of any premises used as a factory, dockyard, workshop, cooly depôt, school, hospital, market, court-house, or other similar place, for a certain sum to be paid by such occupier or owner in lieu of such fee.

Commissioners may compound with occupier or owner of certain premises for fee.

314. The Commissioners may, in lieu of the aforesaid fee, levy a rate per head, to be fixed by the said Commissioners at a meeting, on the number of persons living within or habitually resorting to, any such railway premises, factory, dockyard, workshop, cooly depôt, school, hospital, market, court-house or other similar place.

Commissioners may levy a rate per head.

315. The Commissioners may reduce the amount of a fee payable under this Part, or may remit the fee if in their opinion the levy of it would be productive of excessive hardship to the person liable to pay the same.

Commissioners may reduce or remit fee.

316. Whoever refuses to pay any fee or rate due under this Part, or having compounded for the payment of a certain sum under section three hundred and thirteen refuses to pay such sum, shall be liable, on conviction, to fine not exceeding three times the amount payable by him exclusive of the amount so payable.

Penalty.

317. No person liable to pay a fee or rate under the provisions of this Part shall be punished with fine for neglecting or refusing to keep his privy in a proper state under section two hundred and nine, clause (3).

Exemption from prosecution under section 209.

318. All servants of the Commissioners employed for the purposes of this Part may, within such hours as may be fixed by the Commissioners, enter on an-

Powers of servants of Commissioners.

which the occupier or owner is liable to pay a fee or rate as aforesaid and do all things necessary for the performance of their duties under this Part.

Commissioners may require mehters to take out licenses.

319. The Commissioners at a meeting may make an order requiring all mehters within the limits of the Municipality, or any part thereof, to take out licenses, and to be servants of the Commissioners for purpose of removing sewage from premises within the said limits.

The Commissioners at a meeting may grant such licenses subject to such conditions as they may think fit, and may impose fees in respect of the same.

Subject to the approval of the Central Board, the Commissioners may make rules to define the duties of such mehters, and from time to time may alter, add to or repeal such rules; and any breach of such rules shall subject the offender to a forfeiture of license, and to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Commissioners may require latrine to be constructed, and in default may construct themselves.

320. If the Commissioners think that any latrine or additional or common latrine should be provided for any house or land within the limits of the Municipality, the owners of such house or land shall, within fourteen days after notice in that behalf by the Commissioners, or within such longer time as the Commissioners may for special reasons allow, cause such latrine to be constructed in accordance with the requisition of such notice; and if such latrine is not constructed to the satisfaction of the Commissioners within such period, the Commissioners may cause the same to be constructed, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners, and shall be recoverable as provided in section three hundred and twelve.

Commissioners may require list of persons in a holding.

321. The Commissioners may, for the purposes of this Part, by a notice in writing, require the owner or occupier of any holding to furnish, within a time to be specified in the notice, a list of the number of persons residing in, or habitually resorting to, such holding.

Penalty.

322. Whoever, being the owner or occupier of any holding, fails to furnish such list within the time specified in such notice, after being required in that behalf by the Commissioners, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

PART X.

Regulation of Markets.

Power to construct markets.

323. In any Municipality to which this Part shall have been extended in the manner prescribed by section two hundred and fourteen, the Commissioners at a meeting may provide land for the purpose of being used as Municipal markets; and may defray the cost of providing such land and of all expenses necessary for the establishment of such markets from the Municipal Fund, and may take a lease of any market;

[illegible] may charge rent, tolls, and fees for the right to expose [illegible] for sale in such markets and for the use of [illegible] stalls, and standings therein.

All such rents, tolls, and fees may be recovered as arrears of tax under the provisions of sections one hundred and nine to one hundred and eighteen, both inclusive.

Definition of "Municipal market."

324. No place shall be deemed to be a Municipal market within the meaning of the last preceding section, and no place shall be deemed to be a market to which the following sections of this Part apply, unless at least thirty shops, stalls or standings are erected therein for the sale of goods.

Commissioners may prohibit use of unlicensed markets.

325. The Commissioners at a meeting may order that, within such limits as they may fix, no land shall be used as a market for the sale of meat, fish, butter, ghee, fruits, vegetables, and similar provisions otherwise than under a license to be granted by the Commissioners.

Power to grant licenses for markets.

326. When the Commissioners at a meeting shall have issued an order under the last preceding section, they may at a meeting grant a license for the use of any land as a market for the sale of provisions as aforesaid within the Municipality.

Duration of licenses and terms on which granted.

327. Every license granted under this Part shall be liable to the payment of a fee not exceeding twenty-five rupees, and shall be in force until the end of the year, and the Commissioners may grant such license, year by year, on the certificate in writing under the hand of the Chairman, annually renewed, that the land is fit to be used as a market for the sale of provisions as aforesaid.

Chairman bound to certify fit places.

328. The Chairman, upon the application in writing of the owner of any land, shall grant such certificate unless the land be defective for the purposes of a market in drainage, ventilation, water-supply or proper width of paths and ways.

Existing markets.

The owners or lessees of all land used as markets for the sale of provisions as aforesaid at the time of the extension of this Part to the Municipality, shall be entitled to receive a license for the current year without the certificate required by section three hundred and twenty-seven, but in subsequent years the license shall not be renewed without such certificate.

Licenses to be registered.

329. Every license under this Part shall be registered in a book to be kept for that purpose by the Commissioners in their office, in which shall be stated—

(a) the name and address of the owner of the land and market;

(b) the name and address of the lessee thereof, if any;

(c) the extent and boundary of the market;

(d) the description of articles sold therein, and

(e) the days on which the market will be held.

Transfers to be registered.

330. Every transfer of interest in any such market shall be registered within two months after the date of transfer.

331. Any market, the license of which, or the transfer of interest in which, shall not have been duly registered under the two last preceding sections, shall be deemed to be land used as a market without a license.

Unregistered markets to be deemed unlicensed.

332. Whoever, being the owner or occupier of any land wilfully or negligently permits the same to be used as a market for the sale of meat, fish, butter, ghee, fruits, vegetables or similar provisions without license under section three hundred and twenty-six, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees for every such offence, and to a further fine, not exceeding forty rupees for each day during which the offence is continued, after conviction for such offence.

Penalty for using unlicensed market.

333. The Magistrate, on the application of the Commissioners, may order any land, in respect of which a conviction shall have been obtained under the last preceding section, to be closed as a market place, and thereupon may take order to prevent such land being so used; and every person who shall sell or expose for sale, meat, fish, butter, ghee, fruits, vegetables or similar provisions, on any land which shall have been so closed, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding ten rupees.

Power to close unlicensed places.

PART XI.

Of the Registration of Births and Deaths.

334. Every Municipality, when required by the Local Government to do so, shall provide for the registration of births and deaths within the limits of its jurisdiction in accordance with the provisions of Bengal Act IV of 1873 (for registering births and deaths) or any other similar Act for the time being in force.

Registration of births and deaths.

335. The Local Government may require the Commissioners of any Municipality to appoint and maintain at each burning ghat and burial-ground for natives a Sub-Registrar for the registration of all corpses brought to such burning-ghat or burial-ground for cremation or interment.

On requisition of Government, Commissioners to appoint Sub-Registrars at burning-ghats and burial-grounds.

336. Whenever a Sub-Registrar shall have been appointed for any burning ghat or burial-ground under the last preceding section, information of the particulars required by section eight of Bengal Act IV of 1873, to be known and registered may be given in respect of the death of any person whose body is brought to such burning-ghat or burial-ground for cremation or interment to such Sub-Registrar, and information so given shall be deemed to be information given to the Registrar of the district as required by the said section.

Information required by Bengal Act IV of 1873, to be given to such Sub-Registrar.

Section nine of Bengal Act IV of 1873 shall be applicable to all Sub-Registrars appointed under this Act.

337. Whenever a death shall occur in any hospital within the limits of any Municipality in respect of which the Local Government has directed that all deaths shall be registered under Bengal Act IV of 1873, it shall be the duty of the Medical Officer in charge of such hospital forthwith to send a notice in writing of the occurrence of such death to the Commissioners in such form as the Local Government may prescribe; and in such case no other person shall be required to give information of such death to a Registrar under Bengal Act IV of 1873, or to a Sub-Registrar under this Act.

Information of deaths in hospitals.

PART XII.

Miscellaneous.

338. Except as is otherwise expressly provided in this Act, the Commissioners of every Municipality shall act under the general guidance and instructions of the Central Board, carry out its orders, and receive and give due weight to the advice of its officers.

Commissioners to act under general guidance of Central Board.

339. When any dispute or difference arises between the Central Board and the Commissioners of any Municipality, the Central Board may refer the points of dispute or difference, or any other question arising between itself and such Commissioners, to the Local Government, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Procedure in case of dispute between Central Board and Commissioners.

340. If the Commissioners of any Municipality are not competent to perform, or persistently make default in the performance of the duties imposed on them by or under this Act or otherwise by law, or exceed or abuse their powers, the Central Board may, with the previous approval of the Local Government, or the Local Government may of its own motion, by an order published, with the reasons for making, it in the Calcutta Gazette, declare such Commissioners to be incompetent, or in default, or to have exceeded or abused their powers, as the case may be, and supersede them for a period to be specified in the order.

Power to supersede Commissioners in case of incompetency, default or abuse of powers.

341. When an order of supersession shall have been passed under the last preceding section the following consequences shall ensue:—

Consequences of supersession.

(a) All the Commissioners shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such Commissioners.

(b) All the powers and duties of the Commissioners shall, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government may direct.

(c) All property vested in such Commissioners shall during the period of supersession, vest in the Government.

On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the Commissioners shall be re-established by appointment and election, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a shall not be deemed disqualified for appointment or election.

342. The Commissioners of any Municipality may, from time to time, at a meeting which shall have been convened expressly for the purpose, and of which

Power to impose penalties on breach of by-laws.

due notice shall have been given, frame such bye-laws as they deem fit, not being inconsistent with this Act, or with any other general or special law, and may by any bye-laws made by them under this Act, impose on offenders against the same such reasonable penalties as they think fit, not exceeding the sum of fifty rupees for each offence, and in case of a continuing offence a further penalty not exceeding twenty rupees for each day after written notice of the offence from the Commissioners.

Confirmation of bye-laws.

343. Bye-laws made under this Act shall not take effect unless and until they have been submitted to and confirmed by the Central Board, which Board is hereby empowered to allow or disallow the same, as it may think proper; nor shall such bye-laws be confirmed—unless one month at least before the making of the application, notice of the intention to apply for confirmation has been given in one or more of the local newspapers circulated within the Municipality to which such bye-laws relate, or if there be no such newspapers, then in such manner as the Commissioners may direct; and unless for one month at least before any such application a copy of the proposed bye-laws has been kept at the office of the Commissioners, and has been open during office hours thereat to the inspection of the inhabitants of the Municipality to which such bye-laws relate, without fee or reward.

The Commissioners shall, on the application of any inhabitant of the Municipality, furnish him with a copy of such proposed bye-laws, on payment of four annas for every hundred words contained in the copy.

A bye-law requiring confirmation by the Central Board shall not require confirmation, allowance or approval by any other authority.

Bye laws to be printed, &c.

344. All bye-laws made under this Act shall be printed in the vernacular of the district, and hung up in the office of the Commissioners; and a copy thereof shall be delivered to any resident of the Municipality on his applying for the same.

Commissioners may direct prosecution for public nuisance.

345. The Commissioners may direct any prosecution for any public nuisance, and may order proceedings to be taken for the recovery of any penalties under this Act, and for the punishment of any persons offending against the same, and may order the expenses of such prosecution or other proceedings to be paid out of the Municipal Fund.

No prosecution for an offence under this Act to be instituted without consent of Commissioners.

346. No prosecution for an offence under this Act or any bye-law made in pursuance thereof shall be instituted without the order or consent of the Commissioners, and no such prosecution shall be instituted except within three months next after the commission of such offence, unless the offence is continuous in its nature, in which case a prosecution may be instituted within three months of the date on which the commission or existence of the offence was first brought to the notice of the Chairman of the Commissioners:

Provided that the failure to take out any license under this Act shall be deemed to be a continuing offence until the expiration of the period for which such license is required to be taken out.

Publication of order.

347. Every bye-law, order, notice or other document directed to be published under this Act shall be written in, or translated into, the vernacular of the district, and deposited in the office of the Commissioners, and a copy shall be posted up in a conspicuous position at such office, and in such other public places, as the Commissioners may direct; and a public proclamation shall be made throughout such Municipality by beat of drum, notifying that such copy has been so posted up, and that the original is open to inspection in the office of the Commissioners.

Levy of fines.

348. Fines under this Act may be imposed by a Magistrate on any person who is convicted of the office to which the fine attaches, and may be levied under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

How notice, &c., may be served.

349 Every notice, bill, form, summons or notice of demand under this Act may be served personally on, or presented to, the person to whom the same is addressed, or be left at his usual place of abode, with some adult male member or servant of his family; or if it cannot be so served, presented, or delivered, may be put on some conspicuous part of his place of abode; or of the land, building, or other thing in respect of which the notice, bill, form, summons or notice of demand is intended to be served.

Service of notice on owner or occupier of land.

350. Where any notice is required to be given to the owner or to the occupier of any land, such notice, addressed to the owner or occupier, as the case may require, may be served on the occupier of such land, or otherwise in the manner in the last preceding section mentioned.

Provided that when the owner and his place of abode are known to the Commissioners or other authorities issuing the notice, they shall, if such place of abode be within the limits of their authority, cause every notice required to be given to the owner of any land to be served on such owner, or left with some adult male member or servant of his family; and if the place of abode of the owner be not within such limits, they shall send every such notice by post in a registered cover addressed to his place of abode, and such service shall be deemed to be good service of the notice.

When the name of the owner or occupier is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him as "the owner" or "the occupier" of the land in respect of which the notice is served.

Tax not invalid for want of form.

351. No assessment or rating of tax on property shall be invalid for error or defect of form, and it shall be enough in any assessment, valuation or rating for the purpose of making such tax, if the property so assessed or valued is so described as to be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

Holder of license to produce it when required.

352. Every person to whom a license has been granted under this Act shall at all reasonable times, while such license shall remain in force, if thereunto required by the authorities which granted the license or by any person authorized by them in that behalf, produce such license to the said authorities or to the person so authorized.

Penalty.

Whoever fails to produce his license when required to produce the same by any person authorized under this section to demand the production thereof, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Recovery of moneys due to the Commissioners.

353. All costs or other moneys which are due under this Act to the Commissioners of any Municipality, may be recovered in the manner provided in sections one hundred and nine to one hundred and eighteen, both inclusive.

Power to sell unclaimed holdings for money due.

354. If money be due under this Act in respect of any holding from the owner thereof, on account of any tax, expenses, or charges, recoverable under this Act, and if the owner of such holding is unknown or the ownership thereof is disputed, the Commissioners may publish twice, at an interval of three months, a notification of sale of such holding, and after the expiry of not less than three months from the date of the last publication, unless the amount recoverable be paid, may sell such holding to the highest bidder, who shall, at the time of sale, deposit the full amount of the purchase-money.

Any person may pay the amount due at any time before the completion of the sale, and may recover such amount by a suit in a court of competent jurisdiction from any person beneficially interested in such property.

After payment of the amount due to the Commissioners as aforesaid, the surplus, if any, shall be paid on demand to any person who establishes his right to the satisfaction of such Commissioners or in a court of competent jurisdiction, or, if unclaimed for a period of three years, shall be transferred to the Municipal Fund.

Compensation for damages.

355. The Commissioners may make compensation out of the Municipal Fund to any person sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers conferred by this Act.

No action to be brought against the Commissioners or their Officers until after one month's notice of cause of action.

356. No suit shall be brought against the Commissioners of any Municipality, or any of their Officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of such Commissioners and also (if the suit is intended to be brought against any Officers of the said Commissioners or any persons acting under their directions) at the place of abode of the person against whom such suit is threatened to be brought, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the person who intends to bring the suit; and unless such notice be proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every such action shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of action, and not afterwards.

If any such person to whom any such notice is given shall before suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Chaukidari chakran lands.

357. Notwithstanding anything contained in, Section three of Bengal Act VI of 1870 (an Act to provide for the appointment, dismissal, and maintenance of village chaukidars), the provisions of Part II of the said Act, relating to chaukidari chakran lands, shall be applicable to all such lands which have been assigned before the commencement of the said Act for the benefit of any part of a Municipality, and all duties and functions which the panchait of a village or any member thereof is required to discharge under the provisions of the said Part, shall be discharged, and all powers which the panchait of a village or any member thereof is authorized to exercise under the said Part, shall be exercised by the Commissioners of such Municipality, and the proceeds of the assessment on such lands made under the said Part shall be paid into the Municipal Fund, and shall be available for the purposes of such fund.

Police officers to report offences and to arrest unknown offenders.

358. All Police Officers shall give immediate information to the Commissioners of the Municipality of any offence committed against this Act.

Any Police Officer may arrest any person committing in his view any offence against this Act if the name and address of such person be unknown to him, or if such person decline to give his name and address, or if the Police Officer shall have reason to doubt the accuracy of such name and address, if given, and such person may be detained until his name and address shall be correctly ascertained, or until he shall be brought up at once before a Magistrate.

Penalty on Officers, &c., taking unauthorized fees.

359. If any person employed under this Act (not being a public servant within the meaning of section twenty-one of the Indian Penal Code) shall accept or obtain, or agree to accept or attempt to obtain, from any person, for himself or for any other person, any gratification whatever, other than legal remuneration, as a reward for doing, or forbearing to do any official act, or for showing or forbearing to show in the exercise of his official functions, favour or disfavour to any person, or for rendering or attempting to render any service or disservice to any person with the Commissioners or with any public servant or with the Government as such, he shall be punished with imprisonment, either simple or rigorous as provided in Section fifty-three of the Indian Penal Code, for a term which may extend to three years, or with a fine not exceeding five thousand rupees, or with both.

Saving clause.

360. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to

(a) render lawful any act or omission on the part of any person, which, but for this Act, would by law be deemed to be a nuisance:

(b) exempt any person guilty of nuisance from a suit in respect thereof:

(c) affect any enactment not hereby expressly repealed.

Chapter II.—Survey of Inland Steam-vessels.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Survey, and the Examination and Grant of Certificates to Engineers, of Inland Steam-vessels, and to provide for certain other matters relating to those vessels.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels and the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those vessels;

And whereas it is also expedient to provide for the grant of certificates to the masters of inland steam-vessels, and for investigations into casualties affecting, and into charges against masters and engineers of, those vessels, and for the protection of passengers and goods carried thereon from danger by fire; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; and Extent.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Commencement.

2. (1) This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the official Gazette directs.

(2) But any notification, rule or appointment may be made under this Act at any time after the passing thereof, but shall not take effect until the Act comes into force.

(3) And nothing in this Act shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty, or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Repeal of enactments.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Acts mentioned in the first column of the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof.

(2) But all proceedings commenced, investigations held, and certificates granted, cancelled or suspended under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to have been respectively commenced, held, granted, cancelled or suspended under this Act or under the Indian Steamships Act, 1883, as the case may be.

Definitions.

4. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "vessel" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or of property:

(2) "steam-vessel" means every description of vessel propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam:

(3) "inland water" means any canal, river, navigable lake or water in British India:

(4) "inland steam-vessel" means a steam-vessel which ordinarily plies on inland water:

(5) "voyage" includes also the plying of a vessel at or about any place: [Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 1.]

(6) "owner" includes also an agent: and

(7) "master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a vessel.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

Inland steam-vessel not to make a voyage unless furnished with certificate under Act.

5. An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she is furnished under this Act with a certificate of survey then in force. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

Appointment of surveyors and places of survey.

6. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such places within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be places of survey. [Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 4. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 2. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 2.]

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Powers of surveyors.

7. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section six may, at any reasonable time, go on board any inland steam-vessel, and may inspect the steam-vessel and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof: [Cf. Act XVI of 1874, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 3. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 3.]

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steam-vessel, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steam-vessel shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steam-vessel, and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

8. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and, when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steam-vessel is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for service as an inland steam-vessel, grant to the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Form of certificate of survey.

9. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the second schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 10. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 10, as amended by Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 10, as amended by Ben. Act III of 1871, s. 1.]

Fees for survey.

10. For every survey made under this Act, the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the vessel according to the rates in the third schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe; and,

[Cf. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 13, and Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 5.]

(b) when the survey is made in any place of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense (if any) of the journey of the surveyor to the place, as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of vessel.

11. The owner or master of every steam-vessel for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the vessel is in use, on some conspicuous part of the vessel where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Term of certificate.

12. A certificate of survey granted under this Act shall not be in force—

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government, to the owner or master of the steam-vessel to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended the certificate.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 13. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13.]

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

13. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe—

[17 & 18 Vic. c. 104, s. [illegible]]

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been granted upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steam-vessel have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

14. The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired or has been cancelled or suspended to be delivered up to such person as it directs.

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

15. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section thirteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 14. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 14. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 14.]

Power to order a second survey.

16. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steam-vessel surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section six to survey the steam-vessel.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steam-vessel, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 9. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 9. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 9.]

Power for Local Government to make rules as to surveys.

17. (1) The Local Government may make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the time and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

Inland Steam-vessels Bill.

Chapter III.—Masters and Engineers of Inland Steam-vessels.

[New. Cf. definition of surveyors in Act VI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 17. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 16.]

Power for Local Government to exempt certain vessels.

18. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to the survey of inland steam-vessels shall not apply in the case of any specified class of inland steam-vessels, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

CHAPTER III.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS.

[Cf. Bom. Act II of 1873, s. 19. Act XVI of 1871, s. 20. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 18. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 11, which, however, lay down different rule.]

Inland steam-vessels not to make voyage without certificated master and engineer.

19. (1) An inland steam-vessel shall not make a voyage unless she has as her master a person possessing a master's certificate, and as her first or only engineer a person possessing an engineer's certificate, duly granted under this chapter and then in force.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 21. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 20. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 13.]

Exception.

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to any steam-vessel which does not ply with passengers or goods, or as a steam-tug, for hire, and which the Local Government may, by notification, exempt from its operation.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 17. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 15. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 8. Bom. Act VII of 1879, s. 2.]

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

20. The Local Government may, by notification, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as masters or as engineers of inland steam-vessels, and make rules—

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining either of these certificates, and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

Grant of masters' certificates of competency.

21. (1) The Local Government shall grant, to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, a master's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as master of an inland steam-vessel.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 18. Bom. Act IV of 1878, s. 16. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 9.]

Grant of engineers' certificates of competency.

22. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

(a) who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications, or

(b) who possesses an engineer's certificate under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Acts for the time being in force, or to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869,

[Cf. Act X of 1871, s. Bom. Act I of 1873, s. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 15.] 32 & 33 Vic., c. 11.

an engineer's certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as engineer of an inland steam-vessel.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

(3) Before granting a certificate under section twenty-one or this section, the Local Government, if it has reason to believe that the report of the examiners regarding any applicant has been unduly made, may require a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

Grant of engineers' certificates of service.

23. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person—

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 17. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

(a) who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first or second engineer in any foreign-going steam-vessel having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or as first or only engineer in any other steam-vessel, or

(b) who has obtained or shall obtain the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty, an engineer's certificate of service under this Act: Provided that a certificate of service shall not be granted to any person until he—

(c) has proved himself to have served or obtained such rank as aforesaid, and has given his name and a full and satisfactory account of the length and nature of his previous services, and

(d) has paid such fees as the Local Government may, by notification, direct.

(2) Every certificate of service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is granted, and shall be in such form as the Local Government may, by rule, prescribe.

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

24. Every certificate granted under this chapter shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 24. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 22. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 16.]

Copy of certificate to be granted in certain cases.

25. Whenever a master or an engineer proves, to the satisfaction of the Local Government which granted his certificate, that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of it, a copy of the certificate to which, by the record kept as prescribed under section twenty-four, he appears to be entitled shall be granted to him, and shall have all the effect of the original.

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 25. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 23. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 17.]

Chapter IV.—Investigation into Casualties.

[Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 5.]

Certificated masters to be deemed pilots under Indian Ports Act.

26. (1) Every master of an inland steam-vessel who possesses a master's certificate duly granted under this Act and then in force shall, in ports to which section 38 of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, has been extended, be deemed, for the purposes of that section, to be the pilot of the steam-vessel of which he is in charge.

XII of 1875.

[Cf. Bom. Act I of 1863, ss. 9 et seq.]

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of Bombay Act I of 1863, which require persons in charge of vessels passing through any of the channels or tidal channels at the mouths of the river Indus to pay fees for pilotage.

CHAPTER IV.

INVESTIGATIONS INTO CASUALTIES.

[See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 6. Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 6.]

Report of casualties to be made to Local Government.

27. (1) Whenever—

(a) any inland steam-vessel has been wrecked, abandoned or materially damaged, or

(b) by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any inland steam-vessel, loss of life has ensued, or

(c) any inland steam-vessel has caused loss or material damage to any other vessel, the master shall give immediate notice of the wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss to the nearest Magistrate.

(2) The Magistrate receiving the notice shall, without delay, communicate it to the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 7, and Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Local Government to appoint special Court of Investigation.

28. (1) If in any such case a formal investigation into the facts referred to in section twenty-seven, clause (a), (b) or (c), appears to the Local Government to be requisite or expedient, the Local Government (whether the notice is given or not) may appoint a special Court, consisting of not less than two nor more than four persons, and direct the Court to make the investigation, and may fix the place for making the same.

(2) One of the members of the Court shall be a Magistrate acting in or near the place where the investigation is made; another shall be some person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and the other or others (if any) shall be conversant with either maritime or mercantile affairs or with the navigation of inland steam-vessels.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 8.]

Power for principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction to hold investigations into casualties when so directed.

29. Any principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction and the Court of any District Magistrate may, when so directed by the Local Government, make the investigation referred to in section twenty-eight.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 9, and Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Court of Investigation to inquire into charges against masters and engineers.

30. (1) Any Court making an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine may inquire into any charge of incompetency or misconduct arising, in the course of the investigation, against any master or engineer, as well as into any charge of a wrongful act or default on his part causing any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss referred to in section twenty-seven.

[Act XIII of 1875, s. 8.]

(2) In every case in which any such charge, whether of incompetency or misconduct, or of a wrongful act or default as aforesaid, arises against any master or engineer in the course of an investigation, the Court shall, before the commencement of the inquiry into the charge, cause to be furnished to him a copy of the report or statement of the case upon which the investigation has been directed.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 10, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power for Local Government to direct investigation into charges of incompetency or misconduct.

31. (1) If the Local Government has reason to believe that there are grounds for charging any master or engineer of an inland steam-vessel with incompetency or misconduct, otherwise than in the course of an investigation under section twenty-eight or section twenty-nine, it may transmit a statement of the case to the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction, or the Court of the District Magistrate, at or nearest to the place at which it may be convenient for the parties and witnesses to attend, and may direct the Court to make an investigation into the charge.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 9 (2), & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

(2) Before commencing the investigation, the Court shall cause the master or engineer so charged to be furnished with a copy of the statement transmitted by the Local Government.

[See Act V of 1883, ss. 11 & 12, & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Person accused to be heard.

32. For the purpose of an investigation under this chapter into any charge against a master or engineer, the Court may summon him to appear, and shall give him full opportunity of making a defence, either in person or otherwise.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 1 & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Assessors.

33. (1) When any investigation involves, or appears likely to involve, any question as to the cancelling or suspension of the certificate of a master or engineer, the Court making the investigation under section twenty-nine or section thirty-one shall constitute as its assessors, for the purposes of the investigation, two persons having experience in the merchant service or in the navigation of inland steam-vessels; and in every other investigation the Court making it may, if it thinks fit, constitute as its assessor, for the purposes of the investigation, any person conversant with maritime affairs or the navigation of inland steam-vessels and willing to act as assessor.

(2) Every person appointed under this section shall attend during the investigation and deliver his opinion in writing, to be recorded on the proceedings. But the exercise of all powers conferred on the Court by this Act shall rest with the Court.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 12 & Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power of Court as to evidence and regulating proceedings.

34. For the purpose of any investigation under this chapter, the Court making the investigation, so far as relates to compelling the attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents and the regulation of the proceedings, shall have—

(a) if the Court is a special Court—the same powers as are exerciseable by the principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction for the place at which the investigation is made;

(b) if the Court is a principal Court of ordinary criminal jurisdiction or the Court of the District Magistrate—the same powers as are exerciseable respectively by either Court in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 15. Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879.]

Power to arrest witnesses and cause entry and detention of vessels.

35. (1) If any Court making an investigation under this chapter thinks it necessary for obtaining evidence that any person should be arrested, it may issue a warrant for his arrest, and may, for the purpose of effecting the arrest, authorize any officer (subject, nevertheless, to any general or special instructions from the Local Government) to enter any vessel.

(2) Any officer so authorized may, for the purpose of enforcing the entry, call to his aid any officers of Police or Customs, or any other persons, and may seize and detain the vessel for such time as is reasonably necessary to effect the arrest; and every such officer or other person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186.

XLV of 1860.

(3) No person shall be detained by virtue of this section for more than forty-eight hours.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 15. Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Power to commit for trial and bind over witnesses.

36. (1) Whenever, in the course of any investigation, it appears that any person has committed, within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India, an offence punishable under any law in force in British India, the Court making the investigation may (subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court may, from time to time, prescribe) cause him to be arrested, or commit him or hold him to bail to take his trial before the proper Court; and may bind over any person to give evidence at the trial, and may, for the purposes of this section, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate of the first class or of a Presidency Magistrate.

(2) For the purposes of this section the Recorder of Rangoon shall, within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, be deemed to be the High Court.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 16(1). Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Depositions.

37. (1) Whenever, in the course of any such trial, the testimony of any witness is required in relation to the subject-matter, any deposition previously made by him in relation to the same subject-matter before any Court making an investigation under this chapter shall, if authenticated by the signature of the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate, be admissible in evidence on proof—

(a) that the witness cannot be found within the jurisdiction of the Court before which the trial is held; and

(b) that it was made in the presence of the person accused, and that he had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness.

(2) A certificate by the Magistrate or presiding Judge or Magistrate that the deposition was made in the presence of the accused and that he had that opportunity shall, unless the contrary be proved, be sufficient evidence that it was so made and that he had that opportunity.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 17 (1) Cf. Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 7.]

Report by Court to Local Government.

38. The Court shall, in the case of every investigation under this chapter, transmit to the Local Government a full report of the conclusions at which it has arrived, together with the evidence.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 15. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 8. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 6.]

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

39. (1) Whenever any explosion occurs on board any inland steam-vessel, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that an investigation into the cause of the explosion be made by such person or persons as it thinks fit.

(2) The person or persons so directed may enter into and upon the steam-vessel, with all necessary workmen and labourers, and remove any portion of the steam-vessel, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of the investigation, and shall report to the Local Government what in their opinion was the cause of the explosion.

(3) Every such person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186.

XLV of 1860.

CHAPTER V.

SUSPENSION AND CANCELLATION OF MASTERS' AND ENGINEERS' CERTIFICATES.

[See Ben. Act VII of 1879, s. 8, and Cf. Act V of 1883, s. 20.]

Power for Local Government to suspend or cancel certificates in certain cases.

40. Any certificate granted under this Act to any master or engineer may be suspended or cancelled by the Local Government which granted it, or by any other Local Government, in the following cases, that is to say:—

(a) if, on any investigation made under this Act, the Court reports that the wreck or abandonment of, or loss or damage to, any inland steam-vessel, or loss of life, has been caused by his wrongful act or default, or that he is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of drunkenness, tyranny or other misconduct; or

(b) if he is proved to have been convicted of any non-bailable offence:

Provided that, in any case in which an investigation has been made, into a charge against any master or engineer, a certificate shall not be suspended or cancelled under clause (a) of this section unless the Local Government is satisfied that the holder of the certificate has been furnished before the commencement of the investigation with the copy of the report or statement required by section thirty or section thirty-one, as the case may be.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 21.]

Obligation to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

41. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty shall deliver it to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 22.]

Report to other Local Governments.

42. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends, under section forty, a certificate is not the Local Government which granted the certificate, the Local Government so cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the proceedings, and the fact of cancellation or suspension, to the Local Government which granted the certificate.

[See Act V of 1883, s. 24.]

Power to revoke cancellation or suspension and to grant new certificate.

43. (1) Any Local Government may at any time revoke any order of cancellation or suspension which it may have made under section forty, or grant, without examination, to any person whose certificate it has so cancelled, a new certificate.

(2) A certificate so granted shall have the same effect as if it had been granted after examination.

CHAPTER VI.

PROTECTION OF INLAND STEAM-VESSELS FROM DANGER BY FIRE.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 8, cl. (d).]

Power for Governor General in Council to declare dangerous goods.

44. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods.

[New.] [Cf. Act IV of 1879, s. 16.]

Carriage of dangerous goods.

45. (1) A person shall not take with him on board an inland steam-vessel, and a person shall not deliver or tender for carriage on an inland steam-vessel, any dangerous goods without giving notice of their nature to the owner or master of the steam-vessel, or, in the case of goods delivered or tendered for carriage, without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the goods.

(2) The owner or master of an inland steam-vessel may refuse to carry upon an inland steam-vessel any luggage or parcel which he suspects to contain dangerous goods, and may require the luggage or parcel to be opened to ascertain the fact previously to carrying the same; and, in case any such luggage or parcel is received for the purpose of being carried in any inland steam-vessel, the owner or master of the vessel may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

[36 & 37 Vic., c. 85, s. 26.]

Power to throw overboard dangerous goods.

46. Where any dangerous goods have been sent or brought on board any inland steam-vessel in contravention of section forty-five, the owner or master of the steam-vessel may cause the goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained, and neither the owner nor the master shall, in respect of his having so thrown the goods overboard, be subject to any liability, civil or criminal, in any Court.

Power for Local Governments to make rules for protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

47. (1) The Local Government may make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire. [New.]

(2) Rules under this section may provide for the following among other matters, that is to say:—

(a) the conditions on, and subject to, which dangerous goods shall be carried on board inland steam-vessels;

(b) the precautions to be taken to prevent explosions or fires on board inland steam-vessels; and

(c) the apparatus for the purpose of extinguishing fires, which is to be kept on board inland steam-vessels.

(3) Any rule under this section may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VII.

PENALTIES AND LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Penalty for steam-vessel making a voyage in contravention of section 5.

48. If any inland steam-vessel makes a voyage in contravention of section five, the owner and master of the steam-vessel, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees: [Act XVI of 1871, s. 27. Bom. Act I of 1864, s. 7. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 7.]

Provided that, if any steam-vessel is not in any place of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate in respect of any voyage which the steam-vessel may make from the place where she is when her certificate expires to the nearest place of survey. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act I of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12, amended by Ben. Act V of 1868.]

Liability of master or officer, when a licensed pilot, to lose his license.

49. If the master or any other officer on board of an inland steam-vessel which makes a voyage in contravention of section five is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot taken away from him entirely, or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 28. Bom. Act I of 1864, s. 6. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 6.]

Penalty for neglect to affix certificate of survey.

50. The owner and master of any inland steam-vessel, or either of them, on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed, in manner provided by section eleven, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 30. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Penalty for neglect or refusal to deliver up certificate as required under section 14.

51. If the owner or master of an inland steam-vessel, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under section [Act XVI of 1871, s. 31. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

fourteen, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

, 25 & 26 , c. 63, (5), & Act 1859, s. also Act I of 1871, 2. , Act IV 1873, s. 19. , Act I of 8, s. 12. Act VII 879, s. 4.]

Penalty for serving, or engaging a person to serve, as master or engineer without certificate.

52. (a) Whoever, having been engaged to serve as master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies, proceeds on any voyage in that steam-vessel as master or first or only engineer without being at the time entitled to and possessed of the certificate required by that section, and

(b) Whoever employs any person as a master or first or only engineer of any inland steam-vessel to which section nineteen applies without ascertaining that he is at the time entitled to, and possessed of, a master's or an engineer's certificate, as the case may be, under this Act, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Master failing to give notice as required by section 27.

53. If any master wilfully fails to give notice, as required by section twenty-seven, of any wreck, abandonment, damage, casualty or loss, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

e Act V 883, s.

Master or engineer failing to deliver up cancelled or suspended certificate.

54. Every master or engineer whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under section forty, and who fails to deliver the certificate to such person as the Local Government which cancelled or suspended it directs, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

. Act IV 1879, s.

Penalty for taking dangerous goods on board inland steam-vessels without notice.

55. Whoever, in contravention of section forty-five, takes with him on board any inland steam-vessel any dangerous goods, or delivers or tenders any such goods for the purpose of being carried on any inland steam-vessel, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

. Act I of 59, s. 79.]

Penalty for misconduct endangering vessel or life or limb.

56. Any person employed or engaged in any capacity on board an inland steam-vessel—

(a) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, does any act tending to the immediate wreck, destruction or material damage of the vessel, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person belonging to or on board the vessel, or

(b) who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving the vessel from immediate wreck, destruction or material damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board of the vessel from immediate danger to life or limb, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with both.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Distress of vessel.

57. Where the owner or master of a steam-vessel is convicted of an offence under this Act committed on board of, or in relation to, that steam-vessel, and sentenced to pay a fine, the Magistrate may, in addition to any other power he may have for the purpose of compelling payment of the fine, direct the amount thereof to be levied by distress and sale of the vessel and the tackle, apparel and furniture thereof, or so much thereof as is necessary.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Magistrates having jurisdiction.

58. A Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class, shall not try any offence under this Act, or the rules under it.

[See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Place of trial.

59. Whoever commits an offence against this Act or the rules under it shall be triable for the offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, by notification, direct in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any other law for the time being in force.

Saving of prosecutions under other Acts.

60. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules under it, or from being liable under that other law to any other or higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules under it:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Fees recoverable as fines.

61. All fees payable under this Act may be recovered as fines under this Act.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Rules.

62. (1) All rules made under this Act by the Local Government shall be subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; and all powers conferred by this Act on the Local Government to make rules may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

(2) Every rule made by a Local Government under this Act shall, before being sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in such manner, and for such time, as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct, with a notice of the intention of the Local Government to apply for sanction thereto.

Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.

(3) The Local Government shall receive and submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two, and the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, if he or it thinks fit, amend the rule with a view to meeting the objection or suggestion without again publishing the rule:

Provided that a failure of the Local Government to submit for the consideration of the Governor General in Council any objection or suggestion made with respect to any rule published in pursuance of sub-section two shall not be deemed to invalidate any rule sanctioned by him under this Act.

(4) A rule sanctioned under this Act by the Governor General in Council shall not take effect until it has been published in the local official Gazette.

(5) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every rule when so sanctioned and published shall have the force of law.

Notifications.

63. (1) Except in the case of the notification under section two, sub-section one, all powers to issue notifications conferred by this Act on the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

(2) A notification issued by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government under this Act shall not take effect until it has been published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be.

(3) Subject to the provisions of section two, sub-section two, every notification shall, when published in the Gazette of India or the local official Gazette, as the case may be, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT has been found expedient to legislate in order to bring the law regarding the survey of sea-going steam-vessels into conformity with the law of England and to have one law on that subject applicable to the whole of British India. The present law regulating the survey of these vessels is contained in various local Acts, which also contain provisions relating to inland steam-vessels; and it was thought that it would be better to repeal the whole of these Acts and separately enact the parts relating to sea-going and inland steam-vessels than to repeal only so much as was necessary and leave the Acts in a mutilated and probably obscure form. Moreover, it was thought desirable that there should be one law regarding inland steamers relating to the whole of India. The present law is insufficient. Madras is unprovided for, and there is no law to govern steamers plying in the province of Assam. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It is drawn so that it may be brought into force along with the Indian Steamships Bill, and it repeals the seven local Acts, relating to steamships, which are now in force.

2. The Bill is divided into eight chapters. It deals with the survey of inland steam-vessels, the examination and grant of certificates to masters and engineers of those vessels, the investigation into casualties occurring to them, the suspension and cancellation of masters' and engineers' certificates, and the protection of the vessels from fire, and also prescribes the penalties for offences against the provisions of the Act, the jurisdiction of Magistrates and the place of trial.

3. In its main provisions the Bill follows the existing law so far as it goes. The points in which the law is changed and which require notice are as follows. The term for which the certificate of survey is to last is, by section 12 of the Bill, extended to one year, instead of six months as at present; but section 13 enables the Local Government, under certain circumstances, to cancel or suspend a certificate of survey. The power conferred by section 17 of the Bill of making rules to regulate a survey is somewhat larger than that given by the present law. The duties of each of the two surveyors are different, and the Bill therefore enables the Local Government to assign and regulate the duties of each. To meet local requirements, power is given in section 18 of the Bill to Local Governments to exempt any specified class of inland steam-vessels from all or any of the provisions relating to survey. In section 22 the Bill provides for the grant, without examination, of a certificate as engineer to a person who possesses a certificate granted under the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act or a certificate which is by the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869, equivalent thereto. It further provides in section 23 for the grant of certificates of service to engineers who have served for a certain time in certain steamships, or who have obtained the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty. The provisions of Chapters IV and V of the Bill, regarding investigations into casualties and the cancelling and suspending of the certificates of masters and engineers, are taken, with slight modifications, from the Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, which was recently passed.

4. The whole of Chapter VI is new. At present, there is no way of securing that due precautions are taken against fire and against the carriage of dangerous goods on passenger steamers. Chapter VI follows to a certain extent the provisions of the Indian Railway Act, 1879. It confers on the Governor General in Council power to declare what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of the Act, dangerous goods, and prohibits persons from taking those goods on board except under certain conditions. Following section 23 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1873, it empowers (section 46) the master or owner of a vessel to throw overboard dangerous goods which have been brought on board without notice or without being marked as required by the Act. It also (section 47) enables the Local Government to make rules for the protection of inland steam-vessels from danger by explosion or fire.

5. In Chapter VII a section (56) has been inserted, providing a penalty for misconduct on the part of persons employed on board inland steam-vessels. This section is taken from the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, section 79, the penalty being modified so as to permit of an offence being punished by fine only.

6. Lastly, with regard to the rules which may be made under the Act, the Bill, section 62, secures that they shall be duly published for general information and criticism before they are sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

7. A statement is annexed showing how the provisions of the Acts which are repealed by the Bill are dealt with in this Bill and the Indian Steamships Bill.

The 5th March, 1883.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

(1) "steamship" means every description of vessel used in navigation and propelled wholly or in part by the agency of steam: and

(2) "passenger" includes any person carried in a steamship other than the master and crew and the owner, his family and servants.

CHAPTER II.

SURVEY OF STEAMSHIPS.

Steamship not to carry passengers unless furnished with certificate under Act.

[17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 291 & 318; see also 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 16. See also Act XVI of 1871, s. 3. Bombay Act II of 1864, s. 1, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, s. 4. Bengal Act V of 1862, s. 1, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1868, s. 1.]

3. A steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any place out of British India, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey under this chapter then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed.

Exception of certain steamships from provisions of section 3.

[Cf. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4, paragraph 2.]

4. Nothing in section three shall apply to—

(a) any steamship furnished with a certificate of survey, granted by the Board of Trade or any British Colonial Government, which is then in force and applicable to the voyage on which that steamship has proceeded or is about to proceed, or the service on which she has been or is about to be employed, unless there is reason to believe that the steamship has, subsequently to the grant of the certificate, sustained injury or damage, or been found unseaworthy or otherwise inefficient; or

(b) any inland steam-vessel as defined in the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1883; or

(c) any steamship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India, or belonging to any foreign Prince or State.

Penalty for carrying passengers in contravention of section 3.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 1. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 1.]

5. If any steamship carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, the owner and master of the steamship, or either of them, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees:

Provided that, if any steamship is not in any port of survey when her certificate expires, no penalty shall be incurred for the want of a certificate until she first begins to carry passengers after her next subsequent arrival at some port of survey.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

If master or officer of ship carrying passengers in contravention of section 3 is a licensed pilot, he is liable to loss his license.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 6. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 6.]

6. If the master or any other officer of any steamship which carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section three, is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot cancelled or suspended for any period by the Local Government, as the Local Government may see fit to order.

Port-clearance not to be granted until certificate of survey produced.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 7. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 5. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 5. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 318.]

7. No officer of Customs shall grant a port-clearance, nor shall any pilot be assigned to any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three, until after the production by the owner or master thereof of a certificate under this Act then in force and applicable to the voyage on which she is about to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed.

Power to detain ship not furnished with certificate.

8. If any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required by section three leaves or attempts to leave any port of survey without a certificate, any officer of Customs or any pilot on board the ship may detain her until she is duly furnished with the certificate.

Appointment of surveyors and ports of survey.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 4. Bom. Act II of 1864 s. 2. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 2. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 305.]

9. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint so many persons as it thinks fit to be surveyors for the purposes of this Act at such ports within the territories under its administration as it may, from time to time, appoint to be ports of survey.

(2) Every surveyor so appointed may be suspended or removed by the Local Government which appointed him.

(3) Every surveyor so appointed shall, for the purposes of the survey, be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

Indian Steamships Bill.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships.

Powers of surveyors.

10. (1) For the purposes of a survey under this Act, the surveyors appointed under section nine may, at any reasonable time, go on board any steamship, and may inspect the steamship and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments or articles on board thereof:

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 5. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 3. Act V of 1862, s. 3. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 314.]

Provided that they shall not unnecessarily hinder the loading or unloading of the steamship, or unnecessarily detain or delay her from proceeding on any voyage.

(2) The owner, master and officers of the steamship shall afford to the surveyors all reasonable facilities for a survey, and all such information respecting the steamship and her machinery and equipments, or any part thereof, respectively, as they may reasonably require.

Grant of certificate by surveyors.

11. Every survey under this Act shall be made by not less than two surveyors, and when the survey is completed, the surveyors making it shall forthwith, if each of them is satisfied that the steamship is sufficient, so far as it is his duty to survey her, for the service on which it is intended to employ it, grant to the owner or master of the steamship surveyed, on payment by him of the fees hereinafter mentioned, a certificate of survey under this Act.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Act V of 1862, s. 4. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 313.]

Form of certificate of survey.

12. Every certificate of survey granted under this Act shall be signed by each of the surveyors granting it, and shall contain a statement of the particulars specified, and be framed, as nearly as the circumstances of each case will admit, in the form set forth in the first schedule hereto annexed, or shall contain a statement of such other particulars, or be framed in such other form, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 6. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 4. Act V of 1862, s. 4.]

Fees for survey.

13. For every survey made under this Act the owner or master of the steamship surveyed shall pay to each of the surveyors making the survey—

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 10. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 10, as amended by Act IV of 1873, s. 11. Act V of 1862, s. 10, as amended by Act VII of 1871, s. 1. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 314. Bom. Act II of 1873, s. 1. Ben. Act V of 1868.]

(a) a fee calculated on the tonnage of the ship according to the rates in the second schedule hereto annexed, or according to such other rates as the Local Government may from time to time by notification prescribe, and

(b) when the survey is made in any port of survey other than Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such additional fee, in respect of the expense, if any, of the journey of the surveyors to the port, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, prescribe.

Certificate to be affixed in conspicuous part of ship.

14. (1) The owner or master of every steamship for which a certificate of survey has been granted under this Act shall forthwith, on the receipt of the certificate, cause it to be affixed, and kept affixed so long as it remains in force and the ship is in use, on some conspicuous part of the ship where it may be easily read by all persons on board thereof.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 11. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Act V of 1862, s. 11. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 317.]

(2) The owner and master of every steamship (or either of them), on which the certificate of survey granted under this Act is not kept affixed in manner provided by this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 30. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 11. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 11.]

Term of certificates.

15. A certificate granted under this Act shall not be in force—

(a) after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof; or

(b) after the expiration of the period, if less than a year, for which the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments have been stated in the certificate to be sufficient; or

(c) after notice has been given by the Local Government to the owner, agent or master of the steamship to which the certificate relates, that the Local Government has cancelled or suspended it.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1862, s. . Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 315.]

Cancellation or suspension of certificate by Local Government.

16. Any certificate of survey granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended by a Local Government if it has reason to believe—

[Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 13. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 13. Act XVI of 1871, s. 13. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, s. 316.]

(a) that the declaration in the certificate of the sufficiency and good condition of the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship has been fraudulently or erroneously made; or

(b) that the certificate has otherwise been issued upon false or erroneous information; or

(c) that, since the granting of the certificate, the hull, boilers, engines or any of the equipments of the steamship have sustained any injury, or have otherwise become insufficient.

Power to require delivery of expired or cancelled certificate.

17. (1) The Local Government may require any certificate of survey which has expired, or has been cancelled or suspended, to be delivered up to such person as it directs.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 12. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

(2) If the owner or master, without reasonable cause, neglects or refuses to deliver up a certificate as required under this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 31. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 12. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 12.]

Report to be made of cancellation or suspension of certain certificates.

18. If the Local Government which cancels or suspends under section sixteen a certificate is not the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted, the Local Government cancelling or suspending the certificate shall report the fact of cancellation or suspension, together with the reasons therefor, to the Local Government of the place where the certificate was granted.

Chapter II.—Survey of Steamships. Chapter III.—Examination and Certificates of Engineers.

[Act XVI of 1871, s. 14. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 14. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 14. Cf. the appeal given by 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 14.]

Power to order a second survey.

19. (1) If the surveyors making a survey under this Act refuse to give a certificate, or give a certificate with which the owner or master of the steamship surveyed is dissatisfied, the Local Government may, on the application of the owner or master, direct two other surveyors appointed under section nine to survey the steamship.

(2) The surveyors so directed shall forthwith survey the steamship, and may, after the survey, either refuse to give a certificate or give such certificate as under the circumstances seems to them proper, and their decision shall be final.

(3) Every survey made under this section shall be made subject to all the provisions and rules both as to the payment of fees and otherwise which are applicable to surveys made in ordinary cases under this Act.

[See 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 19.]

Survey of foreign steamships.

20. When a foreign steamship requires to be furnished with a certificate of survey under this Act, and the Local Government is satisfied, by the production of a certificate of survey attested by a British Consular Officer at the port of survey, that the ship has been officially surveyed at a foreign port, and that the requirements of this Act are proved by that survey to have been substantially complied with, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, dispense with any further survey of the ship in respect of the requirements so complied with, and give a certificate which shall have the same effect as a certificate given after survey under this Act:

Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of an official survey at any foreign port with respect to which Her Majesty has by order in Council directed that section 19 of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, shall not apply.

[See 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, s. 19.]

[Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 9. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 8. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 8. 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, ss. 309-13.]

Local Government to make rules as to survey.

21. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules to regulate the making of surveys under this Act.

(2) Rules under this section may, among other matters,

(a) declare the times and places at which, and the manner in which, surveys are to be made;

(b) assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making a survey; and

(c) declare the form in which certificates of survey granted under this Act are to be framed, and the nature of the particulars which are to be stated therein.

[New. But cf. definition of "Surveyors" in Act XVI of 1871, s. 2. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 17. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 16.]

Power for Local Government to exempt certain steamships.

22. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification, declare that all or any of the provisions of this chapter shall not apply in the case of any specified class of steamships, or shall apply to them with such modifications as the Local Government may prescribe.

CHAPTER III.

EXAMINATION AND CERTIFICATES OF ENGINEERS.

Certificates to be of two grades.

23. Engineers' certificates shall be of two grades, namely, "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates."

[Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (1).]

Examiners to be appointed and rules of examination made.

24. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of obtaining certificates of competency as engineers, and, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

(a) for the conduct of these examinations, and as to the qualifications to be respectively required of persons desirous of obtaining "first class engineers' certificates" and "second class engineers' certificates"; and

(b) for the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

[Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, ss. 6 & 7. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 17. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 15. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 8.]

Grant of certificates of competency.

25. (1) The Local Government shall grant to every person who is reported by the examiners to possess the necessary qualifications a certificate of competency to the effect that he is competent to act as a first class engineer or as a second class engineer, as the case may be:

Provided that the Local Government may, in any case in which it has reason to believe that the report has been unduly made, require, before granting a certificate, a re-examination of the applicant or a further inquiry into his testimonials and character.

(2) Every certificate granted under this section shall be in such form as the Local Government may from time to time by rule prescribe.

[Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 8. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 18. Bom. Act II of 1873, s. 18. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 9.]

Grant of certificates of service.

26. (1) The Local Government shall grant certificates of service as engineers, differing in form from certificates of competency, as follows, namely:—

(a) To every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in the service of Her Majesty—a "first class engineers' certificate" of service:

(b) To every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as second engineer in any foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or as first or only engineer in any other steamship, or who has obtained or shall obtain the rank of first class assistant engineer in the service of Her Majesty—a "second class engineers' certificate" of service:

Provided that a certificate of service shall not be granted to any person until he—

[Cf. 25 & 26 Vic., c. 13, s. 9. Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 19. Bom. Act II of 1873, s. 19. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 10.]

Chapter III.—Examination and Certificates of Engineers.

(c) has proved himself to have served or attained such rank as aforesaid, and has given his name and a full and satisfactory account of the length and nature of his previous services, and

(d) has paid such fees as the Local Government may, by a notification in the official Gazette, from time to time direct.

(2) Each of such certificates of service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is granted, and shall be in such form as the Local Government may from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 24. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 22. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 16.]

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

27. Every certificate granted under this chapter shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Local Government may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Act XVI of 1871, s. 25. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 23. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 17.]

Copy of certificate to be granted in certain cases.

28. Whenever an engineer proves to the satisfaction of the Local Government which granted his certificate that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of it, a copy of the certificate to which, by the record kept as provided under section twenty-seven, he appears to be entitled shall be granted to him, and shall have all the effect of the original.

Number of engineers and nature of certificates necessary in case of different steamships.

29. (1) A foreign-going steamship having engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards shall not go to sea from any port in British India unless she has as her first and second engineers two certificated engineers, the first possessing a "first class engineers' certificate" and the second a "second class engineers' certificate" or a certificate of the higher grade, granted under this Act or the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, for the time being in force, or to which the provisions of any such Act have been made applicable under the Merchant Shipping (Colonial) Act, 1869.

(2) A home-trade steamship of a burden exceeding three hundred tons shall not go to sea from any port in British India unless she has as her only or first engineer an engineer possessing a second class engineers' certificate or a certificate of the higher grade, of the nature referred to in sub-section one.

(3) Nothing in this section shall apply to any steamship to which section 19 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act is applicable.

(4) In this section "foreign-going steamship" includes every steamship employed in trading between any port of British India and any port or place not in British India, nor on the continent of India, nor in the island of Ceylon; and

Act I of 1859, s. 118.]

"home-trade steamship" includes every steamship employed in trading between any ports of British India, or between any port of British India and any port or place on the continent of British India, or in the island of Ceylon.

Penalty for serving, or engaging a person to serve, as engineer without a certificate.

30. (a) Whoever, having been engaged to serve in any of the capacities referred to in section twenty-nine in any steamship to which that section applies, goes to sea in that capacity without being at the time entitled to, and possessed of, the certificate required by that section, and [25 & 26 Vic., c. 63, s. 5 (5). Cf. Act XVI of 1871, s. 32. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 19 Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 12.].

(b) whoever employs any person in any capacity referred to in section twenty-nine in any steamship to which that section applies, without ascertaining that he is at the time entitled to, and possessed of, the certificate required by that section, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Investigation into Explosions.

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

31. (1) Whenever any explosion occurs on board any steamship for which a certificate of survey is required under this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that an investigation into the cause of the explosion be made by such person or persons as it thinks fit. 1871, s. 15. Bom. Act IV of 1873, s. 8. Ben. Act I of 1868, s. 6.]

(2) The person or persons so directed may enter into and upon the steamship with all necessary workmen and labourers, and remove any portion of the steamship, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of the investigation, and shall report to the Local Government what, in their opinion, was the cause of the explosion.

(3) Every such person shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, section 186. XLV of 1860.

Miscellaneous.

Magistrate having jurisdiction.

32. A Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class, shall not try any offence under this Act. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Place of trial.

33. Whoever commits an offence against this Act shall be triable for the offence in any place in which he may be found, or which the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any other law for the time being in force. [See Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

Fees recoverable as fines.

34. All fees payable, and all fines imposed, under the provisions of this Act may be recovered in like manner as a fine may be recovered under the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, Act I of 1859, section 113. [Act XVI of 1871, s. 33. Bom. Act II of 1864, s. 16. Ben. Act V of 1862, s. 15.]

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A CASE having occurred in Bombay which showed that the Bombay law relating to the survey of steamships was not in harmony with the English law on the subject, it was thought desirable to amend the Bombay law. When, however, the question of legislation came to be considered, it appeared that there were no less than seven local Acts relating to steamships. Bombay, Bengal and Burma each had its special law regulating the survey of these ships, while there was no law on the subject in the Presidency of Madras. The multiplicity of laws relating to the survey of steamships, it was thought, could not but be inconvenient to shipowners whose ships traded between different Provinces. For instance, Act XVI of 1871, which is in force in Burma, requires every steam-vessel plying on any of the rivers or waters of British Burma, except steam-vessels plying between a port in British Burma and a port not in British India, to be surveyed twice a year. In the same way, the Bombay Act II of 1864, as amended by Bombay Act IV of 1873, requires every British steam-vessel, not holding a Board of Trade, British Indian or Colonial certificate, carrying passengers between any port of the Presidency of Bombay and any other port, to be surveyed twice a year, and the Bengal Act V of 1862, as amended by Act I of 1868, also requires the survey twice in every year of all steam-vessels plying on any of the rivers or waters within the Province of Bengal, except steam-vessels which may ply between some port within that Province and some port not in British India. Under these laws, a steam-vessel which was surveyed in Bombay might, apparently, be required to undergo a fresh survey on arrival in Calcutta, and another survey on arrival at a port in Burma. As legislation is necessary, it is, therefore, clearly expedient to have one uniform law relating to the survey of steam-vessels applicable to the whole of British India.

2. Besides providing for the survey of steam-vessels, the local Acts provide also for the examination of, and the grant of certificates to, engineers, and for holding investigations into explosions occurring on board steam-vessels. In these matters uniformity in the law is desirable.

3. After consulting the Local Governments concerned, the Government of India has decided to legislate so as to provide one law relating to the survey of sea-going steamships, the examination and grant of certificates to engineers of those ships, and the investigation into explosions occurring thereon. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It was, however, found at the same time necessary to legislate in like manner for steam-vessels plying on rivers and inland waters, inasmuch as the provisions of the local Acts related, to a certain extent, to those vessels as well as to sea-going vessels. With this view, a separate Bill—the Inland Steam-vessels Bill—has been prepared, so as to keep the law relating to merchant shipping—a law liable to be affected by legislation in England—entirely separate from the law regulating inland steam-vessels, which is a matter solely within the scope of Indian legislation.

4. The present Bill is divided into three chapters. The first chapter is purely formal. The second deals with the subject of the survey of steamships. It provides that a steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers between places in British India, and that a British steamship shall not carry more than twelve passengers to or from any place in British India from or to any foreign port, unless she is furnished with a certificate of survey. It exempts steamships furnished with Board of Trade certificates or Colonial certificates, provides for the appointment of surveyors and ports of survey, prescribes the powers of surveyors and the conditions on which they are to grant certificates. It provides for the fees which are to be paid for certificates and the term for which they are to last, and it confers on the Local Government the power, under certain circumstances, of cancelling or suspending a certificate. It further enables the Local Government to make rules to regulate the time, place and manner in which surveys shall be made, and to assign and regulate the duties of each of the surveyors making it. To meet local requirements, a section (22) is also added, enabling the Local Government to exempt any specified class of steamships from all or any of the provisions of the chapter.

5. The principal changes introduced in the law by the provisions contained the second chapter are as follows:—

Section 3 follows the English law (39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80, section 16), and only requires a survey in the case of steamships carrying more than twelve passengers.

The law as at present in force in Bengal and Burma is thus amended in an important point and cargo steamers are exempted from survey.

Another change in the law is made by section 15 of the Bill, which provides that a certificate of survey shall not remain in force for more than twelve months. At present, the law requires a survey twice a year, but it is thought that the power which the Local Government has under section 16 of the Bill of cancelling or suspending a certificate renders a survey every six months unnecessary.

Section 20 of the Bill enacts the provisions (regarding the grant of certificates of survey to foreign ships) of section 19, 39 & 40 Vic., cap. 80. It is considered that these provisions will be of use in India in the case of foreign ships which have been officially surveyed at a foreign port.

6. The third chapter of the Bill deals with the examination of, and grant of certificates to, engineers. It also contains a provision as to inquiries into cases of explosion, and miscellaneous sections regulating the jurisdiction and place of trial in cases of offences under the Act, and applies to steamships going to sea from a place in the Bombay Presidency, the provisions as to boats for sea-going ships of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

7. Following the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, the chapter provides that there are to be two grades of engineers—first class engineers and second class engineers. The Local Government is empowered to appoint examiners, and to make rules as to the conduct of the examinations, the qualifications to be required from the applicants and the fees to be paid by them. Certificates will be granted to those who, by the result of the examination, show themselves to be possessed of the necessary qualifications.

8. This chapter also provides (section 26) for the grant of certificates of service as engineers. A first class certificate may be granted to a person who has served, before the passing of the Act, for a period of not less than one year as first engineer in any foreign-going steamship carrying engines of one hundred nominal horse-power or upwards, or who has attained, or shall attain, the rank of engineer in Her Majesty's service.

A second class certificate may be granted to a person who has, before the passing of the Act, served as second engineer in such a steamship or as sole engineer in a smaller one, or who obtains the rank of first class assistant engineer in Her Majesty's service. It is doubtful whether it is necessary or expedient to provide for the grant of certificates of service. The attention of the Local Governments concerned will be drawn to the point.

9. It is further provided (section 29), that foreign-going steamships shall not proceed to sea without engineers possessing certain specified certificates. Similar provisions are made for home-trade steamships, the steamships which are inland steam-vessels within the meaning of the Inland Steam-vessels Act being excepted.

10. The provisions of section 31, as to investigations into explosions, require no comment; and the last four sections of the Bill merely re-enact the existing law as to jurisdiction, the place of trial, the recovery of fees and fines, and the application to steamships leaving a port in the Bombay Presidency of certain provisions of the Imperial Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, concerning boats for sea-going ships.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th February, 1883:—

No. 8 OF 1883.

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

X of 1882.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Amendment of section 22.

1. For the last clause of section 22, the following shall be substituted:—

"may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as he or it thinks fit, who, being

(a) members of the Covenanted Civil Service,

(b) members of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3,

(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces, or

(d) Cantonment Magistrates,

are invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class, to be Justices of the Peace within and for the territories mentioned in the notification."

Amendment of section 25.

2. In section 25, after the words "British India" the following shall be inserted:—

"Sessions Judges and District Magistrates are Justices of the Peace within and for the whole of the territories administered by the Local Government under which they are serving".

Amendment of section 443.

3. In section 443, the words "and an European British subject" shall be omitted.

New section substituted for section 444.

4. For section 444 the following shall be substituted:—

Assistant Sessions Judges who may try European British subjects.

"444. An Assistant Sessions Judge shall not exercise jurisdiction over an European British subject, unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years, and has been specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government."

Repeal of section 450 and of the last sixteen words of section 459.

5. Section 450 and the last sixteen words of section 459 are hereby repealed.

Construction of Act with Code of Criminal Procedure.

6. (1) In this Act "section" means section of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882. X of 1882.

(2) All references to that Code made in enactments heretofore passed or hereafter to be passed shall be read as if made to that Code as amended by this Act.

Saving for existing appointments.

7. Nothing in this Act shall affect the validity of any appointment made before the passing of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SHORTLY after the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act X of 1882, was passed, the question was raised whether the provisions of that Code which limit the jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to judicial officers who are themselves European British subjects should not be modified. It was thought anomalous that, while Natives of India were admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace and to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns.

2. After consulting the Local Governments, the Government of India has arrived at the conclusion that the time has come for modifying the existing law and removing the present bar upon the investment of Native Magistrates in the interior with powers over European British subjects. The Government of India has accordingly decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinctions.

3. With this object the present Bill has been prepared. In section one it amends section 22 of the Code, which provides that only European British subjects can be appointed Justices of the Peace, and gives the Government power to appoint to that office such persons as it thinks fit belonging to the following classes:—

(a) Members of the Covenanted Civil Service;
(b) Members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules made under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3;
(c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces; or
(d) Cantonment Magistrates,

and being persons invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class.

4. The Bill then in section two amends section 25 of the Code, and makes all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates ex officio Justices of the Peace.

5. Section three repeals so much of section 443 of the Code as limits jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the Presidency-towns to Magistrates who are themselves European British subjects.

6. Section four repeals the similar provision of section 444 of the Code with regard to Sessions Judges.

7. Lastly, section five repeals section 450 of the Code, which provides for the case where the Sessions Judge of the division within which the offence is ordinarily triable is not an European British subject. The same section of the Bill also repeals so much of section 459 of the Code as provides that that section shall not be deemed to confer on Magistrates and Sessions Judges outside the Presidency-towns, not being European British subjects, jurisdiction over European British subjects.

JUTE-WAREHOUSES AND FIRE-BRIGADES.

THE HON. MR. REYNOLDS moved that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Jute-Warehouses and Fire-Brigades be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill; and in doing so he said that the report of the Select Committee went so fully, and he hoped so clearly, into the different points in which it was thought desirable to modify the original draft of the Bill, that it would not be necessary for him to detain the Council at any great length with the remarks which he was about to offer. Indeed, he believed there were only two matters to which he need refer outside the four corners of the Select Committee's report, and upon these he desired to offer a few remarks. The first of these was the communication from the Suburban Municipal Commissioners which was not received in time to be taken into consideration by the Select Committee. The communication was printed as No. 3 of the papers circulated to the Council, and he would ask hon. members to refer to it. The first objection they took was to what they called "the principle which underlies the Bill of taking away the initiative power of fixing the rates of license fees from the Commissioners and vesting it in Government."

He did not understand that objection. The Bill, as it came before the Suburban Commissioners, was the Bill as it was originally drafted, and before the Select Committee had amended it, and in this point it simply reproduced the existing law of 1879 according to which the fee for jute licenses had to be fixed by Government after consulting the Municipal Commissioners, and that was now the law in force in the Suburban Municipality. There was no proposal to take away any power from the Commissioners and confer it on the Government. He should have again to refer to this subject; but he only wished to say now that the objection which had been taken was unfounded.

The next was, he imagined, the objection to which they attached most importance, the objection taken by them to the proposal to set apart 20 per cent. of the license fees to cover the expenses of management and superintendence. The Suburban Commissioners declared this amount insufficient, and urged that they ought to have one-third. The question had been carefully considered by the Select Committee, and they were of opinion that an allowance of 20 per cent. would be ample for the purpose, and in coming to that conclusion they had been assisted by certain figures laid before them by the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation with regard to the expenditure incurred in Calcutta in this respect. It appeared from those figures that in Calcutta in 1880 the establishment cost Rs. 3,992, whereas the 20 per cent. allowance would have amounted to Rs. 5,700. In 1881 the expenditure was Rs. 3,483, and 20 per cent. would have amounted to Rs. 4,540. In 1882 the expenditure was Rs. 3,830, and 20 per cent. would have given Rs. 4,680. These figures made it clear that 20 per cent. would give a larger sum to Calcutta than it was at present found necessary to expend; and that the Corporation had been able to limit its expenditure to about 16 per cent. of its receipts, and the Committee saw no reason why the Commissioners in the Suburbs should not do the same. The Suburban Commissioners observed that at present they expended 25 per cent. of the collections for the purposes of management. That was true; but how did they make that out, for out of a collection of about Rs. 16,000 in 1881-82, the amount they expended was Rs. 3,488. They made it out first by charging the actual cost of establishment, viz. Rs. 1,884; and then the Commissioners in a perfectly arbitrary manner made a charge of 10 per cent. on the actual collections (Rs. 1,604), and set it down as a charge for executive control. That was a purely arbitrary charge, and if they liked to reduce the 10 per cent. to 5 per cent. they will find that the total charge would not exceed 20 per cent., while all actual expenditure would be provided for. The Committee therefore thought there was no necessity for making any alteration as regarded the allowance of 20 per cent.

Then the Suburban Commissioners said they considered the arrangement which would place the control of the fire-brigade in the hands of the Commissioner of Police very objectionable, but they did not suggest any other arrangement, and he thought that the Council would feel that the Commissioner of Police was the most appropriate and natural authority in whom should devolve the management of the fire-brigade.

He need only refer to one other point in connection with this representation from the Suburban Commissioners, and that was the suggestion that insurance offices should be made to contribute, as they did in London and other cities, to the maintenance of the fire-brigade. Such a provision existed in the Act of 1872. It provided that a rate of eight annas for every ten thousand rupees should be levied on the amount of insurance; that policy was deliberately set aside in 1879, and the Select Committee were of opinion that it ought not to be revived. He thought the policy a mistaken one, because the amount so charged was not really paid by the insurance companies, but by the persons who effected insurance by way of enhancement of their premium, and the owners of jute-warehouses would thus have to pay twice over—first, directly in the form of the license fee; and secondly, in the form of higher premium to insurance companies to meet the requirements of the law in this particular instance.

Coming to the report of the Select Committee, he would ask attention to section 5, in which a considerable alteration had been made at the recommendation of Mr. Harrison, to whom the Committee were greatly indebted for the assistance they had derived from his experience in the matter. According to the existing Act of 1879, the amount of the license fee was to be fixed by the Local Government after consulting the Municipal Commissioners at a special meeting. This provision of the law had not been literally carried out, for in point of fact the Government did not fix the fee, but they fixed the scale of fees and left its application to the Commissioners, and the Committee thought that was the proper system to follow, and they had accordingly adopted that principle. They thought the scale of fees ought to be fixed by Government after taking the opinion of the Commissioners, and that the Commissioners should be left to apply that scale according to the circumstances of the particular warehouse to which a license was to be granted.

The next section to which he would invite attention was section 18, and that was the second point to which MR. REYNOLDS had referred above, as a matter which was not noticed in the Select Committee's report. It had been suggested to him, since the report had been made, that section 18 might be productive of administrative inconvenience. It provided that the Commissioner of Police should prepare a budget or estimate of the receipts and expenditure of the fire-brigade for the year commencing on the 1st April next ensuing, and that such budget should be laid before the Commissioners in meeting, and forwarded by them to the Local Government. It had been suggested to him that Municipal Commissioners were occasionally somewhat dilatory in their proceedings, and it might be inconvenient if the Local Government had to wait till the Commissioners forwarded the budget, and it was thought that the principle would be sufficiently provided for if the Commissioner of Police sent the budget to the Government and merely forwarded a copy to the Commissioners; but MR. REYNOLDS was not prepared to adopt this suggestion. He thought it would not satisfy the reasonable wish of the Municipal Commissioners that they should have an opportunity of examining and criticising the Fire-Brigade budget before its submission to Government, and he did not think it need be assumed that they would neglect their duties so far as not to send up the budget within a reasonable time. He therefore did not propose any amendment in connection with this matter. By providing that the Commissioner of Police should prepare the budget in or before the month of February, sufficient time was given to the Municipal Commissioners to enable them to send up the budget in time for the Local Government to deal with it.

The alterations in sections 21 and 23 were of no great importance. A suggestion was made in Council when the Bill was introduced that the wording of the Bill, which left the responsibility on the officers of the police and fire-brigade to shew that they had not exceeded what was necessary for the due execution of their duties, might be improved. The Committee had amended the section by providing in section 21 that no officer of the police or of the fire-brigade should be held liable for damages on account of any act done by him in the bonâ fide belief that such act was required in the proper execution of his duties. The Commissioner of Police of Calcutta expressed an opinion that some clause of that kind was necessary, and that the wording of the existing law did not sufficiently protect such officers in the execution of their duties; and the Select Committee agreed with him. Then as to section 25. As it formerly stood it provided that the powers conferred on the Commissioner of Police in respect of Calcutta and the Suburbs as to fireworks should be exercised in Howrah by the Chairman of the Commissioners. On this point the Magistrate of Howrah, who was also the Chairman of the Municipality, had represented that, in the event of his absence from head-quarters, he could more conveniently provide for the conduct of the duties referred to in this section in his capacity of Magistrate than in his capacity of Charman. The Select Committee also thought that the duties belonged more properly to the Head of the Police than to the Head of the Municipality, and they had modified the section accordingly.

He wished to call attention to a point in reference to section 27 for the disposal of sums now standing to the credit of the Jute-Warehouse Fund in Calcutta and the Suburbs. The proposals therein contained had not been objected to either by the Calcutta or Suburban Commissioners.

With regard to section 28, the Commissioner of Police for Calcutta wished it to be distinctly stated that any fees leviable under the Petroleum Act were to form part of the fund for the maintenance of the fire-brigade. MR. REYNOLDS believed that the Government had expressed their intention of devoting these fees to that purpose, and it was no doubt a proper mode of applying the money; but it was quite a different thing to declare by legislation that those fees must be appropriated to that purpose. The Committee had therefore added a clause to the section which provided that, in addition to certain proceeds of jute licenses, the fund available for the maintenance of the fire-brigade should consist also of any other funds which the Local Government might grant or appropriate for the purpose.

The HON. MAHOMED YUSUF said:—"When this Bill was last before the Council on the motion to refer it to a Select Committee, I had the honour to draw the attention of the Council to two parts of the Bill. I had firstly ventured to make a suggestion in connection with what was section 27 of the Bill as it was first introduced into the Council. This section corresponds with section 34 of the Bill as it is now before the Council after it has been amended by the Select Committee. I had then called the attention of the Council to the expression "commodity," which occurred in the section in connection with the power of the Local Government to bring under the operation of the Act any other fibre besides jute and cotton, to which the Act in terms applied.

I submitted that the use of an ambiguous word liable to misconstruction should rather be avoided in legislation, and I am glad to find that my humble suggestion has found favour with the Select Committee to which the Bill was referred, and that the expression referred to above has been omitted from the section in question.

The other matter, with which I had troubled the Council on the occasion above mentioned, was in connection with sections 16 and 17 of the original Bill, which are, however, retained in the present Bill as before. These sections of the original Bill, which correspond with the same sections in the Bill now before the Council, laid down rules in what manner the proceeds of the fees and penalties levied under the Act were to be appropriated. It was provided in those sections that twenty per cent. of such fees and penalties shall be applied to meet all expenses incurred by the Municipal Commissioners on account of inspection and other charges in relation to the Jute-Warehouses. It was also provided that "any balance of such twenty per centum which may remain after payment of such expenses shall be credited to the Municipal Fund." So far so good. There is no objection to this. The costs of maintaining the fire-brigade is in the first instance limited to twenty per centum, and thus there is a limit on this side, and provision is also made for cases where a part only of the twenty per centum might be sufficient to meet certain charges, leaving a surplus in the hands of the Municipal Commissioners, which surplus is to go to the Municipal Fund. And this is very satisfactory.

But, then, what are the provisions of the Bill regarding the remaining eighty per centum. Section 17 provides that the same should be made over by the Municipal Commissioners to the Commissioner of Police for the maintenance of the fire-brigade. That is all that is said in the original Bill in respect to the eighty per centum. No provision is made in respect of the balance, if any, left after the defrayal of the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade. I can understand the absence of any such provision when the costs of maintaining the fire-brigade would amount to eighty per centum. The limit of eighty per centum for the costs of maintaining the fire-brigade no doubt means that the Commissioner of Police should keep down such costs, so that they may not exceed the eighty per centum. But what is the Commissioner of Police to do with the surplus, if any, in his hands after meeting the costs of maintaining the fire-brigade out of the eighty per centum. There is no provision for such a case like this. There is no provision in section 17 similar to that contained in the last clause of section 16 providing for the balance to be credited to the Municipal Fund. No doubt the absence of a provision from the section in question to meet the case of a surplus might be accounted for by the circumstance that it was believed that the whole of the eighty per centum would be exhausted and no surplus was likely to be left in the hands of the Commissioner of Police, and therefore no provision was necessary. And accordingly on the last occasion I was informed by the hon. member in charge of the Bill that the case of a surplus arising out of the eighty per centum was not likely to arise for the next ten years, inasmuch as the eighty per centum was barely sufficient to keep up the fire-brigade in an efficient working order, and that therefore there was no provision in the original Bill to meet the contingency of a surplus.

Now, I submit that although such a contingency might not arise for some time, still it does not follow that the contingency should go entirely unprovided for in the Bill; because, although the contingency is a remote one, still it is one of a nature that is likely to happen, although at some distant date It may not be necessary hereafter for other purposes to amend the Act before the case of a surplus should arise, and the Act would then require amendment for a matter present to our mind at the present moment.

I therefore thought, when the Bill was referred to the Select Committee, and do still think, that there should be, under section 17, a proviso similar to that under section 16 to meet the case of a surplus.

But it may be that the Select Committee might have provided for the objection taken by me by introducing section 18 in the present Bill, which was absent in the original Bill. The object of this section might have been expressly amongst others to meet my objection, and if it was intended by the Select Committee by this section to provide for the case of a surplus, then I submit that that intention has only been partially carried out, because the section, after providing for the preparation of a budget of the fire-brigade, goes on to say that "if such budget shall shew a surplus of receipts over expenditure, it shall be in the discretion of the Local Government, subject to the provisions of section 5, to reduce the scale of fees; and if it shall shew a deficit, similarly to increase such scale." Now, I submit that this clause, although it may be sufficient to prevent the accumulation of a surplus in the future, does not provide for the disposal of any surplus that might be in hand at any particular time. Not having a retrospective effect, it will only deal with future cases, and the contingency supposed by me will therefore remain unprovided for.

But there is another objection against this particular clause in section 18, in so far as it provides for the constant alteration and variation in rates, which is calculated to introduce a sort of uncertainty as to what one shall have to pay, and this is not at all desirable. It is enough of evil to have to pay, but it is worse evil not to know what to pay.

I therefore think that section 18 does not obviate the necessity of a proviso under section 17 similar to that contained in section 16, and I therefore suggest and submit that the following words might be added after section 17 as it stands at present, viz.—"Any balance of such eighty per centum, which may remain after the application of the eighty per centum to the maintenance of the fire-brigade as aforesaid, shall be credited to the Municipal Funds of Calcutta, the Suburbs, and Howrah in the proportion according to which they should have contributed."

I do not propose this addition by way of an amendment, because this is not the time for moving an amendment; but I have only submitted this by way of a suggestion for the consideration of the Council, leaving it to the option of the learned and hon. mover of the Bill to adopt it or not, as he should think proper.

The only other point to which I should like to draw the attention of the Council is as regards the last clause of what was section 20 in the original Bill, and what is section 31 of the present Bill. The clause in question ran as follows in the original Bill:—

"But nothing in this section shall exempt any officer of the Police or of the fire-brigade from liability to damages on account of any acts done by him without reasonable cause."

The last clause of section 21 in the present Bill runs as follows:—

"No officer of the Police or of the Fire-Brigade shall be held liable to damages on account of any act done by him in the bonâ fide belief that such act was required in the proper execution of his duties."

Now there is considerable difference in the effect of the wording of the two respective clauses. If there had been no difference there would have been no change in the language. And speaking for myself, I should much rather retain the original wording than adopt the new one. I am quite aware that the alteration in the present Bill is due to a suggestion made by an hon. member of the Council in the debate on the Bill before it was referred to the Select Committee. But with that suggestion I did not agree, although I could not express my views, being debarred by the rules of the Council from speaking twice upon the same subject.

The provision in the original Bill merely repeated the law as it stood and as it stands at present. That law has been in existence since 1872, and no complaint has ever been made that it has hampered the action of the police in any instance. On the other hand it might well be argued that, owing to the care and caution which the police were obliged to shew in the exercise of their duty by the provision in question, there was no action for damages and no complaint against them; but the change in the wording of the law might result in such complaints; because, as already observed, there is a great deal of difference between the effect of the two provisions. Under the former Bill the onus is on the police to shew that any particular act which might be the subject of complaint was done with reasonable cause. Under the present Bill the onus is on those who impeach the conduct of the police; and I should much rather see the police exercise due and reasonable caution than rush wildly and set themselves to putting out the fire regardless of the consequences of their acts. For these reasons I regret the alteration that has been made, and should like to see the provisions of the original Bill restored."

The Hon. the Advocate-General pointed out, with reference to the remarks which had been made by the hon. member who had just spoken, that the words "bonâ fide belief" used in the last clause of section 21 were quite in accordance with the recent decisions in similar cases. The courts had held that though a man might not have acted reasonably, still he might have acted in the bonâ fide belief that the act which he did was required in the proper execution of his duties. The expression "bonâ fide" was well recognised, and the use of the term in the Bill merely followed the current of recent decisions in analogous cases.

The Hon. Chunder Madhub Ghose said he had one or two observations to make before this Bill was passed into law. Section 13 of the Bill, as it had been amended by the Select Committee, provided that, whenever any of the conditions under which a license was held in respect of any warehouse was broken, the person whose name appeared on the license as the occupier of such warehouse should be liable on conviction to have his license cancelled or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 500. If the Council would turn to section 8 they would observe that on a change in the occupation of any warehouse the person entering into occupation of the same was required, within two weeks of so entering into occupation, to give notice in writing to the Commissioners of such change of occupation, and on payment of a fee of two rupees his name would be substituted in such license for the name of the last occupier. Suppose before notice of change of occupation was given any violation of the conditions of the license took place on the part of the purchaser; then, according to the strict wording of section 13, the person whose name appeared on the license, i.e. the former owner, and not the purchaser, would be liable to be punished by a fine of Rs. 500. It appeared to Baboo Chunder Madhub Ghose that that provision might operate as a hardship on the person who had sold his interest in the warehouse and in regard to whose conduct no fault the license. The new occupier could be found. To obviate this hardship he would suggest that there should be a proviso to the effect that, if the owner of a warehouse gave notice to the Commissioners of the transfer of his interest to another person, that other person, and not the original holder of the license, should be liable to the fine imposed under section 13. And in keeping with this view, he would suggest an amendment in section 8, to the effect that the person whose name appeared on the license as well as the person entering into occupation should, within two weeks, give notice of the change of occupation, thus making both persons bound to give notice. Then, if such notice was given by the original holder of the license, he would not be liable to penalty under section 13.

He would also suggest a similar alteration in section 15, and the effect of these amendments would be that the original license-holder would be bound equally with the person to whom the occupation was transferred to give notice of change of occupation, and if the original holder gave notice in due time, he would no longer be liable to prosecution under section 13. With these alterations in sections 8, 13, and 15 he thought the Bill would work better.

The HON. MR. REYNOLDS said he thought that, as the member in charge of this Bill, he was placed at some little disadvantage by having mines of this kind sprung upon him. The Bill in its present form had been three weeks before the Council, and if hon. members had objections to particular provisions of it, they might have given notice of their objections on an earlier date, or have formulated them in a shape which would allow him either to accept them, or to take further time to consider them. With regard to the objections taken by the hon. member opposite (MOULVIE MAHOMED YUSUF), MR. REYNOLDS might say that it was deliberately intended that clause 3 of section 18 should meet the point he had raised. It was not intended that the balance of any year should be credited to the Municipal Fund. What was intended was that if the balance of two or three successive years shewed that the fees were being raised at a scale unnecessarily high, or conversely at an insufficient scale, the Government should have the power to reduce the scale or to increase it, as the case might be, so as to make the 80 per cent. about sufficient ordinarily to cover the normal expenditure of the fire-brigade. He must say that he preferred that principle to that which had been suggested by the hon. member of the balance of each year being credited to the Municipal Fund.

Then with regard to section 21, MR. REYNOLDS was not prepared to accept any alteration in the wording of the Bill of the nature which had been suggested He thought the wording of the amended Bill better than as it stood in the existing law, but he must leave the decision of the question to the Council.

With regard to the objections taken by the hon. member to his right (BABOO CHUNDER MADHUB GHOSE), he would ask the Council to take notice that this was not a new provision. It had been in existence since 1875 The provision was not in the same words in the Act of 1872, but it certainly was in that of 1875, and had been reproduced in 1879 and in the present Bill, and there had never been any practical difficulty in connection with it. The difficulty which had now been suggested was very small and was of a speculative character. He understood it to be objected that by section 13 the person whose name appeared as occupier of a jute-warehouse was liable to penalty in case of any breach of the conditions of the license, whereas under the Bill the person who entered into occupation was to give notice of the change of occupation within two weeks, and his name would then be substituted in the register for the name of the former holder of the warehouse. And the objection was that, if such person failed to comply with the law in that respect, it might perhaps happen that if breach of the conditions of the license occurred before the mutation of names had been made, the person whose name appeared in the license, that was to say the former occupier, would be the person liable to penalty. Section 15, MR. REYNOLDS thought, made it pretty certain that the person entering into occupation would not fail to give notice, because that section made such person liable to a penalty of Rs. 100 if he failed to give notice of the change of occupation. And in the next place, section 13 only provided that the penalty was to be inflicted after conviction before a Magistrate, and MR. REYNOLDS imagined that a person would not be convicted in the case put by the hon. member. He certainly would not like to accept the suggestion which had been made, or anything like it, without consulting the Municipal Commissioners. If it should be considered that any such change in the wording was necessary, he would propose that the Bill should not now be passed. But he believed that no change was required. Persons who came into possession of licensed jute-warehouses shewed the greatest eagerness to get their names registered at the earliest possible date, and he therefore considered that the objection was of a merely speculative character.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT remarked that it was a salient rule in the procedure of the Council that hon. members who had any suggestions to offer should be prepared to formulate them in the shape of definite amendments, which it would be easy to consider and upon which the Council could come to a decision. Objections brought forward in an indefinite way must cause delay, while they could lead to no salutary results.

The motion that the report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration was then put and agreed to, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Hon. MADHUB CHUNDER GHOSE moved the following amendments in section 8 :—

To insert the words "person whose name appears in the license as also" after the word "warehouse" in the second line;

To omit the words "the same" in the third and fourth lines, and to substitute therefor the words "such warehouse;"

And to insert the words "the latter" after the word "and" in the seventh line.

He said he had already explained his views as to the provisions of sections 8, 13, and 15; but having found that the sense of the Council was against him, he had confined his amendment to section 8.

The HON. MR. REYNOLDS said he was not prepared to accept this amendment. It would be observed that by section 9 of the Bill the person entering into occupation of a licensed warehouse, who failed to register his name within the time prescribed by section 8, would be liable to have his license cancelled or suspended, and this would be in addition to the penalty of Rs. 100 to be inflicted on conviction under section 15. The object of the hon. mover of the amendment was to prevent any penalty being inflicted on a person who was perfectly innocent. But the proposed amendment would make the matter worse than it was now for such person, for in that case it would be in the discretion of the Commissioners to suspend or cancel the license, if either of the two persons had not given notice of the change of occupation. It appeared to MR. REYNOLDS that as the provisions of the Bill stood there would be no practical difficulty in the matter. Not only had the law existed ever since 1875, but he happened to know from what the Chairman of the Calcutta Municipality had told him that the eagerness to obtain licenses and to prevent their cancelment was very great; that a jute-warehouse was looked upon as a very valuable property, and the parties took very great care to get the transfers registered. He therefore thought that the objections which had been raised to sections 13 and 15 were not very strong, although he must admit that there was some ground for the verbal criticisms to which they had been subjected, and he would on the whole rather leave the sections as they stood, especially when it was known that no practical difficulty or hardship had occurred or was likely to arise.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY said that he would oppose this amendment on two grounds,—on the ground that no amendment was required, and on the ground that the proposed amendment would be ineffectual even for the purpose for which it was designed. To take the second point first. The object of the amendment was to save a person in whose name a license stood from liability to conviction and fine for the misdeeds of the person to whom he had transferred his warehouse, but who had not had his own name substituted in the license. To effect this it was proposed to allow the licensee, as well as the new occupant, to give notice, and to require that the name of the latter should be substituted on payment of a fee by the latter. But the license could not be given till the fee was paid, and so long as the new occupant declined to pay the fee, the notice of the licensee would be ineffectual and he would be technically liable if the new occupant broke the conditions of the license. The amendment, therefore, would leave things just as they were, and the new occupant could not be forced to pay the fee till proceedings could be taken against him under section 15 for not giving notice within two weeks. But in reality there was no necessity for any change at all. These sections had been in force for years, and no case had occurred in which the person who had transferred a warehouse had been prosecuted and fined by a Magistrate for a breach of the conditions of the license by the person to whom it had been transferred, simply because the transfer of names in the license had not been made. There was, therefore, no practical difficulty whatever. The important point to be observed, however, was that there was already ample protection, even under the strict terms of the law, for the transferror of a warehouse. He had only to say to the transferree: "I decline to take any risk; therefore, before I complete the bargain, you must come with me and have your name entered as licensee." It might be said that the transferror might be ignorant of the law. But he could not admit that the Council should legislate for the contingency of people being ignorant of the provisions of a law specially enacted for the regulation of their own special interests. He would, therefore, vote against the amendment, and in favour of the Bill being passed as it stood.

The HON. MAHOMED YUSUF said it appeared to him that there were two views which might be taken of this amendment—namely, whether it was merely intended to correct an oversight in the drafting or whether it amounted to a substantive alteration and improvement in the law. If it was merely intended to correct a verbal error and to supply an accidental mistake, I would support the amendment; but if the object of the amendment was otherwise, and if it was intended to bring about a substantive alteration in the law, then the amendment, in order that it might be supported, must shew the defect in the existing law and how it would be improved by the amendment being carried out.

Now the discussion to which the amendment had led had shewn that the use of the words "person whose name appears in the license" in section 13 was not the result of any slip in the drafting of the Act. Indeed, the section in question followed so close upon section 8, which provided for the substitution of the transferree's name in the license, that the provision in section 13 for the punishment of the person in whose name the license stood could not be said to be the result of an oversight, although the effect of it would be to punish the person who had transferred the whole of his interest, and who had no further connection with the warehouse. The words appeared to have been deliberately put in, and nothing that had been said shewed that it was not a wise policy that the person in whose name the license stood should be considered responsible until he had secured the necessary change in the license.

It was also to be observed that the insertion of the section in the Bill was merely by way of reproduction of the existing law; and as far as MOULVIE MAHOMED YUSUF was aware no complaint had been made that the law had worked with any degree of hardship. Referring to section 6, he found that the license might either be a permanent one or for a term of years. The transfer might therefore affect a very important interest. The retention of the provision, therefore, while it met cases of colourable transfers, would also be harmless in cases of bonâ fide transfers, if the transferrors would only see that the necessary alteration was effected in the license. He would therefore vote against the amendment.

The HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL observed that although the criticism which led to the proposed amendment was justified from a strictly legal point of view, there appeared to be no practical difficulty in the matter; and as the amendment would not remove other difficulties which might possibly arise, he did not think the amendment should be adopted, especially as there appeared to be no necessity for an amendment of the law in the direction proposed.

The amendment was then put and negatived, and the section as it stood in the Bill as amended by the Select Committee was agreed to.

On the motion of the HON. MR. REYNOLDS the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned to Wednesday, the 21st instant.

KARTIC-BARONI FAIR.

No. 25, dated Dacca, the 8th March 1883.

From—N. S. ALEXANDER, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Dacca Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith copy of a memorandum from the Magistrate of Dacca, forwarding the report of Baboo Troilokya Nath Sen, Sub-Divisional Officer of Moonshigunge, on the Kartick Baroni-Fair, which was held during a period of six weeks, i.e. from 24th November 1882 to 5th January 1883.

2. The fair this year was held in the usual place on the banks of the river Dhulleshuri, and was of the same sort as last year. There was very little sickness of any sort and remarkably little crime. The Sub-Divisional Officer gave his special attention to the work of keeping order and securing proper sanitation, and he appears to have carried out the work efficiently. The local landholder's conduct, as reported by the sub-divisional officer, was praiseworthy.

No. 11, dated Calcutta, the 18th January 1883.

From—BABOO TROILOKYA NATH SEN, Deputy Magistrate of Moonshigunge,

To—The Magistrate of Dacca.

WITH reference to your letter No. 2904, dated 13th November 1882, I have the honour to submit the following report on the Kartick-Baroni Fair which lasted for six weeks, commencing from 24th November 1882 and ending by the 5th January 1883.

2. The fair was held in the chur close to the sub-division along the right bank of the Dhulleshuri on almost the very same site as that of the last year, extending over a space of one and a half miles in length and one-fourth of a mile in breadth.

3. The fair commenced as usual with the bathing festival called Baroni Snan, which took place on the full moon day in the month of Augran. This year the auspicious event fell on the 24th November 1882. People began to come in on the festive day, but it was not till about a fortnight after it that business may be said to have fairly commenced. The bathers were almost without any exception lower caste Hindus. The lowest caste of Chandals and Jhalas figured most. They came from different parts of Bickrampore and from the adjoining districts of Backergunge and Tipperah. There were about 1,185 bathers, the majority being women. Those of the bathers who came in boats from distant places remained in the fair for two or three days after the festival day, but from the neighbouring villages returned to their houses immediately after the festival was over.

4. The fair did not differ in any way from that of the preceding year.

5. About 10 or 15 days' time, from 21th November to 8th December last, was spent in raising booths for storage of articles for sale. Dealers of bamboos, twine and timber, and the sweetmeat sellers were the first to arrive, but it was not till the 18th December the people began to flock in in numbers, and business fairly commenced. The fair, however, was in its full swing from 25th December up to the date of its closure, when the congregation of men was very great.

6. The conservancy rules printed in vernacular were hung up in the most conspicuous parts of the fair and published by beat of drum, and the instructions noted therein were strictly adhered to. Sixteen mehters were constantly employed in sweeping the streets and the premises of the shops, in cleansing the river bank and in digging and filling up trenches used as privies. The river side was kept clean from the floating mass of weeds, and other necessary steps were taken for the preservation of general cleanliness and order.

7. The number of shops of various descriptions was estimated at 1,095 against 988 of the preceding year. The increase of 107 shops is distributed over different classes of trade and there is nothing to be noticed particularly regarding any one class.

8. The total value of goods brought for sale was about 34 lakhs of rupees, being an increase of 3 lakhs as compared with the fair of the preceding year, and the actual sales are estimated at about 32 against 29 lakhs of the last year. This increase is attributable to the increase in the number of shops. A detailed list of the principal articles sold with their values is annexed herewith.

9. The number of boats and men that came to the fair is estimated at 37,864 and 451,045 respectively. The daily average of boats and men being 860 and 10,251 respectively.

10. One inspector, two sub-inspectors, two head constables, and 36 constables, together with the two guard boats under two head constables, employed in patrolling the river, were deputed to keep peace and order in the fair. The Assistant Superintendent and District Superintendent of Police also came to the fair at intervals. The conduct of the police was satisfactory.

11. There was only one case of cholera, which ended fatally. A native doctor and a hospital servant were sent from Dacca with the requisite medicines.

12. Fortunately for the police, as well as for the people in general, there occurred no theft case in the fair, and no professional thieves were seen lurking in or about the fair during its existence.

13. The conduct of the zemindar, Baboo Bepin Behari Poddar, was very satisfactory. He readily complied with the requisitions made on him for building bridges, hospitals, and police barracks.

14. The shop-keepers as in former years spent a good amount of money in celebrating Kalipujah and giving treat to brahmins. The shop-keepers were pleased with the orders of the Magistrate in allowing them seven days' time to wind up their affairs and take themselves off.

15. The fair was visited by the District Magistrate. I myself visited it daily and decided nuisance cases at the spot.

Statement shewing the number of shops and the value of the goods brought for sale in the Baroni Fair.

TROILOKYA NATH SEN, Deputy Magistrate.

"POST-MORTEM" EXAMINATIONS.

THE following papers are published for general information :—

Circular No. 12J, dated Calcutta, the 26th March 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial, Political, and Appointment Departments,

To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

I AM directed to forward the accompanying copy of a letter* from the Inspector-General of Police, drawing attention to the failure of justice which has resulted in recent cases in consequence of post-mortem examinations having been carelessly or unskilfully performed by the officers conducting them. A copy of a letter† from the Surgeon-General, Bengal, communicating his views on the subject, is also forwarded.

* No. 17190, dated the 22nd December 1882.

† No. 999, dated the 2nd February 1883.

2. The orders of Government regarding the performance of post-mortem examinations are contained in the Resolution of the 10th October 1863, which was communicated to Commissioners of Divisions with the endorsement from this office, No. 4970, of the same date. Under these orders no body ought to be examined by a medical officer under the rank of an Assistant Surgeon, except under circumstances which render it impossible for the body to be conveyed to head-quarters in a condition fit for examination. As a rule, therefore, bodies were to be sent to head-quarters for examination when there was no Assistant Surgeon at a sub-division, and only in exceptional cases to a sub-divisional native doctor. It is, however, clear that these orders have been lost sight of in many districts, and that bodies are sent to sub-divisional head-quarters without reference to the rank of the medical officer or to the condition of the body itself.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Inspector-General of Police and the Surgeon-General that fresh orders should now be issued with the view of ensuring in future the more regular performance of this very important part of their duties by the Civil Surgeons, and approves of the proposals made by Dr. Payne in paragraphs 3 and 4 of his letter. I am accordingly to request that you will be good enough to instruct all the Magistrates of your division that corpses of which a post-mortem examination is necessary must be invariably sent to the sudder station for examination, except only in the case of sub-divisions in charge of Assistant Surgeons which are more than forty-eight hours' journey from the sudder station. In every case of a post-mortem examination made for judicial purposes, the Civil Surgeon in person shall conduct it, and the report shall be written by him. He may be assisted by any medical subordinate whom he may desire to have with him; but he shall alone be responsible for the work. The Lieutenant-Governor expects that the Civil Surgeons will give the greatest attention to this duty, and that they will on no account delegate it to a subordinate without the strongest cause, such as absence from the station, illness, or an urgent call for their services in a case of sickness.

No. 17190, dated Calcutta, the 22nd December 1882.

From—D. R. LYALL, ESQ., Inspector-General of Police, L.P.,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

I REGRET that I have so long delayed submitting the report promised in my No. 16004, dated 29th November 1882. The reason is that I only received the papers of the Mulluck Chand case on the 11th instant from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

2. I do not propose in any way to re-open the question of Mulluck Chand's guilt or innocence. The object of this letter is to try and prevent, so far as can be done by an executive order, the recurrence of such failures of justice and doubts as exist as to cause of death in the above and in the Budh Gya torture cases.

3. The Government orders regarding post-mortem examination are to be found in circular 2 of 1870, and are quoted in the margin. These orders appear to me clearly to point to the Civil Surgeon as the officer to whom bodies in the sudder division are ordinarily to be sent, and who is ordinarily to perform the examination. Even bodies from other sub-divisions are to be sent to him when there is only a native doctor at the sub-divisional head-quarters, except in cases when there would be such delay as to render the corpse unfit for examination.

"When death occurs in the sudder sub-division, the body should, in suspicious cases, be forwarded to the Civil Surgeon. When the death occurs in a sub-division, and there is a Sub-Assistant Surgeon or European medical officer attached to it, he should hold the post-mortem. In a sub-division where there is only a native doctor, whenever the condition of the dead body, the distance, the weather or the state of road, renders it improbable that the body will reach the sudder station in such a condition as to enable the Civil Surgeon satisfactorily to hold a post-mortem, the body must be sent to the sub-divisional medical officer. A copy of the report of such officer will, however, be submitted to the Civil Surgeon, who will make any remarks he may think proper in the margin of the report for the information of the sub-divisional officer. When the body bears external marks of violence, the sub-divisional officer should, if possible, view the body in the presence of the native doctor. When, on the other hand, circumstances permit, the body should be sent to the sudder station for examination by the Civil Surgeon, and at such examination the native doctor or Sub-Assistant Surgeon, at the sudder station, should be present, so that he may be able to attend, if required, at the sub-divisional court and give evidence as to the cause of death in the cases in which the absence of the Surgeon on duty would be attended with inconvenience to those under his medical charge."

4. I have no hesitation in asserting that this last need never occur, and that it is better and more conducive to justice to have a more decomposed corpse examined by a more competent man than to have a fresher corpse examined by a man without the knowledge necessary to enable him to form a just opinion. I acted for years on this principle in Dacca, where the district was fortunate in having a succession of zealous medical officers, and although one thana was 60 miles from head-quarters, I cannot recall any case which failed owing to the distance being too great. This is, however, by no means the rule, and in the 24-Pergunnahs no post-mortems are done by the civil Surgeon.

5. If it was merely a question of where the body was to be sent in the first place, I could deal with it by calling the attention of Magistrates and District Superintendents to the orders of Government already quoted, but this will not alone remedy the evil unless Civil Surgeons will perform the post-mortems when bodies are sent in. I will, if required, call for facts from all districts and submit them to Government, but think it better first to submit a report founded merely on these two cases as sufficiently proving what I urge. In the Bongong case the body was examined by a native doctor, whose evidence the Judge speaks of as "medical evidence founded on a perfunctory post-mortem and a self-contradictory report, which leaves the question of the cause of death unsolved." A very little care and skill on the part of the officer performing the post mortem would have rendered the cause of death a certainty in this case. In the Budh Gya case the body was sent to head-quarters, but the examination was performed by the Assistant Surgeon, and a reference to the notes of the District Superintendent on the Judge's decision, forwarded with my No. 12446 of 25th August last, will show that the examination in this case too was equally perfunctory.

6. I would therefore suggest that the attention of Magistrates should again be called to the orders conveyed in the circular above referred to, and that they should be directed to lay down distinct orders as to what, if any, cases should not be taken to the Civil Surgeon, and that the attention of Civil Surgeons should be called to this part of their duty through the head of their own department

7. I have not burdened this letter with any remarks on the importance of careful post-mortems, as that is a fact beyond cavil.

No. 999, dated Calcutta, the 2nd February 1883.

From—A. J. Payne, Esq., M.D., Surgeon-General for Bengal,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

With reference to the papers received under cover of your docket No. 306J, and returned herewith, I have the honour of submitting the following remarks.

2. I agree with Mr. Lyall in everything that he has affirmed and proposed. It must be admitted that, as a class, native doctors are totally unfit to be trusted with medico-legal work. It is this work which brings them chiefly into contact with European officers, and the result is the frequent exposure of scandalous ignorance and worse disqualifications. This is a necessary consequence of the haste to spread English medical practice through the province in former years. Men who had not even a fair pretence of knowledge were placed in positions in which they could not fail to frustrate the ends of justice. I have done, and am doing, my utmost to effect improvement in this particular branch of work by sending men of proved incapacity to study at the Sealdah Hospital, and forbidding their re-employment until they have passed examination in Medical Jurisprudence. The grade examinations give some help by preventing incapables from drawing high pay, and from this some useful resignations have resulted. But it cannot be hoped that much impression will be speedily made on the quality of the general body of hospital assistants by these means, and the conviction has been growing upon me for some time that medico-legal work would have to be, as far as possible, taken out of their hands by positive and definite orders. This was the general intention expressed in Government Resolution dated 10th October 1863, on which the circular mentioned in Mr. Lyall's third paragraph is evidently based. The great laxity with regard to post-mortem examinations throughout Bengal proves very general neglect of this order. Nevertheless the order is, in my opinion, too open to evasion as it stands. It leaves too much to the discretion of the sub-divisional officers in determining whether a corpse shall or shall not be sent to the sudder station. The pros and cons of this question turn on the effect of decomposition. Under the instructions conveyed in your No. 786, dated 4th July 1881, a very definite order was issued to Civil Surgeons in terms of paragraph 2 of my letter to your address, No. 2938, dated 24th June 1881. This is useful as a preliminary to action on the opinion stated in Mr. Lyall's letter, paragraph 4, in which opinion my own experience in a very large district leads me entirely to concur. A corpse is never unfit for examination, though in some few cases decomposition may prevent a positive opinion from being formed concerning the cause of death. The question now to be answered is this, will decomposition resulting from transmission of corpses prevent discovery of the cause of death in such proportion of cases as to make this a greater judicial evil than leaving the issue of a case practically in the hands of a careless, ignorant, or corrupt native doctor? This question has been proposed to the Professor of Medical Jurisprudence of the Medical College, and to the Chemical Examiner to Government, whose replies leave me in no doubt on the subject. The Chemical Examiner fears no hindrance to the detection of death by poison from such delay as would occur in transmission. The Professor of Medical Jurisprudence, considering the subject from all points, indicates much gain and little loss from the proposed plan. Dr. Nicholson notices, as Mr. Lyall does, the greater value of good judgment from a decomposed body than of a native doctor's evidence from a fresher corpse. He specifies the cases in which the signs of death would be most obscured by putrefaction, and says "even in such cases, by a careful examination, he (the Civil Surgeon) might gather some material to corroborate or negative the general evidence. Even if such evidence were very small, still it would, as a rule, be more reliable than that manufactured by the bulk of native doctors."

3. I do not hesitate therefore to recommend that an order be issued to the following effect :—

That it be the rule that in every district corpses be sent for examination to the sudder station.

That this rule be absolute in every case of suspicious death occurring within forty-eight hours' journey of a sudder station.

That the only exception to be made be the cases of sub-divisions in charge of Assistant Surgeons at greater distances than this from sudder station.

That all persons concerned be made clearly to understand their duty by an order to be issued by the Magistrate to each sub-divisional officer in his district, laying down the course he is to follow in future, the Magistrate being guided as to the terms of his order by the above conditions.

4. Mr. Lyall's remarks on the neglect of post-mortems by Civil Surgeons are, I fear, generally true—vide paragraph 9 of my letter to your address, No. 3919, dated 25th August 1881. I can find no justification for this laxity in any existing orders. Medical subordinates are authorized by Government to examine bodies under certain circumstances at sub-divisions, but there is no sanction for a subordinate at a sudder station taking this duty from a Civil Surgeon unless there be special reason for his doing so. In some cases a person sent to a sudder dispensary by the police has died there, and the subordinate in charge has been left to make the post-mortem examination. This is wrong, but it is probably the foundation on which the system of delegating the duty has been built, for a Civil Surgeon has no assistant or deputy to whom he can rightly assign any portion of his own proper work. I recommend that a stringent order be issued to the effect that every corpse examined for judicial purposes be examined by the Civil Surgeon in person, and that the report be written by him. He may, if he choose, be assisted by the subordinate attached to his jail or police hospital, or, if the death have taken place in the dispensary, by the subordinate attached to the dispensary, or even by any other subordinate he may prefer; but the examination and the report should be the Civil Surgeon's own work. He should regard it as one of his most important duties, to be set aside on no plea of other official work, nor on any plea but that of absence, of illness in himself, or of a case of other illness so severe that humanity forbids him to leave it even for a short time. When the case comes on for trial, the presiding officer of the court, with the Civil Surgeon's report before him, may summon that officer to give evidence, or, if he think fit, may content himself with the evidence of a subordinate regarding the examination. There is no district in Bengal where attendance in court can be regarded as a heavy burden on the Civil Surgeon, except the 24-Pergunnahs, and here the quantity of work required from that officer does demand that he be exempted from attendance in court so far as may be consistent with the ends of justice. I am sure of general concurrence in saying that medical officers receive already the utmost consideration from the judiciary in this respect, from the High Court of Calcutta downwards.

5. I have probably treated the subject of your reference at greater length, and in greater detail, than the Lieutenant-Governor intended. Its importance is my reason for this, and my conviction that if the Inspector-General of Police had not now brought it before the Government, I must have done so myself in full detail at no distant date.

Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table—"Prof. papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 1·0.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The falling off in the receipts during month is due to the following causes—

1. Wheat—not much demand for it, as the market rates are very low.
2. The demands for building materials, including bamboos, both for Government and private purposes, not being great, there was very little traffic carried on under this head as compared to this month last year.

C. W. Odling,
Under-Secy. to the Government of Bengal,
P. W. Dept.

Calcutta,
The 22nd March 1883.

Report on Traffic of the East Indian Railway during three weeks and 6 days ending 27th January 1883.

THE approximate figures for the period are as follow :—

	Coaching.		Goods.		Total.	Materials carried on Revenue account, including maintenance.
	No.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.
1883	729,510	9,47,340	65,12,463	23,31,335	32,78,725	27,70,558	99,473
1882	1,111,520	19,38,961	71,15,218	27,27,605	46,66,566	18,26,479	61,117
Increase	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	9,44,079	38,356
Decrease	382,010	9,91,621	6,02,755	3,96,220	13,87,841	.....	.....

Showing decreases of—34 per cent. in number of passenger.

51 „ in coaching receipts.
8 „ in weight of goods carried.
14 „ in goods receipts.
29 „ in total earnings.

The decrease in the coaching traffic, as compared with 1882, is, as may be surmised, due to the extraordinary number of third class passengers who attended the Magh Méla at Allahabad in 1882.

GOODS.

There are no unusual features to report on as affecting the month which has passed.
The principal variations of increase and decrease in staples are as follow ;—

INCREASES.

Coal, down.	Salt.
Piece-goods.	Saltpetre.
Roots.	Stone.

DECREASES.

Coal, upwards.	Other grain.
Cotton.	Iron.
Ghee and oil.	Jaggree.
Rice.	Opium.
Wheat.	Seeds.

Coal, downwards ... ... Mds. 2,89,060 Rs. 39,350
This traffic continues in a brisk state.

Piece-goods ... ... Mds. 19,050 Rs. 27,990
The following statement illustrates the principal stations of export and import, and the result of the month's traffic :—

Piece-goods from Howrah and Bombay during January 1883 and 1882.

From	1883.		1882.		Increase.		Decrease.
	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.
Howrah	83,942	1,16,146	70,621	90,851	13,321	25,295	.....	.....	Principally to Gya, Dinapore, Caragola, Bhagulpore, Cawnpore viâ Barh Ghat, viâ Dildarnagar, Delhi, and viâ Ghazabad.
Viâ Jabbulpore	18,481	14,973	12,345	10,177	6,136	4,796	.....	.....	Principally from Bombay to Cawnpore.
Total ...	1,02,423	1,31,119	82,966	1,01,028	19,457	30,091	.....	.....

Salt ... ... Mds. 41,070 Rs. 11,790
Despatches from Howrah have greatly improved, as have those viâ Delhi. On the other hand the quantity carried viâ Agra, Sindia State, has fallen off owing to the closing of the Government Salt depôt at Agra Cantonment.

Saltpetre ... ... Mds. 14,750 Rs. 4,030
A moderate demand in Calcutta has led to increased despatches chiefly for export to Great Britain.

Stone ... ... Mds. 23,580 Rs. 5,050
The trade at Mirzapore has received an impetus owing to more favourable freights for despatchers having been introduced.

DECREASES.

Coal, upwards ... ... Mds. 89,050 Rs. 69,950
The falling off is at Sitarampore, Barakar, and Giridhi, and is attributed to less demands from Foreign Railways

Cotton ... ... Mds. 1,16,250 Rs. 1,53,360
Although prices have been excessively low in Calcutta, the absence of demand from Europe has put a stop to business.

Ghee and oil ... ... Mds. 10,690 Rs. 16,090
This is probably a fluctuation only.

Rice ... ... Mds. 89,930 Rs. 63,990
This traffic has been normal during the period.

Wheat ... ... Mds. 2,52,330 Rs. 89,710
Absence of good enquiry from the Home markets has affected the movement of this cereal.

Other grains ... ... Mds. 1,83,190 Rs. 52,639
A considerable traffic was going forward in 1882 from Cawnpore and viâ Cawnpore to the districts between Cawnpore and Aligarh in millets, while there is no pressing demand this year.

Iron ... ... Mds. 7,220 Rs. 12,020
This is chiefly in iron carried at 2nd class rates.

Jaggree ... ... Mds. 1,38,610 Rs. 48,620
This article was in good demand last year.

Opium ... ... Mds. 17,500 Rs. 19,320
Less despatches made by the Government Opium Department.

Seeds ... ... Mds. 39,130 Rs. 14,630
The previously large despatches moderated.

The train mileage for the period has been, excluding maintenance and locomotive coal train mileage—

URBAN BROUGHTON, Offg. Traffic Manager.

Report on the Fluctuations in Traffic on the Northern Bengal State Railway for the month of February 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.

THE results of the month's working again show a very marked increase under several heads of traffic. The gross weight lifted of all staples stand at 4,95,607, being an increase of no less than 1,74,811 maunds or 54 49 per cent. over the traffic carried for the same month last year.

INCREASES.

Ginger ... ... Mds. 20

This is a mere trade fluctuation.

Gunny-bags ... ... Mds. 11,679

The remarks made in previous reports still hold good.

Jute ... ... Mds. 1,63,352

A firm Calcutta market has led to shippers placing large quantities, and hence this increase. This traffic now shows signs of declining, and after March it is probable that a reaction will set in.

Railway material ... ... Mds. 74,520

Materials for the Dinagepore branch and locomotive coal make up this increase.

Salt ... ... Mds. 8,127

As anticipated in last month's report, the falling off therein recorded was only temporary.

Tea ... ... Mds. 157

The season for this article is now over.

DECREASES.

Ale ... ... Mds. 921

Despatches for the convalescent depôt at Darjeeling have not yet commenced.

Food-grain ... ... Mds 9,879

The unusually heavy stock held in Calcutta, and the low prices ruling for this article, has had the effect of depressing this traffic.

Piece-goods ... ... Mds. 4,030

Local markets must now be fully stocked for the spring.

Sugar ... ... Mds. 1,294

The despatches of this staple are entirely for local consumption. From enquiries made, it appears that the local manufacture of sugar has increased and will ultimately replace imports of this article.

Tobacco ... ... Mds. 4,141

The absence of demand for export and the end of the season will explain this falling off.

All other goods ... ... Mds. 57,779

The decrease under this head continues and will probably be met by corresponding increases later on.

TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE; Saidpur, the 14th March 1883.

G. S. LEONARD, Traffic Superintendent.

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Tirhoot State Railway for the month of February 1883.

THE total quantity of goods carried during the month of February 1883 aggregated maunds 2,95,758 as compared with maunds 3,12,863 carried during the corresponding period of 1882, and maunds 3,09,000 carried during the previous month, showing a decrease of maunds 17,105 and maunds 13,242 respectively.

Of the several increases and decreases, the following are the most prominent ones and worthy of special notice:—

INCREASES.

Hides and Horns ... ... Mds. 6,866

This increase is on account of the favourable rate ruling at present in the Calcutta market.

Piece-goods ... ... Mds. 12,102

This increase is due to the approaching Hindoo marriage season.

Railway materials ... ... Mds. 18,638

The increase under this head has been explained in last month's report.

Salt ... ... Mds. 13,017

Prices were favourable during the month, but with an upward tendency; hence this increase, buyers being anxious to take advantage of the present favourable rates.

Saltpetre ... ... Mds. 1,774

This increase is a nominal one as the rates were easier and the market dull.

Seeds ... ... Mds. 39,258

Most part of the quantity shown under this head is made up of Indigo seed for factories on the extensions of this railway. There was also a moderate demand in Calcutta for oilseeds.

DECREASES.

Coal ... ... Mds. 34,339

The decrease under this head is due to all the coal for construction having been carried.

Food-grains ... ... Mds. 5,141

This being chiefly local traffic, the decrease is owing to the new wheat crop having just been harvested, and the demand having consequently decreased.

Indigo ... ... Mds. 5,347

The despatches this year were not spread over such a long period as in other years, larger quantities being carried at one time.

Lime and kunker ... ... Mds. 17,337

The most part of this traffic is composed of kunkur from Gunduck siding and Bilaspur to Durbhanga for road cess and the new civil buildings; as the latter are approaching completion, the demand for these staples has decreased.

Increase. Mds.

Edible grain ... 2,934

The increase is due to good crop in this part of the country.

Coal ... 3,727

Less quantity of coal was imported during last month, and hence the increase during this month.

Silk and silk clothes ... 654

The discontinuance of the steamer service between Rampore Beaulia and Saraghat has diverted the traffic to this railway.

Seeds ... 826

Local demand of mustard seeds.

Decrease.

Salt ... 2,722

This has taken river route this year. Last year large quantity of salt took the rail for want of water in the river.

Sundries ... 778

Less quantity of potatoes has been imported this year on account of high rate at the exporting station.
